PREFACE

How do we get our ideas?

The kind of thinking that distinguishes man from brute has been built up by and is dependent upon the use of symbols. Since vocal utterance attained a higher development than gesture as a means of communication, these symbols are, in fact, the words. Animals, to be sure, have cries which in some cases cover a very considerable range of emotions and to a certain extent serve to communicate. But these are limited to the immediate experience: they are not detachable symbols capable of expressing past or future experience or any abstract concept. Yet such cries, which comprise all that primitive man inherited from his ancestry, must perforce be the starting-point of human speech. Primitive man, with his more highly developed brain, gained an awareness of a connection between the sound and something expressed by it. With this step taken, a nucleus provided, and doubtless aided by gesture, human speech progressed and in turn became the dominant factor in man's further mental growth. That is, we have the spiral development: superior brain (there is, of course, a "why?" to this too) > primitive human speech > organized conceptual thought. Any more detailed picture of the process, of the much discussed "origin of language", we shall never have. The relatively brief period of recorded speech is separated by a vast interval from the beginnings of human speech—far beyond the reach of the historical-comparative method. Nor are we further concerned here with this remote problem.

The history of ideas is embodied in the history of the words used to express them. Whether the 'idea', 'notion', 'concept', or 'mental image' (I shall commonly use the innocuous 'notion') is, as many believe, only an abstraction (the concrete object or the uttered and heard sound of the word being the only realities), or whether it corresponds to some reality in the brain (as an eminent neurologist has assured me he thinks quite tenable), need not concern us. For its close dependence upon its verbal expression is beyond dispute. It is a pattern of reaction answering to a given stimulus, which (apart from the actual perception of an individual concrete object, which also suggests the general notion) is normally the word or group of words. It is this pattern of reaction which constitutes the meaning of a word. A word means what it refers to, in a given context or situation. The meaning of a word as a whole may be a composite of various allied applications.

In a limited number of words for certain concrete notions the meaning has remained virtually constant for thousands of years, as, for example, those for the numerals and for close family relationship like 'father', 'mother', etc. But such cases are the exception. Change is the rule—sometimes so radical that, without the connecting links, one would be at a loss to see any relation between the earliest known and the latest use. The meaning of most words is not a fixed point, but an area of variable dimensions. It is subject to complex associations, some of them inevitable associations of universal scope, others originating in some particular verbal context, external situation, or among a special social or occupational class.

Any such association leads to the so-called "occasional" special meanings, like stone as used by a jeweler = precious stone, or the diverse uses of play. But such an occasional use may spread until it becomes the dominant one, as in the case of deer, originally an 'animal' (like NHG tier, etc.), and doubtless first used in its present sense by hunters, as the favorite animal of the hunt.

The associations underlying semantic changes are so complex that no rigid classification of the latter is possible. Many changes may be variously viewed. In a sense, each word has its individual semantic history. Nevertheless, there are certain types which it is convenient to recognize.

The two most general types are generalization or extension vs. specialization or restriction. Generalization, as in barn etymologically 'barley-place' whence storehouse for any grain or farm produce (now even carbarn), mill originally 'machine for grinding' (corn, etc.), and all words of such broad application as do, get, go, thing. Specialization, as in deer (see above), hound, originally any 'dog' (like NHG hund), sermon from Lat. sermō 'discourse' specialized in church writings. The history of a given word may show successively a specialization and generalization from a new center, as starve from 'die' (as NHG sterben) to 'die of hunger' to 'suffer from hunger'. But this classification is from one point of view only, that of scope. There are many other more specific types of shift within certain associated groups.

Commonplace is the figurative use of words like head, foot, mouth, without reference to parts of the body. Such use is, of course, not a rhetorical or poetical device, except in unfamiliar and hence striking figures, but a feature of ordinary speech everywhere.

Widespread is the interchange of application between space and time, as in long, short; between size and quantity, as in small, little; between quantity and number, as in all (all day vs. all men) and the frequent expression by forms of the same word of 'whole' and 'all', of 'much' and 'many', of 'little' and 'few'. In such groups one or the other application may become dominant, as in brief normally used with reference to time vs. its source Lat. brevis 'short' in both senses. Or there may be extensions or shifts. Thus Lat. paucus, usually pl. paucī 'few', was in Vulgar Latin extended to cover

'little' in quantity (hence It. poco, Fr. peu, etc.) at the expense of parvus, which itself had covered 'small' in size and 'little' in quantity.

Material and product. The name of a material is applied to some special product and persists in that sense. The name of the papyrus plant is the source of the most widespread words for 'paper', unaffected by the successive changes in the material used. Most of the words for 'pen' reflect the old quill pen, being derived from Lat. penna or other words for 'feather'. Similarly, in many other cases. The converse is much less common, but is seen in rubber as material named after its early and now insignificant use in rubbing out pencil marks, in graphite (from Grk. γράφω 'write') after its use for pencils. In general, in studying the history of words for material objects like implements, mechanical devices, etc. one must always take into consideration the evolution of the things themselves. Thus many of the words for 'lock' and 'key' reflect the primitive devices of bar and peg.

Words for thought processes or emotions are, all theoretically and a great many demonstrably, based upon indicative physical acts or conditions. Thus 'understand' from 'seize, grasp', or 'stand on or under'; 'forget' from 'lose'; 'fear' from 'trembling'; 'anger' and some other emotions from physical 'agitation'.

Extension or transfer from one to another sense perception—linguistic "synasthesia". The widespread group of cognate words to which sweet belongs was doubtless applied primarily to taste but also commonly to smell and hearing (sweet voice, sweet sound), while the Greek and Latin cognates were still further extended to 'pleasant' and mostly replaced by others for the sense perception. Obvious extensions are seen in warm colors, loud colors, sharp taste, etc. Lat. clārus, connected with verbs for 'call, cry out', must have been first used with reference to hearing ('clear voice') but was applied equally to sight ('clear night'). A nearly complete transfer is seen in OHG hel used only of sound 'clear, loud' vs. NHG hell usually of sight 'clear, bright'.

Interchange between subjective and objective or personal and impersonal. This is seen in words for sense perception, as I taste, smell vs. it tastes, smells (in some languages differentiated), or emotion, as sad of persons but also sad news, and many others. Several words for 'safe, sure', or 'difficult' were first used only of persons ('without care, anxiety'; 'hard to please') and only secondarily of things. The old form of fear denoted the objective 'danger', hence the emotion which it excited.

Various miscellaneous extensions or transfers are due to a similarity of condition or result or some natural sequence. 'Green' and 'unripe' usually coincide, though, to repeat a phrase often quoted, blackberries are red when they are green. This use of green is felt as secondary; yet in origin the color word itself, derived from the root of grow, was based on the color of growing vegetation. What 'seems good, is pleasing' implies approval and may give rise to legal terms for voting approval. The lack of anything may lead to the more urgent 'need, necessity', or 'distress', or sometimes to the resulting 'wish' for something, as shown in the history of want as noun and as verb (it wants = it lacks, then he wants it, he wants to do it).

An important factor in the history of many words is their emotional value, which may vary according to time and circumstance and may show itself in the tone of utterance. Words may be used in a "good sense" or a "bad sense". Or one or the other sense may become dominant. Words for 'old' have a highly emotional value, sometimes friendly, affectionate, sometimes derogatory, abusive. Our old man is generally friendly; but in modern Greek the compound meaning literally 'old man' denotes a 'scoundrel', and that for 'old woman' a 'common woman, prostitute'. Words for 'woman', also highly emotional, may rise to 'wife' or even 'king's wife, queen', or may sink to 'hussy' (hussy also originally 'housewife') and 'prostitute' (cf. queen and quean). A Polish word, related to one for 'mare' and first used as a derogatory epithet, is now the regular word for 'woman' without trace of derogatory feeling. A certain group of cognates contains words for the opposites 'reward' and 'penalty', based on a neutral 'requital'. The movement in one or the other direction, up or down, is known technically as "(a)meliorative" vs. "pejorative" development, the former as in knight originally 'servant' (like NHG knecht), nice once 'foolish, stupid' (from Lat. nescius 'ignorant'), etc.; the latter in knave originally 'boy, servant' (like NHG knabe), stink originally 'have a smell' good or bad, etc.

Further examples of semantic change, of the types just mentioned, will be found in great numbers in the body of this work—and many others characteristic of particular groups. For example, in the history of words for domestic animals the conspicuous feature is the frequent interchange between classes of the same species, as when words of the same cognate group denote in different languages 'bull', 'ox', or 'cow', and in another species 'ram, wether', or 'lamb', or show a shift from 'wether', through an intermediate generic use, to 'ewe'.

"Semantic borrowing" refers to the borrowing not of the formal word but of some special meaning. There are, of course, great numbers of actual loanwords, some in Greek from pre-Greek sources, many in Latin from Greek, still more in most of the European languages from Latin or in many cases more specifically from French; again from early Germanic and later from German in Balto-Slavic and from Slavic in Rumanian. But besides these there are "translation words". A special use of a familiar foreign word was adopted for the usually corresponding native word. Thus Lat. nāvis 'ship' came to be used in Christian times for the 'nave' of a church; and, while we have borrowed the word itself in this special sense, the Germans borrowed this sense for their native schiff. In Rumanian the inherited word for 'light' (from Lat. lūmen) is also the regular word for 'world', owing to the fact that in Slavic the same word covers both notions. Grk. πτῶσις 'fall' became, through the notion of 'modification', the grammatical term for 'case' and was faithfully rendered by Lat. cāsus 'fall'. Nearly all our grammatical terminology rests on such Latin translations of Greek terms. This semantic borrowing is widespread, obvious in many cases. But where a given secondary use is so natural that it might easily arise independently, there is room for doubt; and some of the examples generally cited are, in fact, doubtful or even definitely to be rejected on chronological grounds.

Words not only change in meaning, they may be lost outright, displaced by others. Why? There is no one answer. Of the various alleged causes, each has some validity as a factor but is likely to be exaggerated by one whose attention is riveted on it in a hunt for examples. The existence of homonyms may favor the loss of one of them, as the verb let 'hinder' (cf. the noun in the old phrase let or hindrance and let in tennis) vs. let 'permit'. Phonetic changes which have left little body to the word no doubt favored the partial displacement of Lat. dare, diēs, apis, avis by dōnāre, diurnum, apicula, avicellus in the evolution of the Romance words. But the great number of homonyms in English, and monosyllabic at that, shows that neither of these factors is a compelling cause.

"Taboo", now used in linguistics to denote the avoidance of words believed to be of ill omen or improper (but many of the latter have proved notably persistent in actual speech), is another factor, the importance of which in our group of languages it is difficult to estimate. It has been frequently invoked, for example, as the cause of the loss in some languages of the old words for 'bear' and some other animal names but never for the much more widespread loss of the old word for 'horse' (3.41).

Somewhat allied to taboo is the dualism of vocabulary in the Avesta, where, for example, there are two words for 'son', both with equally respectable cognates in Sanskrit, one used with reference to good beings (the Ahurian world), the other only of evil beings (the Daevic world).

Loss of words due to the substitution of those of another language is illustrated on the largest scale (except for the extreme case where the whole language is replaced, like Gallic by Vulgar Latin) by the history of English. A considerable part of the Old English vocabulary was permanently lost in favor of French words in the centuries following the Norman Conquest. In Rumanian too, owing to the historical conditions, much of the inherited Latin vocabulary was replaced by Slavic words, though partially restored by literary neologisms.

Very often the loss of words is due to the simple fact that what were at first colloquial or even slang words gained increasing currency until they superseded the old standard words. Thus Lat. loquī 'speak' disappeared without trace in the Romance languages, being replaced at first by a colloquial word which is attested from the time of Plautus on. Lat. caput 'head' was in many regions replaced (in the literal sense) by testa 'potsherd', whence first 'skull' and then 'head' (Fr. tête, etc.). Old words for 'eat' have often been replaced by others meaning originally 'chew, chaw', 'gnaw, nibble', or the like.

Semantic word study may proceed from two opposite points of view, form or meaning. For example, one may study the history of Lat. dīcere 'say' and its cognates in Latin, or, with enlarged scope, its cognates in all the Indo-European languages; in other words the diverse uses of derivatives of the Indo-European root deik̂-* and its probable primary sense. Such is the material brought together in the etymological dictionaries of the usual type. Conversely, one may start from the notion 'say' and study the history of words used to express it in different languages. Even for those who regard the notion as an abstraction (see above), there can, of course, be no objection to taking it as a convenient center. By the study of synonyms, their etymology and semantic history, one seeks to show the various sources of a given notion, the trails of its evolution. With some notable exceptions (as numerals, 'father', 'mother', etc. and some others), a group of synonyms has little resemblance to a group of formal cognates such as we find in the etymological dictionaries. The disparity, though less, is considerable within the Romance languages, or the Germanic, or even the Celtic and Slavic. Hence this type of investigation, besides its mainly semantic character and the purpose of revealing the linguistic sources of a given notion, also presents an interesting picture of word distribution.

A constantly increasing number of journal articles, dissertations, and other monographs have dealt with particular groups of synonyms in special fields —a few of them in a non-Indo-European family like Semitic or Finno-Ugrian, most of them in Indo-European or some branch of it, like the Romance or the Germanic languages. Such monographs furnish some of the stones for building a more comprehensive structure. But they are scattered, they cover only a small number of even the commonest notions, and some are written on such a grand scale (running to hundreds of pages; e.g. on words for 'child', 'boy', 'girl' in the Romance languages 426 pages, in Old English 271 pages) as to be unwieldy for use without the most severe trimming. A "Dictionary of Ideas" (a title that would suggest to laymen the point of such study) in a truly comprehensive sense (history of words for all ideas in all known languages) is, of course, an idle dream. Even for the Indo-European field anything like a complete semantic dictionary is beyond probable realization at present.

Yet some more modest form of synthesis has seemed to me, even now, possible and worth while. In announcing the project many years ago, in Language 5(1929).215 ff., it was proposed to collect and study about a thousand groups of synonyms. Actually the number in the present work goes somewhat beyond this.

The principal Indo-European languages are covered. Some of the minor Indo-European languages, as Albanian, Armenian, and all modern forms of Indic and Iranian, are excluded from the survey, except for incidental mention, since to include them systematically would increase the labor out of all proportion to the results added. Danish, with which Norwegian agrees in large measure, and Swedish are taken as representative of the modern Scandinavian languages, though thus one may miss certain interesting divergences in word preference between Danish and Norwegian and the more frequent persistence of the Old Norse words in Modern Icelandic. Of the Romance languages, Portuguese is omitted as generally going with Spanish in vocabulary, though here, too, occasional differences are missed or only incidentally noted. There is no room to follow out the chronological and geographical distribution of Romance words on the elaborate scale which is customary and fitting in monographs in that field. Of the important Slavic languages, the (modern) Bulgarian is omitted, the words generally going with those quoted under either Church Slavic or Serbo-Croatian. Under Church Slavic are given preference the genuine Old Church Slavic (Old Bulgarian) words, especially from the Gospels, where such are quotable, but not to the exclusion of others which are (in part accidentally) quotable only from later times. The latter are sometimes marked "late", but probably without consistency. As is well known, Miklosich's Lexicon is full of late forms that are merely Serbian, etc. in Church Slavic dress, and conversely fails sometimes to give early quotations for words occurring in the best records. In this regard, Jagić's Entstehungsgeschichte der kirchenslavischen Sprache, with its indexes, is of inestimable value, though even this at times fails to answer the questions that arise. Since the quotable Old Irish vocabulary is too limited to serve, Old and Middle Irish forms are generally given without distinction and both marked as Ir. (as in Pedersen's Vergleichende Grammatik der keltischen Sprachen and elsewhere), while the modern forms are marked NIr. But under Welsh and Breton are given the modern forms, with special designation of the Old or Middle. Cornish words, which generally go with the Breton or Welsh or both, are not included in the list but often in the discussion, especially those quotable from the old Latin-Cornish vocabulary.

The difficulties involved in a project of this kind are perhaps less apparent to the layman than to the specialist. In gathering the raw material, preparing the lists, the matter is rarely so simple as turning up the pages of dictionaries or asking a native speaker "What is your word for so-and-so?"

The familiar difficulties which assail the author of a two-language dictionary are here vastly multiplied. For if it is true even of word comparisons between two languages, how much more so of those between twenty-odd, that the words are only roughly synonymous. They do not often coincide in all their applications; they rarely cover quite the same ground. Wholly valid are only the equations of words in a particular application, attested by specific fully equivalent phrases. Such tests must be made, and at least lie beneath the surface in all our work. But to insist on this as a principle of arrangement would be a counsel of perfection that would so complicate matters as to wreck any comprehensive project. Furthermore, the combination of applications may be so nearly the same for different languages that they are best united under one head, with indication, where required, of differentiation. Only from a study of the material in a given case can one decide, and then often doubtfully, whether it is better to combine it in one group or break it up into several. The difficulties and complications of this kind are illustrated in the discussion of words for 'world' and for 'earth and land'.

The words given in the lists are intended to be the most usual expressions of the given notion in the accepted written and spoken language. To try to include all obsolete and dialectal forms would be folly, though such as come to one's attention and offer interesting parallels in semantic development may be mentioned. The specialist in any given language will always find facts of pertinent interest to supply. We have used the best available dictionaries, but only those with extensive citation of phrases are satisfactory, and for some of the languages covered there are no such. For nearly all the modern languages quoted the words have been supplied or reviewed by native speakers. But even so, owing partly to local and social differences, informants may differ as to what is the best current term. A good old word may be familiar to one but quite unknown to another. Shall it be entered in the list or omitted as obsolete? The choice is particularly difficult in the case of languages that are just now undergoing a new standardization, like Lithuanian and Modern Greek. Many of the Lithuanian words given by Kurschat, representing the Prussian Lithuanian of his time, are not those preferred in the present standard, which was more nearly anticipated by Lalis. I have relied chiefly on the Niedermann, Senn, and Brender, so far as it has appeared, Senn's Kleine Litauische Sprachlehre, and Hermann's Litauisch-Deutsches Gesprächsbüchlein; also, in many cases, on direct information from Professor Senn.

For Modern Greek the words of most interest are those of the spoken language (δημοτική) and the new literary type based thereon. But many ancient or medieval words that have come down in the literary tradition to the καθαρεύουσα and are still considerably used, beside others more colloquial, are also cited. No native Greek, much less myself, though I have considerable first-hand familiarity with the present spoken and written language, can draw any hard and fast rule.

Classification. The arrangement of word lists by subjects is an old story. Not to mention the "determinatives" or "classifiers" of Sumerian, Chinese, etc., there were in the Indo-European field many such Greek glossaries culminating in the Ὀνομαστικά of Pollux, likewise in Latin (for the Greek and Latin works of this type, cf. Pauly-Wissowa, s.v. Onomastikon), the Sanskrit Amarakoça (all the native glossaries were more or less of this type), similarly Latin–Old English (as Aelfric's Vocabulary), Latin–Old High German (as Heinrici Summarium), Latin-Cornish (the Cottonian Vocabulary), German–Old Prussian, etc. In modern times there have been numerous dictionaries of the leading European languages known variously as 'analogical', 'analytical', 'ideological', 'methodical', 'synthetic', 'topical'; and, the best known and imitated, Roget's Thesaurus. Of all these, no two, apart from direct imitations, will agree in the order or classification. For example, Pollux thought proper to begin with the gods (so in many other lists), passing to man (with the parts of the body), relationship, science and art, hunting, meals, trades, law, town organization, utensils. Aelfric began with agricultural tools, passing to men (by office or craft), diseases, law, insects, vessels, drinks, birds, plants, trees, arms, winds, cereals, clothes, physical world, parts of the body, colors. But actually all sorts of miscellaneous items are mixed in. In Roget's Thesaurus the parallelism of opposites and some of the minor subdivisions may be convenient. But the main groups and larger subdivisions are so comprehensive as to have no obvious coherence. What may one not find under Motion (e.g. eat, food) or Volition (e.g. clean)! The fact is, of course, that relations are too complex to admit any truly scientific and complete classification (cf. the remark of Jespersen, Philosophy of Grammar 34); and, even if such were possible, it would have little relation to our instinctive associations.

Yet, because the ideal is hopeless, to abandon all such classification would be to sacrifice the obvious advantages of a semantic grouping (cf. e.g. Jost Trier, Der deutsche Wortschatz im Zinnbezirk des Verstandes. Die Geschichte eines sprachlichen Feldes; also Wartburg, Z. rom. Ph. 57.297 ff.) in the many cases where this is feasible. Accordingly, the arrangement will be by semantically congeneric groups, like Parts of the Body, Food and Drink, Clothing, Dwelling, Sense Perceptions, Emotions, Quantity and Number, etc.—but with some recourse to Miscellaneous. The particular order and classification adopted is not copied from others, but no remarkable merit is claimed for it. Like any other, it will be an easy mark for criticism. There will be much that is frankly arbitrary, both in the classification and in the selection of synonyms to be included. A notion which, taken by itself, looks absurd under a given chapter heading may be included because of its relations to another that does clearly belong there, e.g. under Emotion, 'danger' because of its relation to 'fear', or 'good fortune' which leads to 'happiness'. Many a heading in a given chapter might equally well be put in another, e.g. 'swift' under Time or Motion. Any infelicities of grouping will not be a serious drawback to use, for an alphabetical index according to the English words will be a necessary complement.

The uneven size of the chapters is mostly what might be expected but is partly somewhat arbitrary. For example, if chapter 4 is disproportionately long, it may be for no better reason than that the Parts of the Body form such a neat distinctive class that one is constantly tempted to further inclusions. Yet most of these words have developed such a wealth of secondary uses that their importance is multiplied.

Etymologies. Only those that are reasonably obvious and certain give genuine satisfaction. The specialist can recognize these, and at the same time is aware of how large a proportion of the current etymologies, even in most of the best etymological dictionaries, are uncertain, with varying degrees of probability or plausibility. The layman, unacquainted with matters of phonetic correspondence and other refinements, cannot distinguish the gold from the dross. To him the certain etymologies may look uncannily difficult, and the doubtful or even untenable the easiest. I have considered giving only the more certain etymologies, using "etym. unknown", "origin obscure", or the like, even more freely than I have, which would have resulted in the saving of much labor and space. Yet, on the whole, it has seemed best not to be ultra-conservative but to record, with reservations, many of the less certain etymologies. The notations "perhaps", "probably", "possibly", etc. reflect my subjective reaction at the time of writing, and not any rigid system of gradation.

The standard etymological dictionaries and the journals are of course consulted; but to save space the references are, in large measure, concentrated on the Walde-Pokorny, Vergleichendes Wörterbuch der indogermanischen Sprachen (cited as Walde-P.), where earlier discussions (up to about 1927) are cited. In many cases my tacit agreement applies only to the immediate grouping on the page cited, and not necessarily to the much wider and more doubtful grouping under the whole heading. The uncertainty and speculation which are often involved in the grouping under roots and root extensions (which, as the layman should understand, are only convenient abstractions of elements common to groups of actual words) are well known. The other etymological dictionaries are cited mainly for words characteristic of particular branches, as Falk-Torp, Norwegisch-dänisches etymologisches Wörterbuch, for Germanic, REW (Meyer-Lübke) for Romance, Berneker, Slavisches etymologisches Wörterbuch, for Slavic, etc. But Ernout-Meillet, Dictionnaire étymologique de la langue latine (Ernout-M.), is cited with greater frequency. For, apart from its notable excellence for the interrelations of Latin words and their semantic development, it represents an independent attitude, with notable differences from the views favored in the Walde-Pokorny. It is conservative in regard to many current etymologies—indeed, in my judgment, ultra-conservative at times, rejecting some connections that appear to me beyond reasonable doubt (as of Grk. θυμός with Lat. fūmus, etc., where the semantic relation, from a common physical notion of 'agitation', is as easy as that between Grk. ἄνεμος and Lat. animus, anima)—and conversely even daring in some new proposals. Walde-Hofmann, Lateinisches etymologisches Wörterbuch (Walde-H.), is also often cited for matters other than Latin, since its references are the most recent.

The criticism may be anticipated that I have held too closely to the factual and said little of the causes of semantic change and the loss of words. And it is true that, apart from the remarks above, I have, in fact, generally preferred to leave it to others to add, if they like, a given case to their collections in support of their favorite theses.

Similarly in regard to areal word distribution. No doubt, there are several significant instances of agreement in peripheral areas, e.g. in the Romance field between Spanish-Portuguese and Rumanian, or in the Indo-European field between Italic, Celtic, and Indo-Iranian. Some of these are clearly inherited words, preserved in contrast to innovations spreading in the central area. But the exponents of "areal linguistics" (an expansion of the more factual "linguistic geography") appear to me to overrate the validity of their "norms" ("marginal, central, isolated") and to indulge in rash inferences therefrom as to what constitutes an archaism and what an innovation. Thus for 'fire' (1.81) the group represented by Lat. ignis, etc. (Lat., Balto-Slavic, Skt.) is claimed as older than that of the more widespread group, Grk. πῦρ, NE fire, etc. (Grk., Osc.-Umbr., Gmc., Arm., Toch., Hitt.) because the former is in the marginal group. Both are inherited, doubtless with some original but lost difference of aspect. It is still more perverse to say that for 'water' (1.31) Lat. aqua (which has Germanic cognates in the sense of running water, esp. 'river', and perhaps in some Tocharian and Hittite verbs, but only in Latin is the regular word for 'water') is older than the group represented by Grk. ὕδωρ, NE water, etc. (Grk., Umbr., Ir., Gmc., Balto-Slavic, Skt., Hitt.) with its typical archaic r/n type. Actually, instances of agreement in vocabulary (as in phonology and morphology) may be found between any two and almost any combination of the main Indo-European branches, and it is best to let the facts speak for themselves in each case.

The work has been carried on with the kindly co-operation of colleagues and with the help of paid assistance, provided for out of the research grant of the General Education Board to the University of Chicago. Sir William Craigie, while in Chicago, was always generous in opening his store of knowledge of the Old Norse and English vocabulary. For the Romance languages I have pestered with queries virtually all my colleagues, past and present, in that field—Altrocchi, Borgese, Bullock, Castillo, David, Jenkins, Keniston, Korominas, Merrill, Norman, Parmenter, Rowland, Treviño, Vigneron, and Wartburg; also Professor Siever (a Rumanian, formerly a graduate student in our Romance department) for Rumanian. For Sanskrit, Professor Clark (in the first chapter) and later Professor Bobrinskoy have assisted. Father J. G. O'Neil, now of Maynooth College, Ireland, formerly a graduate student here in the Department of Classics, originally supplied the Modern Irish words, which were further revised by his colleague Professor O'Nolan; and through Father O'Neil's interest in the matter arrangements were made for the listing of the Old Irish words by Miss E. Knott under the supervision of her teacher, Professor O. Bergin. These Irish lists have been of great service in a difficult field, but it is only fair to say that (partly owing to changes or refinements in the headings themselves) many changes have been made and that much of the critical work on Irish, as for Celtic in general, has been done by Professor G. S. Lane. Professors T. P. Cross and Myles Dillon have also been consulted on some questions of Irish usage. For Slavic, beside other informants, my past or present colleagues, Bobrinskoy, Nykl, Spinka, and Gelb, have been consulted for Russian, Bohemian, and Polish respectively. Professor Senn has answered many special inquiries on Lithuanian, often giving the precise history of neologisms in more detail than could be repeated here. That I have also, on occasion, consulted my colleagues in the departments of Greek, Latin, and the Germanic languages goes without saying.

For most of the other modern languages covered, various students or citizens of foreign birth have supplied or been consulted on the words of their respective mother-tongues.

Of the research assistants who supplied a first draft of etymological notes and references, either for particular linguistic fields or for particular chapters, G. S. Lane served for four years, working first on chapter 6, a part of which was published as a dissertation (Words for Clothing [1931]), and later on other chapters, with especial responsibility for Celtic and Germanic. Others who served for one year or more are J. J. Lund (chap. 9, part of which furnishes his dissertation [1932]), F. R. Preveden (especially for Balto-Slavic; also dissertation, The Vocabulary of Navigation in the Balto-Slavic Languages [1927, unpublished]), and F. T. Wood (for chaps. 4, 5, 7). It is impossible to separate their work from my revision, and I can give them credit only in this general way.

While I am thus indebted to all the above mentioned, there have been so many changes, even in the headings (relative to the precise notion intended), and so much has been re-written and re-written, that I must assume the responsibility for such errors as may be found in the word lists, as well as for the etymological judgments.

I am further indebted to Professors Bobrinskoy and Lane and Dr. Georgiacas for assistance in proofreading, in the course of which they have supplied several additions, and to the editor and readers of the University of Chicago Press for numerous helpful suggestions.

It is hoped that, with all its inevitable limitations, the omissions intentional or otherwise, and the errors of detail which may be pointed out by scholars in the special fields, the book may be found useful and worth while as a tentative and skeleton dictionary of synonyms.

ORTHOGRAPHY AND TRANSCRIPTION

The macron is used as the sign of vowel length, not only for Latin, etc., but likewise for Old English, Old Norse, Irish (instead of ′), and Lettic. But the customary ′ in Bohemian and Lith. ė = ē, y = ī are retained.

The sign of vowel length is employed in the case of the older languages (including Goth. ē, ō to conform to practice in other Germanic languages; but omitted for Sanskrit e, o; likewise usually omitted in Greek nouns of the first declension like χώρα, καρδία, the short α of the smaller class like μοῖρα, θάλασσα being shown by the accent) and some of the modern, as Irish (but omitted in Welsh and Breton), Lithuanian, and Lettic.

Word accentuation is generally indicated only where this is customary in the normal orthography, as in Greek and in particular Spanish words (Polish ′ in ó is not a sign of accent but of vowel quality as in the case of the French accent signs; likewise in the transcription of Oscan). Thus, for Sanskrit, Lithuanian, Lettic, and Serbo-Croatian the accent marks are omitted, as not essential for the purposes of this work.

The signs š (= NE sh) and ž (= NE z in azure, Fr. j.) are used for Lithuanian (formerly sz, ż), Lettic, Slavic, Iranian, Arabic, etc.

In reconstructed IE forms involving the different guttural series, k^w, g^w, g^wh are used for the labiovelars; k̂, ĝ, ĝh for the palatals; and plain k, g, gh both for the so-called "plain velars" (Grk. κρέας, Skt. kravis) and for others of indeterminate value.

The peculiar modification of the gutturals resulting in forms like Grk. τέκτων = Skt. takṣan-, since it is clearly not an independent phoneme (cf. esp. Benveniste, BSL 38.139 ff.), should properly be represented by a superior letter, e.g. $k^þ$, or $\hat{k}^s$ (Benveniste). Those who believe that the IE "voiced aspirates" are wrongly so called will nevertheless recognize bh, dh, etc. as the best-understood symbols for this third order of stops. Similarly, n̥̄, r̥̄, etc. are still employed as the most convenient symbols for those phonemes which, whatever their precise phonetic value, correspond to ī, ū in other series.

The laryngeals, so much discussed in recent years, are left out of account in the reconstructed IE forms. They concern, as even those who operate with them and at the same time reject the Indo-Hittite hypothesis should admit, a stage preceding that to which the comparison of the main IE languages, those formerly known, points. They belong to what might be called a Proto-IE stage, the forms of which deserve a double asterisk. For example, if the familiar IE dhē-* 'put' goes back to an earlier dhe* + a laryngeal, the contraction must have taken place before the separation of the main IE languages. That it took place independently in all the languages which show the simple long vowel (Grk., Lat., Gmc., Balto-Slavic, Indo-Iranian) is too much to believe.

But all such phonetic matters as the preceding are unimportant for the purpose of this work, where the reconstructed forms merely serve as convenient symbols for certain groupings. It should be further stated here that such reconstructed forms do not necessarily imply the actual existence of such a form in the IE period. In some cases they are merely the proper theoretical bases for certain limited sets of correspondence. Similarly, a reconstructed VLat. form need not imply its existence over the whole VLat.-speaking territory.

Albanian.—The new standardized orthography is followed.

Armenian.—Transcribed as in Hübschmann, Armenische Grammatik.

Avestan and Old Persian.—Transcribed as in Bartholomae, Altiran. Wörterbuch (including OPers. *θ*ʳ, although ç is preferable). Thus č, ǰ (not c, j as in Sanskrit) and x, γ for the guttural fricatives, and likewise for Modern Persian, etc.

Church Slavic.—Transcribed mostly as in Leskien, Altbulgarische Grammatik. But ꙗ, ѥ, ю, etc. are transcribed in the older fashion ja, je, ju (and so Russ. я, ю as ja, ju), instead of 'a, 'e, 'u, indicating the palatalization of the preceding consonant and strictly more correct (Leskien, op. cit. 37 ff.). The ъ and ь are transcribed ŭ and ĭ.

Danish.—The orthography of the Dansk Retskrivningsordbog (3d ed.) by J. Glahder (published by the Committee on Orthography of the Danish Ministry of Education) is followed.

Gothic.—The transcription hw, in accord with the OE, OHG, is preferred to the ligature ƕ; e, o marked long, ē, ō; diphthongal and monophthongal ai, au not distinguished.

Greek.—Forms quoted from inscriptions in the archaic alphabet are generally given in the familiar spelling with η, ω, ʽ.

Modern Greek (NG).—As between the historical spelling of the καθαρεύουσα and the phonetic spelling of writers in the δημοτική, I have generally used the latter in truly popular words, e.g. φτωχός 'poor', χτένι 'comb', with the normal development of πτ > φτ, κτ > χτ, σθ > στ, etc. (vs. e.g. λεπτόν 'minute' or 'centime', with pronounced πτ), or νύφη 'bride' vs. νύμφη 'nymph', or νερό 'water', vs. lit. words with the old ν of the neuter retained. But I can see no need of changing αὐτός to ἀφτός or αὐγά to ἀβγά, since the pronunciation of υ in αυ, ευ as f before voiceless or v before voiced sounds is uniform. It is immaterial whether one writes ποτήρι (from ποτήριον) or ποτῆρι; presents in -ωνω or -ονω (from -οω with new present formed to aor. -ωσα). In several of these matters there is no consistency, in individual cases, even among writers in the δημοτική. Initial ρ, not ῥ, is now preferred.

Irish.—Genuine Old Irish diphthongs are marked with the macron on the first element (as Pedersen) without attempt to distinguish them from the long vowels with glide (as Thurneysen).

Lettic.—New orthography as in Mühl.-Endz., except k', etc. (not ķ) for palatalized consonant, and ŧ not used (ŧ in Mühl.-Endz. only in headings).

Lithuanian.—Present standardized orthography, as in NSB.

Old Norse.—For the mutated vowels it is intended to follow the now generally adopted spelling, as e.g. in Heggstad, Gamalnorsk Ordbok.

Oscan-Umbrian.—The usual practice of distinguishing by different type the forms written in the native or Roman alphabets, respectively, is abandoned here as unimportant for the purposes of this work.

Rumanian.—Not â, but î in cîmp, etc. as in REW, Pușcariu, and Tiktin after vol. 1; and now accepted as standard, cf. Grai și Suflet 5.207 ff.

Russian.—Transcription after the new official spelling. Thus стол 'table' (not столъ) in transcription stol, but путь 'way' transcribed put'; ѣ discarded and so ě in transcription, e being used for former e and ě, and ë (for e pronounced as o) not used.

Sanskrit.—Transcription as in Whitney's Sanskrit Grammar.

Swedish.—The reformed spelling is used (i.e. v instead of fv, etc.).

Turkish.—The new official orthography in the Latin alphabet is followed, with the new and annoying conflicts of values thus introduced. Thus c = NE j, where ǰ is used in transcription of Persian, Turkish dialects, etc.; ç = NE ch in church, in contrast to c used elsewhere.

FORM OF CITATION

In general, words are cited in the form customary in the grammars and dictionaries of the respective languages, except for Latin verbs (see below).

Thus nouns are given in the nominative singular and adjectives in the nominative singular masculine, except in Indo-Iranian, where they are given in the stem form but with an added hyphen to make this clear. Occasionally Sanskrit forms are quoted in the nominative singular, the absence of the hyphen showing this.

The Latin sources of Romance nouns and adjectives are likewise given in the nominative form, since the constant substitution of the accusative form would be a cumbersome and superfluous concession to strict accuracy.

Verbs are cited in the first person singular for Greek and Irish (OIr. sometimes in the third singular, but so marked); otherwise for the European languages in the infinitive (so even for Latin, to conform to the practice for the Romance languages; in Balto-Slavic first person singular present occasionally given also). For Indo-Iranian they are usually given in the root form, as is customary, the Sanskrit mostly as in Whitney's Roots, and the Iranian conforming, e.g. Av. vid-, like Skt. vid-, not vaēd- as in Bartholomae. Similarly in cases like hṛ-, preferred by most Sanskritists, vs. har- in BR, the former is generally adopted. But here the strong form is generally better for Iranian; and it is a harmless inconsistency to use it also for Indic in quoting Indo-Iranian roots, e.g. Skt., Av. tar-.

For Slavic verbs it seems futile to cite the forms of the different aspects. The shorter form is generally given.

In the lists the inclusion of certain words in parentheses indicates some reservation, such as obsolete, archaic, poetic, dialectal, in special sense, uncommon, or the like.

'World' is considered here primarily as the common comprehensive term for the physical world, so far as it lies within the knowledge of the unsophisticated man, namely 'the heavens above and earth beneath'. But other applications are inextricably bound up with its history. From the manifold uses of the NE world (which fill some thirteen columns in the NED), we may note three main types as of especial importance in the discussion, namely:

a. The physical world in the broadest sense, the universe[1]
b. The known world ('the highest mountain in the world'), the earth with all that belongs to it, especially the inhabited earth, mankind ('the world knows')
c. Life on earth, worldly life, this world, in contrast to the next

Most of the words listed above are used in all these senses. Where it is necessary to differentiate them for a given language or period, this will be indicated by a, b, c respectively. The etymology and in some cases the known history of these words show that the semantic development may have proceeded from any of these spheres of usage.

More specifically their semantic sources may be summarized as follows: orderly arrangement; open space; foundation; under the sun; mid-inclosure; abode, home; existence; life; light; age, generation; peace.

1. Grk. κόσμος (etym. dub.; Walde-P. 1.403, Boisacq 500 f.) means properly 'order', 'orderly arrangement' as commonly in Homer (whence also κοσμέω used in Homer of marshaling troops, and from this again κοσμήτωρ λαῶν 'leader of the people'). A frequent secondary meaning is 'ornament, decoration, dress'. In Crete κόσμος designated an official ruling body (collective) and later a single official.

[1] To distinguish more specifically the broadest sense, the common words for 'world' have been partly replaced in technical language by other terms, as e.g. Lat. universum, Fr. univers, NHG weltall, Russ. vselennaja (lit. 'allness'), Boh. ves-mir, SCr. svemir (both lit. 'all-world'). These will not be included in the discussion.

The early philosophers (Pythagoras first, according to the frequently repeated tradition) applied this term to the universe as an 'orderly arrangement' in contrast to primeval chaos. Either it was used of the universe as observed from the earth, the starry firmament, the heavens (e.g. ὁ περὶ τὴν γῆν ὅλος κόσμος Aristotle), and this was probably its earliest application, or it was used of the universe including the earth, the whole world, and this became its normal meaning.

But for the world of people, the inhabited earth, the classical phrase was ἡ οἰκουμένη (γῆ), 'the inhabited (earth)'. Not until Hellenistic times is κόσμος used in this sense. In the NT it is common, beside occasional οἰκουμένη. Cf. Mt. 4.8 πάσας τὰς βασιλείας τοῦ κόσμου = Lk. 4.5 . . . . τῆς οἰκουμένης. It is also used for this world, worldly life, for which, however, the more frequent expression is αἰών. So κόσμος finally comes to cover all the main senses of 'world', noted above as a, b, c. So NG κόσμος, with rich idiomatic use like that of NE world or Fr. monde.

Grk. αἰών 'lifetime, age' (:Lat. aevum, aetās, etc., 14.12) is used in the NT for 'worldly life, this world' in sense c, e.g. Mt. 13.22, Mk. 4.19 ἡ μέριμνα (αἱ μέριμναι) τοῦ αἰῶνας τούτου 'the care(s) of this world'. Although this use itself was not extended to 'world' in other senses in Greek, it is important for the history of other words used to translate it.

2. Lat. mundus is the result of semantic borrowing, starting as a literary imitation of Grk. κόσμος. It is the same word as mundus used of a woman's 'ornaments, dress', this being related to the adj. mundus 'clean, elegant' (15.87). This was a synonym of Grk. κόσμος in one of its frequent uses (see above), one that was probably more familiar to the Romans than that of 'order'. Hence the Roman writers used mundus also as the equivalent of κόσμος in both its applications to the physical world as noted above, namely the 'firmament, vault of the heavens' (mundus caeli, Ennius, mundi lumina, Verg., etc.; hence also the underground mundus in the forum), and 'universe, world'.[1] Hence also for 'mankind', mostly poetical and ecclesiastic for this 'world' (beside saeculum). It has furnished the common words for 'world' in all the Romance languages (Fr. monde, etc.), except Rumanian, where lume orig. 'light' (Lat. lūmen) is used for 'world', by semantic borrowing from the Slavic světŭ, which is both 'light' and 'world' (below, 6).

Lat. saeculum 'age, generation' is used in ecclesiastic writings, like Grk. αἰών, of 'this world', in sense c. The Romance derivatives, Ital. secolo, Fr. siècle, Sp. siglo, are still used in this special sense; and examples occur of their use for 'world' in the wider sense, as Ital. il Creatore dell' universo secolo (quoted in Tomaseo-Bellini). But they have never become serious rivals of the descendants of mundus. Lat. saeculum is the source of Ir. sāigul 'age', NIr. saoghal (saol), which is the normal word for 'world' in sense c, and is freely used for 'world' in sense b beside domhan. "Domhan and saoghal are interchangeable in general references to the world we live in" (Dinneen).

Lat. saeculum is also probably the indirect source of the present Gmc. words for 'world', of which NE world is representative. See below.

[1] This view of Lat. mundus is, I think, beyond any reasonable doubt, but it is not universally accepted. It has been objected that in the earlier quotable occurrences the meaning is 'heavens', while that of 'universe' is later. Even if this is not accidental, it is no valid objection, in view of the use of κόσμος stated above. Pliny's words, nam quem κόσμος Graeci nomine ornamenti apellaverunt, eum nos a perfecta absolutaque elegantia, mundum, show just that understanding of κόσμος which accounts for the Roman use of mundus.

3. Ir. domun, NIr. domhan, 'world' in sense a and b, fr. dub-no-* (cf. Gall. Dubnoreix on coins, Dumnorīx in Caesar, lit. 'world-king') : ChSl. dŭno (n from bn) 'bottom, foundation', Ir. domain, NIr. domhain 'deep', NE deep, etc. The development was from 'bottom, foundation' to 'earth' (as in Rum. pamînt 'earth' fr. Lat. pavīmentum), then extended to 'world'. Walde-P. 2.847 ff. Pedersen 1.35.

W. byd, Br. bed, OCorn. bit, MCorn. bys used for world in all senses, Ir. bith 'age', also 'world' in senses b and c, fr. a Celtic bi-tu-* (cf. Gall. Bitu-rīges) : Grk. βίος 'life', Lat. vīvus, Skt. jīva- 'living', etc. (4.74). Pedersen 1.41.

4. Goth. fairhwus (the commonest rendering of κόσμος) : ON fjǫr, OE feorh, OHG ferah 'life', ON fīrar, OE fīras 'men' root connection? Walde-P. 2.45. Feist 139.

Goth. manasēþs (renders κόσμος 'world of people, mankind'), lit. 'seed of man', -sēþs : OE sǣd, Lat. sēmen, etc. 'seed'. Walde-P. 2.459 ff. Feist 344.

ON heimr 'abode' and the usual word for 'world' in the broadest sense : OE hām 'home', etc. (7.122).

Goth. midjun-gards (renders οἰκουμένη when this is used instead of the usual κόσμος), ON mið-garðr, OE middan-geard, OHG mittin-gart, mittil-gart (lit. 'mid-yard, mid-inclosure'), represent a term of Gmc. mythology denoting the earth as the abode of man, as pictured in the Edda (cf. Vigfusson, and Fritzner, s.v. mið-garðr). OE middan-(g)eard is used likewise for the inhabited earth, but also for 'world' in the broadest sense. In the OE gospels it is the common word for world, e.g. Mt. 25.34 'from the foundation of the world', Jn. 17.5 'before the world was'), and Aelfric gives it as the equivalent of Lat. mundus. OHG mittilgart and weralt are both freq. for mundus (e.g. Tat.; Otfr. only worolt).

ON verǫld, OE weorold, OHG weralt, etc. general Gmc. except Gothic, a cpd. of wer 'man' (2.21) and a noun form of adjs. for 'old' (14.15), hence 'age of man'. Thus it was equivalent to and followed Lat. saeculum in its ecclesiastical use (above, 2). For the early period this is the prevailing use, e.g. in the OE gospels, Mt. 12.32, 13.22 (Grk. αἰών, Vulgate saeculum). The further development was from this sense c to sense b and eventually to sense a, until the words in question became the common expressions for 'world' in all senses in all the Gmc. languages. NED s.v. world. Falk-Torp 1368.

5. Lith. pasaulis, Lett. pasaule, a cpd. of pa- 'under' and saule 'sun' (1.52), is 'world' in all senses. Lith. pasaulis is now preferred to the formerly current svietas, a Slavic loanword.

6. In Slavic there are two rival words for 'world', both still in common use in Russian, and both so used in dialects or older records of other Slavic languages.

ChSl. mirŭ (also vĭsĭ mirŭ with vĭsĭ 'all'), the regular translation of Grk. κόσμος, is the same word as mirŭ 'peace', used in Christian terminology as a collective 'community of peace' (cf. Russ. mir, also 'village community'), hence 'world' first in sense b. Berneker 2.60 f.

ChSl. světŭ 'light' (1.61) is used once in the gospels (Mt. 13.22) to translate Grk. αἰών (above, 2). The semantic development was from 'light' to the 'realm of light, life' (cf. the association between 'light' and 'life', e.g. Grk. ὅστις φῶς ὁρᾷ 'whoever sees the light' = 'lives'), hence 'world' in sense c, later 'world' in all senses, as in the present Slavic languages.

7. Skt. loka- 'open space, earth, world' : Lat. lūcus 'grove', Lith. laukas 'field', Skt. roca- 'shining', Grk. λευκός 'bright', etc. Walde-P. 2.408 ff.

Skt. jagat- 'that which moves, lives, all creation, world', fr. gam- 'go'.

Skt. bhū-, bhuvana- 'existence, creation, earth, world', fr. bhū- 'be'.

Av. gaēþā- 'life, mankind, world', fr. the root of gaya- 'life', jīva-, Skt. jīva-, Lat. vīvus, etc. 'living' (4.74). Cf. Ir. bith, etc., above, 3.

Av. aŋhu- 'life, mankind, world', fr. ah- 'be' : Skt. as-, etc., IE es-*.

Neither of these two Av. words, of which gaēþā- has the wider scope (Barth. 477 ff.), is actually quotable for 'world' in sense a, but only in senses b or c.

1.21 EARTH, LAND

Grk.	γῆ, χθών	Goth.	airþa, land	Lith.	žemė
NG	γῆ	ON	jǫrð, land	Lett.	zeme
Lat.	terra, tellus, humus	Dan.	jord, land	ChSl.	zemlja
It.	terra	Sw.	jord, land	SCr.	zemlja
Fr.	terre	OE	eorþe, land	Boh.	země
Sp.	tierra	ME	erthe, land	Pol.	ziemia, ląd
Rum.	pamînt, ţară	NE	earth, land	Russ.	zemlja
Ir.	talan, tīr	Du.	aarde, land	Skt.	bhū-, bhūmi-, kṣam-pṛthivī-, mahī, etc.
NIr.	talamh, tīr	OHG	erda, lant	Av.	zam-, būmi, OPers. būmi-
W.	daear, tir	MHG	erde, lant
Br.	douar	NHG	erde, land

The various ideas expressed by NE earth and land are frequently covered by the same word, and where different words are employed their uses overlap. We may distinguish here:

a. The whole earth, as distinguished from sun, moon, etc. Commonly expressed by the same words that are used in the following senses, and representing a relatively later conception. Special terms may be introduced to distinguish this sense, as (from the present state of knowledge) words meaning 'globe, sphere', or compounds like NHG erdkreis, erdreich. But these do not displace the common words and are not considered further here.

Since the earth is felt as the known world, words for 'earth' in this sense and 'world' may overlap in use (the highest mountain in the world = on earth), and some of the words discussed under 'world' belong here not only in origin but also in actual use. So regularly ON miðgarðr, OS middilgard, and frequently OE middangeard, OHG mittilgart.

b. The solid surface of the earth, viewed either simply as a surface (one lies on the earth or more commonly on the ground), or as the source of vegetation, (good) earth, land, soil, or ground. For other words used in these senses, see 1.212.

c. The solid surface of the earth in contrast with that which is covered with water, now regularly land. This sense is in some languages commonly expressed more specifically as 'dry (land)', as Byz., NG ξηρά, Rum. uscat (fr. adj. uscat 'dry'), Lith. sausžemis (sausas 'dry' and žemė).

d. The earth as material in general. This may be expressed by the common words for 'earth' (cf. NE earthenware), but more often by special words for a particular kind of earth, like NE clay, NHG ton, Fr. argile, etc. (9.73).

e. A definite portion of the earth's surface, from the land of an individual to a whole country (19.11).

The association between these various senses is such that any one of them may be the starting-point of an extension to some or all of the others.

Of the two Gmc. words represented by NE earth and land, the latter started with sense e, as indicated by the etymology and the use in Gothic, but was at an early period extended to sense c, eventually displacing earth, etc., which were once freely used in this sense. In English, on the other hand, land in a part of its earlier uses is mostly displaced by country.

1. IE ĝhem-* and ĝhᵊem-*, representing the most widespread cognate group, though the precise character of the IE variant form involves a difficult problem. Walde-P. 1.662 f. Ernout-M. 464. Walde-H. 1.664 f. The inclusion in this group of Hitt. tekan, Toch. A tkaṃ 'earth', and the resulting assumption of IE dheghom-, dhghom- (Kretschmer, Glotta 20.66 f.), is rejected by Benveniste, Mélanges Ginneken 193 ff. But some ultimate connection is probable.

Grk. χθών (mostly poet. and in sense b), beside χαμαί 'on the ground', χθαμαλός, χαμηλός 'on the ground, low lying'; Lat. humus (mostly in sense b) beside humī 'on the ground', humilis 'low'; Ir. dū, gen., acc. don 'place', early 'earth' (Pedersen 1.89, Vendryes, RC 40.437 ff.); Lith. žemė, Lett. zeme, OPruss. semmin (acc. sg.), ChSl. zemlja, etc., general Balto-Slavic for 'earth' and 'land'; Skt. kṣam- (gen. usually jmas), Vedic and in sense b, esp. 'earth' vs. 'sky'; Av. zam- (gen. zemō = Skt. jmas) 'earth' in all senses (Barth. 1662 ff.); Alb. dhe 'earth'.

While there is no clear root connection for this group, its primary sense seems to have been that of 'earth's surface, ground'.

2. Grk. γῆ, Hom. γαῖα, etym. unknown, perh. of pre-Greek origin. The poetical αἶα is also of dub. etym., but possibly 'the mother (earth)'. Brugmann, IF 15.93 ff.

3. Lat. terra (Osc. teerúm, terúm 'territory'), prob. fr. tersā-* : torrēre 'dry up, parch', Grk. τέρσομαι 'dry up', Skt. tṛṣ- 'be thirsty', Goth. ga-þairsan 'dry up, wither', NE thirst, etc., in which case its orig. meaning was 'dry land' vs. 'sea' as in the frequent terrā marīque. Here belong also, though of somewhat different formation, Ir. tīr ('land' mainly in sense e), W. tir, and the now obs. Br. tir. Walde-P. 1.737 ff. Ernout-M. 1034 f.

The descendants of Lat. terra remain the usual words in all the Romance languages except Rumanian, where ţara is now mostly 'land' = 'country' (also 'country' vs. 'city'), otherwise displaced by the following.

Rum. pamînt, fr. Lat. pavīmentum 'floor, pavement'. Used first of the 'ground' (sense b), it became the common word for 'earth, land' in most of the other senses. REW 6312.

4. Ir. talam, NIr. talamh, Lat. tellus (mostly poet.) : Skt. tala- 'surface, bottom, plain', ChSl. tĭlo, SCr. tlo 'ground', etc. Here also the starting-point was sense b. Walde-P. 1.740. Pedersen 1.132.

W. daear, Br. douar, Corn. doar, etym.? Pedersen 1.66. Henry 104.

5. Goth. airþa, ON jǫrð, OE eorþe, OHG erda, etc., general Gmc. : Ir. ert 'land' occurring only in cpds., OHG ero 'earth', Grk. ἔρᾱ attested by ἔρας· γῆς Hesych. and ἔραζε 'to the ground'. Any further root connection is uncertain, so that the semantic starting-point remains obscure, though prob. b. Walde-P. 1.142. Feist 25 f.

Goth. land, etc., general Gmc. : Ir. ith-land 'threshing floor' (cpd. of ith 'grain'), W. llan 'inclosure, yard', etc. Its earliest use was sense e, and in Gothic it is only so used, namely for 'piece of land' or 'country', airþa being used in all other senses, including 'land' in contrast to sea. Walde-P. 2.438. Feist 321 f.

6. Balto-Slavic words, above, 1.

Pol. ląd fr. NHG land.

7. Skt. kṣam- (Vedic), Av. zam-, above, 1.

Skt. bhū-, bhūmi-, OPers. būmi-, Av. būmi- (less common than zam-), fr. bhū- 'be', hence first used of the earth as the known world.

Other common Skt. words for 'earth' are pṛthivī- fem. of pṛthu- 'wide', mahī- fem. of mah- 'great', kṣiti- properly 'abode', vasu-dhā- lit. 'yielding good', etc.

1.212 EARTH = GROUND, SOIL

As already remarked, the words for 'earth', among their various applications, are used for the earth's solid surface ('falls to earth, the ground') or its soft surface for cultivation ('good earth, land, ground, soil'). They are, in fact, the usual expressions of these senses, so that a list would be mainly a repetition of that in 1.21. But there are also other words, some less common, others (like NE ground, soil, NHG boden) now more common in these senses.

1. Grk. οὖδας (poet.) and ἔδαφος (also 'bottom, base'), prob. fr. the same root

Many of the words for 'dust' are from a widespread root (dheu-*), seen in words for 'agitate, shake', 'vapor, smoke', etc., or from others having the notion of 'stir', 'scatter', or 'blow'. All such were obviously applied first to the flying 'dust' in the air. Others are cognate with words for 'loose earth, soil', 'fine meal', 'ashes', with the common notion of 'small particles'. But it is only a secondary association of this kind that is shown in the Ir. derivative of the word for 'ashes' used for 'dust' and in the use of OE asce 'ashes' for 'dust' in the Lindisf. gospels (Lk. 9.5, 10.11, etc. asca vs. dust in the WSax. versions), since these words for 'ashes' were not based in origin on the notion of small particles.

Words of this group either cover also 'powder', or, especially Lat. pulvis, are the source of those now used for 'powder' (so far as this notion, as for a prepared product—medicinal, toilet, etc., is differentiated), e.g. Fr. poudre vs. poussière, NG πούδρα, NE powder, Dan. pudder, Sw. puder, NHG pulver, puder, Boh. pudr, etc. Cf. also 'gunpowder' (20.29).

Although 'mud' is wet earth, none of the common words for 'mud' are connected with those for 'earth'. Several come from the more generic 'dirt, filth', these in part originally 'excrement'. Some are used also for, or are cognate with, others for 'marsh, swamp'. Others are connected with words for 'liquid', 'pour, flow' (through 'flood, inundation' to the resulting 'mud'), 'sink' (what one sinks into), etc. Some are perhaps based on certain color notions. A few are used for both 'mud' and 'clay'.

Where several words are entered for the same language, they may be in part somewhat differentiated in application ('deep mud, mire', 'mud' such as dredged from the bottom of a river, 'mud' in the roads, etc.) or in local preference (cf. NHG kot, dreck, etc.).

1. Grk. πηλός, Dor. παλός most commonly potters' and masons' 'clay' (9.73), strictly moistened earth (γῆ ὑγρῷ φυραθεῖσα Plat. Tht. 147c), but also 'mud' (Hdt., Aristoph., etc., and so clearly in NT Jn. 9.6, though rendered as 'clay' in our versions since Wycliff), etym. dub.; perh. (if 'clay' is the earlier sense) : Grk. πελιός 'gray', Lat. pallēre 'be pale', etc. Walde-P. 2.53 (1.441). Boisacq 779.

NG λάσπη, orig.? There is no tenable Grk. etymology, and no apparent source for it as a loanword. G. Meyer, Alb. Stud. 4.77 ("unbekannter Herkunft").

2. Lat. lutum ('mud', also sometimes 'clay'; > Sp. lodo 'mud', It. loto, Rum. lut 'clay') : Lat. pol-lucre 'pollute', Grk. λῦθρον 'defilement from blood, gore', λῦμα 'dirt', Ir. loth 'dirt', etc., root connection dub. Walde-P. 2.406. Ernout-M. 570. Walde-H. 1.840. REW 5189.

Sw. gyttja (esp. 'deep mud, mire'), fr. the root of gjuta, Dan. gyde, Goth. giutan, etc. 'pour', like OE gyte 'pouring, flood'. Hellquist 315.

Dan. søle (more common in Norw.) : OE, OHG sol 'mud puddle', Goth. bisauljan, OE sylian 'defile'. Falk-Torp 1233 f.

ME mudde, NE mud, MLG mudde, MLG, Du. modder (MLG > Dan., Sw. mudder), fr. a root meu-, mu- and extensions, seen in many words with a common notion of 'wet' or 'dirty', as Grk. μύδος 'damp', μυδάω 'be damp', μύσος (*μυδσος) 'defilement', Pol. mul 'slime', Skt. mūtra- 'urine', Av. mūθra- 'excrement, filth', etc. Here also, fr. a parallel smu-*, NHG schmutz (> Dan. smuds, Sw. smuts) 'dirt', but also used for 'mud' in the roads. MHG quât, kât, kōt, NHG kot, orig. 'excrement' (4.66) and now most familiar in this sense in northern Germany, but 'mud' in southern Germany (so used by Luther Jn. 9.6).

NHG dreck, orig. and still in part 'excrement' (4.66), but also the usual word for 'mud' in many regions. On the local distribution of dreck vs. kot in this sense, cf. Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 178. In avoidance of these common but ambiguous words there may be preferred either the innocuous schmutz 'dirt' or schlamm 'mud, slime' (orig.?), this latter being the most frequent dictionary translation of words like NE mud, Fr. boue, and now the standard term in official use.

5. Lith. purvas (used in NT, Jn. 9.6, and still the reg. word for 'mud' in the roads; Lett. purvs 'swamp'), etym. dub. Walde-P. 2.14. Mühl-Endz. 3.421.

Words for 'sand', apart from one widespread but difficult group (Grk., Lat., Gmc., Arm.) and some of doubtful origin, come from verbs for 'grind', 'scatter', 'blow', 'whirl', with reference to the small particles of sand or their action in the air (hence some overlapping in cognate groups with words for 'dust'). In a few the (sandy) 'shore' becomes 'sand'.

1. Group of words belonging together, but of partly obscure phonetic relations, prob. (init. doublets ps-, s-) fr. the root seen in Grk. ψάω 'rub, crumble', ψῆφος 'pebble', etc. (Skt. bhas-, psā- 'chew, devour', fr. 'crush'). Kretschmer, KZ 31.420. Ernout-M. 881.

Words for 'mountain' and 'hill' are taken together because of their frequent relations and the fluctuating discriminations. The application of NE hill may range from a height of several thousand feet (cf. NED) to a hill of beans, or in some regions a height of only a few hundred feet may be called a mountain. The same word may vary in its application as between languages or even in different periods of the same language. Thus Lat. collis 'hill', but Lith. kalnas 'mountain', dim. kalnelis 'hill'; Grk. βουνός 'hill', but NG βουνό 'mountain', dim. βουνάκι 'hill'. Some languages have a great variety of terms for 'hill', from which it is difficult to choose the most important.

The most frequent source, as to be expected, lies in the notion of 'high, rising, projecting', or 'incline, slope' viewed as rising. Other underlying meanings are 'hump, heap, swelling', 'back of the neck, crest', 'knot' (through 'knotty, rugged'), 'heavy, solid, immovable', even 'plain' (through 'high plateau').

The association between a (bare, rugged) 'mountain' and 'rock' shows itself in the frequent relationship between words for 'mountain' and 'rock, stone' (1.44) in which now one, now the other, meaning is the earlier. Again, association between the (wooded) 'mountain' and 'woods, forest' (1.41) shows itself in a similar relationship, a word for 'mountain' coming to mean 'woods' or sometimes conversely.

1. Grk. ὄρος, Ion. οὖρος, Dor. ὤρος, fr. *ὀρϝος(?) : Skt. ṛṣva- 'high', fr. IE er-* 'move, raise, rise', seen in Skt. ṛ-, Grk. ὄρνυμι, Lat. orīrī, etc. Walde-P. 1.137.

Grk. κολωνός : Lat. collis (fr. colnis*), Lith. kalnas 'mountain', kalnelis 'hill', Lett. kalns 'mountain', pakalne 'hill', OE hyll, ME, NE hill. Here also OS, LG holm 'hill' (ON holmr 'islet in the bay, etc.', OE holm 'sea', NE holm).

Grk. λόφος 'nape of the neck, crest' and 'ridge, hill', etym.? Walde-P. 1.93. Boisacq 588 f. For 'hill' from 'neck, crest', cf. also Sp. cerro, Ir. cnoc, below.

Grk. βουνός 'hill', quoted as Cyrenaic (Hdt. 4.199) and Syracusan (Phryn. 333), but prob. a widespread colloq. word, emerging in Hellenistic writings (Polyb., LXX, NT, etc.). Hence NG τὸ βουνό 'mountain', dim. βουνάκι 'hill'. Prob. to be analyzed as βου-νός : βουβών 'groin', fr. the notion of 'swelling'. Walde 2.114. Boisacq 128 f.

2. Lat. mōns, montis (> It. monte, etc.), W. mynydd, Corn. meneth, Br. menez 'mountain', Av. mati- 'mountain top', fr. the root seen in Lat. ē-, prō-minēre 'stand out, project' (cf. NE eminence, prominence in physical sense), minae 'projecting points, threats'. Walde-P. 2.263. Ernout-M. 628 f.

Lat. adj. montānus, VLat. montāneus* (cf. subterrāneus, etc.), neut. pl. montānea* 'mountainous regions, mountain chain', whence It. montagna, OFr. montai(g)ne (> ME mountain), Fr. montagne, Sp. montaña, which have encroached on the shorter form or even displaced it. Sp. monte now 'woods'. REW 5664, 5666.

Lat. collis, : Grk. κολωνός, etc., above, 2. Hence It. colle, collina, Fr. colline, Sp. colina, collado, Rum. colina (neolog.).

Lat. clīvus 'slope, hill' : Goth. hlains 'hill', Grk. κλιτύς 'slope, hillside', fr. IE klei-* 'bend, incline', in Lat. clīnāre, Grk. κλίνω, Skt. çri-, NE lean, etc. Walde-P. 1.490 ff. Ernout-M. 197 f. Walde-H. 1.236.

Sp. cerro 'hill', also 'back of the neck, spine', fr. Lat. cirrus 'tuft of feathers, crest (of birds)'. REW 1949. Other Sp. words for 'hill' are otero fr. Lat. altārium 'high altar', poyo (cf. It. poggio 'hill', Fr. pui in place names) fr. Lat. podium 'balcony'. Cf. Menéndez-Pidal, Orig. del español 425 ff.

Dan. bakke, Sw. backe 'hill' : ON bakki 'bank', NE bank, etc. (1.33). Walde-P. 2.148.

Du. heuvel, MHG hübel 'hill' : OHG hovar, OE hofer 'hump', Lith. kupra 'hump'. Here also Av. kaofa- 'mountain peak, camel's hump', OPers. kaufa 'mountain' (NPers. kūh 'mountain') : Lith. kaupas, ChSl. kupŭ, NE heap, NHG haufe 'heap', Grk. κύφος 'bent', all fr. IE keup-, keub-, keubh-* in words for 'bend, curve'. Walde-P. 1.372 ff.

OHG, MHG houc (gen. houges) 'hill' : ON haugr 'mound', fr. the adj. seen in Goth. hauhs, OHG hōh, etc. 'high' (12.31), ultimately connected with the preceding group keubh-*, etc., above. Walde-P. 1.371. Hence also NHG hügel 'hill', by blend with MHG hübel. In the same group Dan. høj 'hill' : høj 'high', like NHG höhe, NE height fr. the respective adj. forms.

OHG buhil, MHG bühel 'hill' : ON bōla 'blister, boss', prob. fr. an extension of IE bhu-* beside bu-* in words for 'swell' (cf. Grk. βουνός, above, 1). Walde-P. 2.114, 146.

5. Lith. kalnas, etc. : Lat. collis, etc., above, 1.

6. ChSl. gora, etc., general Slavic for 'mountain' (in some regions 'forest', as always Lith. girė, 1.41) : Skt. giri-, Av. gairi- 'mountain', and prob. Alb. gur 'stone'. Walde-P. 1.682. Berneker 329. Further connection with Skt. guru-, Grk. βαρύς 'heavy', through the notion of 'heavy, solid mass' (Thumb, IF 9.299) is plausible. Cf. Skt. acala- 'mountain' fr. adj. acala- 'immovable'.

ChSl. chlŭmŭ, SCr. hum, Boh. chlum, Russ. cholm, the most widespread Slavic word for 'hill', is prob. a Gmc. loanword (LG holm 'hill', etc., above, 2). So Berneker 410 f., Stender-Petersen 263 ff.; otherwise Brückner, KZ 48.194.

The usual Boh. and Pol. words for 'hill' are dims. of gora, as Boh. pahorek, Pol. pagórek, wzgórek.

SCr. brdo 'height' ('mountain' or 'hill'), late ChSl. brŭdo, etc., either cognate with or loanword fr. the Gmc. group OHG bort 'edge', etc. Walde-P. 2.163. Berneker 118 f. Stender-Petersen 267 f.

SCr. brijeg 'height, hill' (dim. brežuljak), also 'shore, bank' as general Slavic, ChSl. brěgŭ, etc. See 1.27. The meaning 'hill' or 'mountain' also in Bulg., Slov., Slovak. Berneker 49.

Bulg. planina 'mountain' (the usual word, gora being 'forest'), SCr. planina

'high mountain range' : Boh. planina 'plain', planý 'wild (country)', Lat. plānus 'flat', etc. Walde-P. 2.61. Development through 'high plateau'.

Boh. vrch 'top, summit' (as ChSl. vrŭchŭ, etc. 12.33), used also for 'mountain'.

Boh. kopec 'hill', fr. kopa 'heap'. Berneker 562.

Distinctive words for a 'plain' in the strict sense of 'expanse of level ground' are substantive forms of adjectives for 'even, level, flat'. But 'plain' is also included in the scope of, and in some languages more commonly expressed by, words for 'field' in the broad sense of 'open country' (vs. 'field' for cultivation, 8.12; Lat. campus vs. ager).

1. Grk. πεδίον, NG pop. πεδιάδα (fr. class. πεδιάς, -άδος, adj.), fr. πέδον 'ground' (1.212).

Byz., NG κάμπος, fr. Lat. campus.

2. Lat. plānum (much less common than campus; > Fr. plaine > ME plaine, NE plain), fr. plānus 'even, level, flat' (12.71), whence also, with suffix, It. pianura, Sp. llanura.

Lat campus (> Romance words), prob. : Grk. κάμπτω 'bend' (9.14) and first used of a hollow between hills like the Campus Martius, which may be the specific starting-point of its wide use. Cf. Lith. lanka 'valley' fr. lenkti 'bend' (1.24). Walde-P. 1.350. Walde-H. 1.148 f. Ernout-M. 140 (without etym.).

3. Gall. -magus in Arganto-magus, etc., Ir. mag, NIr. magh, W. maes, Br. maez, prob. as orig. 'expanse' : Lat. magnus, Skt. mah-, etc. 'large, great' (12.55), Skt. mahī- 'earth'. Pedersen 1.96. Stokes 198 f. Walde-P. 2.258 (adversely).

Ir. rōi, perh. : Av. ravah- 'free room', ChSl. ravĭnŭ 'even, level' (see below, 6). Pedersen 1.251. Stokes 235. Walde-P. 2.356 (adversely).

W. gwastad, fr. adj. gwastad 'even, level, flat' (12.71).

4. Goth. staþs ibns (rendering exactly the Grk. τόπος πεδινός 'level place'), OE emnet (rare), OHG ebanōtī (Otfr., where ebeni is 'likeness'), MHG, NHG ebene, fr. adj. seen in Goth. ibns, OE efen (eben, emn, etc.), OHG eban, etc. 'level, even', root connection? Walde-P. 1.102. Feist 287.

ON slētta, Dan. slette, Sw. slätt, fr. adj. seen in ON slēttr 'level, even, smooth' = Goth. slaihts 'smooth' (15.77). Falk-Torp 1061.

Dan., Sw. mark 'field, ground, land' : Goth. marka 'boundary', OE mearc 'boundary, territory', etc. Falk-Torp 699 f.

OE, OHG feld, etc., WGmc. word for 'field' with a wide range of applications (cf. e.g. NED s.v. field) : ChSl. polje, etc., general Slavic for 'field, plain', both groups fr. a root seen in many other words with the common notion of 'flat, spread out' or the like, including Lat. plānus (above, 2). Walde-P. 2.61 ff. Falk-Torp 212.

Du. vlakte, NHG fläche, fr. adjs. vlak, flach 'flat' (12.71).

5. Lith. lyguma, Lett. līdzenums, fr. adjs. Lith. lygus, Lett. līdzens 'equal' (12.91) and 'even, level'.

Lith. laukas, Lett. lauks, OPruss. laucks 'field' : Skt. loka- 'open space', Lat. lūcus 'grove', orig. 'clearing' : Lat. lūx 'light', etc. Walde-P. 2.408. Ernout-M. 564 f. Mühl.-Endz. 2.426 f.

6. ChSl. město ravĭno (rendering τόπος πεδινός 'level place'), SCr. ravan, ravnica, Boh. rovina, etc., fr. adj. ChSl. ravĭnŭ, etc., general Slavic for 'level, even' and 'equal' (12.91).

ChSl. polje, etc., general Slavic for 'field', fr. the same root as OE feld, etc. (above, 4).

Boh. pláň (beside planý 'wild, uncultivated') : Lat. plānus 'level, flat', etc. Walde-P. 2.61. Miklosich 248.

Pol. płaszczyzna, fr. płaski 'flat' (12.71).

7. Skt. sama-, neut. sb. of adj. sama- 'equal' (12.91) also 'even, level'. Also (rarely) samā-bhūmi-, sama-sthalī-, cpds. with words for 'earth, ground' or 'place'.

Skt. ajra- (RV, 'field, plain') : Grk. ἀγρός, Lat. ager 'cultivated field' (8.12).

Words for 'valley' are mostly connected with words applied to curved, hollow shapes, from a common notion of 'bend, curve'. Other sources are 'flat surface', 'low lying', 'slope', 'waterway', 'beneath the mountain'.

1. Group comprising the Gmc. and Slavic words, namely Goth. dals (also 'ditch'), ON dalr, OE dæl, etc., general Gmc. (but NE dale now poet. or dial.) and SCr. dolina, etc. (ChSl. only advs. dolě, dolu 'below, downward'; Boh. údolí fr. older dol with u 'near, at') : Grk. θόλος 'round vaulted building', θάλαμος 'chamber', ON dalr 'bow', etc., fr. a common notion of 'bend, curve'.

Walde-P. 1.864 f. Feist 115. Berneker 208 f.

2. Grk. νάπη (also νάπος, τό), etym.? Boisacq 656 f.

Grk. ἄγκος 'mountain glen' : ἀγκύλος 'crooked, curved', Lat. uncus 'hook', Skt. añc- 'bend', etc. Walde-P. 1.60.

Grk. κοιλάς 'hollow' and 'valley,' NG κοιλάδα : κοῖλος 'hollow' (12.72), which is also used in agreement with place names to denote a valley.

Grk. φάραγξ generally 'ravine' is the usual word for 'valley' in the LXX, and so in NT Lk 3.5 (= Isaiah 40.4), where it is so rendered in the Vulgate and other versions.

3. Lat. vallēs, vallis (> Romance forms; deriv. Fr. vallée displacing val), perh. fr. the root in Lat. volvere 'turn, roll', etc. Walde-P. 1.301. Ernout-M. 1071. REW 9134.

4. Ir. glend, glenn, NIr. gleann (NE glen fr. Gael.), W. glyn : W. glan 'brink, shore', Br. glann 'riverbank' (1.27). Pedersen 1.38. Development fr. 'steep slope' through 'ravine' to 'valley'?

W. dyffryn, cpd. of dwfr 'water' and hynt 'way'. Pedersen 1.281.

W. cwm (Br. komb, komm in place names) : Ir. cum 'vessel', Grk. κύμβη 'drinking vessel, boat', Skt. kumbha- 'pot', NE hump, etc., all with notion of curved shape. Walde-P. 1.376.

Br. traoniénn, MBr. tnaou, tnou 'valley', OW tnou, W. tyno 'dale, meadow', etym. dub., possibly : Grk. στενός 'narrow', or fr. IE ten-* 'stretch'. Walde-P. 2.627. Stokes 128. Henry 269. Morris Jones 108.

Br. saonenn, etym.? Henry 239.

5. Goth. dals, etc., above, 1.

OE denu, ME dene (NE dean, dene, -den, dial. or in local names; NED s.v. dean[2].) : OE denn 'den, lair', OHG tenni 'threshing floor', Lith. denis 'deck', Grk. θέναρ 'palm of the hand', 'sole of the foot', all having in common the notion of flat surface. Walde-P. 1.853.

ME, NE vale, valley, fr. Fr. val, vallée (above, 3).

6. Lith. klonis : Lith. at-si-kalti 'lean on', ChSl. kloniti 'bend, bow', etc. Walde-P. 1.431, 2.599.

Lith. slėnis : Lith. slėnas, Lett. slēns 'low lying', root connection? Leskien, Bildung. d. Nom. 356. Mühl.-Endz. 3.928.

Lith. lanka (Kurschat's main word for 'valley', now less common in this sense than the two preceding) : Lith. lenkti 'bend', ChSl. lęką, lęšti 'bend', ląka 'bay, marsh', etc. Walde-P. 2.435. Berneker 739.

Lett. leja : Lett. lejš 'low lying', Grk. λειμών 'meadow', λίμνη 'lake', Lat. līmus 'sidelong, askew', etc. Walde-P. 1.158. Mühl.-Endz. 2.447.

7. SCr. dolina, etc., above, 1.

ChSl. dĭbrĭ rendering φάραγξ Lk. 3.5, OBoh. debř 'valley', etc. : Lith. dubus 'deep, hollow' (12.67), dauba 'ravine', OPruss. padaubis 'valley'. Walde-P. 1.148. Berneker 242 f.

8. Skt. upatyakā-, fr. upa-tya- 'beneath', hence 'land at the foot of a mountain'.

Av. jąfnu- : Av. jafra- 'deep'. Only in phrase jąfnavō raonām, 'valleys of the rivers' according to Barth. 608, 1512, while Darmesteter translates 'depths of the vale', taking ravan- as the word for 'valley'.

1.25 ISLAND

Grk.	νῆσος	Goth.	....	Lith.	sala
NG	νῆσος, νησί	ON	ey, eyland	Lett.	sala
Lat.	īnsula	Dan.	ø	ChSl.	otokŭ, ostrovŭ

W.	ynys	MHG	insel
Br.	enez	NHG	insel

Words for 'island' reflect its relation to the water, as 'floating', 'water-land', 'flowed around', etc.

1. Grk. νῆσος, Dor. νᾶσος, prob. : νήχω 'swim', Lat. nāre 'swim', Skt. snā- 'bathe', etc. Walde-P. 2.692. Brugmann, Grd. 2.1.541. Solmsen, Beiträge 244.

2. Lat. īnsula (> Romance words, but Rum. insulă neolog.), etym. disputed, but perh. best taken as fem. of an adj. en-salos* 'in the sea' (like Grk. ἐν-άλιος) : salum 'sea' (or : sāl, salis 'salt', but its use for 'sea' seems to be only poet.). Walde-P. 2.452. Walde-H. 1.707. The view that īnsula and Grk. νῆσος belong together, reflecting some Aegean word (Ernout-M. 491; Skok, Glotta 25.217 ff.), has no substantial support.

Rum. ostrov (formerly the usual word, but now displaced by insulă, except locally), fr. Slavic, ChSl. ostrovŭ, etc. (below, 6).

3. Ir. inis (NIr. mostly in place names), Gael. innis, W. ynys, Br. enez, fr. a Celtic inissi*, this perh. (Strachan, quoted by Macbain s.v. innis) fr. eni-sti-* 'standing in' (the water), fr. stā-* 'stand', like other cpds. in -sto- and -sti- (Walde-P. 2.604).

NIr. oileān, Gael. eilean, loanword fr. ON eyland. (Disputed by Marstrander, Bidrag 120).

4. ON ey, eyland, Dan. ø, Sw. ö, OE īg, īgland, ME iland, NE island (with spelling influenced by isle), Du. eiland, also MHG ouwe 'water, island' (NHG aue 'meadow'), fr. a fem. deriv. (in part + land) of the word seen in Goth. ahwa 'river', OE ēa 'water, river', Lat. aqua 'water', etc. Walde-P. 1.34. Similarly OE ēaland directly fr. ēa.

ME, NE isle, fr. OFr. isle; OHG īsila fr. Lat. īnsula in its spoken form, MHG, NHG insel with restored n.

5. Lith., Lett. sala : Lith. salti 'flow', atsala 'pool of stagnant water', etc. Perh. for api-sala*, like Lett. saule for pasaule 'world' in certain phrases, and so 'flowed around' like ChSl. ostrovŭ. So Mühl.-Endz. 3.664.

6. ChSl. otokŭ (cf. Jagić, Entstehungsgesch. 374), SCr. otok, fr. obu-tokŭ*, cpd. of obŭ 'around' and the root of tešti, teką, Lith. tekti 'flow, run', etc. Walde-P. 1.715 ff. Miklosich 347 f.

ChSl. ostrovŭ, etc., general Slavic, fr. obŭ-strovŭ*, cpd. of obŭ 'around' and the root of struja 'stream', Grk. ῥέω 'flow', etc. Walde-P. 2.703. Miklosich 318. Brückner 385.

Pol. wyspa (which has displaced the older ostrów except in place names) = Boh. výspa 'sandbank, small island', fr. vy- 'out' and the root of ChSl. sŭpą, suti, iter. sypati 'pour, scatter', hence something 'poured out, shaken out'. Cf. Pol., Russ. nasyp 'bank of earth, dam' fr. the same root. Miklosich 334. Brückner 639.

7. Skt. dvīpa-, Av. dvaēpa-, cpd. of Skt. dvi- (Grk. δι-, Lat. bi-), Av. dvaē- and the weak grade of Skt. āp- 'water', hence 'having water on both sides'. Barth. 763.

1.26 MAINLAND

Grk.	ἤπειρος	Goth.	....	Lith.	sausžemis
NG	στερεά, στεριά	ON	meginland	Lett.	cietzeme
Lat.	continēns	Dan.	fastland	Ch. Sl.	....
It.	continente (terra ferma)	Sw.	fastland	SCr.	kopno
Fr.	continent	OE	....	Boh.	pevnina
Sp.	continente (tierra firme)	ME	mayn land	Pol.	stały ląd
Rum.	continent	NE	mainland	Russ.	materik
Ir.	tīr	Du.	vasteland	Skt.	(dvīpa-)
NIr.	mōirthīr, tīr mōr	OHG	....	Av.	(karšvar-)
W.	tir mawr	MHG	....
Br.	douar braz	NHG	festland

Words for 'mainland', as contrasted with 'island', are mostly from the notion of 'great', 'continuous', or 'firm' land, being such adjectives combined with 'land' in phrases or compounds, or used substantively with 'land' understood. Some are simply words for 'land' or 'dry land' used par excellence for the 'mainland'. Several, even of the former group, may also be used in the wider sense of 'land' vs. 'sea'.

Most words for 'continent' are the same as or cognate with those for 'mainland', with much literal or semantic borrowing. Exceptions are NHG erdteil (beside kontinent) 'part of the earth'. Du. werelddeel 'part of the world', W. cyfandir, cpd. of cyfan 'whole' and tir 'land'.

1. Grk. ἤπειρος, Dor. ἄπειρος, Lesb. ἄπερρος, fr. ἄπερ-ιος*, perh. : OE ōfer 'shore', NHG ufer, etc. Walde-P. 1.47. From the point of view of the islander, the use of 'shore' for 'mainland' would be natural enough. But the chronology of Greek usage makes it probable that this was not the course of development and that the meaning 'shore' of the Gmc. words, if they are cognate, is secondary (cf. 1.27). In Homer ἤπειρος means 'land' vs. 'sea', even applied to an island, though also 'mainland', as prevailingly later. (Hence Ἤπειρος, the 'mainland' from Corcyra.) The word was also used for the 'continents' of Asia and Europe, and (Aristot. de Mundo 392[b]) in general.

NG στερεά, στεριά : στερεός 'firm, solid'.

2. Lat. continēns, -entis, pres. pple. of continēre 'hold together' in sb. use, lit. the 'continuous' (land). Hence the Romance words, and NE continent, which was also formerly used in the sense 'mainland' (NED s.v., 4), and hence specifically for the European mainland as distinguished from the British Isles. Its present application to the grand divisions of the earth's surface is shared by the Romance words, though not to the similar exclusion of the meaning 'mainland'; and it is mainly in this sense that the word has become international.

The Romance words of this group are of lit. origin. The more colloq. expression was orig. the following:

MLat. terra firma 'firm land' was also used for 'mainland', and so It. terra ferma, Fr. terre ferme (now obs. in this sense), Sp. tierra firme. This is prob. also the model of NHG festland, and the latter again of Lett. cietzeme, Boh. pevnina, Pol. stały ląd (below, 5, 6).

3. Ir. tīr '(main)land' (1.21), NIr. mōirthīr, tīr mōr, W. tir mawr, with Ir. mōr, W. mawr 'great'. So Br. douar braz, fr. douar 'land' and braz 'great'. (W. cyfandir, fr. cyfan 'whole' and tir 'land', is now rather 'continent').

4. ON meginland, cpd. of megin 'might', in cpds. 'main'. Similarly and perh. of Norse origin ME mayn land, NE mainland (NED s.v. main, a).

NHG festland (earlier NHG always festes land, Kluge, Seemannssprache 247 f.), fr. fest 'firm' and land after the ML terra firma (above, 2). Similarly Du. vasteland, Dan., Sw. fastland.

5. Lith. sausžemis, cpd. of sausas 'dry' and žemė 'land'.

Lett. cietzeme, cpd. of ciet 'hard, firm' (: Lith. kietas 'hard') and zeme 'land', modeled on NHG festland.

6. SCr. kopno, in earliest use 'bare, dry land' : kopan 'without snow', Boh. kopno 'unfrozen ground', etc. Berneker 566. Rječnik Akad. s.v.

Boh. pevnina, fr. pevný 'firm, solid'.

Pol. stały ląd, fr. stały 'firm, solid' and ląd 'land'.

Russ. materik, fr. materoj 'firm, strong'.

7. Skt. dvīpa- 'island' (above, 1.25) is also used for the grand divisions of the earth's surface, pictured as islands surrounded by oceans. It is 'continent' rather than 'mainland' vs. 'island', but other words for 'mainland' (such as given by Apte) seem not to be quotable.

Av. karšvar- (: Av. karša-, Skt. karṣū- 'furrow') is used in the same way as Skt. dvīpa-, that is, 'continent'. Barth. 459.

A single general term for land bordering on the water, as comprehensive as NE shore, is often lacking; and it is necessary to include in the survey a variety of words that are used with some differentiation, like NE coast, beach, bank. Besides more generic terms, some of those listed apply only to the 'coast' of the sea, or to a sandy 'beach', or to the 'bank' of a river. But their applications in the several languages are too diverse and overlapping to be indicated in the list, except that those used distinctively for 'riverbank' are separated by a semicolon.

Only a few of the words are etymologically descriptive, as (land) 'by the sea', 'edge of the sea'. Most of them are words for 'edge', 'end', 'side', 'bank', etc., many of them still used in the general sense as well as specifically for 'edge of the sea', 'bank of the river', etc., others completely specialized in this direction. 'Land' or 'standing place' is the 'shore' from the point of view of those on the water. In a few cases 'stretch of land, tract' has been specialized to 'shore'.

1. Grk. αἰγιαλός, the regular Homeric word for 'seashore, beach', distinguished from ἀκτή the (precipitous) 'coast', but eventually the commonest word for 'shore' down to the present day (NG pop. γιαλός). First part : αἶγες 'waves, surf' (Artem., Hesych.), αἰγίς 'hurricane', ἐπαιγίζω 'rush upon', Skt. ej-, iñg- 'shake', etc.; further analysis disputed, but perh. second part : ἅλλομαι 'spring, leap', hence orig. 'place upon which the waves dash'. Walde-P. 1.11. Bechtel, Lexilogus 16. Kretschmer, Glotta 27.28 f.

Grk. ἀκτή, in Homer 'headland' or 'rugged coast', and so generally 'coast', fr. the root of ἄκρος 'highest, outermost', ἀκμή 'point', Lat. ācer 'sharp', etc. Walde-P. 2.28.

Grk. παραλία (γῆ expressed or understood) 'seacoast, seaboard', fr. παράλιος 'by the sea'.

Grk. ὄχθη 'bank, dyke', esp. 'riverbank', also ὄχθος, NG pop. ὄχτος, etym.? Boisacq 735.

NG, beside (αἰ)γιαλός, also ἀκρογιαλιά, ἀκροθαλασσιά lit. 'having the shore (or the sea) at the edge'; also παραγιάλι, περιγιάλι, cpds. of dim. of γιαλός, and παραθαλασσία fr. adj. παραθαλάσσιος 'by the sea'.

2. Lat. lītus (> It. lido), the most generic term for 'shore', vs. ōra 'coast' of the sea, rīpa 'bank' of a river, etym. dub., perh.: OHG līsta, OE līste 'edge, hem'. Rejected by Walde-P. 2.392, 405 and Walde-H. 1.815, but derivation fr. lei-* 'flow' is without semantic parallel in words for 'shore', and improbable.

Lat. ōra 'edge' and 'coast' : OE ōr 'beginning', ōra 'edge, bank' (esp. in place names, cf. NE Windsor, etc.) also Lat. ōs, Skt. ās-, etc. 'mouth'. Hence deriv. Sp. orilla 'edge' and 'shore' (of sea or river). Walde-P. 1.168. Ernout-M. 709, 714. REW 6080.

Lat. rīpa 'riverbank' : Grk. ἐρείπω, 'throw down', ἐρείπια 'ruins', ἐρίπναι 'abrupt cliffs', ON rīfa 'tear to pieces' (NE rive), etc. Development fr. 'thrown down' to 'abrupt, steep' as in Lat. abruptus and Grk. ἐρίπναι, then specialized to the (steep) 'riverbank'. Hence It. ripa, riva, Fr. rive 'bank' (but Sp. riba, Rum. rîpa 'slope, embankment', not 'riverbank'), and the derivs., which are used in wider sense of ('bank-territory', hence) 'shore', Fr. rivage, rivière, It. riviera, Sp. ribera, etc. Walde-P. 2.345. Ernout-M. 866. REW 7328.

Lat. costa 'rib' and 'side' (12.36) > It. costa, Fr. côte (OFr. coste) 'side' and 'coast', Sp. cuesta 'slope' but costa 'coast', Rum. coastă 'rib, side, coast'. OFr. coste > ME coste 'side' and 'coast', NE coast; > Du. kust, MLG kost > Sw. kust; > NHG küste > Dan. kyst. The Gmc. loanwords, in contrast to the Romance words, are fully specialized to 'coast'. REW 2279. Falk-Torp 612.

Grk. πλάγια 'sides' (neut. pl. of πλάγιος 'slanting') > MLat. plagia 'shore' (fem. sg.), It. spiaggia, Fr. plage, Sp. playa. REW 6564.

It. sponda 'side' (of a bed, cart, etc.; fr. Lat. sponda 'bedframe, parapet'), hence also 'bank' of a river and even 'shore' of the sea. REW 8170.

Fr. bord 'edge, side' and 'bank, shore', loanword fr. Gmc. bord 'edge' (12.353), REW 1215.

Rum. mal, fr. Alb. mal 'mountain' (or its older source), and first applied to a precipitous bank or coast. Cf. ChSl. brĕgŭ, below, 6. The meaning 'mountain, hill' appears in Rum. and Hung. place names. Densusianu 1.317, 349 f.

Rum. țărm, fr. Lat. termen 'boundary, end'. REW 8665. Titkin 1565.

3. Ir. trāg, trāig 'shore' as the place where the sea ebbs : Ir. trāigim, W. treio 'ebb', Lat. trahere 'draw', etc. Walde-P. 1.752. Pedersen 1.101.

Ir. tracht, W. traeth, loanword fr. Lat. tractus 'stretch of land, tract'. Vendryes, De hib. voc. 183. Loth, Mots lat. 212.

Ir. brū, bruach (also and orig. 'edge') : Lith. briauna 'edge', prob. also OE brū 'brow', etc. Walde-P. 2.196, 207. Pedersen 1.62.

W. glan 'side, shore, bank', Br. glann 'bank' belong with MBr. glenn 'country', Ir. glenn, W. glyn 'valley' (1.24), but outside connection dub. Possibly : LG, Dan. klint 'cliff' (Pedersen 1.38; Celtic forms not included in Walde-P. 1.614), with development fr. 'steep slope' to 'bank' (as in Lat. rīpa, above), and through 'ravine, gorge' to 'valley'?

W. tywyn: Br. tevenn 'cliff', Corn. towan 'sandy shore', orig. 'dune, cliff', fr. IE teu-* 'swell' in Lat. tumulus 'mound', etc. (Walde-P. 1.706 ff.). Loth. RC 41.406 ff.

Br. aod, OCorn. als : Ir. alt, W. allt 'cliff', all : (or loanwords fr.?) Lat. altus 'high'. Pedersen 1.137. Loth, Mots lat. 131.

W. arfordir, Br. arvor 'coast', fr. ar 'on' and mor 'sea', like Grk. παραλία, Boh. po-moři 'coast'.

4. Goth. staþs (or staþ neut.) OHG stad, stado, MHG stade, gestat, NHG gestade, beside Goth. staþs, OE stæþ, OHG stat, etc. 'place', two parallel groups of derivs. : Lat. status, statiō, etc., fr. stā-* 'stand'. The specialization in the first group is from the point of view of those on the water, 'standing place' to 'shore'. Cf. Goth. (Lk. 5.3) aftiuhan fairra staþa = ἀπὸ τῆς γῆς ἐπαναγαγεῖν 'put out from land'. Walde-P. 2.605. Weigand-H. 1.707, 2.942.

ON strǫnd 'edge' and 'coast', Dan., Sw., OE-NE, Du. strand (NHG strand fr. LG) : Lat. sternere, etc. 'spread out'. Walde-P. 2.638 ff. Franck–v. W. 674. Otherwise Falk-Torp 1177.

ON bakki 'riverbank', but also 'bank' in general, as ME banke (fr. ON), NE bank : OHG banch, OE benc 'bench,' etc. perh. Skt. bhañj- 'break.' NED s.v. bank, sb.[1]. Falk-Torp 43. Walde-P. 2.148.

Dan. bred 'border, edge' and also 'shore, bank' : OE brerd 'brim, margin', OHG brart 'edge', etc. Walde-P. 2.133. Falk-Torp 100.

OE ōfer, Du. oever, MHG uover (fr. LG), NHG ufer, perh. : Grk. ἤπειρος 'land' (vs. sea), then 'mainland', with specialization, again from the point of view of one on the water, of 'land' to 'shore'. See 1.26.

OE waroþ : OHG werid 'island' (used of land rising above the water in rivers and swamps), OE wer 'dam, weir' (NE weir), etc. fr. root of OE werian 'keep off', NHG wehren, etc. Walde-P. 1.282.

ME schore, NE shore, MLG schore (Du. schor, esp. 'marshy shore'), fr. the root of OE sceran 'cut, shear' (NE shear), with semantic development prob. through 'division' (between land and sea). NED s.v. shore, sb.[1]. Franck–v. W. 593.

NE coast, NHG küste, etc., see above, 2.

NE beach, of unknown orig., first used of pebbles on the seashore, then, of a pebbly sandy beach, and still so restricted in pop. use though not in geology. NED s.v.

5. Lith. kraštas, Lett. krasts, 'shore, bank' but in Lith. also 'edge' and 'country, region', etym.? Mühl.-Endz. 2.260.

Lith. krantas (> Lett. dial. krants), orig. 'steep bank' (Kurschat), but now the usual word for 'shore' (Lalis, NSB, etc.) : ChSl. krątŭ*, Russ. krut 'steep', Ukr. kruča 'steep bank'. Trautmann, KZ 46.265 (against Berneker 628).

Lith. pamaris, pajuris 'seacoast' lit. 'by the sea', cpds. of words for 'sea', like SCr. primorje, etc., Grk. παραλία.

6. ChSl. brĕgŭ, Boh. břeh (and pobřeži), Pol. brzeg (and wybrzeże), Russ. bereg, etc., the general Slavic word for 'shore, bank', in part also used for 'hill' or 'mountain' (1.22; esp. SCr. brijeg, now less common than others for 'shore'). Prob. an early loanword fr. (but some take as cognate with) the Gmc. word for 'mountain' (NHG berg, etc.). In either case the development is fr. 'height' to 'riverbank', then 'shore' in general. Stender-Petersen 266 (for loanword, as Berneker 50). Walde-P. 2.173 (for cognate, as Brückner).

ChSl. krajĭ (beside brĕgŭ for αἰγιαλός; Jagić, Entstehungsgesch. 328), SCr. kraj (also sometimes 'shore', cf. Rječnik Akad. s.v.), generally 'edge, border' (12.353). Berneker 605 f.

SCr. obala, fr. obaliti 'throw down', cpd. of ob and -valiti, valjati 'turn around' : Lat. volvere, etc. The semantic development is fr. 'overturn, throw down', through 'abrupt, steep', as in Lat. rīpa (above, 2) and others. Rječnik Akad. s.v.

SCr. žal, loanword fr. Alb. zal 'gravel, sand', dial. 'shore', this fr. Lat. sabulum 'gravel'. So G. Meyer, Alb. Etym. Wtb. 480, comparing for the variation in the sibilant Alb. šūr, dial. žūr, fr. Lat. saburra. Possibly also some influence of Grk. (αἰ)-γιαλός, which is represented in SCr. by igalo and jalija.

SCr. primorje, Boh. pomoři, Russ. vzmor'e, etc. 'seacoast', cpds. of word for 'sea', like Lith. pamaris, Grk. παραλία, etc.

7. Skt. tīra-, fr. tṛ- 'cross over' (3 sg. tirati), IE ter-* in Lat. termen 'boundary', etc. (Walde-P. 1.732 ff.) with development through 'boundary'. Uhlenbeck 113.

Skt. kūla- ('slope' in Regveda), etym.? Uhlenbeck 62. Walde-H. 1.305.

Skt. velā- 'end, boundary', and esp. 'shore, coast', etym.? Uhlenbeck 297.

Skt. pāra- 'end' and 'shore', Av. pāra- in cpds., NP -bār (Daryā-bār, etc.) : Skt. para- 'opposite, extreme, etc.', paras 'beyond', Grk. πέρā 'beyond', etc. Walde-P. 2.32. Barth. 889. Horn 158.

The words for 'water', with few exceptions, belong to certain widespread groups of cognates, one of these reflecting what was clearly the general IE word for 'water', and three others also reflecting IE words for 'water', but perhaps in some more special application, such as 'running water' or 'rain water'. Many words belonging to these groups appear in other lists, as under 'sea', 'wave', 'river', 'rain'.

1. IE wedōr, *wodōr, uden-, a typical r/n stem neuter, with gradation of the root syllable, fr. root wed-* in Skt. ud- 'wet, flow'. Some forms with nasal in root syllable (intrusion from verb forms with nasal infix, or anticipation of n of stem). Walde-P. 1.252 ff. Ernout-M. 1124.

Grk. ὕδωρ; Umbr. utur (Lat. unda 'wave'); Ir. usce, NIr. uisce (Gael. uisgebeatha 'water of life' > NE whiskey); the Gmc. group, Goth. watō, OE wæter, etc.; Lith. vanduo, Lett. ūdens, OPruss. wundan, unds; ChSl. voda, etc. general Slavic; Skt. udan-; Hitt. watar, gen. wetenas; Alb. ujë.

2. IE ak^{w}ā-* or akwā-*. Walde-P. 1.34 f. Ernout-M. 64. Walde-H. 1.60. Feist 18 f. Lat. aqua with its Romance derivatives. Elsewhere mostly of 'running water' in words for 'river', as Goth. ahwa, OE ēa, etc. (1.46). Here Hitt. eku-, aku-, Toch. yok- 'drink'?

3. IE āp-*. Walde-P. 1.46. Skt. āp-, ap- mostly pl. āpas, used esp. of the personified 'Waters', Av. āp-, ap- the reg. word for 'water', also freq. personified, OPers. āpi-, NPers. āb 'water'. Elsewhere only of 'running water' in words for 'river', as Lith. upė, Lat. amnis, Ir. abann, etc. (1.46).

4. IE wer-*. Walde-P. 1.268 f. Skt. vār-, vāri, 'water' (of all kinds), Toch. A wär, B war 'water'. Elsewhere in words for 'rain water, rain', as Av. vār-, ON ūr (1.75), or for 'sea' or 'lake', as Av. vairi-, Lith. jurės, etc. (1.32, 1.33). Also Grk. οὖρον, Lat. ūrina 'urine' (cf. NE make water).

5. Miscellaneous:

NG νερό fr. νεαρὸν (ὕδωρ) 'fresh water', through νηρόν (cf. Phrynichus νηρὸν ὕδωρ μὴ εἴπῃς), with regular change of ir to er (Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 2.598).

Ir. dobur (rare, but cf. dobur-chū 'otter', lit. 'water dog'), W. dwfr, Br. dour (Celt. dubro-*) : δύβρις· θάλασσα Schol. Theocr. (prob. Illyr.), Alb. det 'sea', and these : W. dwfn, Goth. diups, etc. 'deep' (12.67), ChSl. dŭno 'bottom', dĭbrĭ 'valley', etc. Pedersen 1.35 f. Kretschmer, Glotta 22.216. Pokorny, Z. celt. Ph. 20.513. Otherwise (: Ir. dub 'black') Walde-P. 1.840.

Skt. jala-, the commonest word for 'water' : gal- 'drip', NHG quelle 'spring', etc. Walde-P. 1.690 ff.

Skt. ambhas- and ambu- : Grk. ὄμβρος, Lat. imber 'rainstorm', Skt. abhra- 'cloud, rainy weather', nabhas- 'cloud, sky', etc. Walde-P. 1.131.

'Sea' is understood here as covering the most general terms applied to large bodies of water and used in such a phrase as 'by land and sea'. But between 'sea' and 'lake' there is no rigid demarcation (either by size, or as salt vs. fresh water), and the same word or related group may serve for either or both, or shift its prevailing application with changed physical conditions. This is notably the case in the Gmc. languages, with the divergent distribution of the groups represented by NE sea and NHG meer.

Special words for 'ocean' are mostly derived from Grk. ὠκεανός and are not considered here.

The words for 'sea' reflect such notions as 'deep', 'level', 'way', 'glistening'(?), 'salt', or simply 'water'.

1. IE mari* (or mori*). Walde-P. 2.234. Ernout-M. 592. Walde-H. 2.39 f. Root connection uncertain, but that with Grk. μαρμαίρω 'glisten' the most likely. The wide distribution shows the existence of the word in the IE period, but cannot in itself determine whether what was denoted by it in that period was an ocean, or an inland sea like the Euxine or the Caspian, or even a fresh-water lake.

Lat. mare (> Romance words); Ir. muir, W., Br. mor; Goth. marei, ON marr (poet.), OHG mari, MHG mer, NHG meer (OE mere rarely 'sea', surviving in NE mer-maid, but mostly 'lake', as also Du. meer); Lith. marės (now mostly in names of special seas, as the Black Sea, etc.; NSB s.v.), ChSl. morje, etc., general Slavic.

2. Grk. θάλασσα, the main word at all periods, fr. θάλα-χ-ια* (cf. δαλάγχαν· θάλασσαν Hesych., presumably a Maced. form) or the like : θάλαμος 'inner room', θόλος 'vaulted room', ChSl. dolŭ 'pit', Goth. dals 'valley', etc. Transition from 'hollow, deep', to 'sea'. Cf. Lk. 5.4 εἰς τὸ βάθος, OE on dypan 'into the deep', NE cross the deep, and the gloss δύβρις· θάλασσα (prob. Illyr.), with Alb. det 'sea' : Goth. diups, etc. 'deep' (Kretschmer, Glotta 22.216). There is no need to assume, as is generally done, that θάλασσα is of pre-Greek origin. Buck, Class. Studies Presented to E. Capps 42 ff.

Grk. πόντος, poet. or of a special sea (πόντος Εὔξεινος, Πόντος) : Skt. path-, nom. panthās 'road, way', etc. (10.71). Specialization of 'way' to 'seaway', like κέλευθος 'way' in Hom. ὑγρὰ κέλευθα, ἰχθυόεντα κέλευθα, etc. Walde-P. 2.26.

Other poetical expressions are ἅλς 'salt' used for 'sea'; πέλαγος : Lat. plānus 'level, flat', etc. (12.71) for the (flat surface of the) open sea.

3. Lat. (beside usual mare) poet. aequor : aequus 'level, flat', and pontus, pelagus, loanwords fr. Greek.

4. Ir. foirrce, fairrge 'ocean, sea' (rare), NIr. fairrge (Gael. fairge 'sea', esp. 'stormy sea, surge', Manx faarkey), now the common generic word (muir prevailing in the name of special seas, as the Irish Sea, etc.) etym. disputed the old comparison with Ir. ferg 'anger' and the ὠκεανὸς Οὐεργιούιος of Ptolemy is phonetically difficult. Stokes 273. Bergin, Eriu 3.86. Pedersen 2.669 f. Walde-P. 1.289. Perh. best taken as fr. foirsge* : fairsiung 'wide' (12.61). So Thurneysen, Z. celt. Ph. 11.312, Gram. 95.

Ir. ler (gen. lir), NIr. lear also 'flood, surge (of the sea)', W. llyr 'flood, sea' (arch.), beside lliant 'flood, stream', fr. the root in ChSl. lĭjati 'pour', etc. (9.35). Loth, RC 50.70 ff.

5. The Gmc. group, Goth. saiws 'lake', ON sær (sjār, sjōr) 'sea' (Dan. sø, Sw. sjö, usually 'lake', but also 'sea' in phrases), OE sǣ, ME see, NE sea, Du. zee 'sea'. OHG sēo, MHG sē 'sea' or 'lake', NHG see fem. 'sea', masc. 'lake', all fr. a Gmc. saiwi-*, outside connections wholly doubtful. Walde-P. 2.464. Feist 406 f. Falk-Torp 1232.

ON haf, Sw., Dan. hav, OE hæf (poet. and rare), MLG haf (> NHG haff in specialized application), is the same word as ON haf 'lifting' : Goth. hafjan, ON hefja 'lift', NE heave, etc. Walde-P. 1.343. Falk-Torp 385. Development through the notion of the convex surface of the high sea, or, more likely, that of the lifting, surging, of the waves.

6. Lith. jūra or pl. jūrės, Lett. jūra, OPruss. jūrin (acc. sg.) : Skt. vār-, vāri- 'water', Av. vār- 'rain', vairi- 'lake', ON ver 'sea' (poet.), OE wær 'sea' (rare), ON ūr 'fine rain', etc. (1.31). Walde-P. 1.268.

7. Skt. sāgara-, with secondary vṛddhi fr. sa-gara-, with cop. sa- and gara- 'drink, swallowing', fr. gṛ- 'swallow'. Conception of the sea as swallowing rivers. Walde-P. 1.682.

Skt. sam-udra- and uda-dhi : udan- 'water'.

Skt. arṇava- (freq. late term for 'sea', cf. BR s.v.), sb. of arṇava- 'flowing, rising', fr. arṇas- 'wave, flood, stream', this fr. ṛ- 'move'. Uhlenbeck 13.

Av. zrayah-, OPers. drayah- (NPers. daryā 'sea' or 'large river') : Skt. (Vedic) jrayas- 'flat surface' (so BR), in which case one would compare the Iranian use with that of Grk. πέλαγος, Lat. aequor (above), but according to Geldner, Ved. Stud. 2.248 ff., 'onset, onrush, course', fr. jri- 'rush upon'. Walde-P. 1.660.

The interchange between 'lake' and 'sea', notably in Germanic, has been discussed under 'sea'. On the other hand, there is no rigid line between 'lake' and 'pond' or 'pool'. Several of the words listed here cover all these, and started from modest beginnings like 'hole, depression', so that 'lake' may be a glorified 'water hole' or 'pond'. NE pond (the same word as pound for stray animals) was formerly in New England the usual word for 'lake' (the familiar ponds of my boyhood are now mostly lakes, but still Toddy Pond, nine miles long).

A few of the words for 'lake', like some for 'sea', are from 'water', or 'wetness'.

1. Grk. λίμνη 'pool' (so in Homer, where also 'sea'), 'marshy lake' (cf. also Λίμναι orig. the 'marshlands' in Athens), 'lake' : λειμών 'meadow', λιμήν 'harbor' or (dial.) 'market place', Lett. leja 'valley', all with a common notion of 'depression, lowland', fr. lei-* 'bend'. Walde-P. 1.158. This is much more probable than derivation fr. lei-* 'pour, flow' (Walde-P. 2.392), favored by some.

2. Lat. lacus 'basin, tank', and 'lake' (> It., Sp. lago, Fr., Rum. lac; Fr. lac > ME lac, NE lake), Ir. loch 'lake, pool', Br. loc'h, lagenn 'lake, pool' (OE lagu, ON lǫgr 'sea, water') : Lat. lacūna 'hole, pit', Grk. λάκκος 'pit, tank, pond', all prob. fr. a common notion of 'hole, basin'. Walde-P. 2.380. Ernout-M. 517. Walde-H. 1.748. Pedersen 1.361.

3. Ir. lind, NIr. linn, W. llyn, Br. lenn, all meaning 'lake, pool, pond' (in Irish mostly 'pool, pond'), fr. plend* : Grk. πλαδαρός 'wet', or fr. plē-ndh-* : Goth. flōdus 'flood', etc. Walde-P. 2.438. Pedersen 1.37.

4. The Gmc. words are mostly those discussed under 'sea'. But ON vatn, same as vatn 'water'. Dan., Sw., beside sø, sjö, also indsø, insjö, with prefix ind-, in- 'in'. Cf. NHG binnensee.

OHG wāc 'wave, sea, lake' (usual gl. to Lat. lacus; also locally NHG wog 'lake', Paul, Deutsches Wtb. s.v. woge) : ON vāgr, OE wǣg 'wave, sea', etc. (1.35).

5. The Balto-Slavic word, Lith ežeras (or ažeras), OPruss. assaran, Lett. ezers, ChSl. jezero, etc. etym.? Connected with the Greek river name 'Αχέρων by Prellwitz, BB 24.106 (cf. also Kretschmer, Glotta 14.98); with ChSl. jazŭ 'canal, fishweir', etc. (Berneker 277), Lith. ežė 'pool', by Meillet, BSL 29. 1.38 ff.

6. Skt. saras- 'lake, pond, pool, tank' (whence Skt. Sarasvatī-, name of a river, Av. Haraxᵛaitī-, OPers. Harauvatī- 'Arachosia') : Grk. ἕλος 'marsh', root connection? Walde-P. 2.507.

Skt. hrada- 'lake, pool, deep water' (Gāṅgahrada- 'water of the Ganges') : hlād- 'refresh'. Uhlenbeck 362.

Av. vairi- : Skt. vāri- 'water', Lith. jūrės 'sea', etc. (1.31).

1.34 GULF, BAY

Grk.	κόλπος	Goth.	. . . .	Lith.	įlanka

Br.	plegmor	NHG	meerbusen, golf, bai

The distinction between the (more inclosed) gulf and the (more open) bay is a secondary one, which must be ignored here.

The commonest source is that of 'curved shape'. Others are 'harbor', 'branch', 'inlet', or 'inflow' (of the sea).

1. Grk. κόλπος 'bosom', 'fold of a garment', and 'gulf, bay' : ON hvalf, OE hwealf 'vault', NHG wölben 'form an arch', etc. Walde-P. 1.474.

Hence, with peculiar change in form, the international word, NE gulf, etc., the history of which is as follows (cf. Kretschmer, Byz. Z. 10.581 ff.). Late Lat. colphus with spelling ph, then pronounced and spelled colfus (cf. τρόπαιον > Lat. tropaeum, late trophaeum > Fr. trophée, NE trophy). This colfus > late Grk. κόλφος, whence NG pop. κόρφος (with ρ as in ἦρθα = ἦλθα; but this form now usual only for 'bosom', not for 'gulf', which is κόλπος); also (with g for c as in late gummi for cummi = Grk. κόμμι 'gum') It. golfo (> Fr. golfe > ME goulf, NE golf, NHG golf, Rum. golf, etc.), Sp. golfo.

2. Lat. sinus 'curve, fold, bosom' and 'gulf, bay', etym.? Ernout-M. 946.

Hence It., Sp. seno, generally 'bosom', etc. (as Fr. sein), but also used for a (small) 'gulf, bay', though mostly replaced by golfo, etc. (above 1).

MLat. baia, Sp. bahia, It. baia, Fr. baie (> ME baye, NE bay, Du. baai, NHG bai), orig. dub., perh. loanword fr. some Mediterranean (Iberian?) source. Walde-H. 1.93. REW 882. Wartburg 1.205.

3. Ir. cūan, NIr. cuan 'harbor' and 'bay' (in Gael. 'ocean') : ON hǫfn, 'harbor', NE haven, etc., ON haf 'sea', etc. (1.32). Walde-P. 1.342 ff.

W. morgainc, cpd. of mor 'sea' and cainc 'branch'.

Br. plegmor, cpd. of plek 'fold' and mor 'sea'.

4. ON fjǫrðr (whence NE firth, frith), Dan. fjord, Sw. fjärd, used of the long, narrow arms of the sea characteristic of the Scandinavian coast : OE ford 'ford', Lat. portus 'harbor', etc. Walde-P. 2.40. Falk-Torp 226.

ON vīk, Dan. vig 'small inlet', but Sw. vik also of a large 'bay' : ON vīkja, OE wīcan, NHG weichen 'fall back, recede', fr. the notion of 'recession, bend'. Falk-Torp 1376.

Dan. bugt, Sw. bukt (also 'bend') fr. LG bucht (whence also Du. bocht, ME boght, NHG bucht) : OE byht 'bend', NE bight, all fr. the root of Goth. biugan 'bend', etc. Falk-Torp 114. Only the Dan., Sw. word is common for 'bay', the others being used in narrower sense, like NE bight (cf. bight of a bay).

OHG ocrinch lit. 'eye-ring' once glosses Lat. sinus. Other OHG or MHG words?

NHG meerbusen, in 16th cent. also meerschoss, both lit. 'sea-bosom'. Cf. Grk. κόλπος and Lat. sinus.

5. Lith. įlanka (NSB s.v.) : lenkti 'bend'.

Lett. jūras līcis, lit. 'curve of the sea' fr. līcis 'curve' : likt, Lith. linkti 'bend'

6. SCr., Boh., Russ. zaliv : za-liti, za-livati 'overflow', ChSl. liti 'pour'.

Boh., Pol. zatoka : za-teci, za-ciec 'flow in', ChSl. tešti, teką 'flow'. Hence an 'inflow' (of the sea).

Words for 'wave' are from such notions as 'move', 'roll', 'swell', 'flow', 'break', 'roar', rarely from 'water'. They readily develop secondary applications ('waves' of invaders, of light, sound, etc.), which in some cases (Fr. onde, etc.) have almost smothered the original use.

1. Derivs. of IE wel-* 'turn, roll' in Goth. -walwjan, Lat. volvere, etc. (10.15). Walde-P. 1.298 ff.

OHG wella, MHG, NHG welle; Lith., Lett. vilnis; ChSl. vlŭna, valŭ, etc., general Slavic (but Pol. fala, now the usual word, fr. NHG welle); Skt. ūrmi-, Av. varəmi-.

Between the large 'river' emptying into the sea and the tiny 'brook' there are infinite gradations, and often a wealth of words for these, which must be mostly ignored here. But generally there are distinctive words for 'river' and 'brook', and also one for 'stream', used generally for all forms of running water or mainly for those intermediate between the extremes of 'river' and 'brook'.

Words for 'brook' may be diminutives of those for 'river'. Conversely, a word for 'brook' may be displaced by a diminutive form of it (or otherwise) and itself serve for 'river'.

Most of the words are derived from roots meaning 'flow, run'. Some are cognate with words for 'water', perhaps originally 'flowing water' (cf. 1.31). Some are from verbs for 'rush, plunge', or 'roar', applied first to a rushing, roaring stream.

2. Derivs. of IE rei-* in Skt. ri- 'let go', mid. 'flow', Goth. rinnan 'run, flow', etc. Walde-P. 1.139 ff., Ernout-M. 866 f.

Lat. rīvus 'brook'; OE rīþ 'brook' (gl. Lat. rīvus), MLG ride 'brook'; Goth. rinnō 'brook'; ChSl. rěka, etc., general Slavic for 'river'.

From Lat. rīvus (through rīus) come Sp. río 'river' (OIt. rio 'brook' and 'river', OFr. ri 'brook'), Rum. rîŭ 'river' (now fluviu for large rivers like the Danube). Dim. forms for 'rivulet, brook', Lat. rīvolus, It. rivolo, Rum. rîŭlet, It. ruscello, Fr. ruisseau. REW 7341, 7338a. Gamillscheg 777.

3. From IE āp* (and ab-) 'water', Skt. āpas, etc. (1.31). Walde-P. 1.46. Ernout-M. 45. Walde-H. 1.40.

Lat. amnis 'river' (poet.); Ir. ab (aba, oub, etc.), NIr. abha 'river', W. afon 'river', afonig 'brook', Br. aven 'river' (mostly obs.), Lith. upė, Lett. upe, OPruss. ape 'river', Lith. upelis, Lett. upele 'brook' (but Lett. upe also 'brook').

4. Grk. ποταμός (NG pop. ποτάμι), fr. root of πίπτω 'fall', πέτομαι 'fly', Skt. pat- 'fly, fall', etc. That is, ποταμός was at first the 'falling, plunging, rushing' stream. Walde-P. 2.19. Persson, Beiträge 654. Kretschmer, Glotta 27.248 f.

'Brook' would be covered by ῥεῦμα, etc. (above, 1), otherwise by words that commonly denote 'mountain-torrent'. So χαράδρα : χαράσσω 'cut into'; χείμαρρος (but once 'river' in LXX, and 'brook' in NT), Hom. χειμάρρους, χειμάρροος, cpd. of χεῖμα 'cold, winter' and ῥέω 'flow'.

5. Lat. fluvius (> Fr. fleuve; Rum. fluviu neolog.), and flūmen (> It. fiume), both common words for 'river' (fluvius preferred in earlier writers, flūmen in Caesar; Arch. lat. Lex. 7.588), fr. fluere 'flow'. Walde-P. 2.213. Ernout-M. 371. Walde-H. 1.519.

OFr. river, riviere, fr. Lat. rīpāria, deriv. of rīpa 'riverbank' (1.27), was used for 'shore' (like It. riviera, etc.), then also for the stream flowing between the banks. Hence ME, NE river, Du. rivier 'river', while Fr. rivière is used of the smaller river tributary to the fleuve. REW 605.

Sp. arroyo, Port. arroio 'brook', fr. a pre-IE word attested by arrugia 'mine gallery' in Spain (Pliny HN 33.70), Basque arroila 'canal', etc., appropriate to the deep-gullied arroyo of the dry season. REW 678. Bertoldi, BSL 32.122. Wartburg, Entstehung d. rom. Völker 22 f.

Rum. pîrîŭ 'brook', prob. : rîŭ 'river', influenced by Alb. përrue 'brook'. G. Meyer, Alb. Etym. Wtb. 335. Spitzer, Mitt. d. rum. Inst. 1.296. Jokl, IF 37.91.

6. Ir. ab, W. afon, etc., above, 3.

Ir. sruth, etc., above, 1.

Br. ster 'river', MBr. staer, fr. stagro-* : Grk. στάζω 'drip', σταγών 'drop', Lat. stagnum 'pool'. Walde-P. 2.612. Pedersen 1.103.

Ir. glais 'brook', perh. : Ir. glass 'green'. Macbain 196 s.v. glaiseach.

Br. gouer, Corn. gover (OCorn. guuer, gl. rivus) 'brook', W. gofer 'overflow, rill', Ir. fobar in place names, cpd. of go- (= Ir. fo, Grk. ὑπό, etc.) and IE bher-* 'bear' (so Henry s.v.), or better IE bher-* 'gush' in Ir. topur 'spring', etc. (Walde-P. 2.157 ff., but without mention of Br. gouer, etc.). Vendryes, RC 37.306 f.

W. nant 'brook' also 'valley, gorge', OBr. nant 'gorge, brook', Gall. nanto 'valley', fr. IE nem-* 'bend', Skt. nam-, etc. Walde-P. 2.302. Stokes 192. Otherwise (: Grk. νομή 'pasturage', etc.) Benveniste, BSL 32.85. In either case, 'brook' fr. 'valley'.

7. Goth. ahwa, ON ā, OE ēa, OHG aha : Lat. aqua 'water' (1.31).

Goth. flōdus (once for ποταμός) = OE flōd, OHG fluot 'flood' (sometimes also 'river') fr. root of OE flōwan 'flow', etc. (10.32). The use of the corresponding Dan., Sw. flod as 'river' is after that of MLG vlōt (Falk-Torp 239). OHG fluz, MHG vluz, NHG fluss, fr. (extension of the same root in) OHG fliozan 'flow'.

Norw. elf (usual word for 'river'), Sw. älf = ON elfr 'Elbe', prob. : Lat. albus 'white', etc. (cf. Grk. ἀλφός and the river 'Αλφειός). Falk-Torp 188 f. Hellquist 1434.

ON lækr 'brook' : ON leka 'drip, leak', Du. leken 'leak' (NE leak, loanword), OE (caus.) leccan 'moisten', OE lace, NE dial. lake 'small stream' (cf. NED s.v. lake, sb.[3]), Ir. legaim 'melt away'. Walde-P. 2.423. Falk-Torp 619.

The most widespread Gmc. word for 'brook', ON bekkr (poet.), Dan. bæk, Sw. bäck, OE bece (rare), ME becc (fr. ON), NE dial. beck, Du. beek, OHG bah, MHG, NHG bach, prob. : Lith. bėgti 'run', etc. Falk-Torp 123. Weigand-H 1.134. Kluge-G. 32. Otherwise Walde-P. 2.187.

OE brōc 'torrent (gl. Lat. torrens), brook', ME broke, NE brook, in form = OHG bruoh, NHG bruch, Du. broek 'marsh', root connection? Deriv. fr. the root of OE brecan 'break' is most attractive for English (as orig. 'breaking torrent'), but difficult for the other words. NED s.v. brook.

NE dial. burn for 'brook', fr. OE burna 'spring' (1.37).

NE, creek, orig. a 'narrow inlet of the sea', is common for 'small stream, brook' in parts of U.S. and elsewhere. NED s.v. creek, sb.[1] 2 b. (In driving, one notices the change of signs from Creek to Brook.)

8. Baltic words, above, 1 and 3.

9. ChSl. rěka, etc., above, 2.

ChSl. tokŭ 'stream', potokŭ 'brook', SCr. potok 'brook', Pol., Russ. potok 'stream' : teką, tešti 'flow, run' (10.32).

Pol. ruczaj, Russ. ručej, 'brook' (Boh. ručej 'torrent') : SCr. ruknuti, ChSl. rykati 'roar', etc., (fr. reuk-, beside reug- in Lat. rugīre 'roar', both extensions of reu-* in Skt. ru- 'roar', etc. (Walde-P. 2.349 ff.). Brückner 467.

10. Skt. srotas, Av. θraotah- etc., above, 1.

Skt. nadī- 'river' : nad- 'sound, roar'. Uhlenbeck 142.

Skt. sarit- 'stream, river' : sṛ- 'flow' (10.32).

Skt. kulyā- 'brook, canal,' beside kulya- 'bone', both from the notion of of 'hollow' : OE hol, etc. 'hollow' (12.72). Walde-P. 1.332.

The natural 'spring' and the constructed 'well' are taken together because of their close relations. The distinction may be a secondary one, or the application of the same word may shift from one to the other. From 'spring' develops also 'fountain', the artificial jet of water or the structure for it. But words for 'fountain', if different from those for 'spring' or 'well', are not included in the list.

Words for 'spring' are most commonly from verbs for 'flow, gush, boil up, spring', etc. Several are from adjectives for 'cold'. Words for 'spring' readily come to be used for 'source, origin', or even cease to be the usual words for 'spring' (cf. NE source vs. Fr. source, NHG ursprung). Conversely, 'source, origin' is the earlier sense of a few words that are used also for 'spring'.

Words for 'well' are mainly words for 'spring' with extension or shift to 'well', but some are of independent origin, reflecting 'hole, pit' or some feature of the construction.

1. Grk. φρέαρ 'well' (*φρῆϝαρ), Arm. albiur, Ir. topur (to-od-bhoro-*), NIr. tobar 'spring, well', Goth. brunna 'flow, spring', ON brunnr 'well', Dan. brønd 'well', Sw. brunn 'well', OE burna 'spring' (renders Lat. fons of the Vulgate; but usually 'brook' as NE dial. burn), Du. bron 'spring, well', OHG brunno 'spring', NHG brunnen mostly 'well' or 'fountain' : Lat. fervēre 'boil', Grk. φύρω 'mix', Skt. bhur- 'quiver, stir', etc. (IE bher-, bheru-, bhreu-*, etc.). Walde-P. 2.157 ff., 167 ff. Ernout-M. 353.

2. Grk. κρήνη 'spring', Dor. κρᾱνᾱ, Lesb. κράννᾱ, fr. *κράσνᾱ (also κρουνός, fr. *κροσνός); etym.? Walde-P. 1.488 f. Boisacq 515.

Grk. πηγή, Dor. πᾱγά, Hom. pl. πηγαί 'streams', later 'spring, source', etym.? Boisacq 777. In NT also 'well' (Jn. 4.6 = φρέαρ, Jn. 4.11, 12). Hence NG πηγάδι 'well'.

NG βρύση 'spring', fr. late βρύσις 'bubbling up' (Suid., Eust.) : βρύω 'be full, swell, gush forth'.

3. Lat. fōns, fontis 'spring' : Skt. dhan-, dhanv- 'run, flow'. Walde-P. 1.852. Ernout-M. 375. Walde-H. 1.525.

Hence It. fonte, Sp. fuente. Deriv. fontāna, whence It. fontana, Fr. fontaine (> ME, NE fountain, formerly used for 'spring'), OSp. hontana, Rum. fîntînă 'well, fountain'; also W. ffynon 'spring, well, fountain', MW fynhawn, OCorn. funten, Br. feunteun. 6. Lith. šaltinis 'spring' : šaltas, Lett. salts 'cold'. Leskien, Bildung d. Nom. 402.

Lith. versme 'spring' (Lett. versme 'glow, blast of heat') : virti 'boil', etc. Walde-P. 1.269.

Lith. šulinys 'well' : šulas 'post, stave'. Descriptive of the most primitive type of well, that is, a spring dug out and its sides supported by wooden staves. Leskien, Bildung d. Nom. 403.

Lett. avuots 'spring' : Skt. avata- 'well', avaṭa- 'pit', avani- 'river, river bed', perh. Grk. ἄναυρος 'mountain torrent', Lat. Avernus, etc. Walde-P. 1.254. Mühl.-Endz. 1.233. Walde-H. 1.31 f.

Lett. aka, dim. acina 'well' : Lith. akas 'hole cut in the ice', ChSl. oko 'eye', Grk. ὀπή 'hole', Arm. akn 'eye, hole, spring'. Development from 'eye' to 'hole', then 'well'. Cf. NPers. čašm 'eye', čašma 'spring'. Walde-P. 1.170 ff.

7. ChSl. istočĭnikŭ (reg. for πηγή in Gospels, Supr. etc.), Russ. istočnik 'spring' (now mostly as 'source'), lit. 'outflow', fr. is- 'out' and root of ChSl. teką, tešti 'flow'.

ChSl. studenĭcĭ 'well', so SCr. studenac, Boh. studně, Pol. studnia : ChSl. studenŭ 'cold' (15.86). Miklosich 327. Brückner 523.

ChSl. kladęzi (v.l. of studenĭcĭ in Gospels), Russ. kolodec 'well', loanword fr. a Gmc. kaldinga*, deriv. of kalds 'cold', like ON kelda 'spring' (above, 5). Berneker 543. Stender-Petersen 277 f.

SCr., Bulg. izvor 'spring' (> Rum. izvor) : ChSl. iz- 'out' and virěti 'boil' (10.31). Fr. the same root also SCr. vrelo 'spring'. Miklosich 381.

Boh. pramen 'spring', also 'jet, stream, strand' : ChSl. pramenĭ 'thread', SCr. pramen 'tuft of hair', Pol. promień 'ray', fr. por-men-, deriv. of IE per- 'pass through' (Grk. περάω, etc.). Development in Bohemian through 'thin stream' to 'spring'. Brückner 438.

Pol. źródło, Boh. zřidlo 'spring' : Russ. žerlo 'opening, crater', Pol. gardło 'throat, gullet' (gor-dlo-*), Lith. gurklys 'crop' (of a bird), Lat. gurges 'abyss, whirlpool', Grk. βάραθρον 'pit', etc. fr. IE *g^{w}er- in Skt. gṛ- 'swallow', Grk. βιβρώσκω 'devour', etc. Development through 'opening' (as in Russ.) to 'spring'. Walde-P. 1.682. Brückner 667.

Pol. zdrój, Boh. zdroj 'spring', ChSl. izrojĭ 'emission of semen', fr. iz- 'out' and the root of rijati 'flow', rěka 'river', etc. (1.36). Miklosich 278. Brückner 650.

Russ. rodnik 'spring' : rod 'race, birth, origin'. Specialization of 'source' to 'source of water, spring', the opposite of the development in NE source.

Russ. ključ 'spring' : SCr. ključ 'gushing of water', kljukati 'stuff, cram', ključati 'well up, boil', Pol. klukać 'coo, kluck', etc., all of imitative orig., like NE cluck. Berneker 529.

8. Skt. utsa- 'spring' : udan- 'water'. Walde-P. 1.252.

Skt. avata- 'well' : Lett. avuots 'spring', etc. (above, 6).

Skt. kūpa- 'hole, pit, well' (cf. kūpajala- 'well-water') : Grk. κύπη 'hut', κύπελλον 'goblet', Lat. cūpa 'tub, vat', etc., all fr. the notion of 'bent, hollow'. Walde-P. 1.373.

Av. xan- (nom. pl. xå) 'spring' : Skt. khan- 'dig', kha- 'hole, opening', khā- or khan- (acc. sg. khām) 'spring, source'. Walde-P. 1.399. Barth. 531.

Av. čāt- 'well', NPers. čāh 'well' : Av. kan- 'dig', parallel form to Skt. khan-, Barth. 583.

The difference between NE woods, the more generic and popular term, and forest, applied only to the larger tracts, will be ignored here. To avoid ambiguity, 'woods' (not 'wood' as in a wood) will be used in this sense, and 'wood' only in the sense of material.

Where the same word or cognate group covers 'woods' and 'wood' (or sometimes 'tree'), 'woods' is historically the earlier sense.

Words for 'woods' are mostly from notions that were adventitiously associated, such as (wooded) 'mountain', (woodland) 'pasture', 'promontory', 'wild land', once even 'swamp'; often 'boundary' (as formed by woods); rarely 'remote', or 'noisy' (as in a storm).

1. Grk. ὕλη 'woods', also 'timber' and 'material', etym. dub. Walde-P. 2.504. Boisacq 1000. Wackernagel, Sprachliche Unters. zu Homer 185.

NG δάσος 'woods' (ὕλη now 'material'), in class. Grk. 'thicket' : δασύς, Lat. dēnsus 'thick'. Walde-P. 1.793.

2. Lat. silva (> It., Sp selva, O.Fr. seuve), etym.? Possibly (with l fr. d, as in lingua) : Grk. ἴδη 'timber, forest', and as 'wooded hill' the mountains known as Ἴδη or Ἴδᾱ, all prob. of pre-Greek origin. Solmsen, IF 28.109 ff.

MLat. boscus (> It. bosco, Fr. bois, Sp. bosque) was used esp., like Lat. saltus, for 'woodland pasture' (cf. unusquisque liber homo agistet boscum suum in foresta 'every free man may let out his pasture land in the forest', etc.; cf. Du Cange s.v. agistare). It is now taken by many as a loanword fr. Gmc. (OHG busc, NE bush, etc.), instead of conversely as formerly. Of other views, the derivation fr. Grk. βοσκή 'fodder' with transfer to 'pasture' (cf. CGL 2.258 βοσκή pastio, pabula, pascua) is semantically most attractive (so Baist, Z. rom. Ph. 32.426 ff.). REW 1419b. Wartburg 1.453. Kaufmann, Die gallo-romanischen Bezeichungen für den Begriff 'Wald' 44 ff. Rohlfs, Etym. Wtb. der unteritalienischen Gräzitat 350.

MLat. forestis, foresta, OFr. forest (> It. foresta, Sp. floresta, ME, NE forest, Fr. forêt; also OHG forst) denoted at first esp. 'forest preserve, game preserve', and so is best derived fr. Lat. forum in its legal sense 'court, judgment', that is, as land subject to a ban. Otherwise, as formerly preferred, fr. Lat. forās, foris 'outside'. In either case the formation is on the analogy of agrestis fr. ager, etc. REW 3459. Wartburg 3.708 ff. Kaufmann, op. cit. 26 ff.

Sp. monte, orig. 'mountain' (1.22) with development through 'upland woods' to 'woods'. Cf. Lith. girė, below, 5.

Walde-P. 1.438 f. Falk-Torp 417. NED s.v. holt. According to this connection, the meaning 'piece of wood' would seem to be ultimately the earlier, but in Celtic and Germanic the collective 'woods' is clearly the earlier sense.

Ir. fid, (also cpd. fidbad, Pedersen 1.14), W. gwydd : OE widu 'woods, wood', etc. (below, 4).

A widespread group of words for 'tree', many of them meaning also 'wood', go back to an IE word which probably denoted a particular kind of tree, namely the oak. Others are from those for 'woods' (1.41); some perhaps from the notion of 'growth'; while several are of obscure origin.

1. IE doru-, derwo-, etc. Walde-P. 1.804 ff. Osthoff, Parerga 169 ff.

Grk. δόρυ 'tree' (rare), 'beam, shaft, spear', δρῦς 'oak'; Ir. daur 'oak'; Goth. triu 'stick of wood, stave', weinatriu 'vine', ON trē 'tree, wood', Dan. træ 'tree, wood', Sw. trä 'wood', träd 'tree' (fr. træ-et, with def. article; cf. W. coeden), OE trēow, ME treo, tre 'tree, wood', NE tree (no longer used for 'wood'); ChSl. drěvo 'tree', druva (pl.) 'wood', SCr. drvo 'tree, wood' (distinguished in pl.), Boh. dřevo 'wood', drevno 'piece of wood', Pol. drzewo, Russ. derevo 'tree, wood'; Skt. dāru-, dru- 'wood', druma- 'tree', Av. dāuru- 'piece of wood, club'.

2. Grk. δένδρεον (Hom.), δένδρον (also δένδρος, -εος), perh. fr. *δεν-δρεϝο- (with dissimilated reduplication?) : δόρυ etc. (above, 1). Walde-P. 1.804. For other views, cf. Boisacq 176.

3. Lat. arbor, etym. dub., perh. (through a by-form with dh beside d) : Lat. arduus 'high, steep', Ir. ard 'high, tall', etc. with development through 'growth' or 'tall' (cf. Boh. strom, below, 7). Walde-P. 1.148 ff. Walde-H. 1.62.

Hence It. albero, Fr. arbre, Sp. árbol, Rum. arbore (neolog.; early arbure; Tiktin 88).

Rum. copac (the pop. word) is thought to be a loanword fr. Alb. kopaç 'tree trunk', but the ultimate origin is obscure. Tiktin 410. Densusianu 1.356.

4. Ir. crann 'tree', W. pren 'tree, log', Br. prenn 'wood' : Grk. πρῖνος 'holm oak'? Pedersen 1.44. Walde-P. 1.524.

7. ChSl. drěvo, etc., above, 1.

ChSl. dąbŭ (Supr., etc.; in gospels only drěvo, cf. Jagić, Entstehungsgesch. 342), orig. 'oak' as general Slavic (8.61). Berneker 216.

Boh. strom : strměti 'project, tower up', strmý 'precipitous', ChSl. strŭmŭ, SCr. strm 'precipitous'. Miklosich 325, 326. Gebauer 1.60.

8. Skt. vṛkṣa- 'tree', Av. varəša- 'tree' or 'woods' (? cf. Barth. IF 9.27?, ftn.), etym.? Walde-P. 1.286, 289.

Skt. taru-, late and possibly a dial. form belonging with dāru. BR s.v. Uhlenbeck 109.

Skt. pādapa- 'tree, plant', a poet. expression, lit. 'drinking with the foot, root' (pāda- and pā- 'drink').

Most of the words for 'wood' as material are the same as, or connected with, those for 'woods' or 'tree' (from the standing tree through the felled tree, 'timber, log' to 'wood'), and have been included in the discussion of these (1.41, 1.42).

There remain for notice here.

1. Grk. ξύλον, perh. : Lith. šulas 'post', Goth. sauls, OE sȳl 'pillar', etc., with initial doublets (k̑s, s). Walde-P. 2.503 f. Boisacq 679.

2. Lat. lignum : legere 'collect', hence first used of the collected 'firewood' (cf. NHG leseholz 'firewood'), and in actual use most commonly pl. ligna 'firewood'. Ernout-M. 549. Walde-H. 1.799.

Hence It. legno, OFr. leigne (replaced by bois), Rum. lemn. But Sp. leño is 'timber, log' and leña 'firewood' (fr. Lat. pl. ligna), being replaced in sense of 'wood' as material by madera fr. Lat. māteria 'material' and especially 'building material, timber'. Cf. the opposite development in Grk. ὕλη 'woods, timber, material', and NE timber in the more general sense of 'stuff, material'.

3. NIr. adhmad 'timber, wood' (including firewood), also 'matter, stuff', MIr. admat 'timber, material' : NIr. maide 'stick', Lat. mālus 'mast', OE mæst 'mast', etc. Walde-P. 2.235. NIr. fiodh (Ir. fid, 1.41) still used for 'wood' in cpds. and derivs.

Words for 'stone' and 'rock' are given together because of the overlapping usage (the separation by a semicolon in the list is not to be taken too rigidly) and the frequent shift from 'rock' to 'stone'.

While in normal English usage stone is the generic term and rock applied only to a large mass of stone, rock tends to encroach on stone, and in U.S. colloquial speech may be used for a stone of any size (as a boy, I picked up a handful of rocks; cf. also NED s.v.). So Grk. πέτρα 'rock' became the colloquial word for 'stone' and has displaced the old λίθος, as the borrowed Lat. petra likewise displaced the old lapis. 'Rock' is always a possible intermediate stage in the development of 'stone', and 'rock' may rest on adventitious association with 'cliff', 'hill', 'mountain' (but in one group conversely 'rock' > 'mountain').

The inherited word, common to Balto-Slavic and Indo-Iranian, is from the root of words for 'sharp, pointed'; and this seems to reflect what was one of the most conspicuous uses of stone in early times, namely as material for tools and weapons. Several of the words are based on the notion of 'solid' (connected with words for 'stiff' or 'stand') or 'hard, rough, rugged'. A few words for 'rock' are from verbs for 'cut' or 'split', with probable development through a steep 'cliff'. But several of the important words are of quite uncertain origin.

1. Grk. λίθος 'stone', NG (λίθος lit.) pop. λιθάρι 'a (large) stone', etym.? Walde-P. 2.379. Boisacq 581.

Grk. πέτρα 'rock', πέτρος 'a stone', NG πέτρα 'stone, rock', etym.? Boisacq 776.

Grk. λᾶας 'stone', also λᾶος, ὁ (mostly poet., but in dial. inscriptions), fr. *λᾶϝος, etc. (cf. λεύω 'to stone'), perh. fr. the root seen in Grk. λύω 'loose', Skt. lu- 'cut' (cf. Lat. saxum, below). Walde-P. 2.405 f. Boisacq 546 f.

2. Lat. lapis 'stone' : Grk. λέπας 'bare rock' (this apparently fr. λέπω 'peel')? Walde-P. 2.431. Ernout-M. 523. Walde-H. 1.761.

Lat. saxum 'large stone, rock' (> It. sasso 'stone, rock') : secāre 'cut', and prob. used first of a sharp cliff. Cf. rūpēs 'cliff' : rumpere 'break'. Walde-P. 2.474. Ernout-M. 899.

Lat. petra, an early loanword fr. Grk. πέτρα 'rock', becoming the pop. word for 'stone', whence the usual Romance words. Ernout-M. 765. REW 6445.

MLat., It. rocca 'citadel, lofty fortress', It. roccia 'rock', OFr. roke, rocque 'castle on a rock' (> ME rocke 'rocky cliff', NE rock, MDu. rotse, Du. rots), Fr. roche (whence also roc), rocher, Sp. roca, Rum. rocă, of unknown origin. REW 7357. NED s.v. rock, sb.[1].

Words for 'sky' often reflect the unsophisticated notion of the sky as a 'covering' or 'vault', the latter in part conceived as a vault of 'stone'. Another frequent source is 'cloud'. There was an IE word for the bright daytime sky, but only in Sanskrit does this remain a common word for 'sky', elsewhere personified or in the sense of 'god' or 'day'.

For the use of these words as 'heaven', see 22.31.

1. Grk. οὐρανός, Dor. ὠρανός, Lesb.

ὠρανός and ὄρανος. Much disputed, but in spite of some difficulties the derivation fr. IE wer-* 'cover' is the most probable view. Walde-P. 1.281. Otherwise Wackernagel, Glotta 7.296 (: Skt. varṣa- 'rain'), and Schulze-Specht, KZ 66.200 (: Skt. varṣīyas- 'higher').

2. Lat. caelum (> the Romance words), etym. dub., perh. fr. kaid-slo-* : ON heið 'bright sky', heiðr, OHG heitar, etc. 'bright'. Walde-P. 2.537. Ernout-M. 430. Walde-H. 1.130.

3. Ir. nem, NIr. neamh (now mostly 'heaven'), W. nef (now 'heaven'), Br. neñv (also eñv) : ChSl. nebo 'sky', Grk. νέφος 'cloud', etc. (below, 5 and 1.73)? So Rhys, Duvau, RC 22.82, Pedersen 1.255, 387, Walde-P. 1.131, 2.332. But Ir. nem with so early m for b is at variance with the other evidence (nōib 'holy', etc., Pedersen 1.387), and the old derivation fr. IE nem-* 'bend', hence 'vault', is not to be disregarded.

NIr. spēir, now the usual word for 'sky', also 'sphere, atmosphere', fr. Lat. sphaera, Grk. σφαῖρα 'ball'. 'Sky' conceived as a hollow sphere. Cf. the similar, now unfamiliar, use of NE sphere (NED s.v. 1.1).

W. wybr, wybren 'sky', formerly also 'cloud', Br. oabl 'sky' (dial. also ebr), both orig. 'cloud', like OCorn. huibren, Br. koabrenn. See 1.73.

4. Goth. himins, OE heofon, OHG himil, etc., the general Gmc. word for 'sky', Gmc. hemina-, hemila- with suffix variation, etym. dub., perh. : Grk. καμάρα 'vault', or as orig. 'covering' : OE hemeþe 'shirt', etc. Walde-P. 1.349 ff., 386 ff. Falk-Torp 404 f. Feist 256.

ME, NE sky, orig. 'cloud' (both senses in ME), fr. Norse, ON skȳ, Dan. sky 'cloud', Sw. sky 'cloud' and 'sky' (1.73).

Similarly ME wolkne, welken 'sky', NE welkin (in make the welkin ring, etc.), orig. 'clouds' : NHG wolken 'clouds', etc. (1.73).

5. ChSl. nebo (gen. nebese), SCr. nebo, etc., the general Slavic word, also, with initial d fr. the influence of some other word, Lett. debess 'sky' sometimes 'cloud', Lith. debesis 'cloud' : Skt. nabh-as- 'moisture, cloud, mist' in Rigveda, later also 'sky', Av. nabah- 'sky' (rare), Grk. νέφος 'cloud', Hitt. nepis 'sky'. See 1.73. Walde-P. 1.131.

Lith. dangus, fr. dengti 'cover' (12.26).

Boh. obloha : obložiti 'cover' (ChSl. obložiti 'put around', cpd. of ob 'about' and caus. of lęgą, lešti 'lie').

6. Av., OPers. asman- 'sky', beside Av. asan- 'stone' and 'sky', Skt. açan-, açman- 'stone' (Skt. açman- also 'cloud'; as 'sky' rare and disputed), all orig. 'stone' (1.44), whence 'sky' as a vault of 'stone'. Cf. Reichelt, IF 32.23 ff. For obscure traces of Grk. ἄκμων = οὐρανός, cf. Bergk, Poet. lyr. graeci 3^{4}.68.

Skt. div-, nom. dyāus 'sky', also personified, also 'day' : Grk. Ζεύς, Lat. Iuppiter, Iovis, diēs 'day', deus 'god', OE Tīg, gen. Tīwes, etc., fr. IE dyew-, deiw-, extension of dei-* 'shine'. Walde-P. 1.772 ff. So orig. the 'bright' daytime sky, but except in Skt. (and the rare Av. div-) only personified or 'day' or 'god'.

Nearly all the usual words for 'sun' belong to a single inherited group.

1. IE sāwel-*, etc., a group with vowel gradation, parallel l- and n- forms (the Slavic fr. sulno-* with added dim. suffix), and variation in gender. Walde-P. 2.446. Ernout-M. 950 f. Falk-Torp 1105. Feist 412, 460. Here belong all the words listed except the following.

2. Ir. grīan, NIr. grian, fr. greinā*, prob. formed fr. the weak grade of IE g^w^her-* seen in words for 'hot, heat', as NIr. gor, NE warm, Grk. θερμός, Skt. gharma-, etc. This connection is questioned by Pedersen, KZ 38.197 (Walde-P. 1.688). But cf. esp. Skt. ghṛṇa- 'heat' and 'sunshine', and (fr. Skt. gharma-) Hind. ghām 'sunshine', Gypsy gam, k'am 'sun' (Sampson, Dial. of Gypsies of Wales, 166).

3. Skt. ravi-, perh. the commonest class. word for 'sun', Arm. arev 'sun' : Skt. aruṇa-, aruṣa- 'reddish' (both often applied to the sun), Av. auruša- 'white'. Walde-P. 2.359. Uhlenbeck 246.

Among other Skt. words for 'sun' are : bhāna- fr. bhā- 'shine', bhās-kara-, lit. 'light-making', dina-kāra- lit. 'day-making', arka- fr. arc- 'shine'.

1. IE mēnes-, mēn(n)s- 'moon' and 'month', presumably fr. mē-* 'measure'. Walde-P. 2.271 f. Ernout-M. 607 f. Walde-H. 2.71. Berneker 2.51.

Here belong: (1) with the same form in both senses, Lith. mėnuo, etc. (but here also with differentiation mėnulis 'moon', mėnesis 'month'), Lett. mēnesis, ChSl. měsęcĭ (but mostly 'month'; luna more common for 'moon'), SCr. mjesic, Boh. měsíc, Skt. mās- (as in Rigveda, later mostly 'month', rarely 'moon'), Av. māh- (OPers. māh- 'month'), NPers. māh-, Toch. A mañ, or for 'moon' mañ nkät (nkät 'god, goddess' used as a determinative); (2) with differentiation, all the Gmc. forms, as Goth. mēna 'moon', mēnōþs 'month', NE moon, month, etc.; Toch B meṃ 'moon' meñe 'month' (so Benveniste, Festschrift Hirt. 2.234, but S. Levi, Fragments Koutsch. 1.121 gives 'lune' for both forms).

Elsewhere, namely in Greek, Italic, Celtic, Albanian, Armenian, and in some of the Slavic languages, the words of this group have persisted only in the sense of 'month' (Grk. μήν, Lat. mēnsis, Ir. mī, etc.; 14.61) and have been displaced in the sense of 'moon' by other words, most of them from the notion of 'brightness' as follows.

2. Grk. σελήνη, Dor. σελάνα, Lesb. σελάννα : σέλας 'light, brightness' (of fire or the heavenly bodies). Walde-P. 2.531. Boisacq 858.

NG φεγγάρι, dim. of Grk. φέγγος 'light, splendor' (of daylight or moonlight).

3. Lat. lūna, fr. leuksnā-* (cf. Praen. losna) : Lat. lūx, lūmen 'light', Grk. λευκός 'bright', Av. raoxšnā- 'light', OPruss. lauxnos 'stars', etc. Here also as 'moon', ChSl., Russ. luna, Arm. lusin, Ir. luan, (poet.; Thurneysen, Z. deutsch. Wortf. 1.189) and, fr. a parallel form of the root, W. lleuad, lloer, Br. loar? Walde-P. 2.408 ff. Ernout-M. 570 ff.

From Lat. lūna come It., Sp. luna, Fr. lune, and Rum. lună, the last both 'moon' and 'month', because of the double sense of Slavic měsęcĭ.

4. Ir. ēsce, NIr. ēasca : Osc. eiduis, Lat. īdus 'ides'? Walde-P. 1.103.

NIr. gealach 'moon' also 'light, brightness', fr. geal 'bright, white' (15.57).

Ir. rē 'period of time', NIr. also esp. 'moon' : Av. ravah- 'space, room', etc.(?). Vendryes, RC 28.141.

5. ON tungl, replacing māni in prose, beside himun-tungl 'heavenly body' : Goth. tuggl, OE tungol 'heavenly body', root connection? Walde-P. 1.792. Feist 481 f.

6. Pol. księżyc, displacing miesiąc in the sense of 'moon', dim. of ksiądz in its older meaning 'prince' (19.35). As the sun was the lord of the day, the moon of the night, the latter was the lesser 'prince'. Brückner 277.

7. Skt. candra-, also (combined with mās-) candramas- : (ç)candra- 'bright', (ç)cand- 'shine', Lat. candēre 'shine', Alb. hânë 'moon', etc. Walde-P. 1.352.

Skt. çaçin-, fr. çaça- 'hare', after the supposed resemblance of the markings on the moon.

Br.	steredenn	NHG	stern

1. IE ster-, orig. disputed. The old deriv. fr. IE ster- 'spread out', as first in pl. 'the scattered ones' = 'stars', may seem colorless, but no more so than, e.g. that of several words for 'moon' fr. 'light, brightness' (1.53). Walde-P. 2.635 f. (with refs.). Or (to me less likely) old IE (!) loanword fr. Akkad. istar 'Venus'. Ipsen, IF 41.179 ff. Feist 448 (with refs.; add Wackernagel-Debrunner, KZ 67.161 fr.).

Grk. ἀστήρ, ἄστρον, NG ἀστέρι fr. dim. form; Lat. stēlla (fr. stēr-lā*; otherwise Ernout-M.) and astrum (fr. Grk. ἄστρον), It. stella, Fr. étoile, Rum. stea, fr. stēlla, but Sp. estrella by mixture with astrum; W. seren, Br. sterenn, steredenn; Goth. stairnō, OE steorra, etc., all the Gmc. forms; Skt. star- (Vedic) and tārā-, Av. star-; Arm. astl; Hitt. astiras; Toch. A śreñ, nom. pl. (SSS 3, ftn.; Lane, Language 21.23).

2. Ir. rētglu, MIr. rētla, NIr. rēalt, cpds. of rēt 'thing' (prob.) and glan 'pure, bright' (cf. dat. pl. rētglannaib). Otherwise Pedersen 1.485 (cpd. of rēt 'star', but where is this quotable?), 2.47.

Ir. rind (neut.) 'star', same word as rind (masc.) 'point, top', perh. : Grk. πείρω 'pierce', etc. Pedersen 1.37.

3. Lith. žvaigždė, ChSl. zvězda, etc. (all the Balto-Slavic forms; also OPruss. swaigstan rendering NHG schein), clearly belong together, though the Baltic forms point to an initial palatal, the Slavic to an initial velar (explained by Meillet as dissimilation). Brückner 165 assumes forms with voiced consonants parallel to IE kweit-* 'bright' in ChSl světŭ 'light', etc. (Walde-P. 1.470). But the words have all the appearance of imitative orig., like Lith. žvigti 'squeal', ChSl. zvizdati, Pol. gwizdać 'whistle', etc. (Berneker 365), in which the consonant relations are precisely the same. A shift of application from sound to light is entirely possible. Cf. NE flash, of imitative orig. and once used only of the rushing or splashing of the sea, now only with reference to fire or light (NED s.v.).

4. Other Skt. words besides star-, tāra-, are mostly such as are applied to any heavenly body, as bhā- fr. bhā- 'shine', jyotis- fr. jyut- 'shine', nakṣatra- of obscure orig.

Words for 'thunder' are mostly from various roots denoting noise, of which one is especially widespread in its application to thunder. But in one group the development is probably through 'thunderbolt' from a root meaning 'strike', in another word through 'thick cloud'; and there are some mythological terms.

1. From IE (s)ten-*, in Grk. στένω, OE stenan (cf. NHG stöhnen), Lith. stenėti, ChSl. stenati, all meaning 'groan', Skt. stan- 'roar, thunder', Lat. tonāre 'roar, thunder'. Walde-P. 2.626 ff. Ernout-M. 1045 f. REW 8778, 8780. Falk-Torp 1273.

Lat. tonitrus, whence Fr. tonnerre, OSp. tonidro, later tronido with transposition, while It. tuono, ORum. tun (now 'cannon'; as 'thunder' replaced by tunet formed after sonet 'sound'), Sp. trueno (with r from tronido) are back-formations fr. the vb. Lat. tonāre; OE þunor, gen. þunres, ME, NE thunder, Du. donder, OHG donar, NHG donner (ON þōrr, the god of thunder), Norw. dial. tōr, Dan. torden, Sw. (arch.) tordön, these last compounded with døn, dön 'rumbling' (NE din); Skt. stanita-.

2. Grk. βροντή : βρέμω 'roar', of imitative orig., parallel to bhrem-* in Lat. bremere, OHG breman, etc. 'roar, growl'.

3. Ir. torainn, NIr. (torann 'noise'), tōirneach, W., Br. taran : Ir. tairm 'noise', OPruss. tārin 'voice', Lith. tarti 'say', Grk. τορός 'piercing' (sound, etc.). Walde-P. 1.744.

Br. kurun, kudurun: W. gorun 'tumult'. Loth, RC 38.164.

4. Goth. þeihwō, prob. fr. tenkwā-* : ChSl. tąča 'shower', Russ. tuča 'dark cloud', SCr. tuča 'hail', Lith. tankus 'thick'. Development through 'thick cloud', 'thundercloud' to 'thunder'. Walde-P. 1.726 (with doubt). Feist 495.

ON reiðar (cf. reiðar ok eldingar 'thunder claps and lightning flashes'), pl. of reið 'riding, wagon', hence (Thor's) 'driving'. Also cpds. reiðarþruma (cf. below) and reiðarduna (with duna 'a crash').

ON þruma (alone and in reiðarþruma) : þruma 'to rattle', þrymr 'alarm, noise', etc. (Walde-P. 1.749).

Sw. åska, older åsekja, lit. 'god's (= Thor's) driving' : ON āss 'god' and ekja 'carrying', aka 'drive'. Hellquist 1425.

OE þunor, etc., above, 1.

5. Lith. perkūnas, Lett. pērkuons, OPruss. percunis, Pol. piorun (Boh., Russ. obs. perun), used for both 'thunder' and 'thunderbolt', beside Lith. Perkunas, Slav. Perun the Balto-Slavic thunder-god, prob. as orig. 'thunderbolt' : ChSl. pĭrati, perą 'strike', etc. Walde-P. 2.43. Mühl.-Endz. 3.209.

Lith. griausmas (also griaustinė, -tinis) : griausti 'thunder', beside griauti 'thunder', this ultimately the same as griauti 'overthrow, destroy', beside griūti 'fall in ruins', all with the common notion of 'crash'. Walde-P. 1.647 ff.

6. ChSl. gromŭ, SCr. grom, grmljavina, Boh. hrom, Pol. grom, grzmot, Russ. grom, with vb., ChSl. grĭměti 'thunder', etc. : Lith. grumėti 'thunder', Grk. χρεμίζω 'neigh', ON grimmr, OE grim 'fierce, grim', OE grimman 'rage, roar', Av. granta- 'enraged', etc. Walde-P. 1.655 ff. Words for lightning in its destructive aspect, the supposed bolt of lightning or 'thunderbolt', are partly identical with, or connected with, the usual words for 'lightning'; partly with those for the accompanying 'thunder'; while some are independent of either but are cognate with verbs for 'strike' or 'destroy' or with nouns for 'arrow, ray, ball, club', etc. (such words also in compounds with those for 'thunder' or 'lightning').

1. Grk. κεραυνός : κεραΐζω (*κεραϝίζω) 'despoil, plunder', κήρ 'death, ruin', Skt. çṛ- 'crush, break', etc. Walde-P. 1.410. Boisacq 440.

Grk. βροντή 'thunder' is never used in this sense. But there is a curious approach to it, with distinction, in πίπτει κεραυνὸς εἰς τὸ στρατόπεδον· καὶ οἱ μέν τινες πληγέντες, οἱ δὲ καὶ ἐμβροντηθέντες ἀπέθανον Xen., Hell. 47.7. Cf. also τὸ ἐμβρονταῖον 'place struck by lightning' rendering Lat. bidental.

NG ἀστροπελέκι, by haplology fr. *αστραπο-πελέκι, lit. a 'lightning-ax'. Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 2.193.

2. Lat. fulmen (> It. fulmine), fr. fulgmen* : fulgur 'lightning' (1.55), whence Fr. foudre (OFr. also fuildre, fouldre) with (extension to and then) shift to the striking lightning, being replaced by éclair in the sense of visual lightning. Wartburg 3.841.

Sp. rayo (also 'ray'), fr. Lat. radius 'ray'. REW 6999.

Rum. trăsnet ('thunderbolt' and 'thunderclap'), fr. trasni 'strike with lightning', also 'crash', loanword fr. Slavic, ChSl. trěsnati 'strike, crash', etc. Tiktin 1637.

3. Ir. saignēn (gl. Lat. fulmen), deriv. of saigit 'arrow' fr. Lat. sagitta. Vendryes, De hib. voc. 173. Cf. Br. dial. seah 'thunderbolt' fr. same source. Loth, Mots lat. 204.

NIr. caor 'berry, ball' and 'thunderbolt' as 'ball of fire', like Ir. cāer thened 'ball of fire, thunderbolt, meteor' (K. Meyer, Contrib. 298).

Gael. beithir 'monster, huge snake', used also for 'thunderbolt'.

W. taranfollt, cpd. of taran 'thunder' and bollt fr. NE bolt. But commonly mellten 'a lightning' (1.55) in this sense.

Br. foeltr, fr. OFr. fuildre, fouldre (above, 2). Also kurun 'thunder' so used. But esp. tan-foeltr, tan-kurun, tan-taran, cpds. with tan 'fire' (cf. Vallée s.v. foudre).

4. The Gmc. words are those for 'lightning' or 'thunder' or compounds of either with words meaning 'hammer', 'wedge', 'bolt', 'stone', 'ray', 'stroke'.

ON þōrs hamarr 'Thor's hammer' was the thunderbolt, but it seems to be quotable only as a term of mythology.

The compounds are of obvious makeup, and too numerous to be cited in full (cf. NE thunder-stone, now obs.). Most of them are now poetical or figurative. The tendency is also to use the words for 'lightning' instead of those for 'thunder', which were more common in the earlier periods. Cf. NE struck by lightning (or NHG von blitz getroffen), though NE thunder was used in this sense down through the eighteenth century and poetically in the nineteenth (cf. NED s.v.).

ME also fouldre, foudre, fr. Fr. (above, 2).

5. Lith. perkūnas, Lett. pērkuons 'thunder' are used with verbs of striking for the striking lightning (and this prob. the orig. sense, cf. 1.56), but also Lett. zibens 'lightning'.

Most of the Slavic languages use the words for 'thunder', SCr. grom, Boh. hrom, Pol. grom and also piorun, as formerly Russ. grom. But Russ. molnija 'lightning' in both senses. In ChSl. prob. both mlŭnĭjĭ and gromŭ so used, but no early evidence.

6. Skt. vajra-, a term of mythology, Indra's 'thunderbolt' : Av. vazra- 'club', NPers. gurz 'club'.

Skt. taḍit-, fr. taḍ- 'strike'.

For 'darkness' there is one widespread inherited group, common to Italic, Celtic, Germanic (in part), Balto-Slavic, and Indo-Iranian (unknown in Greek). The other words are in part cognate with others meaning 'shade', 'cloud', 'twilight', or from adjectives for 'dark' of diverse origin.

1. IE *tem-, *temes-, etc. in sbs. for 'darkness' and adjs. for 'dark'. Walde-P. 1.720 ff. Ernout-M. 1027 f. REW 8643, 4484. Weigand-H. 1.535. Brückner 65.

Skt. tamas-, tamisra-, timira-, Av. təmah-, tąθra-; Lat. tenebrae (fr. *temes-rā-, cf. Most of the words for 'shade' are used also, without differentiation, for the image cast, the 'shadow'. The figurative use for 'disembodied spirit' is also widespread from Homer on.

1. Grk. σκιά, ChSl. sěnĭ, SCr. sjena, Russ. sen' (Boh. siň, Pol. sień, Russ. seni 'entrance room', etc., as room without light), Skt. chāyā-, Av. *saya- (a-saya- 'without shadow'), NPers. sāya-, Alb. hē, fr. IE *skāi-, *ski-, prob. the same root as in Goth. skeinan, OE scīnan, ChSl. sijati 'shine' (15.56). Connection through a notion of 'faint light' (as in NE shimmer, NHG schimmer) or 'reflection'. Cf. OE scima 'shadow, gloom' beside scīma 'light, brightness'. Walde-P. 2.535 ff. Boisacq 875 f. Brückner 489. NG pop. ἥσκιος (freq. spelled ἴσκιος), fr. ἡσκιά with influence of the opp. ἥλιος 'sun, sunshine,' Hatzidakis, Einl. 328.

2. Lat. umbra (> It. ombra, Fr. ombre, Rum. umbră; Sp. sombra 'shade', like Fr. adj. sombre 'dark, gloomy', back-formation fr. deriv. vb. VLat. subumbrāre), etym. dub., perh. : Skt. andha- 'blind'. Walde-P. 1.182. Ernout-M. 1122 f. REW 9046, 8405.

3. Ir., NIr. scāth (also fo-scad, but NIr. foscadh chiefly 'shelter'), W. cysgod (i.e. cy-sgod), Br. skeud, Goth. skadus, OE scead, sceadu, ME, NE shade, shadow (latter now mostly for the image cast), Du. schaduw, OHG scato, MHG schate, NHG schatten : Grk. σκότος 'darkness', but without any clear root connection. Walde-P. 2.600. Feist 427.

4. ON skuggi, Dan. skygge, Sw. skugga (Goth. skuggwa 'mirror'), OE scū(w)a, OHG scūwo, scū : Lat. obscūrus 'dark', Skt. sku- 'cover', also ON skȳ 'cloud', etc. (1.73). Walde-P. 2.546 ff. Falk-Torp 1045. Hellquist 959.

5. Lith. šešėlis, a reduplicated formation (with suffix -lio-) fr. šė- : ChSl. sěnĭ, etc. (above, 1). Senn (privately).

Lith. pavėsis, Lett. pavēnis : Lith. vėsus 'cool, airy', vėjas 'wind', Lett. vējš 'wind', Lat. ventus 'wind', with development fr. 'windy, airy place' through 'cool place' to 'shady place, shade'. Walde-P. 1.222. Mühl.-Endz. 3.136.

Lith. paunksnė (Senn), paūksnis (Gailius-Šlaža), beside pauksmė (used until recently, now avoided, Senn) and obs. or dial. unksmė, ūksmė, unksna : ūkas 'fog, mist', ūkanas 'cloudy, overcast', etc., outside connections dub.

Lett. ēna, paēna, abstracted fr. forms like pavēnis(?). (Nothing in Mühl.-Endz. s.vv.).

6. ChSl. sěnĭ, etc., above, 1.

ChSl. štěnĭ, Boh. stín, Pol. cień, Russ. ten', history obscure. Perh. *těnĭ fr. *tem-ni- : ChSl. tĭma 'darkness', etc. (1.62), and štěnĭ a blend of this and sěnĭ (above, 1). Vondrák, Verg. Gram. 1. 431. Otherwise (double development of init. sk) Brückner 62.

SCr. hladovina 'coolness' (fr. hladan 'cool', 15.86), also 'shade'.

NIr.	aer	OHG	luft	Av.	vayu-, vayah-
W.	awyr	MHG	luft
Br.	aer	NHG	luft

Words for 'air' are connected with those for 'wind', 'blow'; 'brightness'; 'ceiling' through 'sky'; 'open field' through 'outdoors, in the open air'; 'breath'. The last source is uncommon. That 'air' is what we breathe was recognized by the Greeks, but is a sophisticated notion which plays a small part in the derivation.

1. Grk. ἀήρ, in Homer mostly 'thick air, haze' (ἀέρα ἔχευεν, ἐσκέδασεν, ἀὴρ ἐρεβεννή, etc.), later simply 'air' as one of the four elements : ἄημι, Skt. vā- 'blow', vāta-, vāyu- 'wind, air', Av. vayu-, vayah- 'air' (personified), Lat. ventus 'wind', OE wind, etc. (1.72). Walde-P. 1.221.

Hence Lat. āēr, OIt. aire, It. aria, Fr. air (> ME, NE air), Sp. aire, Rum. aer, Ir. āēr, NIr. aer, W. awyr, Br. aer. REW 240. Pedersen 1.203.

(Grk. αἰθήρ, in Homer 'sky, heavens, the upper air, ether', above the ἀήρ : αἴθω 'burn', αἴθριος 'clear, bright', etc. Hence Lat. aether, NE ether, etc.).

2. The Gmc. group, Goth. luftus, ON lopt, OE lyft, ME lift (NE lift rare and only for 'sky', but the vb. lift 'raise' is fr.

same source), OHG-NHG luft (> Dan., Sw. luft), is in origin the same as ON lopt 'loft, attic, etc.' (> ME, NE loft; OE loft 'sky'). Development from 'ceiling, loft' to 'sky, air'. Further connection prob. (but less certain and immaterial for the immediate source of 'air') with OHG louft 'bark', louba 'roof, attic, etc.', loub, Goth. laufs, OE lēaf 'leaf', Lith. lupti 'peal', etc., with development from 'bark' to '(bark) roof, ceiling'. Walde-P. 2.418. Falk-Torp 652.

3. Lith. oras : Lett. āra 'open field, the outdoors, the outside', prob. fr. the the root of Lith. arti, Lett. art 'plow', with development indicated by the Lett. uses. Walde-P. 1.79. Mühl.-Endz. 1.240.

Lett. gaiss : gaišs 'bright', gaisma 'light', etc. (1.61).

4. ChSl. vŭzduchŭ, SCr. uzduh, vazduh, Boh. vzduch, Russ. vozduch, cpd. of vŭzŭ 'up' and duchŭ 'breath'. Berneker 234 f.

SCr. zrak : ChSl. zrakŭ 'sight, look', zĭrěti 'look at, see', Lith. žerėti 'shine', etc., with development through 'brightness'. Cf. SCr. zraka 'ray'. Miklosich 402.

Pol. powietrze : wiatr 'wind', with perfect. prefix and coll. suffix. Cf. Boh. povětří 'air, weather, storm'. Brückner 433, 611.

The relation of 'cloud' and 'mist' is such that cognate words may mean 'cloud' in some languages, 'mist' in others. For the frequent relationship between 'cloud' and 'sky', see 1.51.

Words for 'cloud' are connected with words for 'moisture', 'covering', and 'mass'.

1. IE *nebh-, *embh-, *ṇbh-, in words for 'cloud' (> 'sky'), 'mist', 'shower'. Walde-P. 1.131. Ernout-M. 660 f.

Grk. νέφος, νεφέλη, NG νέφι, σύννεφο 'cloud', Skt. nabhas- 'mist, vapor' (also 'sky'); Lat. nebula 'mist', OHG nebul, etc. 'mist' (1.74); Lith. debesis 'cloud', Lett. debess 'cloud' but mostly 'sky', padebesis 'cloud' (all with init. d for n under the influence of some other word), ChSl. nebo 'sky', etc. Further, fr. *embh-, *ṇbh-, etc., Skt. abhra-, Av. awra- 'cloud', Grk. ὄμβρος, Lat. imber 'shower', etc.

The present differentiation of NE mist, fog, and haze cannot be matched in the other languages, where with some exceptions the same word answers roughly to all three. Many of the words are cognate with some of those for 'cloud'. Others are from such diverse notions as 'vapor', 'dim', 'gray', 'wet', 'winter', etc.

1. Grk. ὀμίχλη, Lith., Lett. migla, ChSl. mĭgla, etc., general Slavic (but Russ. mgla less common than tuman) also OE-NE, Du. mist, Skt. mih-, all 'mist' beside Skt. megha-, Av. maēγa- 'cloud', fr. a root *meigh- perh. the same as in ChSl. mĭgnąti 'blink', Lith. migti 'fall asleep', etc., with development of 'mist, cloud' through the notion of 'dim'. Walde-P. 2.247. Boisacq 701.

NG καταχνιά : ἀχνίζω 'evaporate, reek', ἄχνη 'breath, reek', in class. Grk. 'froth, dew, chaff, etc.' (light substance).

2 Lat. nebula (> It. nebbia, OFr. nieble, Sp. niebla, neblina; Rum. negură, blend with negru 'black'), OHG nebul, MHG, NHG nebel, Du. nevel (ON nifl- in cpds.) : Grk. νέφος 'cloud', etc. (1.73).

Words for 'snow' are mostly inherited from an IE noun and verb meaning 'snow', any further analysis of which is futile. For the meaning of Skt. snih- 'be sticky', if this is the same word, is probably secondary rather than the primary notion. Of the others, some are connected with words for 'winter, cold', and some rest on specialization of 'fall', etc. to 'snowfall, snow'.

Words for 'ice' are mostly of obscure root connection; but in some it is clear that the underlying notion was that of hard or solid surface and that the meaning 'cold' in cognates is secondary, from 'icy'.

1. Grk. κρύσταλλος : κρύος 'icy cold, frost', Lat. crusta 'hard surface, shell, crust', Skt. krūḍ- 'make hard, thicken', Av. xruždra-, xraoždva- 'hard', all fr. krus-, krus-t, kruz-d*, with the common notion of 'hard, hard surface', whence 'ice' in κρύσταλλος and secondarily 'icy cold' in κρύος. Further connection with the group meaning 'bloody, raw, raw flesh' (Skt. kravis, Grk. κρέας, Lat. cruor, etc.), if actual, is more remote. Walde-P. 1.479.

Grk. πάγος 'frost' (also 'rocky hill'), sometimes 'ice', as NG πάγος 'ice' (also παγωτό 'ice cream') : πήγνυμι 'fix, make solid, freeze'.

2. Lat. glaciēs (VLat. glacia > It. ghiaccia, now ghiaccio, Fr. glace, Rum. ghiaţă) : gelu 'icy cold' (> Sp. hielo 'ice'), adj. gelidus, Goth. kalds 'cold', etc. (15.86). Walde-P. 1.622, 612. Ernout-M. 412, 423. REW 3718, 3771.

The 'weather' is most commonly expressed by words for 'time', in a few cases by those for 'air' or 'sky', while the Gmc. group is cognate with words for 'wind'.

1. Words for 'time' (14.11), or derivs., either used also for, or in some cases specialized to, 'weather'. NG καιρός, Lat. tempestās (deriv. of tempus 'time', but used mainly for 'weather', then esp. (also Pol. in phrases) pogoda (: ChSl. godŭ 'point of time', Russ. god 'year'); Skt. kāla- (quotable for weather?).

2. In classical Greek there were words for 'good weather', as αἰθρία (: αἴθριος 'clear, bright', αἰθήρ 'sky, ether') and εὐδία (: εὔδιος 'fine, clear', cpd. of εὐ- 'good' and διϝο-*. : Ζεύς, Διός orig. 'sky' like Skt. dyāus, gen. divas, 1.51); and 'bad weather' might be expressed as 'winter' or 'storm', but there was no generic term for 'weather' until καιρός 'time' came to be so used (Byz. and NG).

3. Lat. caelum 'sky' (1.51), used also for 'weather'.

4. Ir. sīn, NIr. sion, W. hin, etym.? Macbain 321. Stokes 299.

W. tywydd, perh. : Ir. tōid 'shine' and fr. cpd. of root in Lat. vidēre 'see', etc. Pedersen 2.651.

Most of the words for 'fire' belong to one of two inherited groups, represented respectively by Grk. πῦρ, NE fire, and Lat. ignis. The root connections are unknown. It has been suggested (Meillet, MSL 21.249 ff.) that originally the first group, regularly neuter, denoted fire as a lifeless element, while the second group, regularly masculine, denoted the active personified fire of religious cult, so prominent in the use of Skt. agni-. This seems likely, but in actual use the two groups are synonymous. Thus Umbr. pir, of the first group, is used of the ritual fire no less than Lat. ignis, as also Osc. aasaí purasiaí 'in ara igniaria'.

The others are connected with words for 'burn', 'heat', 'light', etc.

1. IE pewōr*(?), pūr*, pun-*, etc., r/n stem neut. (like that for 'water'), with complicated and partly dub. phonetic relations and of unknown root connection. Walde-P. 2.14. Feist 158 f. Sturtevant, Laryngeals 36 f. Benveniste, Origines 169. Pedersen, Hittitisch 187.

4. It. fuoco, Fr. feu, Sp. fuego, Rum. foc, fr. Lat. focus 'fireplace, hearth', hence 'household fire' and 'fire' in general, replacing ignis in VLat.

Words for 'ash, ashes' (NE now usual-pl. ashes, though also the ash of a cigar) are mostly either derived from words for 'burn', 'fire', 'be dry', 'warm', 'devour' (by fire), or are cognate with words for 'dust'. A few come from or through 'washing fluid, lye', with shifted application to the 'ashes' which produce it.

1. Grk. τέφρα, fr. the root seen in Skt. dah-, Lith. degti, etc. 'burn' (1.85). Walde-P. 1.849. Boisacq 963 f.

Grk. σποδός, etym.? Walde-P. 2.680. Boisacq 899.

NG στάχτη (pop. vs. lit. τέφρα, σποδός), Byz. σταχτή (Const. Porph. as 'ashes'), fr. σταχτὴ κονία lit. 'trickling dust' (σταχτός fr. στάζω 'drop, drip') used first for 'lye' made from ashes and then for the 'ashes'.

2. Lat. cinis, cineris (> It. cenere, Fr. cendre; derivs. > It. cinigia, Sp. ceniza, Rum. cenuşe) : Grk. κόνις 'dust'. Walde-P. 1.392. Ernout-M. 187 f. Walde-H. 1.217 f. REW 1929, 1930.

W.	llosgi	MHG	brinnen (b), brennen (a)
Br.	devi, leski	NHG	brennen

The transitive and intransitive 'burn', namely a) 'consume with fire', b) 'be on fire', may be expressed by 1) the same form, as NE burn (he burns it, it burns); 2) different voices or otherwise differentiated forms of the same root, as Grk. καίω, Skt. dah-, uṣ-, a in active, b in middle or passive, Goth. brinnan b, but caus. brannjan a; 3) unrelated words, as ChSl. žešti a, but gorěti b.

Words for 'burn' may be also used transitively not in the sense of 'consume by fire' but for 'burn slightly, scorch, singe' (NE burn one's hand). Words that are used primarily in this latter sense are not included in the table, e.g. Grk. εὕω in contrast to the cognate Lat. ūrere, Skt. uṣ-.

In some groups the intransitive meaning is either the prevailing one or demonstrably the earlier; in others the transitive meaning appears to be the earlier. The former are connected with words meaning 'hot', 'shine, be bright', 'spurt'(?), etc. The latter either are of obscure etymology (Grk. καίω) or are inherited from IE roots in which the meaning 'burn' was already developed, so that the ultimate source is unknown. It is noticeable that there is no etymological connection between the words for 'burn' and the common words for 'fire'.

1. IE dhegʷh-*. Walde-P. 1.849. Ernout-M. 384. Walde-H. 1.466 f.

Skt. dah-, Av. dag- (3 sg. dažaiti = Skt. dahati); Lith. degti, Lett. degt; here also the Slavic forms, with assimilatory change of deg-* to geg-* (cf. MIr. daig 'fire', NIr. doigh 'pain'); Alb. djégë 'burn'; Toch. tsäk- 'burn'; cf. Lat. fovēre 'warm'.

2. IE eus-*. Walde-P. 1.111. Ernout-M. 1137 f.

Skt. uṣ-, Lat. ūrere 'burn', Grk. εὕω 'singe'.

3. Grk. καίω, Att. κάω, fr. κάϝ-ιω*, aor. Hom. ἔκηα (ἐκηϝα*), Att. ἔκαυσα, the principal Greek word for 'burn' at all periods, with numerous derivatives. Without any clear outside connections. Walde-P. 1.376. Καίω a, καίομαι b (or in Homer also 'light for themselves'). NG καίω a, b (cf. καίει 'it burns'), distinguished in aor. ἔκαψα (ἔκαυσα) a, ἐκάηκα b.

Grk. πίμπρημι : πρήθω 'blow up, inflate', Russ. pret' 'stew, sweat', ChSl. para 'steam, vapor', etc. Walde-P. 2.27. Prob. first intrans. 'burn' from the notion of 'spurting out'.

Grk. αἴθω (poet.) 'light up, kindle', αἴθομαι 'burn' b, 'blaze' : Skt. idh- 'kindle', edhas- 'fuel', iddha- 'blazing, bright' (cf. Grk. αἴθων 'blazing', αἴθριος 'bright, clear'), Lat. aestus 'heat', etc. Walde-P. 1.4 ff. Walde-H. 1.15 f. In this group the underlying notion is 'blaze' rather than 'burn' in the sense of consume by fire.

Grk. φλέγω, φλέγομαι 'blaze, burn' b, φλέγω also 'kindle', or 'burn' a : φλόξ 'flame', Lat. flamma 'flame', flagrāre 'blaze', etc. (1.82). Walde-P. 2.214.

Hence Rum. arde, the common word for 'burn', both a and b, while It. ardere and Sp. arder are mostly used in figurative sense.

Lat. cremāre, fr. krem-* prob. : ker-* in Lat. carbo, Goth. hauri 'coal', Lith. kurti 'light a fire', etc. Walde-P. 1.418 ff. Ernout-M. 229. Walde-H. 1.287.

It. bruciare (cf. abbrustiare 'singe'), Fr. brûler (OFr. brusler), of much disputed orig. Perh. fr. Lat. ustulāre 'singe', with init. br by a blend with Gmc. words like OHG brennan, brunst. REW 9097.

6. Goth. brinnan, caus. brannjan, etc., all the Gmc. words, with uses b and a expressed by simple verb or causative respectively in the earlier periods, but later merged in a single form. Here the intransitive meaning of the simple verb is, of course, the more original (in contrast to the opposite relation in Grk. καίω, καίομαι, and others), and this, analyzed as bhre-n-wo-, may be combined with bher-, bhreu-* in words used for the gushing and seething of liquids, as Lat. fervēre 'boil', Goth. brunna 'spring', etc. Walde-P. 2.168. Although the inclusion in this chapter of the humble and strictly modern 'match' for lighting seems the acme of incongruity, its present importance in connection with the preceding groups is obvious; and the great diversity of the terms that are in common use for this invention is of some interest. Several are derived from the verbs for 'light, kindle', or 'burn', or mean literally 'flame-bringing' or 'light-bringing'. The old sulphur matches (the offensive brimstone matches of my boyhood) were often denoted by a compound or derivative of the word for 'sulphur'; and some of these remained, either generally or locally, in common use for the 'match', regardless of the change in materials used. Less common was the use of 'phosphorus' for 'match'. Terms which apply to the wax tapers but not to matches in general, as It. cerino (vs. fiammifero), Sp. cerilla (Am. Sp. cerillo) are not included in the list. The wooden 'stick' appears in some of the words, either in combination (NHG streichholz, etc.) or alone (SCr. šibica, Russ. spička). The important notion of friction has furnished only one of the words listed (NHG streichholz). A few of the words (NE match, Fr. allumette) were originally names of an antecedent implement used as a help in lighting.

1. Grk. πυρεῖον, a kind of fire stick, fr. πῦρ 'fire', was adopted as the NG official term, but σπίρτο is the only popular word. One asks for σπίρτα and gets a box labeled πυρεῖα. This σπίρτο is the same word as σπίρτο 'alcohol, spirits', fr. Lat. spiritus, its application to a match being apparently based on the notion of something inflammable.

2. It. fiammifero, an obvious cpd., lit. 'flame-bringing', created to denote the 'match'.

Fr. allumette, fr. allumer 'light' (1.86), but quotable from the 14th cent. as applied to a bit of shaving for lighting. Gamillscheg 29. Wartburg 1.74.

Sp. fósforo 'phosphorus' and the usual word for 'match', except the wax taper (cerilla, cerillo). Similar words elsewhere are quotable for 'match', as NG φωσφόρον, but are not common in this sense.

Rum. chibrit, fr. Turk. kibrit 'match', this fr. an Arab. word for 'sulphur'. Tiktin 337. Lokotsch 93.

3. Ir. maiste, W. matsen, fr. NE match.

Br. enaouidenn, fr. enaoui 'light' (1.86), evidently after the analogy of Fr. allumette.

4. Dan. tændstik, Sw. tändsticka, cpds. of Dan. tænde, Sw. tända 'light' (1.86) with Dan. stik, Sw. sticka 'stab' here as 'stick'.

NIcel. eldspýta, cpd. of eld 'fire' and spýta 'stick'.

NE match, fr. ME macche, matche, this fr. mesche (= Fr. mèche) 'wick'. First used for 'wick', then for a piece of wick or cord prepared for burning in firing a gun (cf. the old matchlock) and finally applied to the modern 'match'. NED s.v. match, sb.[2].

Du. lucifer, fr. NE lucifer, lucifer match (fr. Lat. lūcifer 'light-bringing'), once used more commonly than now. NED s.v. Lucifer, 3.

NHG streichholz, fr. streichen 'rub, strike' and holz 'wood'. Less commonly zündholz fr. zünden 'light' (1.86), also schwefelholz, fr. schwefel 'sulphur', the old word for the sulphur match (like Dan. svovelstikke, Du. zwavelstok, etc.) still used in some places for the current match, Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 503 f.

5. Lith. degtukas, fr. degti 'burn' (1.85) and formed on the analogy of words like peštukas fr. pešti, etc., for which see Leskien, Bildung d. Nom. 516 f.

Lett. sērkuocin'š (still the usual word?), cpd. of sērs 'sulphur' and kuocin'š: kuoks 'tree, stick'. Mühl.-Endz. 3.829.

6. Scr. žigica : žeći 'burn' (1.85), žig 'burning'.

Scr. šibica : šiba 'rod, twig'.

Boh. sirka, fr. sira 'sulphur'.

Pol. zapałka, fr. zapalić 'light' (1.86).

Russ. spička, dim. of spica 'pointed stick,' this fr. NHG spitze 'point'.

CHAPTER 2

MANKIND: SEX, AGE, FAMILY RELATIONSHIP

2.1 MAN[1]

(Human Being)

Grk.	ἄνθρωπος	Goth.	manna	Lith.	žmogus, pl. žmonės
NG	ἄνθρωπος	ON	maðr, gumi	Lett.	cilvēks
Lat.	homō	Dan.	menneske	ChSl.	člověkŭ
It.	uomo	Sw.	menniska	SCr.	čovjek
Fr.	homme	OE	man(n), guma	Boh.	člověk
Sp.	hombre	ME	man	Pol.	człowiek
Rum.	om	NE	man	Russ.	čelovek
Ir.	duine	Du.	mensch	Skt.	manu-, puruṣa-
NIr.	duine	OHG	man, mannisco, gomo	Av.	mašya-, mašyāka-, OPers. martiya-
W.	dyn	MHG	mensch
Br.	den	NHG	mensch

The more general notion of 'man' as a human being ('man'[1]) and the more specific notion of 'man' as an adult male human being ('man'[2]) may be combined in the same word, as in NE man, Fr. homme, etc.; or they may be differentiated (1) by related forms, as NHG mensch vs. mann, (2) by unrelated words, as Lat. homō vs. vir, etc. An old differentiation may be lost, as in VLatin, where the use of homō was extended at the expense of vir; or it may be resumed, as in Rumanian, where bărbat is frequently preferred to om when the meaning is 'man'[2]. There is not only extension but sometimes complete shift of application from 'man'[1] to 'man'[2], and of the latter again to 'husband'.

The principal source of words for 'man'[1], so far as their etymology is clear, is the notion of 'earthly' or 'mortal', thus distinguishing men from the gods. But a few are derivatives of words for 'man'[2], and the ultimate semantic source of one important group (NE man, etc.) is uncertain.

1. Lat. homō (> It. uomo, Fr. homme, etc.), OLat. hemo, Osc. humuns 'homines'; Ir. duine, W. dyn, Br. den; OLith. žmuo, OPruss. smoy, Lith. žmogus, pl. žmonės; Goth. guma (but translates ἀνήρ), ON gumi, OE guma, OHG gomo (old Gmc. word, now surviving only in cpds., as NHG bräutigam, NE bridegroom fr. OE brydguma); Toch. B śaumo, pl. śāmna : Lat. humus, Grk. χθών, Lith. žemė, etc. 'earth' (1.21). Cf. Hom. ἐπιχθόνιοι ἄνθρωποι, in contrast to ἐπουράνιοι θεοί, and even ἐπιχθόνιοι alone (Il. 24.220). Walde-P. 1.663. Ernout-M. 457 f. Walde-H. 1.654 f. Pedersen 1.89. Vendryes, RC 40.437 ff.

2. Goth. manna, ON maðr, OE man(n), mon, NE man, OHG man, NHG mann, etc. (the most widespread Gmc. word, with extension fr. 'man'[1] to 'man'[2]); ChSl. mǫžĭ (fr. mǫgjo-* with a guttural suffix, as in Lith. žmogus), SCr., Boh., Russ. muž, Pol. mąż (general Slavic word, with shift from 'man'[1] to 'man'[2]); Skt. manu-, manuṣ-, manuṣa-, mānuṣa-. These point to an IE word for 'man'[1], but its root connection and so its ultimate semantic source are wholly uncertain. It has been derived from IE men-* 'think', or, since the designation 'thinker' seems too sophisticated, from men-* in an assumed earlier meaning 'breath' or the like; or by some connected with Lat. manus 'hand' (cf. NE all hands). Walde-P. 2.266. Falk-Torp 693. Feist 344 f.

In Germanic the prevailing meaning in the earlier period is 'man'[1] (so Goth. manna reg. = ἄνθρωπος, only a few times = ἀνήρ). After the extension of use to include 'man'[2], its place in the sense of 'man'[1] was taken, except in English, by forms going back to a deriv. adj. like Goth. mannisks = ἀνθρώπινος. Hence OHG mannisco, mennisco, MHG, NHG, Du. mensch, Dan. menneske, Sw. menniska. Falk-Torp 714. Weigand-H. 2.168.

In Slavic there was a complete shift from 'man'[1] to 'man'[2] and 'husband', and in part a later restriction to 'husband' with new derivatives in the sense of 'man'[2], as SCr. muškarac, Russ. mužčina, etc.

3. Grk. ἄνθρωπος, etym. much disputed. But the old analysis ἄνθρ-ωπος 'man-faced, man-like', fr. the stem of ἀνήρ, ἀνδρός remains the most probable. Cf. Hesych. δρώψ· ἄνθρωπος, and for the semantic relation cf. OHG mannisco fr. man (above, 2). The change of ἀνδρ- to ἀνθρ- is due to a ' in the second element (cf. τέθριππον fr. *τετρ-ιππον), which does not belong properly to the root ὀπ- but may be due to the influence of ὁράω. Kretschmer, Glotta 9.231 f., 27.246.

4. Ir. duine, W. dyn, Br. den, above, 1.

5. ChSl. člověkŭ, etc., the general Slavic word for 'man'[1] (SCr. čovjek also 'man'[2]), whence Lett. cilveks (fr. Russ.), much disputed but best explained as cpd. of a čelo-* (whence ChSl. čeljadĭ 'household') and věkŭ* : Lith. vaikas 'child', hence orig. 'member of the household', with later extension to 'man'[1]. Cf. SCr. čeljad coll. for 'household' but also 'men, people.' Berneker 141. Brugmann, Festgabe Kaegi 33. Brückner 79 (differently for second part of cpd.)

6. Skt. (beside manu-, etc., above, 2) puruṣa- etym.? Uhlenbeck s.v.

Av. mašya- mostly 'man'[1], OPers. martiya- 'man'[1] and 'man'[2], NPers. mard 'man'[2], Arm. mard 'man'[1], orig. 'mortal' : Skt. mṛta- 'dead', martya- 'mortal, man', Lat. mortuus 'dead', Grk. βροτός 'a mortal', fr. IE mer-* 'die' in Skt. mṛ-, Lat. morī, etc. Walde-P. 2.276. Barth. 1148 ff.

Many of the words for 'man'[2], namely most of the Romance and Germanic and all the Slavic, were originally words for 'man'[1], or derivatives of these and have been included in the discussion 2.1.

Many of the words for 'man'[2] were also used for 'husband', and some of them are quotable only in the latter sense, so that they do not appear in this list (so ON verr).

1. IE wīro-, that is, wī-ro- : Lat. vīs, Skt. vayas, etc. 'strength'. Walde-P. 1.314 ff. Ernout-M. 1112 f.

Lat. vir, Umbr. uiro (acc. pl.); Ir. fer, NIr. fear, W. gwr, MBr. gour (now used with neg. for 'no one'); Goth. wair (ON verr 'husband'), OE wer, etc. (old Gmc. word, but now obs. except in cpds., as NE werewolf, NHG wergeld; also NE world, etc. 1.1); Lith. vyras, Lett. vīrs; Skt., Av. vīra-.

2. IE ner-*. Various cognates, as Ir. nert 'strength, might', show that the notion of 'strength' is dominant, as in IE wīro-*, but the ultimate root connection is uncertain. Walde-P. 2.332 f. Ernout-M. 667 f.

Grk. ἀνήρ, gen. ἀνδρός, NG ἄντρας; Osc.-Umbr. ner- used of men of rank, officials (here also Lat. Nerō and Neriō; cf. also MW ner 'chief, master', Loth, RC 41.207); Skt. nar-, nara-, Av. nar-; Alb. njeri; Arm. air.

3. Sp. varón = late Lat. barō, -ōnis 'man'[2] (Lex Salica, etc.), OFr. baron, 'husband' fr. a Gmc. word meaning orig. 'fighting man' (: ON berjask 'fight'), whence 'man', 'retainer', etc. Wartburg 1.254 f. (best account of the complicated history). REW 962. Gamillscheg 83. NED s.v. baron.

Rum. bărbat, fr. Lat. barbātus 'bearded' through Byz. βαρβᾶτος used for one who was not a eunuch. Cf. NG βαρβᾶτος used of an animal that is not castrated, as ἄλογο βαρβᾶτο 'stallion'.

4. Br. gwaz, fr. OBr. guas, MBr. goas 'servant' = W. gwas, Ir. foss 'servant', etc. (19.43).

5. ON karl and karlmaðr, OE ceorl, OHG karl, all meaning 'man'[2], esp. the 'man without rank, freeman', in the earlier period a term of esteem (as in the proper name Karl), later one of disparagement or contempt, as in NE churl, NHG kerl. Perh. as 'full-grown man' : Grk. γέρων, Skt. jarant- 'old man'. Walde-P. 1.600. Falk-Torp 497. Kluge-G. 296.

OE wǣp(en)-man, wǣpned-man 'man, male', cpds. of wǣpen 'weapon, penis' (4.492), wǣpned 'male'.

OHG gomman, cpd. of gomo (2.1) and man.

6. Skt., Av. vīra-, nar-, above 1, 2.

Skt. pumaṅs-, puṁs- 'man, male' (vs. strī- 'woman, female') : Lat. pūbēs 'adult'. Walde-P. 2.83. Ernout-M. 819 f.

2.22 WOMAN

Grk.	γυνή	Goth.	qinō	Lith.	moteris, moteriškė, žmona
NG	γυναῖκα	ON	kona	Lett.	sieva
Lat.	mulier, fēmina	Dan.	kvinde	ChSl.	žena

NIr.	bean	OHG	wīb, quena	Av.	jani-, nāiri-, strī-
W.	gwraig, benyw, dynes	MHG	wīp
Br.	maouez	NHG	frau, weib

Many of the words for 'woman' were also the usual words for 'wife', and some became restricted to the latter use, with replacement in the sense of 'woman', as NE wife, Pol. żona, Russ. žena.

Words for 'woman' carry an emotional value which is liable to wide fluctuation, either at the same period, according to circumstances, or as between different periods, social classes, or languages. They may suggest the nobility of woman or her frailties. They may move up or down the social scale. Of OE cwēn, cwene both orig. 'woman', the former was from early times a 'king's wife, queen', while the latter became a 'quean, harlot'. Dan. kone is 'wife', but Sw. kona, formerly 'woman, wife', is now used only of a woman of loose character. NHG weib was for a time mostly derogatory and was displaced by frau, permanently for 'wife', while for 'woman' it has regained respectability.

Conversely, a derogatory epithet may come to be used as a whimsical term of endearment and eventually as the standard word for 'woman'. So notably Pol. kobieta (below, 5).

1. IE *g^{w}enā-, *g^{w}eni-, etc., with gradation of the root syllable. Without known root connection, unless at some remote period, before differentiation of the gutturals (?), with IE ĝen-* 'beget' and 'bear' of Lat. gignere, etc. Walde-P. 1.681.

Grk. γυνή (Boeot. βανά), gen. γυναικός, NG γυναῖκα (γυνή lit.); Ir. ben, NIr. bean, W. benyw; Goth. qinō (and qēns 'wife'); ON kona (gen. pl. kvinna); Dan. kvinde (and kone 'wife'), Sw. kvinna, OE cwene (and cwēn 'wife'), OHG quena; OPruss. genna, ChSl. žena, etc.; Skt. jani-, janī-, -jāni-, Av. jani- (NPers. zan), gənā-, etc.; Arm. kin; Toch. śāṃ.

2. Lat. mulier (> It. moglie 'wife', OFr. moillier 'wife', Sp. mujer 'woman, wife', Rum. muiere formerly 'woman, wife', now derogatory), etym. dub., possibly formed with a comp. suffix from the root of Lat. mollis 'soft, delicate', and so used of the weaker sex, or from the same root in an obscene sense? Walde-P. 2.285. Ernout-M. 637 f.

Lat. fēmina 'a female' in general and 'woman' (> It. femmina formerly 'woman', now only 'female', Fr. femme 'woman, wife', Sp. hembra 'female'), orig. mid. pple. fr. the root of Lat. fēlāre 'suck', Grk. θῆσθαι 'suck', θῆλυς 'female', Skt. dhayati 'sucks', etc., (5.16), hence 'one who gives suck'. Walde-P. 1.829 ff. Ernout-M. 341, 343.

It. donna, now 'woman', formerly 'mistress, lady', like Fr. dame, etc., fr. Lat. domina 'mistress'.

Rum. femeie 'woman, wife', dial. 'children, family', fr. Lat. familia 'household'. REW 3180. Pușcariu 595.

3. Ir. fracc 'woman', W. gwrach 'old woman, witch', gwraig 'woman, wife', Br. gwreg 'wife', prob. fem. derivs. of Ir. fer, W. gwr, etc. 'man'[2] (Pedersen, 1.159 dub.). Cf. Lat. virāgō 'manlike female', virgō 'maiden', fr. vir, W. dynes 'woman' (cf. Morris Jones 223) fr. dyn 'man'[1], and Skt. nārī- 'woman' fr. nar- 'man'[2].

Br. maouez : Corn. mowes 'girl', Goth. mawi 'girl', fem. of Ir. magu 'servant', Goth. magus 'boy', etc. (2.25–26). Walde-P. 2.228. Pedersen 1.98.

4. ON vīf (poet.), OE wīf, ME wife 'woman, wife', cpd. wīfman 'woman' > ME, NE woman, finally displacing wife in its wider sense (except dial. or in cpds.), OHG wīb, MHG wīp, NHG weib 'woman' and 'wife', now mostly (but not always) derogatory and replaced by frau, as likewise Du. wijf by vrouw. Etym. much discussed and wholly dub. Falk-Torp 1390. Weigand-H. 2.1224. Paul, Deutsches Wtb. s.v. Weib (on its use).

NHG frau, Du. vrouw, orig. 'mistress' as OHG frouwa, fem. of OHG frō, Goth. frauja 'master' : Skt. pūrva- 'in front, former', Grk. πρῶτος 'first', etc. Walde-P. 2.37. Falk-Torp 278.

NHG frauenzimmer, orig. a room for the women at court, then coll. for 'women', finally 'a woman, female', now mostly with derogatory feeling. Weigand-H. 1.577.

5. Lith. motė, gen. moters (now usually moteris or moteriškė), orig. 'mother' = Lett. māte, ChSl. mati, Lat. māter, etc. (2.42).

Lith. žmona (but now mostly 'wife'), fem. of žmogus 'man' (2.1).

Lett. sieva 'wife' (2.32), also 'woman'.

6. Pol. niewiasta, formerly the common word for 'woman' (żona being 'wife'), orig. 'bride' : ChSl. nevěsta 'bride', this a cpd. of neg. prefix ne and fem. of věstŭ 'known', hence the 'unknown', that is, the newcomer in the husband's family. Zubatý, Arch. sl. Ph. 16.406. Brückner 362.

Pol. kobieta, first appearing as a derogatory epithet and plausibly explained as a blend of kobyla 'mare' (this also epithet of a 'clumsy, stupid woman', as is also Russ. kobyla) with names like Bieta 'Betty'. Since 18th. cent. without derogatory sense and displacing niewiasta. Brückner 241.

7. Skt. nārī-, Av. nāiri-, fem. deriv. of nar- 'man'[2] (2.21).

Skt., Av. strī- 'female, woman', etym.? Walde-P. 2.457, 460. P. Trost, IF 56.197.

2.23, 2.24. Most of the words listed are the adjective forms; some of these are also used substantively. But in some cases it is the substantive form that is commonly used, either prefixed or added in apposition to another noun and so with virtually adjectival force. So Lat. fēmina, It. femmina, Fr. femelle, Sp. hembra, etc.

Many of them, but not all, are applied to animals as well as to human beings. See 3.12, 3.13.

The majority are obvious derivatives or compounds of the words for 'man' or 'woman' (2.21, 2.22) and need no further discussion.

Those of different origin are as follows:

1. Grk. ἄρσην 'male', ἔρσην, ἄρρην (without ϝ; alleged El. gen. sg. ϝάρρενορ now rejected), late also ἀρσενικός, ἀρρενικός (cf. θηλυκός, below, 2), NG ἀρσενικός, Skt. vṛṣan- (cf. vṛṣabha-, and ṛṣabha- 'bull'), Av. aršan- (also varəšna-, cf. NPers. gušan 'male'), parallel forms with and without init. w, the former : Skt. vṛṣ- 'to rain', varṣa- 'rain', Grk. ἔρση 'dew', the latter : Skt. ṛṣ- 'flow'. Whether or not these two roots belong together formally, the semantic development is the same, 'male' from the notion of emitting semen. Walde-P. 1.149 ff., 269.

2. Grk. θῆλυς 'female', whence θηλυκός 'woman-like', 'like the female' (Aristot.), later (pap., LXX, etc.) simply 'female', as in NG; Lat. fēmina (> It. femmina, Sp. hembra), dim. fēmella (> Fr. femelle > ME; NE female), also fēmineus, fēmīnus, It. femi- neo, feminino, feminile, etc. (but these mostly 'feminine' rather than 'female'), all orig. 'giving suck' : Grk. θῆσθαι 'suck', Skt. dhayati 'sucks', etc. Walde-P. 1.829 ff. Ernout-M. 341, 343. Walde-H. 1.476.

3. Lat. mās 'male', also māsculus (> It. maschio, maschile, Fr. mâle, ME, NE male, Sp. macho), māsculinus (> It. mascolino, Fr. masculin, NE masculine, now mostly of gender, attributes, etc.), etym.? Ernout-M. 594. Walde-H. 2.46 f.

4. OE wǣpned 'male', also cpd. wǣpedman, wǣpman fr. wǣpen 'weapon, penis' (4.492, 20.21).

OE werlīc, wīflīc are used for 'masculine, feminine' gender (so Aelfric) but rarely, if at all, for 'male, female'.

5. Skt. (beside adj. vṛṣan-) prefixed puṁs- or nara- (2.21) for 'male' human beings or animals. Similarly strī- (2.22) prefixed or added for 'female' human beings or animals.

Av. (beside adj. aršan-) also adj. nairya- fr. nara- 'man' (2.21), for 'male' human beings or animals.

Av. hāirišī- noun for 'female', applied to human beings and animals, perh. hār-* : second part of IE swe-sor-* 'sister' (2.45). Benveniste, BSL 35.1.104 f.

Av. xšaθrī- likewise noun for 'female', etym.? Barth. 547.

2.242 SEX

Grk.	γένος, φῦλον	Goth.	....	Lith.	gimtis, lytis

The abstract notion of 'sex' is in many languages expressed only by words of broader scope, the special reference to sex being shown by the context (as 'male kind' = 'male sex'). But there are some distinctive words in which the specialization to 'sex' is complete (so Lat. sexus, with derivs.) or nearly so. The semantic source is most commonly 'sort, kind' (this often from 'birth, kin, race'), but in part 'section', 'side', 'half', or 'flesh, complexion'.

Natural 'sex' and grammatical 'gender' are most commonly expressed by the same word, as in the case of Grk. γένος, OE cynn, gecynde, NHG geschlecht. But they may be differentiated, as in Lat. sexus vs. genus (with their Romance and English derivs.), NG φῦλον vs. γένος, Russ. pol vs. rod ('race, clan' 19.23, 'kind', and 'gender').

1. Grk. γένος 'race, kin, clan' (19.23), hence 'class, kind' and 'sex'.

Grk. φῦλον 'race, tribe' (beside φυλή, 19.23) and 'sex' (Aristoph., Xen.), later reg. NG.

2. Lat. sexus (> It. sesso, Fr. sexe, Sp. sexo; Rum. sex neolog. fr. Fr.), beside secus prob. : secāre 'cut' (9.22), hence orig. 'section', but with prehistoric specialization to 'sex' (old etym. questioned by Ernout-M. 935, but still prob.).

3. Ir. gnē 'countenance, appearance, form, kind' (: W. gne 'color, hue, complexion'), also, at least in NIr., 'sex' in phrases with 'male', etc.

Ir. cenēl 'race, kin, kind' (: cinim 'spring from'), NIr. cenēal also 'sex' in phrases.

NIr. saghas 'sort, kind' (etym.?), also for 'sex' in phrases 'what kind is your child, boy or girl?' (Dinneen, McKenna).

W. rhyw 'sort, kind' (etym.? Pedersen 1.67) and 'sex'.

W. ystlwn 'connection, kind' (beside cystlwn 'kindred', Pedersen 1.84), now ystlen 'kind, sex'.

Br. reiz 'order, law' (21.11), also 'sex'.

4. ON kyn, Dan. køn, Sw. kön, OE cyn(n), Du. kunne, all orig. 'race, kin' (like Goth. kuni), hence 'kind' and 'sex', with same semantic history as the cognate Grk. γένος.

OE gecynde, ME kynde (NE kind) 'birth, (inborn) character, nature' (fr. the same root as preceding group) and sometimes 'sex'. NED s.v. kind, sb. 7.

ME sexe (rare), NE sex, Du. sekse fr. Lat. sexus or Fr. sexe (above, 2).

Du. geschlacht, MHG geslehte, NHG geschlecht 'kin, family, clan' (19.23), orig., like OHG slahta, 'sort, kind', whence 'sex'. Weigand-H. 2.698.

5. Lith. gimtis, Lett. dzimums 'birth, family', etc. and 'sex', fr. Lith. gimti, Lett. dzimt 'be born' (4.71). Mühl-Endz. 1.551.

Lith. lytis 'form' and 'sex' (NSB s.v.) : lieti 'pour'. Trautmann 156.

6. ChSl. polŭ, SCr. spol, Russ. pol, same word as ChSl. polŭ, Pol. pol, etc. 'half' (13.24).

Boh. pohlaví, fr. a phrase containing po 'after, according to' and hlava 'head' (4.20).

Pol. płeć : ChSl. plŭtĭ, Russ. plot' 'flesh, body', Boh. plet 'complexion' (also ženska plet 'female sex'). Brückner 420 f.

7. Skt. liṅga- 'mark, phallus', also 'gender' (BR s.v.), quotable also for 'sex'?

Skt. jāti- 'birth' (: jan- 'be born', etc.), 'class, kind', prob. used also for 'sex', but quotable?

2.25, 2.26, 2.27. Several of the words for 'boy' and 'girl' are correlative masculine and feminine forms, as Grk. ὁ παῖς, ἡ παῖς, Lat. puer, puella, It. ragazzo, ragazza, Sp. muchacho, muchacha, Goth. magus, mawi, Skt. bāla-, bālī-. In such cases the discussion will be under 'boy'.

The same words often apply to 'boy' or 'girl' and to a young male or female 'servant, attendant'. Either the former or the latter may be the earlier meaning, as indicated by the etymology.

Since 'boy' and 'girl' are, with reference to the parents, the 'son' and 'daughter', the words for the former may also be used, and in part are the usual ones for the latter. See 2.43, 2.44. The extension in the opposite direction also occurs, but less frequently.

A noticeable number of the modern words for 'boy', 'girl', and 'child' were originally colloquial nicknames, derogatory or whimsical, in part endearing, and finally commonplace. These, as is natural, are of the most diverse, and in part obscure, origin. The enumeration of the colloquial expressions that are in occasional or dialectic use would fill a volume. They are based on names of animals and all sorts of inanimate objects, like NE kid, brat (orig. 'cloth, rag'), flapper (in U.S.), NHG bengel ('cudgel'), etc.

Many such are collected in v. Friesen, De germ. mediageminatorna; Brugmann, Sächs. Ges. d. Wiss. 1906.173; Johanssen, KZ 36.373 ff.; Björkman, IF 30.257 ff.; Much, Wört. u. Sach.

1.45; Ivan Pauli, 'Enfant', 'garçon', 'fille' dans les langues romanes (426 pp.!); Taylor, Mod. Lang. Notes 1929. 309 ff.; Hilding Bäck, The Synonyms for 'Child', 'Boy', 'Girl' in Old English (271 pp.).

Here only those that have become the usual words are considered, unless incidentally.

2.25. 'Boy. 1. Grk. παῖς, gen. παιδός (fr. *παϝιδ-) 'boy, girl, child', NG παιδί 'child' (fr. dim. παιδίον), Lat. puer 'boy', whence puella 'girl' : Skt. putra-, Av. puθra- 'son', Osc. puklum 'filium', Pael. puclois 'pueris', Skt. pota- 'young of an animal', Grk. παῦρος 'little', Lat. putus 'boy' (rare), pusillus 'very small', Goth. fawai 'few', etc., all fr. the notion of 'small'. Walde-P. 2.75 ff. Ernout-M. 782, 790.

Grk. κόρος (mostly poet.), Ion. κοῦρος, fr. *κόρϝος, with fem. κόρη 'girl', Ion. κούρη, Dor. κώρα, Arc. κόρϝα : κορέννυμι 'satisfy' orig. 'nourish', Lat. crēscere 'grow', etc. Walde-P. 1.408. Hence NG κόρη 'girl, daughter' or κορίτσι with dim. suffix.

NG ἀγώρι 'boy' (of school age), dim. of Grk. ἄωρος 'untimely, immature'. Cf. ἄγωρος in a late Theban epitaph of a youth of 23 years (Glotta 15.174).

2. It. ragazzo (whence ragazza 'girl'), in earliest use 'stableboy, servant', orig. dub. REW 7019.3. Pauli, op. cit. 143.

Fr. garçon, OFr. gars (nom.), garçon 'servant, young man', of Gmc. orig., perh. fr. a Frank. wrakjo* = OFris. wrekkio = OHG reccheo 'exile, adventurer' (NHG recke), OE wrecca 'exile, wretched person' (NE wretch). Gamillscheg 457 f. Bloch 1.327. Otherwise (fr. a Frank. wurkjo* 'worker') REW 9578a.

Sp. muchacho, with fem. muchacha 'girl', perh. through mocho fr. Lat. mutilus 'maimed'. REW 5791.

Rum. băiat, generally taken as pple. of băia 'bathe' (mostly îmbaia). So Tiktin, Şaineanu, s.v. Otherwise REW 887, fr. a băia 'streicheln', easier semantically, if băia in this sense exists (not in Tiktin and unknown to informant).

Rum. făt (now used only in certain phrases), fr. Lat. fētus 'offspring'. REW 3273. Hence fem. fată 'girl' (so with Diez, Densusianu, and Pauli, op. cit. 71, more probably than as directly fr. Lat. fēta 'pregnant, newly delivered', with shift of application to 'one capable of childbearing', as REW 3269, Puşcariu 588, Tiktin s.v.).

3. Ir. macc 'boy' and 'son' (NIr. mac, W., Br. mab 'son'), see under 'son' (2.41).

NIr. buachaill 'boy, servant, cowherd', fr. MIr. buachaill 'cowherd', like W. bugail 'cowherd', Corn. bugel 'herdsman, shepherd', Br. bugel 'child' : Grk. βουκόλος 'cowherd'. Walde-P. 1.696. Pedersen 1.54. Henry 47.

W. bachgen, cpd. of bach 'little' and cen of cenau 'offspring' : Ir. cinim 'spring from', cenēl 'race', etc. Pedersen 2.33.

W. hogyn, prob. new masc. to hogen 'girl' (2.26).

Br. paotr 'boy, valet', MBr. pautr, loanword through OFr. fr. Gmc. Cf. OFr. pautraille 'canaille', orig. 'pack of ragamuffins', LG paltrig 'ragged', NE paltry, dial. palt 'rubbish', Dan. pjalt 'rag', etc. Henry 217. Falk-Torp 831.

4. Goth. magus 'boy', ON mǫgr 'boy, son, man', OE magu 'son, servant, young man', with derivs. for 'girl', Goth. mawi (magaþs 'virgin'), ON mǣr, OE mægeþ, mægden, ME, NE maiden, maid, Du. meisje (dim. of meid, dial. form of maagd, Franck–v. W. s.v. meid), OHG magad, MHG maget, NHG magt, mädchen : Ir. magu (Ogam), mug 'servant', Br. maouez 'woman', Av. maγava- 'unmarried', etc., all with a common notion of 'young person', and perh. fr. the same root as Goth. mag 'can', mahts 'strength, might', NE might, etc. Walde-P. 2.228. Falk-Torp 748. Feist 339.

ON piltr 'boy', Dan., Sw. pilt 'small boy', orig. dub., but perh. (cf. Br. paotr, above, 3) : Sw. palt, Dan. pjalt 'rag', Sw. dial. pult 'bit of wood', orig. something broken off. Johansson, KZ 36.377. Cf. NE runt, orig. 'stump' now applied to a small person, a little runt.

Dan. dreng : Sw. dräng 'servant', ON drengr 'youth, brave man', drangr 'rock pillar', ChSl. drągŭ 'beam'. Cf. NHG bengel 'cudgel' applied to a child, der kleine bengel. Falk-Torp 154. Johansson, KZ 36.374.

Norw. gut (vs. Dan. dreng) = Du. guit 'rogue' : Norw. dial. gauta 'prate, chatter', MDu. guiten 'make fun of', etc. Falk-Torp 362. Torp, Nynorsk 191.

Sw. gosse : Norw. gosse 'strong fellow' and 'boar', NE dial. gussie 'swine, pig', etc., a colloq. word of the most diverse applications. Björkman, IF 30.252 ff. Hellquist 294.

Sw. pojke, fr. Finn. poika 'boy', Hellquist 774.

OE cnapa, cnafa, ME knave 'boy, servant' (NE knave 'rascal'), Du. knaap, OHG knabo, MHG, NHG knabe (also OHG knappe 'boy, youth', NHG knappe 'page') : ON knappr 'knob', OE cnæp 'top', Sw. dial. knabb 'peg, knob, small thick-set person or animal'. Falk-Torp 543, 544. Johansson, KZ 36.374. Walde-P. 1.585 f. Bäck, op. cit. 139.

OE cniht 'boy, servant, attendant' (NE knight), OHG, MHG kneht 'boy, servant' (NHG knecht) : ME, LG knagge 'peg', etc. Wood, Mod. Ph. 2.474. Holthausen, KZ 47.307. Falk-Torp 1498 f. Walde-P. 1.580.

ME, NE boy, E. Fris. boi 'boy', prob. : ON bōfi, Du. boef 'knave, rogue', NHG bube 'knave, servant', dial. 'boy', orig. a nursery word like NE baby, etc. NED s.v. Weigand-H. 1.298.

ME ladde, NE lad, etym. dub., but perh., as orig. 'attendant', fr. the pass. pple. of ME leden 'lead'. NED s.v.

5. Lith. vaikas, OPruss. waix : Lith. viekas 'strength', veikti 'do, work' (these : Lat. vincere 'conquer', Goth. weihan 'fight', etc. Walde-P. 1.232 ff.). Brugmann, IF 38.141.

Lett. puisis, fr. Liv. pois 'young man'. Mühl.-Endz. 3.403.

Lett. puika, fr. Finn. poika 'boy' (or the Esth. poeg), same as the source of Sw. pojke. Mühl.-Endz. 3.403.

6. ChSl. otrokŭ 'boy, servant' (Boh., Pol., Russ. otrok, but not the usual words for 'boy'), with fem. otrokovica 'girl', cpd. of otŭ 'out of' and the root of reką, rešti 'say, speak', hence orig. 'one who cannot speak, infant', like Lat. infāns, but with extension to one older (as in Fr. enfant) and use of dim. otročę for 'infant'. Miklosich 274. Brückner 387.

SCr. dječak, deriv. of dijete 'child', ChSl. děti (2.27).

Boh. chlapec, Pol. chłopiec : ChSl. chlapŭ 'servant', Russ. cholop 'serf', etc., outside connection dub. Berneker 394. Brückner 180 (: Goth. skalks 'servant').

Boh. hoch, short form of holec 'bald head', holek '(beardless) young man' : holý 'bald', ChSl. golŭ 'bare', etc. Hence also fem. holka 'girl'. Similarly Sorb. holc 'boy', holca 'girl'. Berneker 325.

Boh. pachole : Pol. pachołek 'servant, bootblack', etc., cpd. fr. root seen in Russ. cholit' 'clean, take care of'. Berneker 395.

Russ. mal'čik, fr. malyj 'small', ChSl. malŭ 'small', etc. Berneker 2.13.

7. Skt. bāla- 'boy', with fem. bālī- 'girl', adj. bāla- 'young', prob. fr. bala-

'strength'. Brugmann, IF 38.140 ff. Walde-P. 2.110 ff.

Skt. kumāra- 'boy', with fem. kumārī- 'girl', etym.? Perh. prefix ku-, here in dim. sense) : Skt. marya- 'young man', Grk. μεῖραξ 'young girl', μειράκιον 'boy', etc. (Walde-P. 2.281, but without mention of Skt. kumāra-). Against connection with Lith. kumelys 'foal' (Charpentier, Monde oriental 1.22), cf. Pokorny, KZ 56.131.

2.26. Several of the words for 'girl' are feminine forms of words for 'boy', and so already discussed in 2.25.

1. Grk. παρθένος 'maiden', esp. 'young unmarried woman', perh. a cpd. παρθένος : εὐ-θενής 'vigorous', εὐθηνία 'abundance', etc. applied to the young woman as of exuberant physique. Walde-P. 1.679. Boisacq 747.

NG κοπέλλα 'girl' (used without derogatory sense; also κοπέλι 'boy, servant') : Rum. copil 'child', copila 'young girl', Alb. kopil 'servant, young man', SCr. kopile 'bastard', etc., a general Balkan word the ultimate source of which is unknown. Berneker 564. Sandfeld, Ling. balk. 94.

2. Fr. fille 'girl' and 'daughter', fr. Lat. fīlia 'daughter' (2.44).

3. Ir. ingen 'girl' and 'daughter', orig. the latter (2.44).

NIr. cailīn (caile mostly derogatory), Gael. caile, caileag, Br. plac'h, prob. loanword fr. Lat. pellex 'concubine'. Vendryes, De hib. voc. 119. Henry 224.

W. geneth, fr. geni 'bear' (4.72).

W. hogen, perh. fr. sukā* : Ir. sūgim, OE sūcan, etc. 'suck', and so orig. 'suckling'. G. S. Lane, Language 13.25 f.

4. ON stūlka (also the common NIcel. word for 'girl'), Sw. dial. stulka : Sw. dial. stulk 'stump, piece', etc. Björkman, IF 30.273.

Dan. pige 'girl', Sw. piga now 'servant girl' : Dan. pig 'spike', OE pīc 'point, spike', NE pike, pick, etc. Falk-Torp 824. Johansson, KZ 36.331. Björkman, IF 30.266.

Norw. jente (gjente), fem. to Dan. gante, Sw. dial. gant 'fool'. Falk-Torp 316.

Sw. flicka : ON flīk 'patch, rag', Sw. flik 'flap', Norw. dial. flicka 'go about with flapping clothes'. Hellquist 220. Flom, J. Eng. and Germ. Ph. 12.85 ff. Cf. the current slang use (U.S.) of NE flapper.

ME gurle, girle, etc., NE girl, orig. 'child, boy or girl' (cf. knave-gerlys 'boys' 1450), later only 'girl' : LG göre 'child' ("Pomerani in contemptum pro infante" 1593, quoted in Weigand-H. 1.750), perh. also the group MLG gorre, gurre 'mare', Norw. dial. gurre 'lamb', etc., all colloquial epithets of obscure orig. Björkman, IF 30.260, 278.

ME lasce, NE lass (esp. Sc.), prob. fr. an ON form meaning 'unmarried'. NED s.v.

5. Lith. merga now mostly 'maidservant', mergaitė, mergelė, 'girl', OPruss. mergu 'girl' : W. merch, Br. merc'h (both 'girl' only as 'daughter'), Skt. marya- 'young man', Grk. μεῖραξ 'young girl', μειράκιον 'child', etc. Walde-P. 2.281.

Lett. meita, fr. MLG meid 'girl' (see 2.25). Mühl.-Endz. 2.593.

6. ChSl. děva, děvica, SCr. djevojka, Boh. dívka, etc. (the general Slavic word, with a variety of suffix forms), fr. the root of ChSl. dojiti 'give suck', Skt. dhayati 'sucks', etc. Berneker 197. Walde-P. 1.830. Semantic development prob. fr. 'one who gives suck, female' (like Grk. θῆλυς, Lat. fēmina), only here, beside the existing žena 'woman, female', applied to the physically matured marriageable young woman, whence dim. forms for 'young girl'. So Berneker

(after J. Schmidt), Walde-P., and favored by the actual use of ChSl. děva = παρθένος, děvisto = παρθενία. Otherwise, as orig. 'suckling', like ChSl. děti 'child' (2.27), Miklosich and recently Pedersen, Gram. Misc. Jespersen 67, in connection with a similar question regarding OE fǣmne 'young woman'.

7. Skt. kanyā-, Av. kainyā-, kainī- : Skt. kanīna- 'young', Grk. καινός 'new', etc. Walde-P. 1.397 ff.

2.27. 'Child' is understood here as 'boy or girl'. Most of the words serve also for 'child' with reference to the parents, 'son or daughter', and in several cases this was the original application as shown by the etymology. But there are also some words that are normally used only in the second sense, as Grk. τέκνον, Lat. līberī vs. puerī, etc. See 2.43.

Some of the words for 'child' belong with those for 'boy', already discussed (2.25). So Grk. παῖς, NG παιδί, Skt. bala-, kumāra-, and in plural for 'children' Lat. puerī, Lith. vaikai. Colloquially and in dialects many of the other words for 'boy' are used in the plural for 'children'.

1. Lat. infāns 'infant' (2.28) extended its scope to include older children. Hence Fr. enfant and with suffix It. fanciullo ('child' and 'little boy' beside fanciulla 'little girl'). REW 4393.

It. bimbo, nursery word. REW 921.

Sp. niño, nursery word belonging with a large group of affectionate terms for 'father, mother, grandfather', etc. (below, p. 94). REW 5817. Walde-P. 1.55.

Rum. copil : Grk. κοπέλλα 'girl', etc., Balkan word (2.26).

2. Ir. lelap, later lenab, NIr. leanbh prob. an old nursery word of reduplicated type. (This more likely than connection with the root of Lat. labāre 'totter, waver', Pedersen 1.491).

NIr. pāiste, fr. NE page (in earlier sense 'boy'). Pedersen 1.230.

W. plentyn, new sg. to plant 'children', orig. a coll. 'offspring' fr. Lat. planta 'sprout, shoot'.

Br. bugel 'child' also 'cowherd' : W. bugail 'cowherd', Ir. buacchail 'cowherd, boy' (2.25).

Br. krouadur, kroeadur, orig. 'creature', fr. Lat. creātūra. Loth, Mots lat. 153 f. Cf. Sp. criatura 'infant' (2.28).

3. Goth., ON, OHG barn, OE bearn (NE bairn in Sc.), etc., once general Gmc., fr. barna-* 'born', pple. of Goth. bairan, OE beran, etc. 'bear'. Cf. Lith. bernas 'servant' and Lett. bērns 'child', fr. the same root. Walde-P. 1.56. Falk-Torp 51. Feist 82.

OE cild, ME, NE child : Goth. kilþei 'womb', Skt. jaṭhara- 'belly, womb' (4.46). Shift from 'womb' to 'child in the womb' (so sometimes in OE), hence 'infant' (cf. Grk. βρέφος 'foetus' and 'newborn babe'), then with extension of scope as in Fr. enfant fr. Lat. infāns. Walde-P. 1.614. NED s.v. child.

Du., OHG–NHG kind, fr. gen-to-m* 'born' fr. the root of Skt. jan-, Lat. gignere 'bear, beget', Grk. γίγνομαι 'be born', etc. Walde-P. 1.576. Weigand-H. 1.1035.

4. Lett. bērns : Goth. barn, etc. (above, 3).

ChSl. dětĭ (pl. děti renders Grk. παιδία and τέκνα), SCr. dijete, etc., the general Slavic word (Russ. sg. ditja no longer in common use, but pl. deti more common than pl. of rebenok), orig. 'suckling' : ChSl. dojiti 'give suck', Skt. dhayati 'sucks', etc. Berneker 197. Walde-P. 1.831 ff.

Russ. rebenok, deriv. of rob, ChSl. rabŭ 'servant' (19.43).

5. Av. apərənāyu-, apərənāyūka-, cpd. of apərəna- 'unfilled' and āyu- 'age', hence 'one of unfilled age, child'.

2.28. 'Infant' may be covered by words for 'child', some of which had this sense originally. More commonly it is expressed by derivatives of words for 'child' (or 'boy'), either with dim. suffix, or cpds. or phrases with words for 'little' or 'young'. But there are also many words of different origin. The numerous nursery words are not included, except where they have become the normal terms of reference, like It. bambino, or at least common as such, like NE baby beside infant.

1. Grk. νήπιος (adj. and noun) in Homer 'child, infant' (so also νηπύτιος) and 'childish, silly', prob. fr. *νή-πϝιος with neg. νη- and the root of πινυτός 'wise', etc. Walde-P. 2.13. Otherwise F. Specht, KZ 56.122 ff.

Grk. παιδίον, dim. of παῖς 'child', is 'young child', in NT frequently 'infant' (Mt. 2.11, 13, etc. of the infant Jesus, in our version 'the young child').

Grk. βρέφος 'foetus' and 'newborn babe' (Simon. +, so in LXX, pap., NT, Lk. 2.12, 16, etc.), in NG the usual lit. word for infant : ChSl. žrěbę, 'foal'. Walde-P. 1.689.

NG μωρὸ παιδί or simply μωρό, the usual pop. word, fr. Grk. μωρός 'stupid, foolish'.

2. Lat. infāns, lit. 'not speaking', fr. neg. in- and pple. of fārī 'speak'. Hence OFr. enfant (> ME enfaunt, NE infant), Fr. enfant now 'child', petit enfant 'infant'.

It. bambino, nursery word beside bimbo 'child' (2.45).

Fr. bébé, nursery word like NE baby (below), and if not an actual loanword its present common use in this sense is doubtless due to the latter. Gamillscheg 93. Wartburg 1.304.

Sp. criatura, fr. late Lat. creātūra 'creation, creature', hence as coll. for 'offspring', then 'infant'. The same use in It. dial. and elsewhere (Pauli, op. cit. 76).

Rum. copilaş, dim. of copil 'child' (2.27).

Rum. prunc, fr. Hung. poronty 'brood, little fellow, kid'. Tiktin 1274.

3. Ir. nōidiu, NIr. naoidhe, prob. fr. no-widiōn-* or the like 'unknowing'. Stokes, BB 25.257.

W. maban fr. mab 'boy'.

Br. bugelig, krouadurig, dims. of bugel, krouadur 'chlld' (2.27), which may also be used for 'infant'.

4. Goth. barn, etc., OE cild, OHG kind, all words for 'child' (2.27), are used freely (as properly by origin) for 'infant'. But for the latter also cpds., dims., or phrases, like ON ungbarn (ungr 'young'), NE young child (often in NT versions), Dan. spæd barn, Sw. spädt barn (spæd, späd 'tender'), NHG kindchen, kindlein, kleines kind, das kleine, etc.

ME baban, babe, babi, NE (babe) baby nursery word, but now in more general use than corresponding forms in other languages.

NHG säugling, lit. 'suckling', fr. säugen 'suck', now the standard literary term, but not much used in the family.

5. Lith. kūdikis, loanword fr. Slavic, ChSl. chudŭ 'small, poor', etc. Berneker 405.

Lett. pupa bērns, lit. 'child of the breast' (pupa gen. sg. of pups 'mother's breast').

6. ChSl. otročę, dim. of otrokŭ 'boy' (2.25).

ChSl. mladĭnĭčĭ (translates Grk. νήπιος, but otročę for the commoner παιδίον or βρέφος), deriv. of mladŭ 'tender, young'. So Russ. mladenec.

SCr. djetešce, Boh. dětatko, Pol. dzieciątko, etc. dims. of dijete, etc. 'child' (2.27).

Boh. nemluvně, Pol. niemowlę, cpds. of neg. ne-, nie- and Boh. mluviti, Pol. mowić 'speak', prob. lit. formations in imitation of Lat. infāns.

7. Skt. (beside bāla, etc., 2.25) çiçu- 'child, infant, fetus, young of an animal', orig. prob. 'fetus' : Skt. çvā- 'swell'.

2.31 ff. WORDS FOR FAMILY RELATIONSHIP

Delbrück, Die indogermanischen Verwandschaftswörter. Schrader, IF 17.11 ff. and Reallex., s.v. Familie. Tappolet, Die romanischen Verwandtschaftswörter. Wiedermann, BB 27.205 ff. Hermann, Gött. Nachr. 1918.204 ff.

Many of the words of relationship belong to well-known groups of cognates pointing to specific words for these relations existing in the parent speech. The most widespread are those which are represented by NE father, mother, son, daughter, brother, sister. Others for which there is sufficient agreement to indicate IE origin are words for 'grandson' or 'nephew', for 'paternal uncle', and, in relationship by marriage, those for the 'daughter-in-law' and for her husband's father, mother, brother, or sister, or even her husband's brother's wife. That is, the IE family was obviously not matriarchal. The wife became one of her husband's family, and it was the relations between her and her husband's family that were important. The relations between the husband and his wife's relatives were remoter; and special terms for the 'wife's father', etc. arose only later, either by extension of the inherited group or otherwise.

For 'husband' and 'wife' there is great divergence in the actual words, but considerable agreement in employing words for 'man' and 'woman', or, to some extent, words for 'master' and 'mistress'. Probably this was the situation in the parent speech. Words for 'marry' and 'marriage' are from the most diverse sources, and there is no group of cognates that can be certainly taken as reflecting an IE word for 'marry'. Yet, of course, even from the other linguistic evidence, the existence of the institution in the IE period is apparent.

In the inherited group the suffix -ter- or in some cases -er-, -or-, is conspicuous (cf. Skt. pitar-, mātar-, bhrātar-, duhitar-, jāmātar-, yātar-; devar-, svasar-). Owing to the well-known use of this suffix in agent-nouns, these words of relationship were also formerly interpreted as agent-nouns from certain roots, e.g. 'father' as 'protector', 'mother' as 'measurer, thoughtful one', or the like, 'brother' as 'supporter', 'daughter' as 'milker', either the 'suckling' or the 'milkmaid', etc. Most of these derivations now seem fanciful and pointless and are generally given up. The use of the suffix is not to be connected directly with its use in agent-nouns, but rather with the use of -tero- (-ero) in words of contrasted relationship, like Lat. dexter vs. sinister, noster vs. vester, etc., that is, it was used in words for 'father' and 'mother', etc. as contrasted terms. Cf. Streitberg, IF 35.196.

The actual root connection and ultimate meaning of these inherited words of relationship is mostly obscure. But those represented by Lat. pater, māter are probably based upon the intrinsically meaningless infantile syllables pā and mā, with suffix added after the analogy of other pairs of contrasted relations, while the simpler forms with or without reduplication, like NE pa, ma, papa, mama, continued in use as pet names. Such infantile syllables or nursery words play a considerable role in the words of relationship. They give rise to pet names of loose application which may become specialized in various directions. A similar use of infantile syllables, especially for 'father' and 'mother', is observed in languages from all over the world. Cf. Kretschmer, Einleitung 353 ff., and, for Latin, Heraeus, Die Sprache der römischen Kinderstube, Arch. lat. Lex. 13.149 ff.

The principal groups of this kind may be cited here for future reference. In general, the forms characterized by a labial or dental stop are applied to male relatives 'father', 'grandfather', etc., and those with n or m to female relatives, 'mother', 'grandmother', 'aunt', 'niece', etc. But there are many exceptions, as new forms for the opposite sex may arise from either type.

1. papa, appa, baba, etc. Walde-P. 1.47; 2.4, 105. For 'father' or 'old man', Grk. πάππα (voc. in Hom.), ἄππα, ἄπφα, etc., late Lat. pāpa, Fr. papa, NE papa, etc.; It. babbo.

Goth. aba 'husband', ON afi 'grandfather, etc.', Grk. πάππος 'grandfather'. Slav. baba 'grandmother, old woman', whence Lith. boba 'old woman', and fr. this bobutė 'grandmother'. Cf. also MHG bōbe 'old woman', buobe 'boy', NE baby, etc.

2. tata, atta, dada, etc. Walde-P. 1.44, 704. For 'father' or 'old man', Skt. tata- (in Rigveda), Grk. τάτα, τέττα, ἄττα (but Skt. attā- 'mother'), Lat. tata (frequent in inscriptions), Rum. tată, W., Br. tad, NE dad, Lith. tėtis (OPruss. thetis 'grandfather'), tėvas, Lett. tēvs, teta, Goth. atta, ON atte, OHG atto, Alb. at, ChSl. otĭcĭ, etc., Hitt. attas, etc. Here also Slav. and Lith. teta 'aunt', etc.

A related group is Grk. τήθη 'grandmother', τηθίς 'aunt', θεῖος, θεία 'uncle, aunt', Lith. dėdė 'uncle', ChSl. dědŭ 'grandfather', NHG dial. deite 'father, old man', etc.

3. mama, amma, etc. Walde-P. 1.53, 2.221. For 'mother', Grk. μάμμη (also 'grandmother'), Lat. mamma (also 'grandmother' and 'nurse'), It. mamma, Fr. mama, NE mamma, etc., familiar in nearly all the European languages, in some as reg. word for 'mother'. Cf. also Lett. māsa 'sister', Lith. moša 'husband's sister', OHG muoma 'aunt', later 'niece' or 'cousin' (NHG muhme).

Grk. ἀμμά, ἀμμάς, ἀμμία 'mother' or 'nurse', ON amma 'grandmother', OHG amma 'mother, nurse' (NHG amme), Lat. amita 'aunt', Alb. amë 'mother'.

4. nana, anna, etc. Walde-P. 1.55; 2.317. Skt. nanā- 'mother', Grk. νάννα 'aunt', νέννος 'uncle', It. nonna 'grandmother', etc., Grk. ἀννίς 'grandmother', Lat. anus 'old woman', OHG ano 'grandfather', ana 'grandmother', OPruss. ane 'grandmother', Lith. anyta 'husband's mother'. NG μάννα 'mother', blend with forms like those in 3, above.

Forms of the above groups are not repeated in the following lists when they are only pet names on a par with NE papa, mamma beside father, mother. They are listed where they have become the normal words, like W. tad, mam, or where they are serious rivals of the old words, as in the case of It. babbo, mamma.

The use of similar forms for different relationships is mainly observed among groups like the above and is due to the originally loose application of these pet names. But there are also other factors. The speaker may take the point of view of another, as when a man calls his wife 'mother', from the point of view of the children. Such use of Lith. motė as 'woman' or 'wife' replaced the original sense of 'mother'. One's father's 'nephew' is one's own 'cousin', and there are several examples of shift from 'nephew' to 'cousin'. Furthermore, there is a close association between words for reciprocal relations, as between 'grandfather' and 'grandson' (NE grandson formed on the model of grandfather, etc.; OHG ano 'grandfather', but dim. eninchil, NHG enkel 'grandson'), or between 'uncle' and 'nephew' (OHG fetiro 'uncle', MHG vetere also 'nephew', NHG vetter now 'cousin').

2.31, 2.32. Words for 'husband' and 'wife' are most commonly from those for 'man'[2] and 'woman'. Some are from the notion of 'master' or 'mistress' of the household. Many words meaning originally 'united, married, promised, companion', or the like are used for 'husband', and 'wife', mostly in pairs of corresponding masculine and feminine forms. These have not become the common, everyday terms but are often felt as the more refined. Some are in much more general use than others, and it is difficult to know where to draw the line in including them. But at least most of those listed are in more common use than the corresponding NE spouse, which is now virtually confined to poetic, humorous, or legal expression (but will be used in the following as the most convenient translation of forms used for either husband or wife).

1. From words for 'man'[2] and 'woman', which have already been discussed in 2.21, 2.22. Probably in every IE language the words for 'man'[2] and 'woman' may be used for 'husband' and 'wife', at least in colloquial or vulgar speech, as is true even in NE my man, my woman. Here are listed only those that are the usual terms. (So NG γυναίκα for 'wife' is not vulgar, like NE woman in this sense, but is used in the best circles, where σύζυγος would be felt as super-refined, almost like NE spouse; Dan. kone is now in the best usage, more usual than hustru; NHG weib for 'wife', vulgar in the north, is usual in southern Germany). While many of these retain also their earlier use, as Grk. ἀνήρ, γυνή, Lat. vir, Fr. femme, NHG mann, ChSl. mąžĭ, žena, etc., others have come to be used prevailingly or exclusively for 'husband', 'wife', as ON verr 'husband', Goth. qēns 'wife', NE wife, Br. gwreg 'wife', Lith. žmona, Pol. żona 'wife', Russ. muž, žena 'husband, wife'. All such relations are shown by a comparison of the lists 2.21, 2.22 and 2.31, 2.32.

In some cases where the same words serve for 'man, woman' and 'husband, wife', they may be made unambiguous in the latter sense by prefixing a word for 'marriage'. So Dan. ægte-mand, Sw. äkta man, MLG echte man (cf. Du. echtgenoot), MHG ē-man, NHG ehe-mann, ehe-frau, the first part of which belongs with OHG ēwa 'law, marriage state' (2.34).

2. Grk. (poet.) πόσις 'husband', πότνια 'mistress', Skt. pati-, Av. paiti- 'master, husband', Skt. patnī- 'mistress, wife', Lith. pats 'self, husband', pati 'self, wife' (pati 'wife' more common than pats 'husband', which is mostly obs.), Toch. A pats 'husband' : Lat. potis 'able', Goth. bruþfaþs 'bridegroom', Hitt. -pat 'self'. Walde-P. 2.77 f. For similar development of 'master, mistress' (of the house) to 'husband, wife', cf. Dan., Sw. hustru 'wife' (below, 6), and NHG frau (2.22).

3. Grk. (poet.) ἀκοίτης 'husband', ἄκοιτις 'wife', both lit. 'bedfellow, fr. ἀ-cop. and κοίτη 'bed'.

Grk. (poet.) ἄλοχος 'wife', lit. 'bedfellow', fr. ἀ cop. and λέχος 'bed'.

Grk. σύζυγος 'yoked together, united' (: ζυγόν 'yoke'), 'comrade', rarely 'wife', later (eccl.) as in NG 'consort, spouse', either 'husband' (ὁ) or 'wife' (ἡ). Cf. Lat. coniux (below, 4).

4. Lat. uxor 'wife' : Arm. am-usin 'spouse', and to be analyzed as uk-sor-*, first part : Skt. uc- 'be accustomed to, take pleasure in', Lith. junkti 'be accustomed', etc. (Walde-P. 1.111), second part as in swesor* 'sister', etc. (2.45). Ernout-M. 1143.

Hence OFr. oissor, OSp. uxor, and the verbal deriv. Rum. însura 'marry', etc. (REW 9106–7), but generally replaced.

Lat. marītus 'husband' (> It. marito, Fr. mari, Sp. marido), perh. as lit. one provided with a 'young woman, bride', fr. a marī-* : Skt. marya- 'young man', Lith. marti 'bride', etc. Hence the later and much less common marīta 'wife'. Walde-P. 2.281. Ernout-M. 593. Walde-H. 2.40 f.

Lat. coniu(n)x freq. 'wife', less commonly 'husband', fr. coniungere 'unite'.

Lat. spōnsus (pple. of spondēre 'promise') 'betrothed, bridegroom', fem. spōnsa 'betrothed, bride'. Hence with extension or with complete shift to 'husband, wife', It. sposo, sposa, Fr. époux, épouse (OFr. spus, spuse > ME, NE spouse), Sp. esposo, esposa.

Rum. soţ 'husband', fr. Lat. socius 'companion'. Hence also soţie 'wife'. Puşcariu 1610. Cf. fr. the same source, Alb. shoq 'husband', shoqe 'wife'.

Rum. nevastă 'wife', loanword fr. Slav., ChSl. nevěsta 'bride' (cf. 2.22 on OPol. niewasta 'woman'). Tiktin 1054.

5. Ir. cēle 'companion, husband', NIr. cēile 'companion, spouse', prob. : OHG hīwo, hīwa 'husband, wife', etc. (below, 5). Walde-P. 1.359, 446.

Ir. sētig 'wife', orig. 'companion', deriv. of sēt 'way'. Pedersen 2.89.

NIr. nuachar, 'lover, spouse' (also snuachar, fr. so-nuachar 'good spouse'), cpd. of nua- 'new'; second part disputed, perh. a vbl. n. to cuirim 'place, put', the whole orig. 'newly settled, newcomer (in the home)'. G. S. Lane, Language 8.297 f.

W. priod, Br. pried 'spouse', fr. Lat. privātus 'one's own, private'. Pedersen 1.214.

Br. ozac'h 'master of the house, husband', etym.? Loth, RC 41.234 f.

6. Goth. aba 'husband' : ON afi 'grandfather', etc., orig. nursery word (above, p. 94). Walde-P. 1.47.

ON hūsbōndi 'man of the house, husband', cpd. of hūs 'house' and bōndi 'yeoman', the latter also used alone for 'husband'. Hence ME husbonde, NE husband.

Dan., Sw. hustru, fr. hus-fru, cpd. of hus 'house' and fru 'mistress', like NHG hausfrau, Du. huisvrouw.

Sw. make, fem. maka, ME make properly 'mate' : OE gemæcca 'mate' gemaec 'equal, well matched', etc., these : OE macian 'make', etc. Falk-Torp 689. Hellquist 621.

Du. (lit.) echtgenoot 'spouse', with new fem. echtgenoote for 'wife', cpd. of echt 'marriage' (2.35) and genoot 'companion' : NHG genosse, etc.

OHG hīwo 'husband', hīwa 'wife', OE hīwa 'wife' (Goth. heiwa-frauja 'master of the house') : Lett. sieva 'wife', Lat. cīvis 'citizen', Lith. šeimyna 'family', OE hām 'home', etc., all fr. IE kei-* 'lie' in Grk. κεῖμαι, etc., whence the notion of 'home, household' and also its master or mistress. Walde-P. 1.359. Walde-H. 1.224. Feist 253 f.

NHG gatte, whence fem. gattin, fr. MHG gate 'companion', here also Du. gade now used mostly for 'wife' : MLG gaden 'be suitable', OE gegada 'companion', tō gædere 'together', Goth. gadiligs 'cousin', etc. Walde-P. 1.531 ff. Weigand-H. 1.628. Franck-v. W. 172.

OHG gimahalo 'bridegroom, husband', gimahala, gimāla 'bride, wife', MHG gemahele masc. and fem., NHG gemahl, fem. gemahlin, fr. OHG mahal 'contract', esp. 'marriage contract' : Goth. maþl 'place of assembly, market', OE mæþel 'assembly, speech', etc. Walde-P. 2.304. Weigand-H. 1.671.

7. ChSl. sąprągŭ, fem. sąpręga (in Gospels 'yoke, pair', late 'spouse') with SCr., Russ. suprug, supruga, fr. cpd. of pręgą, pręšti 'yoke, harness'. Miklosich 262.

ChSl. mal(ŭ)žena, dual 'husband and wife', cpd. of žena 'wife', first part Gmc. (: OHG mahal, etc., above, 6) or malŭ 'little', as prefix of affection? Hence Boh. manžel, manželka, Pol. malżonek, malżonka, etc. Berneker 2.13.

Boh. chot' 'spouse', used for either 'husband' or 'wife' : ChSl. chotĭ 'lover, beloved', fr. chotěti 'wish'. Berneker 398 f.

8. Skt. bhartar- 'husband', bharyā- 'wife', lit. 'the sustainer' and 'the one sustained', fr. bhṛ- 'bear, carry' : Grk. φέρω 'bear', etc.

Skt. dāra- 'wife', etym. dub. Uhlenbeck 124.

Among words for 'marry' there is in part a distinction between 'take a wife' and 'take a husband'. This is indicated by the use of a and b, it being understood that where there is no such notation the words are used of either party. In several cases words that were originally used only of the one party have lost this restriction. The forms listed are those used of the parties themselves, not those (if distinguished) that are used for 'give in marriage' of the father or the one who performs the ceremony—hence Fr. se marier (avec), not marier, and similarly the reflexive forms in the other Romance languages and in Slavic.

Words for 'marry' (and 'marriage') are from such diverse sources as the following: 'husband', 'wife' (the verbs, at first at least, used only in sense a or b respectively), 'spouse'; 'union', 'pairing'; 'house', 'household', through the notion of establishing a family; various practices preceding or accompanying the marriage ceremony, as 'contract', 'oath', 'bargain', 'betrothal'; 'giving' (orig. of the father giving his daughter in marriage, hence mostly in sense b); 'leading' (the husband leading the bride, so orig. in sense a); 'following' (the bride following the husband, hence in sense b); 'taking the hand' (either husband taking the hand of the bride, hence sense a, or conversely, hence sense b); 'veiling' (of the bride, hence orig. in sense b); 'crowning' (orig. used of the one performing the ceremony, then in mid. or refl. 'get crowned', of either party).

1. Grk. γαμέω (a), γαμέομαι (b, but γαμέω also for either party, NT; in pop. NG 'coire'), beside γάμος 'marriage, wedding' : Grk. γαμβρός, Skt. jāmātar- 'son-in-law', etc. (2.63). Walde-P. 1.574.

NG παντρεύομαι (of either party; act. παντρεύω is 'give in marriage'), fr. Hellenistic Grk. ὕπανδρος γυνή 'woman under a man, married woman'.

NG νυμφεύομαι (formerly only a, now also b, as τὸν ἐνυμφεύθη), lit. 'take a bride', fr. νύμφη 'bride'.

NG στεφαν-ώνομαι, used with special reference to the ceremony, lit. 'be crowned' fr. στέφανος 'crown' (wreaths are placed on the head of the bride and groom). Hence the similar use of Rum. cununa (fr. sb. cunună, Lat. corōna 'crown') and other Balkan words. Puşcariu 448. Sandfeld, Ling. balk. 35.

NG παίρνω 'take' (11.13) is a common pop. expression for 'take in marriage, marry'.

2. Lat. dūcere uxōrem (a), lit. 'lead a wife', fr. dūcere 'lead' and uxor 'wife'.

Lat. nūbere (b; late also a) prob. orig. 'veil' : obnūbere 'veil', ChSl. snubiti 'woo', fr. sneubh-* beside sneudh-* in Av. snaoθa-, Lat. nūbēs 'cloud'. Hence cōnubium 'marriage', nupta 'bride', and nuptiae 'wedding' (> It. nozze, Fr. noces, Rum. nuntă; REW 5999). Meringer, Wört. u. Sach. 5.167 ff. Wackernagel, Kretschmer Festschrift 289 ff. Ernout-M. 683 f. Otherwise Walde-P. 2.697.

It. sposare, Fr. épouser, derivs. of the words for 'spouse', It. sposa, etc. (2.31).

It. maritarsi (mostly b), Fr. se marier (OFr. marier > ME mary, NE marry; sb. mariage > ME mariage, NE marriage), Sp. maridar (not common), Rum. se mărita (b), fr. Lat. marītāre 'give in marriage', deriv. of marītus 'husband' (2.31).

Sp. casarse, Rum. se căsători, derivs. (Rum. through căsător 'head of the house, husband') of casă 'house'. REW 1728. Puşcariu 305. Hence Rum. căsătorie 'marriage'.

Rum. se însura (a, dial. also b), with some forms in It. dialects, deriv. of Lat. uxor 'wife'. REW 9107. Puşcariu 874.

3. Ir. dobiur sēitchi (a), lit. 'bring a wife' (sētig, 2.32).

Ir. inbothigur (only OIr. 3 pl. subj. dep. inbothigetar, referring to women), cpd. of ind-, in- 'in' and both 'hut'. Cf. Sp. casarse, etc., above, 2. Pedersen 1.238.

NIr. pōsaim, like It. sposare, etc., deriv. of Lat. spōnsus 'betrothed, bridegroom', spōnsa 'bride' (2.31). Pedersen 1.208.

W. priodi, fr. priod 'spouse' (2.31).

Br. dimezi, that is, d-im-ezi (Corn. d-om-ethy) : W. dy-weddi 'betrothal', Ir. fedim 'lead', Lith. vedu, vesti 'lead, marry', Skt. vādhū- 'bride', etc. Walde-P. 1.255. Pedersen 2.301.

Br. eureuji, deriv. of eured 'wedding' (2.34).

4. Goth. liugan (a in act., b in pass), also liuga 'marriage : Ir. luge 'oath', etc. Walde-P. 2.415. Feist 333.

ON kvāngask (a), reflex. of kvānga 'make a man take a wife', fr. kvān 'wife' (2.32).

ON giptask (b), reflex. of gipta 'give a woman in marriage', hence orig. only of the woman 'given in marriage', later of either party, as Dan. gifte sig, Sw. gifta sig. For this specialization of 'give' cf. also Goth. fragifts in pl. 'betrothal, espousal', ON giptung 'marriage' (woman's), ON giptamāl, Dan. giftermaal, Sw. giftermål 'marriage' (of either party), cpd. with māl, etc. 'speech, agreement' (: OHG mahal 'contract' as in gimahalo 'spouse'), OE giftian in pass. 'be given in marriage' of the woman, gift 'marriage gift' (purchase of the bride), pl. gifta 'wedding', gifte 'dowry', NHG mitgift 'dowry', etc.

OE weddian (> ME, NE wed) 'engage, undertake', usually 'marry', orig. 'make a woman one's wife by giving a pledge or earnest money', then used of either party : OE wedd, Goth. wadi, Lat. vas, vadis 'pledge, surety', NHG wetten 'wager', etc. Walde-P. 1.216. NED s.v. wed.

OE wīfian (a) fr. wīf 'wife'.

ME mary, NE marry, fr. OFr. marier (above, 2), first used for 'give in marriage' or pass. 'be married', later also for 'take in marriage' and superseding wed, the latter being now only lit. or dial. NED s.v. marry.

Du. trouwen 'marry' fr. earlier 'betroth', this from 'trust' : NE trow, troth, trust, true, NHG trauen, Goth.

γνητός 'born' (: γίγνομαι, etc. cf. γνήσιος 'lawfully begotten, genuine') and κασι- of obscure orig.

3. Sp. hermano 'brother', hermana 'sister', fr. Lat. germānus, germāna (: germen 'sprout, germ') used with frater, soror and also alone for 'own, full brother, sister', more common than frater, soror in MLat. documents of Italy before A.D. 1000. Ernout-M. 417. Walde-H. 1.594. REW 3742. P. Aebischer, Z. rom. Ph. 57.211 f.

2.45. 'Sister'. 1. IE swesor-, prob. swe-sor-, cpd. of the refl. swe-*, the second part related to the rare Grk. ὄαρ 'wife', Av. hairiši- 'female', Lat. uxor 'wife' (2.32), and the fem. numeral forms like Skt. tisras 'three'. Walde-P. 2.533 f. Ernout-M. 958 f. Wackernagel, Altind. Gram. 3.349. Benveniste, BSL 35.1.104 f.

Here belong all the forms listed, except the Greek, Spanish, and Lettic; also Arm. k'oir, Toch. A ṣar, B ṣer; Grk. (only Hesych.) ἔορ 'daughter, cousin', ἔορες 'relatives'.

2. For the Grk., Sp., and NIr. words, see 2.44.

3. Lett. māsa : Lith. moša 'husband's sister', OPruss. moazo 'aunt' fr. mā- in pet names (above, p. 94).

2.452. Special expressions for 'brother(s) and sister(s)' are uncommon.

Grk. ἀδελφοί, Lat. frātrēs are sometimes so used, likewise Skt. du. bhrātarāu (according to Pāṇini), NG ἀδέλφια (pop. ἀδέρφια).

ON systkin, Dan. søskende, Sw. syskon, coll. deriv. of systir 'sister'. Falk-Torp 1236 (where are noted similar ON derivs. for other combinations, as 'father and son', 'mother and daughter', etc.). Hellquist 1139 f.

NHG geschwister, orig. pl. 'sisters', in present sense since 16th cent. Weigand-H. 1.702.

2.46, 2.47. 'Grandfather' and 'grandmother' may always be expressed more specifically as 'father's father' or 'mother's father', and 'father's mother' or 'mother's mother'; in some cases these are the usual expressions, as in Homer and in Old Norse and still in Swedish. Other terms are the words for 'father' and 'mother' with adjectives meaning 'great', 'old', or 'best', or in diminutive forms used as terms of endearment. Still others are pet names of the nursery type.

1. Hom. πατρὸς (μητρὸς) πατήρ, μητρὸς μήτηρ, also μητροπάτωρ, 'father's (mother's) father (mother).

Grk. πάππος (not in Hom.), NG pop. παπποῦς, pet name of the papa type (above, p. 94). Walde-P. 2.4.

Grk. τήθη, μάμμη ('mother', later 'grandmother'), also ἀννίς (Hesych. and inscr.), all pet names (above, p. 94).

NG γιαγιά, new pet name fr. infantile reduplicated για.

2. Lat. avus, fem. avia, late ava : ON afi 'grandfather' (late), Goth. awō 'grandmother' etc. Hence, mostly in dim. forms, It. avo, avolo, Fr. aïeul, aïeule, Sp. abuelo, abuela, of which only the Spanish are now the usual words. Walde-P. 1.20. Ernout-M. 96 f. REW 830, 839.

It. nonno, nonna, pet names of the nana type (above, p. 94). Walde-P. 2.317.

Fr. grand-père, grand'mère, cpds. with grand 'great', perh., but not necessarily, modeled on Lat. avunculus magnus

'great uncle', etc. Gamillscheg 482. This French type was the model of the Rum., ME, Du., and NHG forms.

Rum. tată (mamă) mare, with mare 'great', clearly after the French.

Rum. bunic, bunica, pet names fr. bun 'good'. Cf. NE goodwife, goody, Dan. bedstefar, etc. (below, 4).

3. Ir. senathir, senmāthir, NIr. seanathair, seanmhāthair, cpds. with sen 'old'.

W. taid, nain, pet names of the tata and nana types (above, p. 94).

Br. tadkoz, mammgoz, cpds. with koz 'old'.

4. Goth. awō 'grandmother', ON afi 'grandfather' : Lat. avus, etc., above, 2.

ON amma 'grandmother', pet name of the amma type (above, p. 94). Walde-P. 1.53.

ON fǫður-(mōður-)faðir(mōðir) 'father's (mother's) father (mother). Hence Sw. farfar, morfar, farmor, mormor.

Dan. bedstefar (-mor), cpds. with bedst 'best'. Cf. Du. bestevaar 'old man', bestemoer 'granny, Fr. beau-père 'father-in-law, stepfather', NE goodman, goodwife, goody, etc., all originating as polite or endearing terms.

OE ealdfæder (-mōdor), cpds. with eald 'old'.

ME grauntsire, grandame, fr. OFr. graunt sire, etc. are much earlier than the partly anglicized grandfather, grandmother. Cf. NED s.vv.

Du. grootvader (-moeder) and NHG grossvater (-mutter), modeled on the French.

OHG ano, ana, MHG ane (NHG ahne 'ancestor') : Lat. anus 'old woman', etc., pet names of the anna type (above, p. 94). Walde-P. 1.55.

5. Lith. senelis 'grandfather', fr. senas 'old', bobutė 'grandmother', dim. of boba 'old woman'. Also tėvukas dim. of tėvas 'father', and močiutė dim. of motė 'woman', orig. 'mother'.

Lett. vectēvs, vecmate, cpds. of vecs 'old' with words for 'father' and 'mother'.

6. ChSl. dědŭ 'grandfather', etc., all the Slavic forms, pet name of the dada type (above, p. 94).

ChSl. baba 'grandmother', etc., all the Slavic forms, pet name of the baba type (above, p. 94). Walde-P. 2.105.

7. Skt. pitāmaha- 'paternal grandfather', cpd. with mah- 'great', but of unusual formation. Hence pitāmahī- 'paternal grandmother', also mātāmaha- 'maternal grandfather', mātāmahī- 'maternal grandmother'. Delbrück, op. cit. 474.

Av. nyāka-, nyākā- 'grandfather, grandmother' (OPers. nyāka- 'grandfather', apa-nyāka- 'ancestor'), etym.? Delbrück, op. cit. 474.

2.48, 2.49. 'Grandson' and 'granddaughter' may always be expressed more specifically as 'son's (daughter's) son (daughter)'. Such are the usual ON, Dan., Sw., OE, Lith. (in part), and Lett. terms. Or simply 'child's child', as most commonly in Greek and so in Gothic. Some of the terms reflect an inherited IE word. Others are derivatives or phrases containing the words for 'son' or 'daughter'. A few are of the pet-name type.

1. IE nepōt-, fem. neptī-, prob. ne-pōt-*, cpd. of neg. ne and a form of the stem seen in Skt. pati- 'master', Lat. potis 'able', etc., that is lit. 'powerless'. Walde-P. 2.329 ff. Ernout-M. 666. Hermann, Gött. Nachr. 1918, 215.

Hence words for 'grandson, granddaughter', and also for 'nephew, niece' (2.53, 2.54). Lat. nepōs, neptis (in late Lat. also 'nephew, niece'; VLat. fem. nepta, neptia), It. nipote 'grandson, -daughter' and 'nephew, niece', Fr. neveu, nièce once used in both senses, now only 'nephew, niece' (> ME neveu, nece, NE nephew, niece, once used in both senses, cf. NED), Sp. nieto, nieta 'grandson, -daughter' (nieto new masc. formed to nieta fr. nepta*), Rum. nepot, nepoată in both senses (nepoată new fem. formed to nepot); Ir. nia, necht

'nephew, niece', W. nai, nith 'nephew, niece', OBr. nith 'niece', Br. niz, nizez 'nephew, niece'; ON nefi, nift 'nephew, niece', OE nefa, ME neve 'nephew', rarely 'grandson', OE nift, ME nyfte 'niece', Du. neef, nicht 'nephew, niece' (and 'cousin'), OHG nevo, nift, MHG neve, niftel mostly 'nephew, niece' but sometimes 'grandson, -daughter' (OHG nevo also 'uncle, cousin'), NHG neffe, nichte 'nephew, niece'; OLith. nepotis, neptė 'grandson, -daughter'; Skt. napāt- (also naptar- after pitar-, etc.) 'descendant' and 'grandson', Av. napāt-, OPers. napā 'grandson', Skt. naptī 'female descendant', Av. naptī 'granddaughter'. Also (fr. neptio-*) Av. naptya- 'descendant', Grk. ἀνεψιός 'cousin', late 'nephew'; ChSl. (late) netĭjĭ 'nephew', nestera 'niece', SCr. nećak 'sister's son', Boh. net' 'niece'.

2. Grk. παιδὸς παῖς 'child's child, grandson (ὁ) or granddaughter (ἡ)', most often in pl. παίδων παῖδες, Hom. and in inscriptions (cf. Cypr. τῶ(ν) παίδων οἱ παῖδες 'grandsons').

Grk. υἱωνός (Hom. +), deriv. of υἱός 'son'. Hence late υἱωνή 'granddaughter'.

Grk. υἱδοῦς 'son's son' (Plato +), θυγατριδοῦς 'daughter's son' (Hdt. +), dim. formations from υἱός 'son', θυγάτηρ 'daughter'. Hence υἱδῆ (late), θυγατριδῆ for 'son's daughter', 'daughter's daughter'.

Grk. ἔκγονος, ἔγγονος 'descendant' (: γίγνομαι 'be born', etc.), later ἔγγονος 'grandson', ἐγγόνη 'granddaughter', as reg. in NG.

3. Fr. petit-fils (13th cent.), lit. 'little son', whence the much later attested petite-fille, and, by imitation of these, Du. kleinzoon, kleindochter.

4. OIr. aue, MIr. ōa, ua 'grandson', also 'granddaughter' : Lat. avus 'grandfather', Goth. awō 'grandmother', etc. Walde-P. 1.20. Here also(?) W. wyr, fem. wyres, and Br. douaren (d-ouaren), fem. douarenez. Cf. Pedersen 1.56.

NIr. mac mic, inghean mic, lit. 'son's son, son's daughter' (mic gen. of mac).

NIr. mac inghine 'daughter's son', inghean inghine 'daughter's daughter'.

NIr. garmhac 'grandson', fr. MIr. gormac 'foster-son,' cpd. with prefix gor- (fr. Brittanic = Ir. for- : Grk. ὑπέρ, etc.), and mac 'son', as also in NIr. garathair 'great grandfather', etc. Hence also NIr. gairinghean 'granddaughter'. Pedersen 1.23.

5. Goth. (only attested form) barnē barna 'children's children'.

ON sonar-(dōttur-)sonr (dōttir) 'son's (daughter's) son (daughter)', likewise the still current Dan. and Sw. words.

OE suna(dohtor)sunu 'son's (daughter's) son', but the corresponding suna (dohtor)dohtor seem not to be quotable.

NE grandson, granddaughter, formed after the opposites grandfather, grandmother, as also grandniece after grandaunt, etc., grand- being thus extended to denote corresponding relations of descent as well as ascent, as likewise great- in great-grandson after great-grandfather, etc.

OHG eninchil, MHG enenkel, NHG enkel, dim. of OHG ano 'grandfather' (2.46). Hence new fem. enkelin. Walde-P. 1.55.

6. Lith. anukas 'grandson' (hence anukė 'granddaughter') fr. Ukr. onuk = ChSl. vŭnukŭ, etc. (below, 7). Brückner, Sl. Fremdwörter 68. Skardžius 29.

Lith. sūnaus (dukters) vaikas (duktė), Lett. dēla (meitas) dēls (meita) 'son's (daughter's) son (daughter)'.

7. ChSl. vŭnukŭ 'grandson', vŭnuka 'granddaughter', etc., all the Slavic forms, prob. (with vŭn fr. on) of the same pet-name type as OHG ano 'grandfather', etc. (above, p. 94). Brückner 628.

8. Skt. (beside nāpāt-) pāutra-, pāutrī, 'son's son', son's daughter', and dāuhitra-, dāuhitrī- 'daughter's son, daughter's daughter', derivs. of putra- 'son', duhitar- 'daughter'.

2.51, 2.52. There were originally separate expressions for the paternal and maternal uncle or aunt, distinguished in the table by a and b respectively. This situation still prevails in Irish, Danish, and Swedish (except for the encroachment of the borrowed NHG onkel and tante), Lettish, and partly in Slavic for 'uncle'. But the general tendency has been to give up the differentiation and use the same term for 'uncle', or 'aunt', on either side. These words are commonly used also to include 'uncle' or 'aunt' by marriage, that is 'uncle-in-law', etc. Specific expressions for such relation, as for 'father's brother's wife' in Slavic, are not included in the table.

Apart from such phrases as 'father's (mother's) brother (sister)', some of the terms are derivatives of words for 'father' or 'mother', while others are from various types of pet names.

1. Grk. πάτρως, Lat. patruus, OE fædera, OHG fetiro, MHG vetere (also 'nephew', NHG vetter 'cousin'), Skt. pitṛvya-, Av. tūirya- all meaning 'father's brother' and derivs. of the words for 'father'. Walde-P. 2.4.

2. Lat. mātertera, OE mōdrige, OHG muotera 'mother's sister', W. modryb, Br. moereb 'aunt' (Pedersen 1.48, 2.33), formed with various suffixes fr. the words for 'mother'. Walde-P. 2.229.

3. Lat. avunculus 'mother's brother', in VLat. extended at the expense of patruus, hence Fr. oncle (> ME, NE uncle, NHG onkel > Dan., Sw. onkel), Rum. unchiu; W. ewythr, Br. eontr (both with suffix as in Lat. māter-tera); OE ēam, ME, NE dial. eme, Du. oom, OHG ōheim, NHG oheim (the Gmc. forms in older period only for 'mother's brother'; cpds. with haima-* 'home'?); Lith. avynas (obs.), OPruss. awis, ChSl. ujĭ, etc. 'mother's brother'; all : Lat. avus 'grandfather', Goth. awō 'grandmother', etc. Walde-P. 1.20. Walde-H. 1.88.

4. Grk. μήτρως 'mother's brother', parallel formation to πάτρως (above, 1).

Grk. τηθίς 'aunt' : τήθη 'grandmother', Lith. dėdė 'uncle', etc., all of pet-name type (above, p. 94).

Grk. θεῖος 'uncle' (on either side), whence late θεία 'aunt', of the same pet-name type as the preceding. Hence NG θεῖος, θεία, or It. zio, zia, Sp. tio, tia. REW 8709.

5. Lat. amita 'father's sister', deriv. of pet name of the amma type (above, p. 94). Hence, with extension at the expense of mātertera, OFr. ante (> ME, NE aunt), Fr. tante (> Du., NHG., Dan. tante) with t variously explained, and with dim. suffix Rum. mătușă. Walde-P. 1.53. REW 424. Wartburg 1.89.

6. Ir. brāthir athar 'brother of the father', etc., with the corresponding NIr. phrases, all of obvious origin.

NIr. also athaireog 'father's sister', māithreān 'mother's sister', derivs. of athair 'father', māthair 'mother'.

W. ewythr, Br. eontr 'uncle', above, 3.

W. modryb, Br. moereb 'aunt', above, 2.

7. ON fǫðurbrōðir 'father's brother', etc. all phrases of obvious orig., whence the Dan., Sw. farbror, morbror, faster, moster.

OE fædera, OHG fetiro, etc., above, 1.

OE ēam, OHG ōheim, etc., above, 3.

OE faðu, OFris. fethe, MLG vade 'father's sister', fr. a shortened pet-name form of fæder 'father'. Walde-P. 2.4.

OE mōdrige, OHG muotera, above, 2.

OHG basa, MHG base 'father's sister' (NHG base 'aunt, cousin'), prob. of the nursery-word type. Weigand-H. 1.162 f.

OHG muoma, MHG muome 'mother's sister' (NHG muhme 'aunt, cousin'), pet name, blend of the first syllable of muotera (above, 2) with the mama type.

8. Lith. dėdė, Russ. djadja 'uncle' : ChSl. dědŭ 'grandfather', etc., pet-name type (above, p. 94).

Lith. teta, ChSl. teta, etc., general Slavic for 'aunt', pet-name type (above, p. 94). Walde-P. 1.704.

Lett. tēva brālis 'father's brother', etc., phrases of obvious orig., not replaced by simple words.

ChSl. stryjĭ, etc., general Slavic (except Russ.) for 'father's brother'; perh. (with a peculiar development of ptr-) : Skt. pitṛvya-, etc., above, 1. Mikkola, IF 23.124. M. Vey, BSL 32.65.

ChSl. ujĭ, etc. general Slavic (except Russ.) for 'mother's brother', above, 3.

From both the preceding words are formed feminines applied to the wife of the father's (mother's) brother, e.g. SCr. strina, ujna.

But of the two groups, Russ. stryj and vuj are obsolete, and, according to informants, Boh. strýc is often used for 'uncle' on either side (to the exclusion of ujec, unknown to some), and Pol. stryj, wuj are used in urban speech without the old distinction, which still prevails in the country.

9. Skt. pitṛvya-, Av. tūirya- (hence tūiryā- 'father's sister'), above, 1. Barth. 657.

Skt. mātur-bhrātar- is attested for 'mother's brother', for which the usual word is mātula, a dim. formation from mātar- 'mother'.

Skt. pitṛ-ṣvasar- 'father's sister', mātṛ-ṣvasar- 'mother's sister', both rare.

2.53, 2.54. 'Nephew' and 'niece' may be differentiated as the brother's or the sister's son or daughter. So regularly in the Lat., Dan., Sw., Lith., Lett., and Skt. phrases or compounds, and by separate derivatives partly in Lithuanian and Slavic.

Apart from the phrases or compounds meaning 'brother's son', etc., which are of obvious origin and need not be discussed further, the words either belong to the group IE nepōt-*, with interchange between 'grandson' and 'nephew', 'granddaughter' and 'niece', or are derivatives of words for 'brother' or 'sister' (or rarely from 'son'), or in a few cases are specialized from 'cousin, relative'.

1. IE nepōt-, fem. neptī-. The forms meaning 'nephew' and 'niece' have been included in the discussion under 2.48, 2.49. They cover most of the Romance, Celtic, and Gmc. forms and a few of the Slavic.

2. Grk. ἀδελφιδοῦς, dim. of ἀδελφός 'brother', but not restricted to 'brother's son'. Hence fem. ἀδελφιδῆ.

Byz., NG ἀνεψιός, ἀνεψιά (NG also ἀνιψιός, -ά), with shift from earlier 'cousin' (2.55).

3. Sp. sobrino, sobrina, fr. Lat. sobrīnus, -a 'cousin' (2.55).

4. NIr. garmhac 'grandson' and 'nephew'. Cf. 2.48.

5. OE suhterga, suhtriga 'brother's son', etym.? Walde-P. 2.470.

6. Lith. brolėnas 'brother's son' (also 'cousin'), deriv. of brolis 'brother'.

Lith. seserėnas 'sister's son', deriv. of sesuo 'sister'.

Lith. seseryčia 'sister's daughter', deriv. of sesuo 'sister'.

ChSl. (late) synovĭ, synovĭcĭ, fem. synovica, dim. of synŭ 'son', and orig. used for 'nephew' on either side, as still Boh. synovec. But SCr. sinovac, fem. sinovica, Pol. synowiec, fem. synowica used only for brother's son or daughter.

SCr. bratanec, Pol. bratanek, Russ. (obs.) bratanič, Boh. bratranec (also 'cousin'), bratrovec 'brother's son', with fem. SCr., Pol. bratanica, Boh. bratovna, etc. 'brother's daughter' (most of these not in common use), derivs. of brat(r)ŭ 'brother'. Berneker 82.

Pol. siostrzeniec 'sister's son', siostrzenica 'sister's daughter', derivs. of siostra 'sister'. Similar Boh. sestřenec, fem. sestřenice used also for 'cousin'.

Russ. plemjannik 'nephew', plemjannica 'niece', derivs. of plemja 'clan, family' (19.23), hence orig. 'relative'.

7. Skt. bhrātrīya- 'brother's son' (Pāṇini), svasrīya- 'sister's son', svasrīyā- 'sister's daughter', derivs. of bhrātar 'brother', svasar- 'sister'.

Skt. bhrātṛvya- 'brother's son' (but also 'cousin'), Av. brātruya-, brātruyā- 'brother's son, brother's daughter', derivs. of words for 'brother,' with suffix as in Skt. pitṛvya-'father's brother', etc. (2.51). Wackernagel, Andreas Festschrift 1 f.

'Cousin' is understood here in the stricter and usual current sense of NE cousin, namely as 'first cousin, cousin-german'. Even so, it covers eight more specific varieties of relationship, there being three pairs of variable factors, that is, 'father's (or mother's) brother's (or sister's) son (or daughter)'.

Many of the expressions listed are specific terms for just one of these relations, as OE fæderan sunu 'father's brother's son', mōdrigan sunu 'mother's sister's son', etc. So the Ir., ON, OE, OHG, Skt., and most of the Slavic terms. These are phrases, compounds, or derivatives containing words for 'son, daughter' (2.41, 2.42), 'brother, sister' (2.44, 2.45), and the more specific terms for 'uncle, aunt' (2.51, 2.52); and their literal meaning and application are mostly too obvious to require further comment.

But those containing words for 'brother' or 'sister' have arisen in two ways. Some denote the relationship through the brother or sister of one's parent. Others reflect an early direct association between 'brother, sister', and 'cousin' as a 'kind of brother or sister'. So Lat. patruēlis started as frāter patruēlis (frater tuus erat frater patruelis meus, Plautus), Lith. pusbrolis is literally 'half-brother', SCr. brat od strica, not like OE fæderan sunu 'son of father's brother', but literally 'brother from father's brother', Russ. dvojurodnyj brat lit. 'second line brother', etc. This extension of 'brother' and 'sister' is conspicuous in Balto-

Slavic, but may also be observed elsewhere.

Some of the other terms, as Lat. consobrīnus, must, according to their etymology, once have had only a specific application, but came to be used without such restriction.

The cousin relationship is one of the fourth degree, reckoned through the common ancestor. Cf. Gaius, Dig. 38. 10.1.6 quarto gradu [cognationis sunt] consobrini, consobrinaeque. This is reflected in NIr. col ceathar (lit. 'relationship four').

A few of the words represent an extension or shift from 'nephew', one's father's 'nephew' being one's own 'cousin'.

1. Grk. ἀνεψιός, ἀνεψιά 'cousin', later 'nephew, niece' (2.53, 2.54), cpd. (with cop. ἁ- fr. ἁ-) : Lat. nepōs, Skt. napāt- 'grandson', etc. (2.47). Walde-P. 2.329 ff.

Grk. (Hellenistic) ἐξάδελφος 'nephew' (LXX, Josephus) and 'cousin' (pop.; reproved by Phrynicus), also fem. ἐξαδέλφη (inscr.), hence the NG forms. A phrase-compound fr. ἐξ ἀδελφοῦ, hence orig. 'nephew', then with shift to 'cousin', as in NHG vetter, etc.

2. Lat. patruēlis, deriv. of patruus 'father's brother' (2.51), hence reg. 'father's brother's son or daughter' (rarely also 'father's sister's son').

Lat. mātruēlis formed as a pendant to patruēlis, and amitinus, fr. amita 'father's sister' (2.52), are late and rare.

Lat. consobrīnus, fem. consobrīna (also sobrīnus, sobrīna), fr. con-swesrīno-*, deriv. of soror 'sister', and prob. first used in pl. consobrīnī 'fellow descendants of sisters'. In legal language applied to cousin on the mother's side, as contrasted with patruēlis, but in common usage extended to cousin on either side.

Hence It. cugino, cugina, Fr. cousin, cousine (>ME cosyn, NE cousin, Dan. kusine, Sw. kusin, NHG cousine, Pol. kuzyn, kuzyna). REW 2165.

Sp. primo, prima 'first' (Lat. prīmus) and 'cousin', latter prob. fr. phrase with sobrino, sobrina when these were still 'cousin' (above, 2). But cf. Tappolet, op. cit. 119.

Rum. văr, vară, fr. Lat. vērus 'true', orig. cusurin văr 'true cousin' (still dial. cusurin ver). Hence also, in more familiar use, dim. verişor, verişoară. Puşcariu 1856.

3. NIr. col ceathar, lit. 'relationship four', that is, reckoned from a common ancestor, 'first cousin', as col seisear lit. 'relationship six' is 'second cousin'.

W. cefnder, fem. cyfnither, Br. kenderf, fem. keniterv, OBr. comnidder, prob. fr. com-nepter-, similar to Grk. ἀνεψιός but with suffix after other words of relationship. Henry 61. Loth, Vocab. vieux-breton 80. But last part at least influenced by a derw- 'true' (=Ir. dearbh- in dearbhrāthair, etc.) and so derived by Morris Jones 224.

4. Goth. gadilligs : OE gædeling 'companion', tō gædere 'together', MHG gate 'companion' (NHG gatte 'husband'), etc. Walde-P. 1.531 ff. Feist 178 f.

ON bræðrungr, systrungr, with fems., cpds. of brōðir 'brother' and systir 'sister' with ungr 'young', hence '(father's) brother's son', '(mother's) sister's son'.

Dan. søskende barn, Sw. syskon barn, cpds. of the words for 'brothers and sisters' (2.452) and 'child'.

NHG vetter (>Dan. fætter), fr. OHG fetiro 'uncle' (2.51), MHG vetere 'uncle, nephew'.

Du. neef, nicht, same words as for 'nephew, niece', earlier also 'grandson, granddaughter' (2.48, 2.49).

NHG base, muhme 'aunt' (2.52), sometimes used also for 'female cousin', but usually cousine fr. French (above, 2).

5. Lith. pusbrolis, pusseserė lit. 'half-brother, half-sister' and also used in that sense, cpds. of pus- 'half' and the words for 'brother' and 'sister'.

Lith. brolėnas, Lett. brālēns 'nephew' and 'cousin', derivs. of word for 'brother'. Mühl-Endz. 1.328.

Lett. māsica 'sister-in-law' and 'cousin', deriv. of māsa 'sister' (2.45).

ChSl. bratu-čędŭ, in Supr. 'nephew' and 'cousin', SCr. bratučed, fem. bratučeda 'cousin', cpd. of bratŭ 'brother' (bratu gen.-loc. dual, Vondrák 1.675) and čędo 'child'.

ChSl. sestričištĭ (late), deriv. of sestra 'sister'.

SCr. brat (sestra) od strica (od ujaka), etc., lit. 'brother (sister) from the father's brother (mother's brother)', etc., similarly Pol. brat stryjeczny (wujeczny), etc., with the various words for 'uncle' and 'aunt' (2.51, 2.52), seen also in the obs. Boh. strycovec, ujcovec, etc.

Boh. bratranec, also and orig. 'brother's son' like Pol. bratanek, etc. (2.53).

Boh. sestřenice, also and orig. 'sister's daughter' like Pol. siostrzenie (2.53). The masc. sestřenec in less common use.

Russ. dvojurodnyj brat, dvojurodnaja sestra, the adj. being a cpd. of coll. dvoje 'two' with rodnyj 'own' fr. rod 'family', so a sort of 'second-line brother'.

6. Skt. bhrātṛvya-, orig. 'brother's son (2.53).

Skt. pitṛṣvasrīya-, etc. patronymics fr. cpds. meaning 'father's sister', etc.

Av. tūiryō.puϑra, tūirya.duγδar, cpds. of tūirya- 'father's brother' (2.51) and words for 'son and daughter'.

Words for 'ancestors' are from such obvious sources as 'born before', 'going before, predecessors', 'elders', 'fathers', 'grandfathers', 'fore-fathers', 'fore-parents', 'old-fathers'.

1. Grk. πρόγονοι lit. 'of previous birth'. Also προπάτορες 'forefathers'. Also sometimes simply πατέρες 'fathers', as likewise Lat. patrēs, Fr. pères, NE fathers, etc.

2. Lat. maiōrēs lit. 'elders', comp. of magnus 'great', but in the secondary sense of maior (nātū) 'greater by birth, older'.

It. antenati lit. 'born before', fr. Lat. ante 'before' and nātus 'born'.

It. avi, pl. of avo, Lat. avus 'grandfather' (2.49).

OFr. ancestres (>ME ancestres, NE ancestors), Sp. antecesores, fr. Lat. antecessōrēs 'those going before' (fr. antecēdere 'go before'), 'predecessors' (as in office, not 'ancestors').

Fr. aïeux, Sp. abuelos, orig. 'grandparents', fr. dim. of Lat. avus 'grandfather' (2.46).

Sp. antepasados, lit. 'those who have passed before'.

Rum. stramoşi, cpd. of strengthening prefix stra- (fr. Lat. extra 'beyond') and moş 'grandfather' or 'ancestor', fr. Alb. moš 'age, old man'. Tiktin 1010, 1508. Also G. Meyer, Alb. Etym. Wtb. 263. Also strabuni, with bun 'good' as in bunic 'grandfather' (2.46).

3. Ir. senaithir, pl. of senathair 'grandfather' (2.46).

Ir. sruithi sometimes 'ancestors' (Thes. 1.51.27, 2.97.31), pl. of sruith 'old, venerable, wise', prob. : ChSl. starŭ 'old' (14.15). Pedersen 1.81.

NIr. sinnsir, fr. MIr. sinser 'older, eldest', fr. sen 'old' (14.15) with suffix -is-tero-, as in Lat. magister. Pedersen 2.44.

W. cyndadau, cpd. of cyn 'before' and dad 'father'.

Br. gourdadou, cpd. of prefix gour- denoting superiority, etc. and dad 'father'.

4. Goth. fadreina 'parents' (2.37) also used for 'ancestors'.

ON forfeðr, Dan. forfædre, Sw. förfäder, ME forfadres, NE forefathers, Du. voorvaderen, all lit. 'fore-fathers'.

OE ealdfæderas, pl. of ealdfæder 'grandfather', lit. 'old-father' (2.46).

Du. voorouderen, MHG voraltern, NHG vorältern, lit. 'fore-elders, fore-parents', cpds. of the words used for parents (2.37).

OHG altmāgā, cpd. of alt 'old' and māgā 'relatives' (2.58).

OHG (alt)fordoron, MHG (alt)vorderen, fr. OHG fordoro, MHG vorder 'former', formed like Grk. πρότερος 'former'.

NHG ahnen, fr. OHG ano, MHG ane 'grandfather' (2.46).

NHG vorfahren lit. 'fore-goers' and formerly only 'predecessors' (as MHG vorvaren), with late specialization to 'ancestors', parallel to that of Lat. antecessōrēs to OFr. ancestres, etc. (above, 2).

5. Lith. sentėviai, lit. 'old-fathers' and pratėviai lit. 'fore-fathers', cpds. of tėvas 'father' with senas 'old' and pra- 'fore'. Also simple tėvai formerly so used, and Lett. tēvi. Also Lith. tėvų tėvai (Kurschat), Lett. tēvu tēvi 'fathers of fathers' (Mühl.-Endz. 4.178).

Lett. senči, fr. sens 'old'.

6. SCr. predci, Boh. předkové, Pol. przodkowie, Russ. predki, all derivs. of the word for 'before', ChSl. prědŭ, etc.

7. Skt. pitaras 'fathers' regularly used for 'ancestors'.

OPers. apa-nyāka- (sg.) cpd. of apa 'from' and nyāka- 'grandfather' (2.46), like Lat. ab-avus 'grandfather'.

Words for 'descendants' are from such obvious sources as 'born from', 'coming from', 'coming after', 'those after'.

1. Grk. ἔκγονοι, ἀπόγονοι lit 'having birth from'.

2. Lat. prōgeniēs lit. 'a bringing forth' (cf. prōgignere 'bring forth'), hence 'offspring, progeny', used as coll. for 'descendants'.

Lat. posterī (>It. posteri), pl. of posterus 'coming after', deriv. of post 'after'. Hence also sb. posteritās > Fr. postérité > ME posterite, NE posterity.

It. descendenti, Fr. descendants (> NE descendants), Sp. descendientes, Rum. descendenţi, fr. pple. of Lat. dēscendere 'come down, descend'.

Rum. coborîtori, fr. cobori 'descend' (this of Slavic orig., Tiktin 379).

3. Ir. iartage, sg. coll., cpd. of iar 'after' and taig- 'come', this fr. to-tiag-, cpd. of tiagu 'go' (Pedersen 2.645). Hence like NHG nachkommen.

Ir. aui, pl. of aue 'grandfather' (2.46) also used for 'descendants'.

NIr. sliocht 'race, family', also 'offspring, descendants', same word as MIr. slicht, sliocht 'trace, track'. Walde-P. 2.706.

W. disgynnyddion, Br. diskennidi, fr. disgyn, diskenn 'descend' (fr. Lat. dēscendere).

4. ON afspringr, OE ofspring, ME, NE offspring, sg. coll., cpd. of af-, of- 'from' and 'spring', hence 'that which springs from'.

Sw. ättlingar, fr. ätt 'family' in wide sense (19.23).

Dan. efterkommere, Sw. avkomlingar, Du. nakomelingen (also af-), OHG aftarkumft (sg. coll.), MHG afterkunft, afterkomen and nachkunft, nachkomen, NHG abkömmlinge, nachkommen, all cpds. of words for 'after' or 'from', and 'come'.

5. Lith. ainiai (NSB, Lalis; not in Kurschat, who has vaikų vaikai 'children of children'), also coll. ainybė (NSB), neologisms based on eiti, pres. einu (dial. ainu) 'go, come' (Senn in private letter; ainei coined in 1885).

Lett. pēcnācēji, pēcnākami, fr. adv. pēc 'later'. Mühl.-Endz. 3.205.

6. SCr., Boh. potomci, Pol. potomkowie, Russ. potomki, all fr. adv. potom 'afterward' (ChSl. po tomi 'after this').

7. Skt. prajā-, Av. frazainti-, both sg. coll., fr. Skt. pra-jan- 'bring forth, be born', Av. fra-zan-, like Lat. prōgeniēs.

Skt. tana-, tanas- (RV), fr. tan- 'stretch', as 'what stretches on, continuation'.

Av. naptyaēšū (loc. pl.) : napāt- 'grandson' (2.46). Barth. 1040.

2.61–2.66. As stated above (p. 93), there is a group of inherited IE words originally denoting only the relations between the wife and her husband's family, while terms for the relations between the husband and his wife's relatives are of later origin. All these will be discussed under the several heads. But to a considerable extent these have been replaced by a word denoting simply 'relative by marriage' or, mostly, by a series of phrases or compounds with a common element, analogous in effect to NE -in-law. These it is more convenient to discuss here.

1. Fr. beau-père, belle-mère, etc., with beau 'beautiful', are simply polite phrases, like beau-sire, bel-ami, etc., that were specialized (in 16th cent.) to 'father-in-law', etc. or 'stepfather', etc. In the former sense they are imitated in Br. tad-kaer, mamm-gaer, etc. (kaer 'beau'), and Du. schoonvader, etc. (schoon = NHG schön). Cf. also Sc. good-father, etc. (NED s.v. good D 2.b).

2. ME fadyr in lawe, etc. (from 14th cent. brother in lawe quotable from c. 1300; cf. also frere en loi in parliamentary records of 1386, Rot. Parl. III.216b) but Wyclif's Bible has hosebondis modir, etc.), NE father-in-law, etc. (formerly used also for 'stepfather', etc.), that is, father in the Canon Law as contrasted to father by blood. Cf. NED s.v. brother-in-law. Imitated in W. tad yng nghyfraith, etc. (cyfraith 'law'), which have replaced the old words chwegrwn, chwegr, etc. in common use.

3. NHG schwiegervater, etc. started from schwiegermutter, an expansion of MHG swiger 'mother-in-law', an inherited form (2.62). Hence the first part of trauan 'trust', etc. Falk-Torp 1285. Walde-P. 1.805.

OE hīwian (rare), Du. huwen (whence huwelijk 'marriage'), OHG hīwan, MHG hīwen, deriv. of old words for 'husband, wife', OHG hīwo, hīwa, etc. (2.31).

MHG hīrāten, NHG heiraten, sich (ver)heiraten, new vb. fr. OHG, MHG hīrāt 'marriage', a cpd. of the preceding hīwan with rāt 'arrangement', etc., like OE hīrēd 'household, family'.

5. Lith. vedu, vesti 'lead' and 'marry' (orig. and still mostly a, but also b), also apsivesti (cf. Tauta ir Žodis 5.656) : ChSl. vedą vesti 'lead', Ir. fedim 'lead', Skt. vādhū- 'bride', etc. Walde-P. 1.255. Hence sbs. (ap-si-)vedimas 'marriage', vestuvės 'wedding'.

Lith. (iš)tekėti už vyro (b), lit. 'run after a man', similarly Lett. iet pie vīra, are modeled on the Pol. and Russ. phrase, below, 6. Hence Lith. sb. ištekėjimas 'marriage' (woman's).

Lett. precēt, orig. 'bargain', deriv. of prece 'wares'. Hence precēšanās 'marriage'. Mühl.-Endz. 3.384.

6. ChSl. (o)ženiti sę (a), etc., general Slavic, deriv. of žena 'wife' (2.32). Hence sb. SCr. ženidba, Boh. ženitba, Russ. ženitba 'marriage' (man's).

ChSl. posagati (b), also posagŭ 'wedding', ORuss. posjagat' : ChSl. sęgnąti 'stretch out' (the hand). Refers to the bride's reaching out for the hand of the bridegroom at the wedding ceremony. Cf. Skt. pāṇi-graha- 'marriage', lit. 'grasping the hand' (of the bride in this case). Brückner, KZ 45.318 ff. Walde-P. 2.482 ff.

SCr. udati se, Boh. vdáti se (both b) : ChSl. vŭ-dati, etc. 'give', hence 'give a woman in marriage' and reflex. 'be given in marriage', like ON giftask, above, 4. Hence sb. SCr. udaja, Boh. vdaj, vdavky (pl.) 'marriage' (woman's).

Pol. iść za mąż, Russ. vyiti (or vydti) za muž (both b), lit. 'go after a man (husband)', that is, follow him. Brückner, KZ 45.319. Hence sb. Russ. zamužestvo 'marriage' (woman's).

7. Skt. vah- 'lead, bring' and 'marry' (orig. a, like Lat. dūcere uxōrem, Lith. vedu, but also b already in Rigveda), vivāha- 'marriage', Av. vaz- (once as 'marry' a) : Lat. vehere 'carry', etc. Walde-P. 1.249.

Av. upa-vad- (in caus. form) 'give in marriage' : Skt. vādhū- 'bride', Lith. vedu, etc. (above, 5). Barth. 1343.

Skt. pari-ṇī-, lit. 'lead (the bride) around (the fire)', hence 'take a wife', fr. nī- 'lead'.

Skt. pari-grah- 'seize, take a wife', fr. grah- 'seize.'

Of the words entered, the majority, like NE marriage, cover both the state and the act of marriage (marriage as an institution, or the marriage took place). A few are used only for the married state, as Lat. mātrimōnium, NHG ehe. Many words are used only for the ceremony, as NE wedding in its present usage. Such words are added, but separated by a semicolon.

In some cases there are distinct words for 'taking a wife' and 'taking a husband', corresponding to the distinctive verbs (2.33). These are similarly indicated by a and b.

Most of the words for 'marriage' are obvious cognates (derivs. or in some cases the source) of the verbs for 'marry' and have been noted in the discussion of the latter (2.33). But a few, and many of the special words for the wedding ceremony, are of different origin.

1. Lat. coniugium, lit. 'union', fr. coniungere 'join'. Cf. coniu(n)x 'spouse' (2.31).

Lat. cōnubium, the usual legal term for 'marriage', and nuptial 'wedding' (> It. nozze, etc.), see under nūbere (2.33).

Lat. mātrimōnium (>It., Sp. matrimonio), fr. māter 'mother', and orig. referring to the woman's lawful motherhood, married status, as opposed to concubinage.

Sp. boda(s), 'wedding', fr. Lat. vōta 'vows'. REW 9458.

2. Ir. lānamnas, deriv. of lānamain 'married couple', deriv. of lān 'full'. Pedersen 2.62. Stokes 293 (as cpd.).

W. neithior 'wedding', fr. Lat. nuptiālia. Pedersen 1.236. Loth, Mots lat. 190.

Br. eured 'wedding', fr. Lat. ōrātio 'prayer'. Pedersen 1.203. Cf. Sp. bodas, above.

3. ON brūðkaup 'wedding', cpd. of brūð 'bride' and kaupa 'buy', referring to the gifts made to the bride, and reflecting the older custom of purchasing a wife. Schrader, Reallex. s.v. Brautkauf.

ON brūðlaup, brullaup, Dan. bryllop, Sw. bröllop, OE brȳdhlōp, OHG, MHG brūtlouft, Du. bruiloft 'wedding', cpd. of brūð, etc. 'bride' and laupa, etc. 'run', referring to the ceremonial fetching of the bride, this ultimately reflecting a primitive chase or robbery of the bride.

Schrader, Reallex. s.v. Raubehe. Falk-Torp 109.

OE, beside usual weddung, rarely wedlāc 'pledge' and 'espousals', whence ME wedlok, NE wedlock, fr. wedd 'pledge' with suffix -lāc, orig. same as lāc 'gift, etc.'. NED s.v. wedlock.

OE sinscipe, cpd. of sin- 'everlasting' and scipe 'condition', hence lit. 'permanent state'. Cf. sinhīwan 'married couple'.

OE ǣw, OHG ēwa 'law' (21.12) and 'lawful married state', MHG ē(we), NHG ehe, Du. echt (MLG echt > Dan. ægte, Sw. äkta). Falk-Torp 183. Weigand-H. 1.405 f.

MHG hōhzīt, lit. the 'high time', used of festivals like Christmas, Easter, also of the 'marriage festival', as NHG hochzeit. Weigand-H. 1.875. Sperber, Einleitung 42.

4. Lith. svodba (formerly usual word for 'wedding'), fr. Russ. svad'ba (below, 5).

Lett. laulība 'betrothal, marriage', fr. laulāt 'betroth', this from Esth. (or Liv.) loul 'song, betrothal song' (Finn. laulaa 'sing'). Mühl.-Endz. 2.428.

Lett. kāzas 'wedding', fr. Esth. kāza 'husband'. Mühl.-Endz. 2.206.

5. ChSl. brakŭ (in the Gospels always of the marriage at Cana, the 'wedding', but there is no opportunity for any other use), SCr., Russ. brak, prob. fr. berą, brati 'take', IE bher-* 'bear'), orig. 'taking the bride', like 'lead the bride, marry' in Lith. vesti, etc. Berneker 81.

ChSl. malŭženĭstvo (late), Boh. manželství, Pol. malženstwo : ChSl. malŭzena 'married couple', Boh. manžel 'husband', etc. (2.31).

Boh. sňatek, orig. 'union' : sníti OBoh. snieti, pple. sňat, ChSl. sŭnęti 'take down, take together', cpd. of sŭ 'with' and jęti 'take'. Gebauer 1.381. Berneker 429.

Pol. ślub 'vow' (= Boh. slib 'vow'), hence also 'betrothal' and 'marriage' : poślubić 'betroth', cpd. of lubić 'like, love'. Hence OLith. salubas, OPruss. acc. sg. salūban 'marriage'. Berneker 757 f. Brückner 531.

Russ. supružestvo, fr. suprug 'spouse' (2.31).

SCr. svadba, Boh. svatba, Russ. svad'ba 'wedding', deriv. of ChSl. svatĭ 'kinsman' (: possessive svojĭ), then 'one who promotes the marriage, matchmaker', as Russ. svat, Pol. swat, etc. Miklosich 332.

Pol. wesele 'wedding', formerly 'merriment' : ChSl. veselĭje 'merriment' veselŭ 'merry' (16.22). Brückner 607.

6. Skt., beside vivāha-, etc. fr. vah- 'marry', also patitva- 'husbandhood', janitva- 'wifehood', also pāṇi-graha- lit. 'grasping the hand' (of the bride), pariṇaya- (cf. pari-ṇī- 2.33), etc.

Av. nāiriθwana-, lit. 'wifehood', fr. nāiri- 'wife'.

2.35. 'Father'. 1. IE pətér-*, prob. starting fr. a nursery word of the pa type (above, p. 94) orig. pā, reduced to pə before the accent. Walde-P. 2.4. Here belong the Grk., Lat., Ir., Gmc., and Indo-Iranian words, also Arm. hair, and Toch. A pācar, B pācer. In Balto-Slavic it is completely replaced.

2. Nursery words that have become the usual terms. Type baba (above, p. 94) in It. babbo, now a serious rival of padre.

Type atta, tata (above, p. 94) in Rum. tată, W., Br. tad, Goth. atta (so reg., vs. fadar once and here not of earthly father), Lith. tėvas, Lett. tēvs, OPruss. taws, ChSl. otĭcĭ, etc. (all the Balto-Slavic forms), Hitt. attas.

2.36. 'Mother'. 1. IE mā́ter-*, prob. starting fr. a nursery word of the ma type. Walde-P. 2.229. Here belong the Grk., Lat., Ir., Gmc. (except Goth aiþei), Balto-Slavic, and Indo-Iranian forms, also Arm. mair, and Toch. A mācar, B mācer. But Lith. motė became 'woman', and as 'mother' was replaced by the deriv. motyna.

2. Nursery words that have become the usual terms. Type mama (above, p. 94, Walde-P. 2.221) in It. mamma a serious rival of madre, and W., Br. mam.

Goth. aiþei, prob. new fem. formed fr. some nursery word similar to, though not identical with, atta 'father'. Feist 28.

2.37. Words for 'parents' are fr. verbs for 'beget' or 'bear' (4.71, 72); fr. words for 'old'; or are pl. or du. forms (the latter, of course, more orig.), or derivs., of words for 'father', or rarely 'mother'.

1. Grk. τοκεῖς (so reg. Hom.), or aor. pple. τεκόντες : τίκτω 'beget, bear' (4.71).

Grk., NG γονεῖς : γίγνομαι 'be born', γεννάω 'beget, bear' (4.71).

2. Lat. parentēs (also 'ancestors', late also 'relatives'), pres. pple. of par- in parere 'bear, beget' (4.72). Hence Rum. părinţĭ 'parents', Fr. parents formerly 'parents' and 'relatives' (> ME parentes, NE parents), now 'relatives' (as 'parents' replaced by père et mère), as also It. parenti, Sp. parientes. REW 6233.

Lat. patrēs (as also Grk. πατέρες) was commonly used for 'forefathers' and occasionally in late times for 'parents'. Hence Sp. padres.

Lat. genitor 'begetter, father' : gignere 'beget', etc. Hence It. genitori.

3. Ir. tuistidi, NIr. tuismhightheoiri : Ir. do-fuismim 'beget, bear' (4.71).

W. rhieni (formerly also 'ancestors'), cpd. rhi-eni : geni 'be born', Lat. gignere, etc., formed like Grk. πρόγονοι 'ancestors'. Pedersen 2.533.

Br. tad ha mam, after Fr. père et mère.

4. Goth. bērusjōs, orig. a nom. pl. fem. perf. act. pple. of bairan 'bear'. For the fem., cf. Skt. matārāu, below. Feist 87 f.

Goth. fadrein 'family' and 'parents', sg. coll. (also pl. fadreina), deriv. of fadar 'father'.

ON feðgin, deriv. of faðir 'father'.

Dan. forældre, Sw. föräldrar (in the older language 'forefathers'), OE ealdras, Du. ouders, OHG altiron, NHG eltern, all fr. the Gmc. forms for 'older'.

5. Lith. tėvai, pl. of tėvas 'father'.

Lith. gimdytojai : gimdyti 'bear, beget' (4.71).

Lett. vecaki, fr. vecs 'old' (influence of NHG eltern prob.).

ChSl. roditeli, etc. (all the Slavic words) : roditi 'beget, bear' (4.71).

6. Skt. pitarāu, Av. pitarə (once, Barth. 905), Skt. mātarāu, both elliptical duals of pitar- 'father' or mātar- 'mother', also copulative dual Skt. mātarāpitarā.

2.41, 2.42. Most of the words for 'son' and 'daughter' are inherited from the parent speech. But in part these have been replaced. The words for 'boy' and 'girl' (2.25, 2.26) are also naturally used from the parents' point of view for 'son' and 'daughter'. In a few of these cases the latter is the original sense indicated by the etymology. Even in languages where the old distinctive terms remain, the words for 'boy' and 'girl' may be common in colloquial use. In some Greek dialects we find even in legal terminology παῖς and κόρη in place of υἱός and θυγάτηρ. NG κόρη is more commonly used than θυγατέρα.

2.41. 'Son'. 1. IE sŭnu-* and suyu-*(?), fr. the root of Skt. sū- 'bear', and orig. an abstract 'birth, offspring', then specialized to 'son'. Walde-P. 2.469. Feist 460 f. Here belong Goth. sunus, etc., all the Gmc. forms; Lith. sūnus, OPruss. souns, ChSl. synŭ, etc., all the Slavic forms; Skt. sūnu-, Av. hunu (but the latter only of evil beings, in contrast to puθra-); Grk. υἱύς, υἱός; Toch. A se gen. sg. seyo, nom. pl. sewāñ (SSS 159), B soy, gen. sg. seyi.

2. Lat. fīlius (> It. figlio, figliolo, Fr. fils, Sp. hijo, Rum. fiu), together with fem. fīlia 'daughter' (> It. figlia, figliola, Fr. fille, Sp. hija; Rum. fie arch., now dim. fĭică), orig. 'suckling', fr. the root of Lat. fēlāre 'suck' (cf. Umbr. sif filiu 'suckling pigs'), Skt. dhayati 'sucks', etc., IE dhēi-*. Cf. ChSl. děti 'child' (2.27), Lett. dēls 'son'. Walde-P. 1.829 ff. Ernout-M. 359. Walde-H. 1.496.

Lat. nātus, pple. cf. nāsci 'be born', freq. for fīlius.

3. Ir. macc (also 'boy'), NIr. mac, W., Br. mab, etym. dub., perh. as orig. 'boy' : Ir. magu, mug 'slave', Goth. magus 'boy', etc. (2.25). Pokorny, KZ 45.363.

4. Lett. dēls, fr. the same root as Lat. fīlius, above, 2.

5. Skt. putra-, very common beside sūnu-, Av. puθra-, OPers. puθ͏ʳa-, the reg. Iran. word : Osc. puklum 'filium' Pael. puclois 'pueris', Lat. puer 'boy', Grk. παῖς, etc. (2.25). Walde-P. 2.75 ff.

2.42. 'Daughter'. 1. IE dhugh(ə)ter*, root connection obscure. The root agrees in form with that of Skt. duh- 'milk' and with that of Grk. τεύχω 'fashion, make'. But in neither case is there a convincing semantic explanation. Walde-P. 1.868. Here belong Grk. θυγάτηρ; Goth. dauhtar, etc., all the Gmc. words; Lith. duktė, OPruss. duckti, ChSl. dŭšti, etc., all the Slavic words (partly with added suffixes and phonetic changes that disguise the orig.); Skt. duhitar-, Av. dugədar-, duγδar- (OPers. form not yet quotable, but represented by Elam. dukšiš, Cameron, J. Near Eastern Stud. 1.217), NPers. duxtar; Arm. dustr; Toch. A ckācar, B tkācer (SSS 65).

2. Lat. fīlia (> It. figlia, etc), fem. of fīlius. See 2.41.

3. Ir. inigena (Ogam), ingen (also 'girl'), NIr. inghean, cpd. like Lat. indigena 'born in, native', Grk. ἐγγόνη 'granddaughter'. Pedersen 1.101. Walde-P. 1.577. Walde-H. 1.599.

W. merch, Br. merc'h, orig. 'girl' : Lith. merga 'girl', etc. (2.26). Walde-P. 2.281.

4. Lett. meita, same word as for 'girl', fr. MLG meid 'girl' (2.26).

2.43. 'Child' with reference to the parents, that is = 'son' or 'daughter', is generally expressed by the same words that are used for 'child' = 'boy or girl'; and in several of these the application to 'child' as offspring is the more original, as indicated by the etymology. See 2.27.

But there are also a few words which remain restricted in normal usage to 'child' in this sense, or to 'children', being used mainly in the plural.

1. Grk. τέκνον : τίκτω 'beget, bear'. As τοκεῖς, τεκόντες 'parents', so τέκνα 'children'. This is the usual legal term in laws of inheritance, though παῖδες may also be so used.

2. Lat. līberī : līber 'free', but semantically through an earlier sense 'belonging to the nation, native' (cf. 19.44), hence specifically 'legitimate' children (= Grk. γνήσιοι παῖδες). Ernout-M. 545. Walde-H. 1.792 f. Benveniste, Rev. Et. Lat. 14.51 ff.

Lat. nātī, pl. of nātus 'born, son', also used for 'children'.

It. figlioli (in contrast to fanciulli), pl. of figliolo 'son'.

3. Goth. (beside usual barn for τέκνον) frasts, doubtless fr. fra = Grk. πρό etc., but precise formation (cpd. or with suffix) dub. Feist 165 (with refs.; add F. Mezger, Language 19.262 f.).

4. ChSl. cędo, the reg. translation of Grk. τέκνον, SCr. cedo, etc. (in modern Slavic mostly a pet name 'darling', or only in cpds.), prob. not a loanword fr. Gmc. (OHG kind, etc.), but fr. the root of ChSl. -čĭną, -čęti 'begin', Grk. καινός 'new', Skt. kanīna- 'young', kanyā- 'girl' (2.26), etc. Berneker 154. Brückner 542.

2.44. 'Brother'. 1. IE bhrāter-, possibly fr. bher- 'bear', as 'protector, sustainer' of the sisters(?). Walde-P. 2.193. Ernout-M. 386. Walde-H. 1.542. Here belong all the words listed except the Greek and the Spanish; also Arm. ełbair, Toch. A pracar, B procer. Grk. φρᾱ́τηρ only as 'member of the φρᾱτρία 'brotherhood'. So Sp. fraire, fraile only for brother in religious sense, 'friar, monk'. NIr. brāthair 'friar' or in extended sense 'relative, kinsman', as 'brother' replaced by dear-bhrāthair lit. 'real brother', cpd. of dearbh 'real, true' (Ir. derb 'certain'). Similarly NIr. siur 'sister' in religious sense vs. deirbhshiur 'real sister'. Lith. brolis, Lett. brālis represent pet-name forms derived from the first syllable of the inherited word (preserved in OPruss. brāti) with an l-suffix.

2. Grk. ἀδελφός 'brother', ἀδελφή 'sister', dial. also ἀδελφεός, ἀδελφεά, fr. *ἀ-δελφος (-εος) : Skt. sa-garbhya- 'of the same womb', cpd. of cop. sa- (Grk. ἀ-) and garbha- 'womb' (: Grk. δελφύς 'womb'). Walde-P. 1.692. This was doubtless first used as an adj. defining φρᾱ́τηρ, either more specifically as 'frater uterinus' (in contrast to brother by the same father only), or simply as 'brother by blood' after φρᾱ́τηρ had come to be applied to the member of a phratry.

Grk. κασίγνητος in Homer (where also κασιγνήτη 'sister'), and the reg. prose word for 'brother' in Cyprian, a cpd. of Dan. svigerfar, etc., and by imitation Sw. svärfar, etc., in which, however, svär represents the old masc. form = Goth. svaihra, etc. (2.61). Falk-Torp 1216. Hellquist 1132.

4. Ir. cliamain 'relation by marriage', quotable for 'father-, son-, and brother-in-law' : clemnas 'alliance by marriage' (root connection?). Hence NIr. cliamhain 'son-in-law' (dial. also 'father- or mother-in-law'), and bainchliamhain 'daughter-in-law' (ban- 'female').

NIr. athair (māthair, etc.) cēile, 'father (mother, brother, sister) of spouse'.

5. Goth. mēgs 'son-in-law', ON māgr 'father-, son-, or brother-in-law', māgkona 'mother-, daughter-, or sister-in-law', Sw. måg (obs.), ODan., Norw. maag 'son-in-law' : OE mǣg, OHG māg 'relative', all perh. (cf. Fr. beau-père, etc.) : Lith. mėgti 'be pleasing'. Walde-P. 2.256. Feist 352.

6. ON sifjar 'relationship by marriage' (: Goth. sibja, OE sibb, etc. 'kinship'), hence sifjungr for male, sifkona for female relative by marriage. Cf. also NIcel. tengda-faðir, etc. (whole series) : ON tengdir 'relationship' (esp. by marriage) fr. tengja 'fasten'.

7. Lat. adfīnis, lit. 'bordering, near', was used as a general term for any relative by marriage, but without displacing the specific terms.

2.61, 2.62. 'Father-in-law' and 'mother-in-law'. 1. IE *swek̑uro-, fem. *swek̑rū-, doubtless a cpd. of refl. *swe-, but the second part dub. Walde-P. 2.521 ff. Ernout-M. 948 f. Orig. used only by the wife of her husband's father or mother, as in Vedic Sanskrit, Homeric Greek, and still in Slavic; elsewhere the differentiation is lost.

Hence (with some new stem formations, fem. fr. masc. or conversely) Grk. ἑκυρός, with new fem. ἑκυρά; Lat. socer, socrus (> It. suocero, OFr. suevre, Sp. suegro, Rum. socru, with new fem. It. suocera, Sp. suegra, Rum. socra); W. chwegr fem., with new masc. chwegrwn (both in Bible, but mostly obs.); Goth. swaihra, swaihrō (n-stems), ON svǣra fem., OSw. svǣr masc., Sw. svär(far), OE swēor, sweger, MLG zweer masc., OHG swehur, swigar, NHG schwäher, schwieger(mutter), whence by analogy schwiegervater (-sohn, -tochter); Lith. šešuras (obs.); ChSl. svekrŭ, svekry, SCr. svekar, svekrva (Boh. svekr, svekra now obs.), Pol. świekier, świekra, Russ. svekor, svekrov'; Skt. çvaçura-, çvaçrū-, Av. xᵛasura-; Arm. skesur fem., with new masc. skesrair; Alb. vjehër, vjehërë.

From a secondary deriv. with strengthened grade of the first syllable (cf. Skt. çvāçura- 'belonging to a father-in-law') comes OHG swāgur, MHG swāger, NHG schwager 'brother-in-law', that is, by derivation 'son of one's father-in-law'.

2. Grk. πενθερός, in Homer only 'wife's father', later generalized at the expense of ἑκυρός (and sometimes used also for 'son-in-law, brother-in-law'), fem. πενθερά : Skt. bandhu- 'relative', bandh- 'bind', IE *bhendh-. Walde-P. 2.152.

3. Sp. beside suegra 'mother-in-law', also madra politica 'mother by courtesy'.

4. Lith. uošvis, uošvė, formerly only 'wife's father, mother', now 'father-in-law', 'mother-in-law' without restriction, etym.?

Lith. anyta 'husband's mother', pet-name type : Lat. anus 'old woman', etc. (above, p. 94). Walde-P. 1.55.

Lett. tēvuocis, mātice derivs. of tēvs 'father', māte 'mother'. But usually vira (sievas) tēvs (māte) 'husband's (wife's) father (mother)'.

5. ChSl. tĭstĭ, tĭšta, etc., general Slavic word for 'wife's father, mother' (but Boh. tschán, tschyně with added suffix, and extension to 'husband's father, mother' at the expense of the old svekr, svekra), pet-name type : Lat. tata, Lith tėtis 'father', etc. (above, p. 94). Brückner 569.

SCr. punac, punica, etym.?

2.63. 'Son-in-law'. 1. Grk. γαμβρός mostly 'son-in-law', but also 'brother-in-law', 'father-in-law', 'relative by marriage', NG 'bridegroom', 'son-in-law' or 'sister's husband' : γάμος 'marriage'. From the same root also Skt. jāmātar-, Av. zāmātar-, with suffix as in pitar-mātar-, etc. Walde-P. 1.574.

2. Lat. gener (> It. genero, Fr. gendre, Sp. yerno, Rum. ginere), Lith. žentas, Lett. znuots (also 'brother-in-law'), ChSl. zętĭ, etc., the general Slavic word, all apparently fr. IE *ĝen- in Lat. gignere 'beget, bear', etc. Ernout-M. 414 f. Or Lat. gener for gemer (with n by influence of genitor, etc.) and so belonging orig. to preceding group? So Walde-P. 1.574, Walde-H. 1.590 f.

3. W. daw, Br. deun, MBr. deuff, OCorn. dof : Ir. dām 'a following, band', NIr. damh 'tribe, family', with specialization of 'relative' to 'son-in-law'. Walde-P. 1.764. Pederson 1.48.

4. OE āþum (also 'sister's husband'), OHG eidum, MHG eidem, NHG eidam, perh. (Gmc. *aiþuma-) : Osc. aeteis, Grk. αἶσα 'portion' and orig. applied to the one who marries a man's heiress-daughter and has a share in the inheritance. Hermann, Gött. Nachr. 1918.216 ff. Kluge-G.123.

NHG now schwiegersohn, dial. tochtermann. Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 454.

2.64. 'Daughter-in-law' 1. IE *snuso-, prob. orig. 'bride', like the various later substitutes for it, and plausibly explained as fr. *sneu- 'bind' in Skt. snāvan- 'sinew', etc. Walde-P. 2.701. Ernout-M. 689.

Grk. νυός; Lat. nurus, late nura, *nora (> It. nuora, OFr. nuere, Sp. nuera, Rum. noră); ON snor, OE snoru, ME snore, OHG snura, MHG snur, NHG schnur; ChSl. snŭcha, SCr. snaha, Boh. snacha, Russ. snocha; Skt. snuṣā-; Arm. nu.

2. Grk. νύμφη 'bride' (: Lat. nūbere 'marry', etc., 2.33) replaced νυός in Hellenistic times (LXX, NT; cf. Mt. 10.35), and prob. earlier (for νυός is quotable only from poetry).

3. Fr. bru, fr. OFr. brut 'bride' loan-word fr. Gmc. (OHG brūt, etc.). REW 1345. Gamillscheg 154.

4. W. gwaudd, Br. gouhez, etym.? (Pedersen 1.514, fr. *upo-siyu-, meaning connection with Skt. si- 'bind', etc.?).

5. Goth. brūþs properly 'bride' (as in brūþfaþs 'bridegroom', cf. OE brȳd, OHG brūt, etc.) is used for 'daughter-in-law', prob. influenced by the similar use of Grk. νύμφη, which it translates (Mt. 10.35). Hence also VLat. bruta, brutis 'daughter-in-law'. Cf. Fr. bru, above, 3.

6. Lith. marti 'bride' and (now mostly) 'daughter-in-law', prob. : Skt. marya- 'young man', Grk. μεῖραξ 'young girl', etc. Walde-P. 2.281.

Lett. vedekle orig. 'bride', fr. vedu, vest 'marry'.

Lett. jaunava 'young woman, bride, daughter-in-law', fr. jauns 'young' : Lat. iuvenis 'young', etc.

7. ChSl. nevěsta 'bride' (see 2.22 under Pol. niewiasta), used also for νύμφη as 'daughter-in-law' (Mt. 10.35). So Russ. nevestka beside nevesta 'bride'.

Pol. synowa, fr. syn 'son', hence lit. 'son's wife'.

2.65. 'Brother-in-law' covers 'husband's brother', 'wife's brother', 'sister's husband', and sometimes even 'wife's or husband's sister's husband', and 'husbands of sisters'; and these may be expressed by different terms. The inherited group is used only of 'husband's brother'.

1. IE *daiwer-, root connection dub. Walde-P. 1.767. Ernout-M. 541. Walde-H. 1.787 f.

Grk. δᾱήρ (rare; Hom., Men. and a late inscr.); Lat. lēvir (rare; Festus, etc.; with dial. l for d, late ē for ae, and last syllable influenced by vir); OE tācor, OHG zeihhur; Lith. 2. Grk. γαμβρός 'son-in-law' (2.63), also 'husband's or wife's brother', NG also 'sister's husband'.

Grk. ἀνδρὸς (γυναικὸς) ἀδελφός, late ἀνδράδελφος, γυναικάδελφος.

NG κουνιάδος, see below, 3.

3. Lat. cognātus 'relative' in late inscrr. 'brother-in-law'. Hence It. cognato (> NG κουνιάδος 'husband's or wife's brother'), Sp. cuñado, Rum. cumnat, with the corresponding fem. forms. REW 2029.

4. OHG swāger, MHG, MLG swāger (> Dan. svoger, Sw. svåger), Du. zwager, NHG schwager (> Boh. švagr, Pol. szwagier, Lith. švogeris and, through Hung., SCr. šogor), fr. a deriv. of the word for 'father-in-law'. See 2.61, above, p. 124.

OE āðum 'son-in-law' (2.63) also 'sister's husband'.

5. Lith. (obs.) laiguonas 'wife's brother', etym.?

6. ChSl. (late) šurĭ, šurinŭ, SCr. šura, šurjak, Russ. šurin, Skt. syāla-, all 'wife's brother', perh. from *siū- 'sew' (Lat. suere, etc.), through 'bind'. Walde-P. 2.514.

7. Grk. ἀέλιοι (Hesych.), εἰλίονες (Pollux), ON svilar, 'husbands of sisters'; Lith. svainis, Lett. svainis (cf. Mühl.-Endz. s.v.), pl. svaini 'husbands of sisters'; ChSl. svatŭ, svojakŭ 'relative', SCr., Russ. svojak 'wife's sister's husband', Boh. svat, svak for various 'in-laws'; all fr. refl. *swo- 'one's own', applied to these secondary relationships mainly because the primary relationships already had their fixed terms. Walde-P. 2.457, 533.

2.66. 'Sister-in-law', like 'brother-in-law', covers a variety of specific relations, which may be expressed by different terms. One inherited group applies to the 'husband's sister', another to the 'husband's brother's wife' or in the plural 'wives of brothers'.

1. IE *glōu-, etc., root connection dub. Walde-P. 1.631. Ernout-M. 426.

Grk. *γάλωϝος, Hom. γάλοως, Att. γάλως 'husband's sister'; Lat. glōs (attested only in glosses) 'husband's sister' (also 'brother's wife'. Cf. Arch. lat. Lex. 12.413 ff.); ChSl. zlŭva, SCr. zaova, OBoh. zelva, Russ. zolovka 'husband's sister'.

2. IE *yenəter-, etc., root connection dub. Walde-P. 1.207 f. Ernout-M. 469.

Grk. ἐνάτηρ, Hom. pl. εἰνάτερες (cf. Il. 6.378 γαλόων ἢ εἰνατέρων of Andromache's 'husband's sisters or her husband's brothers' wives'); Lat. pl. ianitrīcēs (rare) 'wives of brothers'; OLith. jentė, Lett. ietere (obs.), ChSl. jętry, SCr. jetrva, OBoh. jatrev, jatruše, OPol. jątrew, Russ. jatrov (obs.); Skt. yātar-; all used of one's 'husband's brother's wife', or in plural for 'wives of brothers'.

3. Grk. usually ἀνδρὸς (γυναικὸς) ἀδελφή, late ἀνδραδέλφη.

NG κουνιάδα 'husband's or wife's sister', fem. of κουνιάδος 'husband's or wife's brother' (2.65).

Grk. νύμφη 'bride', 'daughter-in-law' (2.64), NG νύφη also 'brother's wife'.

Grk. σύννυμφος 'husband's brother's wife' (LXX+). Hence NG συννυφάδα id., pl. συννυφάδες 'wives of brothers.'

4. Lat. usually virī (uxōris) soror, frātris uxor, for the last also frātria (only in glosses), deriv. of frāter 'brother'.

It. cognata, Sp. cuñada, Rum. cumnată, fem. of It. cognato, etc. (2.65).

5. ON māgkona (above, p. 124) or cpds. like brōðurkona 'brother's wife'.

Dan. svigerinde, fr. NHG schwiegerin = schwieger, but used also = schwägerin; Sw. svägerske, fr. MLG swegersche. Falk-Torp 1216. Hellquist 1131.

OHG geswige (gl. Lat. glōs) : swigar 'mother-in-law', etc., above, p. 124.

MHG swægerinne, fem. of swāger, hence NHG schwägerin.

6. Lith. moša 'husband's sister' : Lett. māsa 'sister' (2.45).

Lett. māsnica 'husband's sister', deriv. of māsa 'sister' (2.45).

Lith. svainė, Lett. svaine, fem. of svainis (2.65).

SCr. šogorica, Boh. švakrova (k fr. old svekra, etc.), Pol. szwagrowa, fems. of šogor, švagr, szwagier respectively.

ChSl. svĭstĭ, SCr. svast, OBoh. svěst 'wife's sister' : svat, svojak, etc. (2.65).

Pol. bratowa 'brother's wife' fr. brat 'brother'.

Russ. svojačenica, fem. deriv. of svojak (2.65).

Russ. nevestka 'daughter-in-law' (2.64), also 'brother's wife'.

7. Skt. nanāndar- 'husband's sister', fr. a pet name of the nana type (above, p. 94), influenced by the suffix of the other words of relationship. Uhlenbeck s.v.

2.71–2.74. Words for 'stepfather', etc. are, with some exceptions, derivatives or compounds of the words for 'father', etc.

1. Grk. μητρυιά, Ion. μητρυιή (Hom. +) 'stepmother', deriv. of μήτηρ with suffix related to that of πάτρως, μήτρως, Lat. patruus, Skt. pitṛvya- 'uncle' (2.51). From this was formed masc. μητρυιός or πατρυιός 'stepfather' (both late and rare), NG μητρυιός.

Grk. πρόγονος, lit. 'of previous birth', hence 'ancestor' 2.56), but also, as one born of a previous marriage, 'stepson' or 'stepdaughter', for latter also προγόνη. But NG προγονός 'stepson' (thus differentiated from πρόγονος 'ancestor'), προγονή 'stepdaughter', or dim. form προγόνι for young 'stepchild' of either sex.

2. Lat. vitricus 'stepfather', etym. dub., but perh. an extension of IE *witero- in Skt. vitaram 'farther, more distant', etc., from *wi- 'apart', and orig. pater vitricus 'remoter father'. Walde-P. 1.313. Hence Rum. vitreg (fr. lit. Latin, prob. through Hung. official Latin, cf. Tiktin s.v.), in tată vitreg, and by extension mamă vitregă, fiu vitreg, fată vitregă.

Lat. noverca 'stepmother', deriv. of novus 'new', as one's 'new mother'. Ernout-M. 680.

Lat. prīvignus 'stepson', prīvigna 'stepdaughter', deriv. (orig. cpd. with -gno- : gignere, genus) of prīvus 'single', hence

'one of separate birth' (i.e. of a previous marriage). Ernout-M. 811.

It. patrigno 'stepfather', matrigna 'stepmother', formed fr. the words for 'father' and 'mother', with the suffix -igno- used as in rossigno 'reddish', etc., hence 'a sort of father (mother)'. Perhaps also first based on the obs. privigno.

The above words are those used in Latin literature. Inscriptions and glosses show the series patrāster, etc., derivatives of the words for 'father, mother', etc., and meaning 'a kind of father', etc. Hence It. figliastro, figliastra, OFr. parastre, marastre, fillastre, Fr. parâtre (obs.), marâtre, Sp. padrastro, madrastra, hijastro, hijastra, Rum. (obs.) fiastru, fiastră.

In French the words came to be used in a derogatory sense, and became obsolete, except marâtre and this now mostly the typical cruel 'stepmother'. They were replaced by the polite phrases beau-père, etc., the same as for 'father-in-law', etc. (2.61–2.64).

3. The Celtic series, Ir. lessathair, etc., NIr. leasathair, etc., W. llysdad, etc., Br. leztad, etc., cpds. of the words for 'father' etc., the first part, as in Ir. less-ainm, W. llys-enu 'nickname', cognate with Ir. leth, W. lled 'side, half'. Pedersen 2.8.

OBr. eltroguen, OCorn. altruan 'noverca', fr. al- 'nourish', perh. also associated with all- 'other'. Pedersen 1.137.

4. The Gmc. series, ON stjūpfaðir, etc. (also stjūpr alone for 'stepson'), OE stēopfæder, etc., OHG stiuffater, etc., started in words for 'stepchild, stepson' as orig. 'orphan', like OE stēopcild, stēopbarn 'orphan', the first part : OE ā-stīpan, OHG bi-stiufan 'bereave', ON stūfr 'stump', etc. Walde-P. 2.619. Falk-Torp 1161. NED s.v. step-.

5. The Baltic series, Lith. patėvis, etc., Lett. patēvs, etc. (so also OPruss. patowelis, pomatre, passons, poducre; also late ChSl. padŭšti, padŭšterica, Russ. padčerica, pasynok), cpds. of words for 'father', etc. (Lith. dukra pet form of duktė 'daughter') with prefix pa-, po- 'after, under' used also like Lat. sub-, hence here 'a sort of father', etc.

6. The Slavic words for 'stepfather, stepmother', late ChSl. otĭčimŭ, otĭčuchŭ, maštecha, SCr. očuh, maćeha, Boh. otčim, macecha, etc., all derivs. of the words for 'father, mother'.

Late ChSl. pastorŭkŭ 'stepson', pastorŭka 'stepdaughter', SCr. pastorak, pastorka, Boh. pastorek, pastorkyně, etym. disputed, but best explained as starting in a *pa-dŭktorŭka (cf. pa-dušti, etc., above), whence an abbreviated *padtorŭka > pastorŭka, with new masc. formed from this. Miklosich 55. Meillet, MSL 13.28. Otherwise Zubatý, Arch. sl. Ph. 13.315 f. Still otherwise M. Vey, BSL 32.66.

Pol. pasierb 'stepson', pasierbica 'stepdaughter (also Russ. dial. paserb), cpd. of pa- (as in Lith. pa-dukra, etc., above), the second part being much disputed; taken as *serbŭ by transposition from *sebrŭ (*sębrŭ in OSerb. sebrŭ 'free peasant', Russ. sjabr 'neighbor, friend') : Goth. sibja 'kinship', by Solmsen, KZ 37.592 ff., Walde-P. 2.456; as 'one who does not suck the same milk' fr. the root of sorbać, Lat. sorbēre 'suck in' by Brückner 398.

Boh. new series nevlastní otec, etc., lit. 'not own father', etc., from neg. ne and vlastní 'own'.

7. Skt. only late and rare words tāta-yavīyan- 'stepfather' lit. 'younger (later) father', dvāimātura-bhrātar- 'stepbrother', lit. 'having two mothers'.

Words for 'relatives' are from such notions as 'of common birth or blood', 'belonging to the family', 'near', 'related', etc.

1. Grk. συγγενεῖς, lit. 'of common kin', cpd. of συν- 'together' and γένος 'race, family' (19.23).

2. Lat. cognātī, lit. 'of common birth', cpd. of con- 'together' and (g)nātus 'born'.

Lat. propinquī, lit. 'those near', deriv. of prope 'near'.

Lat. consanguineī, lit. 'of common blood', cpd. of con- and sanguen 'blood'.

Lat. adfīnēs, used for 'relatives by marriage', lit. 'bordering on', cpd. of ad 'at' and fīnis 'boundary'.

It. parenti, Fr. parents, Sp. parientes, fr. Lat. parentēs 'parents' (2.37).

Rum. rude, pl. of ruda 'family, relative', loanword from Slavic, ChSl. rodŭ 'race, family', etc. (19.23).

3. OIr. coibnestaib 'consanguineis' (Thes. 1.88), deriv. of coibnes* (MIr. coibnius) 'relationship', this a cpd. of com- 'together' and fine 'clan' (19.23). Pedersen 1.64, 2.20.

MIr. coibdelaig : coibdeiligim 'distribute, divide' (com-fo-deiligim*, cf. deiligim 'separate, distinguish'), so presumably first used as a legal term for the 'relatives' who divide the inheritance. Laws, Gloss. 147,221.

NIr. gaolta, pl. of gaol 'relationship, kindred, family', MIr. gāel 'relationship': Gael. gaol 'love' (Goth. gailjan 'make glad', etc.?). Walde-P. 1.634.

W. ceraint, Br. kerent, pl. of car, kar : Ir. care 'friend'. Pedersen 1.249.

W. perthynau, fr. perthyn 'belong to, be related', this fr. Lat. pertinēre 'belong to, pertain to'. Loth, Mots lat. 195.

4. Goth. (ga)niþjōs, ON niðjar (OE niþþas 'men'), prob. : Skt. nitya- 'innate, one's own', deriv. of an IE ni-* beside eni-* 'in'. Formerly derived fr. neptio-* in Av. naptya- 'descendant', Grk. ἀνεψιός 'cousin' beside Skt. napāt- 'grandson', etc. (2.48). Walde-P. 1.126. Feist 376 f.

Dan. slægtninge, Sw. släktingar, derivs. of slægt, släkt 'race, family' (19.23).

OE māgas, OHG māgā : Goth. mēgs 'son-in-law', ON māgr 'father-, son-, or brother-in-law', etc. (2.61–2.66).

OE siblingas (Aelfric gives siblinge = Lat. affīnis or consanguineus, and mǣg = Lat. propinquus), OHG (gi)sibbon (ON sifjungar is restricted to 'relatives by marriage', as sifjar to 'relationship by marriage', 2.61–2.66), fr. OE sib(b), OHG sibba 'kinship' = Goth. sibja id., fr. se-bho-, deriv. of reflex. stem so- (Lat. sē, sibi, etc.) beside swo-*. Walde-P. 2.456. Feist 417.

OE cynn, ME, NE kin 'family' in wide sense (19.23) and coll. 'relatives'. Hence also OE cynnes men, ME kinnesmen, NE kinsmen, also kinsfolk, both now mostly literary.

NE relations, relatives, with specialized application of relation 'connection', adj. relative, these through Fr. fr. Lat. relātiō 'report', relātīvus 'pertaining to'. In the specialized sense relations is attested earlier and was formerly in more common use than relatives. NED s.v.

NHG verwandten, Du. verwanten, fr. adj. verwan(d)t 'related', orig. pple. of MHG, MLG verwenden 'turn to'.

5. Lith. giminaičiai, deriv. of giminė 'family' in wide sense (19.23).

Lett. radi, either loanword fr. or cognate with Slavic rodŭ (see foll.). Mühl.-Endz. 3.462 f.

6. ChSl. roždenĭje, sg. coll. (Lk. 1.58, etc.), SCr. rodjaci, Russ. rodnyje, derivs. of rodŭ 'birth, race, family' (19.23).

'Family' is intended here in the narrower sense, the immediate family (even so, not precisely defined), though many of the words listed here are also used, like NE family, to cover remoter kinship, 'family' in the wide sense. But in general for the latter, see 19.23.

Many of the words are those for 'house' or derivatives of them. Lat. familia, orig. 'body of servants, household', furnished the most widespread European word.

1. Grk. οἶκος, οἰκία 'house' (7.12), also 'family', in the earliest quotations in wider sense ('royal house', 'house of Atreus', etc.) later also of the immediate 'family'.

Late Grk. οἰκογένεια (in pap.), status of an οἰκογενής born in the house, hence NG 'family'.

2. Lat. domus 'house' (7.12), also the immediate 'family'.

Lat. familia, orig. the 'body of servants, household', then also 'family', deriv. of famulus 'servant' (19.43). Hence the Romance words, those of the modern Gmc. languages, also Lett. familija and similar forms more or less used in the modern Slavic languages (not included in the list). Ernout-M. 329. Walde-H. 1.452.

3. Ir. teglach, NIr. teaglach, W. teulu, cpds. of Ir. tech, W. ty 'house' (7.12), and Ir. sluag, W. llu 'throng, army', hence the 'people of the house, household'. Pedersen 1.84. Walde-P. 2.716.

Br. tiegez, tiad, derivs. of ti 'house'.

4. Goth. gards 'house' (7.12) renders Grk. οἶκος also in the sense of 'family'.

5. Lith. šeima, šeimyna, OPruss. seimīns, Lett. saime, Russ. sem'ja : Goth. heiwa-frauja 'master of the house', etc. (above, 4).

6. ChSl. domŭ 'house' (7.12) renders οἶκος also in sense of 'family'.

SCr. porodica, Boh. rodina, Pol. rodzina, derivs. of ChSl. rodŭ, etc. 'birth, race' and 'family' in wide sense (19.23).

SCr. obitelj: ChSl. obitělĭ 'dwelling' (of monks), 'monastery', fr. obitati 'dwell' (7.11).

7. Skt. kula- 'family' in narrow and broad senses, also 'herd, crowd', etc. : ChSl. čeljadĭ 'household, body of servants'. Walde-P. 1.517. Berneker 141 f.

Av. nāfa- 'navel' and 'family, kindred': Skt. nābhi- 'navel' and 'relationship', Grk. ὀμφαλός 'navel', etc. Walde-P. 1.130. Barth. 1062.

ANIMALS

In the inherited names of animals there is little to be said about their semantic source. For in most of them the root connection is wholly obscure. The interest in this chapter lies rather in the losses, substitutions, and shifts of application.

The loss of certain inherited animal names, like that of the 'bear' in Slavic and Germanic and those for 'wolf', 'serpent', 'hare', and 'mouse' here and there, is attributed to taboo (cf. esp. Meillet, Ling. hist. 281 ff.). This has doubtless played a part in individual cases. But one hesitates to make too much of this factor when one observes that virtually every inherited animal name (and for that matter nearly every inherited word in other classes, as in the words of relationship, etc.) has been displaced in one or another of the IE languages. The IE word for 'horse' attested in most IE languages in the early period (Grk. ἵππος, Lat. equus, etc., 3.41), has been displaced in every modern European language (only the fem. Sp. yegua, Rum. iapă 'mare' surviving), and no one will ascribe this to taboo.

On the sources of animal names the following general observations may be made here.

Some are of imitative origin. Besides those derived from the animal's cry, as several words for 'cock', 'hen' (3.51 ff.), etc., there are others derived from cries used in calling the animal, the call-words, as NE puss for 'cat' (3.62). For the latter type, cf. Rohlfs, Z. frz. Spr. 49.109 ff. But in several cases it is doubtful which type is involved.

Color words underlie some, as 'brown' in the Gmc. words for 'bear' (3.73) and an IE word for 'beaver' (NE beaver, etc.); 'gray' in Lith. pelė 'mouse' (3.63) and prob. a widespread word for 'hare' (OE hara, OHG haso, etc.; OE hasu 'gray'), possibly ON grīss 'pig' (3.35); 'red' in several words for 'fox' (3.74), etc.

The notion of swift motion underlies several animal names, as clearly Lith. tekis 'ram', Ir. reithe 'ram' (3.26), prob. Lat. ariēs 'ram' (3.26), Grk. ὄρνις 'bird' (3.64), ON hross, OE hors 'horse' (3.41), ON hestr 'horse' (3.41).

A proper name applied to an animal, as so often in fables, may become the usual word, as Fr. renard 'fox' (3.74), SCr. mačka 'cat' (3.62).

A few were first applied to the meat of an animal as food and then to the living animal (the opposite of the usual relation, cf. 5.62), as NG ψάρι 'fish' (3.65), ON sauðr 'sheep' (3.25).

Specialization is frequent. Words for 'animal' may be specialized to denote such diverse creatures as 'ox', 'swine', 'small beast of prey' (cf. REW 476 on the derivs. of Lat. animal), 'horse' (NG ἄλογο fr. 'unreasoning' through 'animal', 3.41), 'deer' (NE deer, 3.75), 'louse' (NIr. mīol, 3.11). 'Cattle' in the wide sense ('livestock') may be partly or wholly specialized to 'cattle' in the narrow sense, the bovine species (many examples in 3.15, 3.20), or to 'sheep' (Att. πρόβατον, It. pecora, 3.15, 3.25).

A 'horned animal' may be an 'ox' or 'cow' (NHG rind, Lith. karvė, 3.20 ff.), a 'ram' (Grk. κριός, ON hrūtr, 3.26), a 'stag' (Lat. cervus, NE hart, etc., 3.75). A 'tamed animal' may be an 'ox' (Ir. dam, 3.22) or a 'sheep' (W. dafad, 3.25).

The young of an animal may be a 'calf' (NE calf, etc., 3.24), 'chicken' (Lat. pullus, 3.55), or 'foal' (Grk. πῶλος, Lat. pullus, NE foal, etc., 3.45). Similarly, a 'yearling' may be a 'calf' (Lat. vitulus, 3.24), a 'lamb', 'wether', 'ram' (Goth. wiþrus, etc., 3.27, 3.29), 'sow' (Br. gwiz, 3.34), 'goat' (Grk. χίμαρος, 3.36), or 'kid' (SCr. jare, 3.38).

Of the names of wild animals, only a small selection is considered here. The chief attention is given to domestic animals. For those of most concern in the farmer's daily life, there is a wealth of distinctions within the species (or genus; but with reference to domestic animals 'species' is generally the correct term; for our purposes the technical distinction is of no consequence), of which it is important to note, beside the generic terms, those for the breeding male, the castrated male, the female, and the young, as for the bovine species the 'bull', 'ox', 'cow', 'calf' (still other specific terms like NE steer for 'young ox', heifer for 'young cow' being ignored). There are many shifts of application and local differences even in the same language. Within the same cognate group there may be interchange, as between 'bull', 'ox', and 'young ox' (NHG stier, NE steer; Skt. ukṣan-, NE ox; 3.20 ff.); or between 'lamb', 'ram', 'wether', 'ewe' (Goth. wiþrus, NHG widder, NE wether, etc.; Lat. vervex, Rum. berbec, Fr. brebis; 3.25 ff.).

The old generic terms for bovine animals, sheep, and swine have become specialized in Germanic to denote the female, as NE cow, ewe, sow.

Conversely, words for a special class, especially the young or the female, may be used generically, as Lat. porcus, NE pig for swine, NE hen or chicken for domestic fowl (3.31, 3.51).

Besides such interchange within the species, words for corresponding classes of different species may show specialization to one species or shift from one species to another. Thus for the breeding male, Skt. vṛṣabha- 'bull', but Lat. verrēs 'boar'; Grk. κάπρος 'boar', but Lat. caper 'he-goat'; OE bucca 'he-goat' (as NHG bock), but NE buck 'male deer'. Similarly for the 'young' or 'yearling', as noted above.

The dissertation of E. Gottlieb, A Systematic Tabulation of Indo-European Animal Names, received after this chapter was virtually completed, includes a great many of the less common words not discussed here.

3.11 ANIMAL

(Also Wild Beast)

Grk.	ζῷον; θήρ, θηρίον	Goth.	dius	Lith.	gyvolis; žvėris
NG	ζῶον; ἀγρίμι	ON	dȳr	Lett.	dzīvnieks; zvērs

W.	anifail, mil	MHG	tier
Br.	aneval, loen, mil	NHG	tier

Several of the words listed, like Lat. animal, mean properly any 'living creature', man included, but in common usage are applied mostly to animals other than man. Others are used only in the latter sense. But the difference is not always absolute and is indicated in the list only by the order, e.g. Lat. animal, bēstia. Some others are added (separated by a semicolon) that are used only of a 'wild beast'. Old words for 'animal' are often specialized to 'domestic animal' (3.14) or further to particular species of the latter, especially the bovine (3.20), as well as to other animals (above, p. 136). The source of most of the words for 'animal' is the notion of 'breathing, living'.

1. Grk. θήρ, θηρίον, Lat. ferus, fera (also adj. ferus 'wild'), Lith. žvėris, Lett. zvērs, OPruss, swirins (acc. pl.), ChSl. zvěrĭ, SCr. zvijer, Russ. zver', etc., all meaning 'wild animal', but Boh. zvíře, Pol. zwierzę now 'animal' in general, IE ĝhwer-*, without known root connection. Walde-P. 1.642 ff. Ernout-M. 353.

2. Grk. ζῷον : ζωός 'living', ζῶ 'live', etc. (4.74). Walde-P. 1.668 ff. From the same IE root come also NIr. beathaidheach (4) and the Balto-Slavic words (6).

NG ἀγρίμι 'wild beast', deriv. of ἄγριος, late ἀγριμαῖος 'wild'.

3. Lat. animal, deriv. of anima 'air, breath of life, life', this : Grk. ἄνεμος 'wind', etc., IE an-* 'breathe' (4.51). Walde-P. 1.56 ff. Ernout-M. 53. Hence It. animale, Fr. (>ME, NE), Sp., Rum. animal, also W. anifail, Br. aneval (Loth, Mots lat. 133).

Lat. bēstia, used of all animals exclusive of man (also bellua 'large wild beast'), etym. dub., but perh. fr. the same root (IE dhwes-*) as the Gmc. words, Goth. dius, etc. (below, 5). Walde-H. 1.102.

Hence It., Sp. bestia, OFr. beste (>ME beste, NE beast), Fr. bête, Rum. bestie.

Lat. brūtus 'heavy, dull, irrational' (a dialect form related to gravis 'heavy'), in late Lat. used esp. of dumb animals. So It. bruto, NE brute in brute creation, etc. Ernout-M. 119. Walde-H. 1.117.

4. Ir. anmanda, NIr. ainmhidhe, deriv. of Ir. anim 'soul, breath of life' : Lat. anima, etc. (above, 3).

Ir. rop, rob, perh. as orig. 'fierce beast' (but for actual comprehensive use see Laws, Gloss. 618) fr. rup-no-s* : Lat. rumpere 'break', OE rēofan 'break', rēafian 'plunder', or fr. rub-no-s* : Goth. raupjan, OHG roufen 'pluck', etc. Walde-P. 2.354, 355.

Ir. mīl (used mostly of small animals, or as second member of cpds. in animal names; NIr. mīol 'louse'), W., Br. mil : Grk. μῆλον mostly 'sheep' or 'goat' (3.15). Walde-P. 2.296. Pedersen 1.50.

NIr. beathaidheach (beathach), deriv. of beatha (gen. beathadh) 'life' : bēo 'live', etc. (4.74).

Br. loen, MBr. lozn : W. llwdn 'young of animals', Gael. loth 'colt', root connection obscure. Pedersen 1.135.

5. Goth. dius (renders Grk. θηρίον), ON dȳr, OE dēor, OHG tior, etc., the general Gmc. word for 'animal' vs. 'man', but in part restricted to 'wild animal' (or even further specialized, as in NE deer) : Lith. dusti 'gasp', dvėsti 'gasp, perish', ChSl. dychati 'breathe', etc., parallel to Lat. animal fr. anima. Walde-P. 1.846. Feist 121 b. Falk-Torp 172.

6. Lith. gyvolis, Lett. dzīvnieks, ChSl. životŭ ('life' and 'animal'), SCr. životinja, Russ. životnoe, Boh. živočich (mostly replaced by zvíře), fr. Lith. gyvas, Lett. dzīvs, Slavic živŭ 'living' (4.74).

7. Skt. prāṇin- ('living creature', man or beast, but not common for latter), deriv. of prāṇa- 'breath', this fr. pra- and an- 'breathe'.

Skt. paçu- mostly 'domestic animal' (3.14), but also 'animal' in general (so RV 10.90.8 paçūn vāyavyān āranyān grāmyāñçca 'animals of the air, the forest, and the village', and elsewhere, cf. BR).

Skt. mṛga- 'wild animal', esp. 'deer' : Av. mərəγa- 'large bird', root connection dub. Walde-P. 1.275, 284.

Av. xrafstra- 'beast of prey', etym.? Walde-P. 1.486. Barth. 538.

Av. daitika- 'wild animal', deriv. of dant-* 'tooth'. Barth. 678.

3.12, 3.13. 1. 'Male' and 'female' as applied to animals are in part expressed by the same words as those applied to human beings (2.23, 2.24). Some of those, like Grk. ἄρσην, Skt. vṛṣan- from the notion of emitting semen, or Grk. θῆλυς, Lat. fēmina from the notion of giving suck, were from the beginning equally applicable to animals. Of those derived from 'man' and 'woman', many were extended to apply to animals, but others were not. Thus NHG männlich, weiblich are used of animals (OHG, MHG words so used?), while Dan. mandlig, kvindelig, Sw. manlig, kvinlig are still restricted to human beings. Here, and in Breton, different words are applied to animals. So also generally in Slavic. But SCr. muški, ženski are applied to animals; Russ. mužeski, ženskij sometimes to unfamiliar animals, but not ordinarily.

As in 2.23, 2.24, adjective forms are given, if such are in use; otherwise noun forms which may be used in apposition to another noun (cf. Lat. fēmina bōs, etc.). In some cases even where adjective forms are in use, some distinctive noun forms are added, as NHG männlich; männchen.

2. The sex of many domestic animals is shown by the use of different words, as NE ox—cow, horse—mare, etc. More generally it is shown by distinct gender forms either of the article or adjective (Grk. ὁ ἵππος—ἡ ἵππος), or of the word itself (Lat. equus—equa), the latter in some languages so consistently (even for 'cat', 'dog', 'elephant', etc.) that there is only rarely occasion to use special words for 'male' or 'female'. Cf. also the use of prefixed nicknames, as in NE tomcat, jackass, billy-goat, nanny-goat, etc.

3. Sex expressed by the pronoun, either alone, as OE hē, hēo (Aelfric, Gram. 18, 17), or prefixed, as in NE he-goat, she-goat. So, as the regular method, Dan., Sw. han- for 'male', Dan. hun-, Sw. hon- for 'female' animals, with sbs. Sw. hane, hona.

4. Sex expressed by the addition of 'father' or 'mother', as NE father-bird, mother-bird. So especially Sp. padre, madre of animals.

5. Words denoting the male or female of a particular animal may be prefixed to names of other animals, as NE bull-elephant, bull-whale, cow-elephant, and hen applied to the female of birds in general and sometimes even to the female fish (NED s.v.), Br. taro- 'bull-' in maout-taro 'ram', targaz (fr. taro-kaz) 'tomcat', etc.

6. Br. par 'the male', whence parez 'the female', same word as par 'equal', fr. Lat. pār, but in this sense influenced by the vb.MBr. paraff 'couple, make pair'. Henry 218. Ernault, Glossaire 459.

7. Lith. patinas, patinėlis 'the male', patelė 'the female' (both used mostly of birds), fr. pats 'husband', pati 'wife'.

Lett. tēvinš 'the male', māte, mātite 'the female' (both used mostly of birds), fr. tēvs 'father', māte 'mother'.

Boh., Russ. samec, Pol. samiec 'the male', Boh. samice, Pol. samica, Russ. samka 'the female' (SCr. samica of birds), with adjs. (archaic or uncommon) Boh. samčí, Pol. samczy, samczowy 'male', Boh. samičí, Pol. samiczy 'female', all fr. sam, ChSl. samŭ 'self, alone'. Presumably the first application was to the breeding male, the 'one' who serves many, as the bull, cock, etc., then 'male' in general with new feminine forms for 'female'.

8. Skt. dhenu- 'cow', in cpds. 'female', as khaḍga-dhenu- 'female rhinoceros' (in Indic linguistic feeling prob. like NE cow-elephant, etc., above, 5, but here the general meaning is the more original), Av. daēnu- used in apposition with names of 'mule', 'elephant', etc. : Skt. dhayati 'sucks', Grk. θῆλυς, Lat. fēmina, etc. (2.24). Walde-P. 1.829 ff. Barth. 662.

Other Skt. and Av. words same as in 2.23, 2.24.

Br.	spaza	NHG	verschneiden

The castration of domestic animals is a practice that goes back to the earliest times among cattle-raising peoples and so presumably to IE times (otherwise Specht, KZ 66.6 f.), although the only evidence of any common term is the limited group Skt. vadhri- and the rare Grk. ἴθρις 'castrated'. It was effected by cutting or crushing the testicles, also by burning, cauterizing. Aristot. HA

510[b]3 refers to the crushing (in case of young animals) and cutting, and elsewhere to cauterizing (see below, 4 under OE āfȳran). For crushing see also below, 7 under Skt. bhid-. Schrader, Reallex. s.v. Verschneidung.

Most of the words reflect the action involved, esp. 'cut', 'cut off', also (for the crushing process) 'strike, break, split', and rarely 'burn'. Others reflect the result, as 'make gentle', 'make imperfect', 'unman', 'make celibate', 'make a monk', 'deprive of desire'. A few are denominatives of words for a castrated man, eunuch, or a specific castrated animal.

Cf. also the words for particular castrated animals, as 'wether' (3.27), 'barrow' (3.33), 'gelding' (3.43), 'capon' (3.53).

The sterilization of the female may be expressed by the same words (so castrantur feminae, Pliny, NH 8.208), or by different words, not discussed here, as NE spay.

The uncastrated male, apart from the special terms like bull, boar, etc., may be expressed by words meaning 'whole', as Fr. entier, NE entire.

1. Grk. ἐκτέμνω lit. 'cut out', cpd. of τέμνω 'cut' (9.22). Hence ἐκτομή 'castration', ἐκτομίας or τομίας 'castrated man or animal', the latter the regular term in Aristot. HA for the castrated ox, swine, sheep.

NG (lit. ἐκτέμνω or εὐνουχίζω) pop. μουνουχίζω, fr. μουνοῦχος 'castrated', this fr. εὐνοῦχος 'eunuch' (> μνοῦχος > μουνοῦχος, Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 1.294), orig. the (castrated) 'chamberlain', cpd. of εὐνή 'bed' and root of ἔχω 'hold'.

2. Lat. castrāre, deriv. of a kastrom* : Skt. çastra-m 'knife, sword, weapon', ças- 'cut to pieces, slaughter', Grk. κεάζω 'split'. Ernout-M. 160. Walde-H. 1.179. Hence the Romance words, also loanwords in the modern Gmc. and Slavic languages beside the native terms, as Dan. kastrere, Sw. kastrera, NE castrate, Du. castreeren, NHG kastrieren, Pol. kastrować, Russ. kastrirovat'.

Lat. ūrere 'burn' and excīdere, exsecāre 'cut out' are sometimes used for the usual castrāre.

Lat. sanāre 'heal', in MLat. also 'castrate', reflected in many Romance dial. words (REW 7566) and imitated (or paralleled) in OE hǣlan (Bosworth-Toller, Suppl. 496), MHG heilen (also MHG locally), MLG bōten (: OE bētan 'make better, improve'). Development prob. through 'make tame, docile', appropriate with reference to the larger animals. M. Leumann, KZ 67.215 ff.

Fr. couper 'cut' (9.41) also used for châtrer; likewise rarely hongrer (cf. Dict. gén. s.v.) fr. hongre 'castrated horse', lit. 'Hungarian' (3.43).

Sp. capar, deriv. of Lat. capō 'capon' (3.53). REW 1641.

Rum. scopi, loanword fr. Slavic, ChSl. skopiti, etc. (below, 6).

Rum. jugăni, also jugan 'gelding', fr. jug 'yoke', here with reference to the wooden clamps used to crush the testicles. Tiktin s.v.

3. NIr. coillim, lit. 'ruin, destroy', as MIr. coillim, deriv. of coll 'damage, loss' : Goth. halts, OE healt 'lame', etc. (4.94). Pedersen 1.114.

W. disbaddu, cpd. of older ysbaddu, yspaddu, this and Br. spaza fr. MLat. spadāre, deriv. of Lat. spadō 'impotent person or animal, eunuch', a word which is also involved in the history of NE spade now used mostly of females (but see NED s.v.).

4. ON gelda, Dan. gilde, Sw. gälla, ME gelde (from ON), NE geld (formerly sometimes also used of females), lit. 'make imperfect' : ON geldr, Sw. gall, OHG galt 'barren, giving no milk', outside root connection dub. Walde-P. 1.629. Falk-Torp 310, 337. Hellquist 319.

Dan. skære 'cut' (9.41), also the commonest word for 'castrate'.

Sw. snöpa : ON sneypa 'violate', snubba 'chide' (> NE snub), Dan. snubbe 'cut off', Sw. snoppa 'snuff' (a light), etc., all orig. 'cut off'. Falk-Torp 1099. Hellquist 1022.

OE belistnian, cpd. of be- priv. (as in behead, etc.) and lystan 'be pleasing to', hence lit. 'deprive of desire'.

OE (ā)fȳran, OHG arfūrian (and urfūr 'castrated'), derivs. of OE fȳr, OHG fuir 'fire'. The castration (of fowl) by cauterizing with a hot iron is attested by Aristot., HA 631[b]25, Varro, RR 3.9.3, etc. Hence there is no need to reject the more obvious etymology in favor of derivation from the root seen in Lat. putāre 'cut', etc., otherwise unknown in Gmc., as Holthausen, IF 32.336, followed by Walde-P. 1.12.

NE cut and alter are both common terms for 'castrate' among farmers, at least in U.S. (this use of alter not mentioned in NED).

Du. lubben, NE (obs. or dial.) lib, fr. the root of Goth. laufs 'leaf', etc., Skt. lup- 'break, injure', Lith. lupti, Russ. lupit' 'peel'. Franck-v. W. 400.

Du. ontmannen lit. 'unman', but regularly 'castrate', as in part NHG entmannen.

MHG versnīden, NHG verschneiden, cpds. of snīden 'cut' (9.41), now 'cut off, cut up', and the usual native word for 'castrate'.

MHG heilen and MLG bōten, see under VLat, sanāre, above, 2.

5. Lith. romyti, Lett. rāmīt, lit. 'make gentle, tame' : Lith. romus, Lett. rāms 'gentle, tame', Lith. rimti 'be quiet', Goth. rimis 'quiet', etc. (Walde-P. 1.371 ff.).

Lett. rūnīt, fr. or cognate with MLG rūne 'gelding' (Du. ruin, NHG dial. raun 'gelding'), prob. from the root of Skt. ru- 'break in pieces', Lith. rauti 'tear out', etc. Walde-P. 1.352.

6. ChSl. skopiti (also skopĭcĭ 'eunuch'), SCr. škopiti (Boh. skopiti, Pol. skopić esp. of sheep, cf. skop 'wether'), Russ. skopit', fr. the root of Russ. ščepat' 'split', Grk. σκέπαρνον 'adze', σκάπτω 'dig', Lat. cāpō 'capon', etc. Walde-P. 2.559 f. Walde-H. 1.161. Brückner 494.

SCr. štrojiti, pop. form, with specialization of meaning, of SCr., ChSl. strojiti 'prepare'.

Boh. vyklestiti, cpd. of klestiti 'prune' (also castrate'), fr. klest 'branch, twig'.

Boh. vyřezati, cpd. of řezati 'cut', hence lit. 'cut out'.

Pol. mniszyć, deriv. of mnich 'monk', hence lit. 'make a monk' of one, like NHG mönchen 'castrate'. Brückner 341.

Pol. wałaszyć, deriv. of wałach fr. NHG wallach 'gelding' (3.43). Brückner 600.

Pol. trzebić 'clean, weed out', and 'castrate' : SCr. trijebati 'peel, shell', Russ. terebit' 'tear out', etc. Brückner 579.

Russ. cholostit', deriv. of cholostoj 'unmarried, celibate'.

7. Skt. vadhri- 'castrated' (cf. Grk. ἐθρίς · τομίας κριός and ἴθρις · σπάδων, τομίας, εὐνοῦχος, Hesych.) fr. vadh- 'strike, slay' : Grk. ὠθέω 'thrust', etc., IE wedh-*. Walde-P. 1.254 f.

Skt. bhid- 'split' is used in describing castration, AV 6.138.2 ("let Indra with the two pressing stones split his testicles"). For further evidence of castration, cf. Zimmer, Altind. Leben 226.

In the Avesta there seems to be no reference to castration, but this is doubtless accidental. The practice was familiar in Iran as elsewhere (cf. Xen., Cyrop. 7.5.62).

3.15 LIVESTOCK

(Cattle in Wide Sense)

Grk.	κτήνη, βοσκήματα (πρόβατα)	Goth.	....	Lith.	gyvoliai, banda

Here are grouped the most important terms for 'livestock, cattle' (in the old wide sense of NE cattle, NED s.v. 4; throughout this section 'cattle' will have this sense) or for certain classes of livestock, wider than a particular species. There is a wide variation in the range of application, as between some of the words listed, and even for the same word according to period and locality. They may cover all domestic animals kept for service or useful products, but mostly domestic quadrupeds, while some are used distinctively either for 'large cattle' or for 'small cattle'. Such differences in range are ignored in the list and can be only roughly indicated in the notes below.

For the classification of 'large' and 'small cattle', cf. that of Grk. πρόβατα (below, 2; in the Arc. inscription 'swine' are mentioned separately as if not falling clearly in either division), Lat. (Varro, RR 2.1.10, 12) pecus maius (boves, asini, equi), pecus minus (oves, caprae, sues), It. bestie grosse, minute, Fr. gros, petit bétail, Sp. ganado mayor, minor, Rum. vite mari, mici, NHG gross-, kleinvieh, etc.; also Av. pasu- mostly 'small cattle' (sheep and goats), staora- 'large cattle' (ox, horse, camel).

The identity of 'cattle' and 'property' in early times is reflected in the history of many of the words. 'Cattle' may become 'property', or conversely, and both meanings may be found in the same word or in the same group of cognates.

In general, the words for 'cattle' show specialization from either 'animals' or 'property'.

1. IE peḱu-*, fr. the same root as Grk. πέκω 'comb, shear', πόκος 'fleece', Lat. pectere 'comb', and so orig. 'sheep'(?). Walde-P. 2.16 f. Ernout-M. 746 ff.

Lat. (early) pecu, pl. pecua, Umbr. pequo, Lat. pecus, gen. pecoris, coll. 'cattle' in wide sense, also esp. 'sheep' (hence It. pecora 'sheep'), pecus, gen. pecudis 'a head of cattle', pl. pecudēs 'cattle'; (Goth. faihu only 'property'), ON fē 'cattle' esp. 'sheep', and 'property', for 'cattle' also kvikfē (with kvikr 'living') and būfē (with bū 'household'), Dan. fæ, Sw. fä 'beast, brute', OE feoh, ME fie, fee 'cattle' and 'property' (but for NE fee, see NED fee, sb.[2]), Du. vee, OHG fihu, fehu, MHG vihe, NHG vieh 'cattle'; OPruss. pecku 'cattle', OLith. pekus 'cattle' in wide sense, but also 'small cattle', esp. 'sheep' (Hermann, Arch. sl. Ph. 40.161); Skt. paçu- 'domestic creature' (in AV 11.2.9 covers cows, horses, men, sheep, and goats; sometimes also asses, mules, camels, dogs; sometimes 'animal'), Av. pasu- mostly 'small cattle'.

2. Grk. κτήνη fr. the root of κέκτημαι 'own, possess' (11.12), κτάομαι 'get' (11.16), hence lit. 'possessions', but used only for property in cattle.

Grk. βοσκήματα, fr. βόσκω 'graze' (3.15).

Grk. πρόβατα, 'cattle' in general (Hom., Hdt., etc.), classified as large or small (cf. τὰ λεπτὰ τῶν προβάτων Hdt.; τὸ πρόβατον ϝέκαστον τὸ μέζον, τῶν δὲ μειόνων προβάτων, Arc. inscription), also 'small cattle' (Cret. τὰ πρόβατα καὶ καρταίποδα 'the small and large cattle'; καρταίποδα lit. 'strong-footed', cf. καρταίπους 'bull' in Pindar), in Att. 'small cattle' (Thuc.), usually 'sheep' (so in NG); fr. προβαίνω 'step forward', which is applicable to all grazing cattle. But Lommel, KZ 46.50 ff., assumes that 'small cattle' is the earlier meaning and comes from the notion of 'go in front'.

Grk. μῆλα (Hom., only poet.) 'small cattle, sheep and goats' : Ir. mīl 'animal' (3.11), Du. maal 'heifer', further connection with Goth. smals 'small', etc. dub. Walde-P. 1.296.

NG σφαχτά, lit. 'for slaughter' (: σφάζω 'slaughter'), used mainly for sheep and goats.

3. It. bestie, pl. of bestia 'beast' (3.11). Also bestiame, coll., mostly 'large cattle'.

Fr. bétail, coll. fr. OFr. adj. bestial, late Lat. bēstiālis, deriv. of bēstia 'beast' (3.11).

Sp. ganado, coll. fr. ganar 'gain, earn, acquire' (Fr. gagner, etc. REW 9483), through 'acquired property', hence 'cattle' as often. Cf. Boh. dobytek fr. dobyti 'acquire' (below, 7).

Rum. vite, pl. of vita 'domestic animal', ORum. 'animal', fr. Lat. vīta 'life', Semantic borrowing fr. Slavic, cf. ChSl. životŭ 'life' and 'animal'. Tiktin 1759. Sandfeld, Ling. balk. 86.

Rum. dobitoc 'domestic animal', fr. Slavic, Bulg. dobitŭk, etc. (below, 7).

4. Ir. indile (also 'goods, property') : OBr. endlim 'property', W. ennil, ynnill 'gain, profit', cpd. of ind- 'in', second part obscure, orig. meaning 'income'. Pedersen 1.148.

Ir. crod (also 'wealth'), perh. : W. cordd 'group, tribe', Goth. hairda 'herd', etc., or else to W. cerdded, OBr. credam 'walk'. Walde-P. 1.424. Pedersen 1.173; 2.381. By either connection the meaning 'cattle' is earlier than 'wealth'.

Ir. cethra 'cattle' in both wide and narrow sense, pl. of cethir 'quadruped', deriv. of cethir 'four' (cpd. like Lat. quadrupēs? So Pedersen 1.94).

MIr., NIr. airnēis (also 'goods, possessions, furniture'), prob. fr. ME harneis 'equipment'. K. Meyer, Contrib. 64.

NIr. eallach (also 'poultry', and 'household goods'; same word as eallach, MIr. ellach 'union, communion') : MIr. inloing 'claims', fr., 'puts in (a claim)', OIr. ellachtae gl. (terra) conferta (pecoribus), etc., cpd. of in- 'in' and -long-, IE legh-* 'lie, lay'. Pedersen 2.570. Walde-P. 2.424. Development fr. 'what lies in, belongs with' to 'union' and to 'belongings, equipment, goods', whence also 'cattle' as a further specialization.

NIr. beathaidhigh 'animals' (3.11) also used commonly for 'domestic animals'.

W. anifeiliaid 'animals' (3.11) also used commonly for 'domestic animals'.

W. da 'goods' (sb. form of da 'good'), also 'cattle', or da byw lit. 'live goods'.

Br. chatal, fr. OFr. chatel 'property, chattels'.

Br. loened, pl. of loen 'animal' (3.11), used commonly for domestic animals.

5. ON fē, OE fēoh, etc., above, 1.

ON smali 'small cattle', esp. 'sheep' : Goth. smals 'small', etc. Falk-Torp 1077.

Dan. kreaturer pl., Sw. kreatur coll., through 'animal' fr. Lat. creātūra 'creature'. Cf. the once very common use in New England of creature, critter for cattle (NED s.v. 2b). Falk-Torp 578. Hellquist 507 f.

ME ca(t)te(l)l, NE cattle, fr. OFr. catel (northern dial., beside chatel), Lat. capitāle neut. of capitālis deriv. of caput 'head'. Used in MLat. for 'principal sum of money, capital', hence 'movable property' in OFr. and sometimes in ME (in this sense now replaced by chattels fr. OFr. chatel); but soon specialized to 'livestock' and in present use still further specialized to the bovine animals. Cf. NED s.v.

NE stock 'fund, property' also used for 'farm animals' since 16th cent., hence livestock since end of 18th cent. NED stock, sb. 54, and livestock.

6. Lith. gyvoliai, pl. of gyvolis 'animal' (3.11), commonly used for 'domestic animals'.

Lith. banda, coll., properly a 'herd of cattle' : Goth. bindan 'bind', NE bind, band, etc., IE bhend-*. Walde-P. 2.152.

Lett. luopi (pl. of luops 'domestic animal'; also mājas luopi with gen. sg. of māja 'house'), without clear connection, perh. : Alb. lópë 'cow'. Walde-P. 2.383. Mühl.-Endz. 2.527 ff.

7. ChSl. skotŭ, Russ. skot (SCr., Pol. skot no longer the usual word, Boh. skot now of bovine species), loanword fr. Gmc., Goth. skatts 'money', OHG skaz 'money, riches' (NHG schatz 'treasure'), OFris. sket 'money' and 'cattle'. Root connection dub., but 'property' prob. the earlier meaning. Brückner 495. Stender-Petersen 311 ff. Feist 429.

SCr. stoka : steći 'acquire', ChSl. sŭtešti 'flow together'. Cf. Bulg. stoka 'goods, wares', živa stoka 'livestock'. Miklosich 347. Brückner 516.

SCr. marva, earlier marha, in this sense through Hung. marha 'cattle', this fr. OHG mer(c)ha 'mare'. Berneker 2.19.

Boh. dobytek, fr. dobyti 'acquire', cpd. of byti 'be'. So also Pol. dobytek (now mostly replaced by bydło), Bulg. dobytŭk.

Pol. bydło : Boh. bydlo 'dwelling' fr. the root of ChSl. byti 'be, exist', whence various derivations meaning 'dwell' (7.11). Development in Polish fr. 'dwelling' to 'property', then 'cattle' in wide and narrow sense. Berneker 112. Brückner 52.

8. Skt. paçu-, Av. pasu-, above, 1.

Av. staora- 'large cattle' (ox, horse, camel) : Skt. sthavira- 'thick, sturdy', Goth. stiur 'male calf', OE stēor 'young ox', etc. (3.20–3.24). Walde-P. 2.609.

Verbs for 'pasture' are partly from 'feed', partly from 'drive, guard, tend', etc.

1. Grk. νέμω, same word as νέμω 'distribute, dispense' (in Hom. esp. of food and drink), this prob. : Goth., OE niman, etc. 'take' (see 11.13). Walde-P. 2.330 f. Development in Greek either fr. 'dispense (food)' to 'ration, feed (cattle)', or more prob. through the sbs. νομός, νομή ('allotment' >) 'pasture', with reflex action on the use of the vb.

Grk. ποιμαίνω, fr. ποιμήν 'herdsman' (3.18).

Grk. βόσκω (cf. also βοτόν 'head of cattle'), perh. : Lith. gauja 'pack' (of wolves, dogs), guiti 'chase, hunt', and ultimately connected with Grk. βοῦς 'ox', etc. Walde-P. 1.697.

Grk. βουκολέω, deriv. of βουκόλος 'cowherd, herdsman' (3.18), and orig. used only of bovine cattle, then also of horses, etc.

2. Lat. pāscere : ChSl. pasti 'pasture', Goth. fōdjan 'feed', OE fōda 'food', etc. (5.12). Walde-P. 2.72 ff. Ernout-M. 737 f. Hence It. pascere, pascolare, Fr. paître, Sp. pacer, apacentar (also pastar new deriv. of the sb. pasio 'pasture', Lat. pastus), Rum. paşte. REW 6263.

3. Ir. ingairim, usual word for 'herding' (cattle, etc.) in Laws; cpd. of gairim 'call' (18.41).

Ir. gelim (intr. 'graze'; also 'devour'), NIr. in-gheilim : W. gel, Ir. gelit 'leech', OHG kela, NHG kehle 'throat', etc., IE gel-* 'devour'. Walde-P. 1.621.

NIr. buchaillighim, W. bugeilio, fr. NIr. buachaill, W. bugail 'herdsman' (3.18), like Grk. ποιμαίνω fr. ποιμήν.

W. pori (also porfelu fr. porfel 'a pasture', this beside porfa lit. 'pasture-place', cpd. with ma 'place'), Br. peuri, with the sbs. W. pawr, Br. peur, fr. MLat. pāburum, pāburāre* (latter in Du Cange), Lat. pābulum 'fodder', pābulārī 'graze'(?). Henry 222. Ernault, Glossaire 353. (Not in Loth, Mots lat.).

4. Goth. haldan (renders Grk. βόσκω, ποιμαίνω), OE healdan 'keep, guard, hold' also 'tend cattle' (e.g. in Gospels, Mk. 5.14), OHG haltan 'keep, guard' also 'tend cattle' (Otfr. 1.12.1, etc.), OS haldan 'guard, preserve' perh. :

Grk. κέλλω 'drive' (a ship), Skt. kal- in caus. kālaya- 'drive', in which case the Gmc. development is fr. 'drive' to 'tend cattle' (cf. Lith. ganyti, below, 5), then generalized to 'guard, keep, hold'. Walde-P. 1.442 ff. Feist 239 f.

ON bīta 'bite' and 'graze', caus. beita (with dat.) 'let graze, pasture', Sw. beta : Goth. beitan, OE bītan 'bite', Skt. bhid-, Lat. findere 'split', etc. Walde-P. 2.138. Hellquist 67.

Dan. græsse (a and b, but for a usually sætte paa græs), OE grasian (rare), ME grase, NE graze (mostly intr.), derivs. of Dan., OE græs 'grass'.

OE lǣswian, ME leswe, deriv. of OE lǣs 'pasture', this fr. OE lǣtan 'let, leave', as land that was 'let alone, untilled'. Cf. NED s.v. lease, sb.[1].

ME, NE pasture, fr. OFr. pasturer, deriv. of OFr. pasture 'pasture' (Fr. pâture 'fodder'), fr. late Lat. pāstūra.

OHG weidenōn, weidōn, MHG weidenen, weiden, NHG, Du. weiden, fr. OHG weida 'pasture, fodder, hunting, fishing' : ON veiðr 'hunting, fishing', OE wāþ 'hunting, wandering', fr. an extension of IE wei-* in Skt. veti, vayati 'seeks, follows', Av. vayeiti 'pursues', Lith. vyti 'pursue, hunt', etc. Walde-P. 1.230. Falk-Torp 1361. Development of 'pasture' fr. 'hunting ground' or 'place for seeking fodder' or both.

5. Lith. ganyti (a), refl. ganytis (b), Lett. ganīt (a), refl. ganīties (b), deriv. of Lith. genu, ginti, Lett. dzīt 'drive' : ChSl. ženą, gŭnati, goną, goniti 'drive', Skt. han-, Grk. θείνω 'strike', etc., IE g^when-*. Walde-P. 1.679 ff. Development from 'strike' to 'drive', then 'drive cattle', 'tend cattle'. Cf. VLat. mināre 'drive cattle' fr. minārī 'threaten', and the specialization in NE drover.

6. ChSl. pasą, pasti (a), pres. pass. pple. pasomŭ 'grazing' (b) : Lat. pāscere, above, 2. SCr. pasti (a, b), Boh. pásti (a), pásti se (b) and similarly in the other Slavic languages.

7. Skt. car- 'move about, wander', also 'graze' (b, caus. a) : Grk. πέλω 'be in motion', Lat. colere 'cultivate', etc. IE k^wel-*. Cf. NPers. čarīdan 'pasture'. Walde-P. 1.514 ff.

Av. vāstrya-, deriv. of vāstra- 'fodder' and 'pasture' (cf. also vāstar- 'herdsman'), this prob. : Skt. vas- 'consume' (rare), OE wist, 'food', etc. (5.12). Walde-P. 1.306 ff. Connection with OHG weida (Barth. 1413) is to be rejected on both formal and semantic grounds, since it takes no account of the history of weida (above, 4).

3.17 PASTURE (sb.)

Grk.	νομός	Goth.	winja	Lith.	ganykla
NG	νομή, βοσκή	ON	hagi	Lett.	ganība, ganīkla
Lat.	pāscuum	Dan.	græsningsland, græsgang	ChSl.	pažitĭ
It.	pascolo	Sw.	bete, betesmark	SCr.	paša
Fr.	pâture	OE	lǣswe	Boh.	pastviště
Sp.	apacentedero	ME	pasture, leswe	Pol.	pastwisko
Rum.	păşune	NE	pasture	Russ.	pastbišče
Ir.	geltboth	Du.	weide	Skt.	gavyūti-, etc.
NIr.	ingheilt, inghealtas	OHG	weida, winne	Av.	vāstra-, gaoyaoti-
W.	porfel, porfa	MHG	weide
Br.	peur	NHG	weide

Nearly all the nouns for 'pasture' are derived from, or in a few cases are the source of, the verbs for 'pasture', discussed in 3.16. Many of these cover both 'pasture' as the place and 'pasturage' (as formerly both NE words).

The few others are:

1. Goth. winja : ON vin 'meadow', OE wynn 'delight', rarely 'pasture', OHG winne 'pasture', wunnia 'meadow, pasture' and 'delight' (NHG wonne 'bliss'), Lat. Venus, venus 'love', Skt. van- 'wish, love, win', etc. Development fr. 'delight' through 'place of comfort' or the like to 'meadow' or 'pasture'. Walde-P. 1.258 ff. Feist 565.

2. ON hagi : OE haga 'hedge, inclosure, yard' (NE haw), OHG hag 'hedge, inclosed land', Du. haag 'hedge', Sw. hage 'inclosure, inclosed pasture', Dan. have 'garden', Skt. kakṣā- 'girdle, surrounding wall', etc. Walde-P. 1.337. Falk-Torp 386.

3. ChSl. pažitĭ (= νομή in Gospels, etc., Jagić, Entstehungsgesch. 377; λειμών in Supr.), fr. žiti 'live'. Miklosich 411.

4. Skt. gavyūti-, Av. gaoyaoti-, cpd. of gav-, gao- 'ox, cow', second part related to Skt. yoni-, Av. yaona- 'place, home', hence 'place for cattle'. Barth. 484.

3.18 HERDSMAN
(Or Cowherd, Shepherd, Etc.)

Grk.	ποιμήν, βουκόλος, αἰπόλος	Goth.	hairdeis	Lith.	kerdžius, ganytojas, piemuo
NG	τσοπάνης	ON	hirðir	Lett.	gans
Lat.	pāstor	Dan.	hyrde, kvægvogter	ChSl.	pastyrĭ, pastuchŭ
It.	pastore	Sw.	herde, boskapsherde	SCr.	pastir, čoban, kravar, etc.
Fr.	pâtre, berger, etc.	OE	hirde	Boh.	pastýř, pastucha, kravák, etc.
Sp.	pastor, vaquero, manadero	ME	herde	Pol.	pastuch, pasterz
Rum.	cioban (păstor)	NE	herdsman; -herd	Russ.	pastuch
Ir.	buachaill, ūgaire	Du.	herder, veehoeder	Skt.	gopa-, paçupā-, etc.
NIr.	buachaill, aodhaire	OHG	hirti	Av.	vāstar-
W.	bugail	MHG	hirt(e), herter
Br.	bugel	NHG	hirt

Several words originally covering 'herdsman' in general have become specialized to 'shepherd', and conversely others that were originally specific, as for 'cowherd' or 'shepherd', have become generalized in use.

In general the specific terms are more common, sometimes the only ones in popular use.

1. Grk. ποιμήν, in Hom. 'herdsman' (of sheep or oxen), later only 'shepherd' : Lith. piemuo 'shepherd', Grk. πῶυ 'flock' (of sheep), Skt. pā- 'protect', go-pa- 'cowherd', etc., IE *pō(i)-. Walde-P. 2.72.

Grk. βου-κόλος 'cowherd', sometimes 'herdsman' (cf. βουκόλος ἵππων), beside αἰ-πόλος 'goat-herd', οἰο-πόλος 'shepherd' (rare in this sense, replaced by ποιμήν), cpds. of βοῦς 'ox, cow', αἴξ 'goat', οἶς 'sheep', second part : Grk. πέλω 'be in motion', Lat. colere 'cultivate', Skt. car- 'move about, graze' (3.16), etc., IE *k^{w}el-. Walde-P. 1.514 ff.

NG τσοπάνης 'shepherd' (ποιμήν lit. and mostly fig.), like Rum. cioban, SCr. čoban, loanword fr. Turk. çoban 'shepherd' (orig. Pers., Lokotsch 1921).

2. Lat. pāstor, fr. pāscere 'pasture' (3.15). Hence It. pastore 'herdsman', Fr. pâtre, pasteur (both lit.), Sp. pastor 'shepherd', Rum. păstor 'shepherd'.

In French usually only specific terms as berger 'shepherd', bouvier 'oxherd', vacher 'cowherd', chevrier 'goatherd', derivs. of the words for 'sheep' (Lat. vervex 'wether', later 'sheep', 3.27), 'ox', 'cow', 'goat'.

Sp. vaquero fr. vaca 'cow'.

Sp. manadero fr. manada 'flock, herd', deriv. of VLat. mināre 'drive cattle'.

3. Ir. buachaill, W. bugail, Br. bugel, all orig. 'cowherd', but not so restricted (cf. NIr. buachaill bō 'cowherd'), cpds. of words for 'ox, cow', and prob. the same root as in Grk. βουκόλος, etc. (above, 1). Pedersen 1.127.

Ir. ūgaire 'shepherd', NIr. aodhaire 'shepherd' and 'herdsman' (cf. aodhaire bō 'cowherd'), cpd. of uī 'sheep' (3.25), and the root of gairim 'call' (18.41).

4. Goth. hairdeis, ON hirðir, OE hirde, NE -herd in shepherd, cowherd, etc., dial. herd 'shepherd', OHG hirti, NHG hirt, etc., general Gmc. word, now partly specialized to 'shepherd' (so mostly in Dan., Sw., Du., NHG), deriv. of noun Goth. hairda, OE heord 'herd', etc. : Skt. çardha-, çardhas- 'troop, multitude', Av. sarəδa- 'kind, species', etc. Walde-P. 1.424. Feist 234.

Where the word is specialized to 'shepherd', it may be replaced in other senses, as Dan. kvægvogter, cpd. of kvæg

'cattle' (3.20) and vogte 'watch, tend', Sw. boskapsherde, cpd. of boskap 'cattle' (3.20), Sw. vallare fr. valla 'tend' (cattle), Du. veehoeder, cpd. of vee 'cattle' (3.15) and hoede 'guard', like NHG viehhüter.

ME herdman, NE herdsman, replacing herd in general sense except in the cpds. shepherd, cowherd, etc., but less used than the specific terms.

5. Lith. kerdžius : Goth. hairdeis, etc., above, 4. Walde-P. 1.424.

Lith. ganytojas, deriv. of ganyti 'pasture (3.16), fr. the same root also Lett. gans (Lith. ganas '(Pferde)hirt', in NSB).

Lith. piemuo 'shepherd : Grk. ποιμήν, above, 1.

6. ChSl. pastyrĭ, pastuchŭ, fr. pasti 'pasture' (3.16), and so the other Slavic words. Beside these and in more common use in some of the Slavic languages is a series of specific terms derived from the names of the animals, as SCr. govedar, kravar, ovčar, svinjar, kozar 'cattle-, cow-, shep-, swine-, goat-herd', Boh. kravák, ovčak, etc., like Fr. bouvier, vacher, berger, etc.

7. Skt. gopa- 'cowherd' also 'protector', cpd. of go- 'ox, cow' and pā- 'protect' also gorakṣaka- with rakṣ- 'protect'. With pā- likewise paçu-pā-, paçu-pāla- fr. paçu 'cattle' (3.15), and specific avi-pāla- 'shepherd' fr. avi- 'sheep', etc.

Av. vāstar-, fr. the same root as vāstra-, vb. vāstrya- 'pasture' (3.16).

3.19 STABLE, STALL

Grk.	σταθμός	Goth.	(awistr)	Lith.	tvartas, kūtė
NG	στάβλος	ON	fjōs, stallr, stallhūs	Lett.	kūts, stallis
Lat.	stabulum	Dan.	stald	ChSl.	chlěvŭ
It.	stalla, scuderia	Sw.	stall	SCr.	staja, štala
Fr.	étable, écurie	OE	steall	Boh.	stáj, chlév
Sp.	establo	ME	stal, stable	Pol.	stajnia (chlew)
Rum.	staul, grajd	NE	stall, stable	Russ.	stojlo, chlev
Ir.	līas	Du.	stal	Skt.	goṭra-, goṣṭha-
NIr.	stābla	OHG	stal	Av.	gavō-stāna-, aspō-stāna-, etc.
W.	ystabl	MHG	stal
Br.	kraou, staol	NHG	stall

The heading is intended to cover words denoting the place where the domestic animals are kept, without regard to the present distinction between NE stall and stable and the usual restriction of the latter to a place for horses. Several of the words entered are used only or mostly for 'stable' in this restricted sense, as It. scuderia, Fr. écurie.

But specific terms derived from the names of the animals, like Lat. bovīle, ovīle, W. marchdy, beudy (lit. 'horse-house', 'cow-house'), Russ. konjušnja (fr. kon' 'horse'), etc., are not included, except where generic terms are lacking (as in Avestan).

Also not included are the numerous words denoting an outer inclosure for domestic animals, like OE, ME fald (fr. vb. fealdan 'bend, fold'), NE fold (esp. sheepfold), Grk. μάνδρα, Skt. vraja- etc.

The majority of the words are from the notion of 'standing place', a few from 'hut', 'pen', or the like.

For occasional confusion between the notions of 'stable' and 'barn' (as in U.S. usage of barn), see 8.14.

1. Derivs. of IE *stā- 'stand'. Walde-P. 2.604 ff. Ernout-M. 984.

Grk. σταθμός; Lat. stabulum, whence OFr. estable (> ME, NE stable > NIr. stābla, W. ystabl), Fr. étable, Sp. establo,

Rum. staul, Byz., NG στάβλος, Br. staol; (Goth. awistr, OE ēowestre, etc. 'sheepfold'); SCr. staja, Boh. stáj, Pol. stajnia, Russ. stojlo; Skt. go-ṣṭha- ('cow-stall', but also more general, hence even go-goṣṭha-), go-sthāna-, uṣṭra-sthāna-, Av. gavō-stāna-, aspō-stāna-, uštrō-stāna- (cpds. with words for 'ox', 'horse', 'camel').

Here also (fr. IE *stə-dhlo-, as Lat. stabulum, or more prob. a parallel IE *stel-) the Gmc. group, ON stallr (also stallhūs), OE steall, NE stall, OHG stal, etc., whence also It. stalla, Lett. stallis (fr. MLG stal) and SCr. štala. Walde-P. 2.644. Falk-Torp 1147.

ME stall and stable were both used for the building in which domestic animals were kept, but stall came to be used mostly of the standing place for a single animal, and stable of the building for horses.

2. It. scuderia, Fr. écurie 'stable' for horses, derivs. of scudiero, écuyer orig. 'shield-bearer' fr. Lat. scutārius, then also 'page, groom', hence 'place where the grooms stayed, stable'. But in French prob. blended with a loanword fr. OHG scūr 'covered place, shed', scūra 'barn' (so scuria in Lex. Sal.). REW 7759. Gamillscheg 343.

Rum. grajd, loanword fr. Slavic (below, 6).

3. Ir. līas, etym.?

Br. kraou : W. (obs.) crau 'pigsty', craw 'sty, hovel', Ir. crō 'inclosure, pen', etc. (these : OE hrōf 'roof', etc. Pedersen 1.92; rejected by Walde-P. 1.477).

4. ON fjōs, contraction of *fē-hūs 'cattle-house', cpd. of fē 'cattle' (3.15).

5. Lith. kūtė, Lett. kūts, fr. MLG kot, kote 'hut, shed' (cf. OE cot 'hut', etc. 7.13). Mühl.-Endz. 2.338.

Lith. tvartas, fr. tverti 'comprise, inclose', like tvora 'fence', etc., hence orig. 'inclosure'. Walde-P. 1.750.

6. ChSl. chlěvŭ (also 'hut'), Boh. chlév, Pol. chlew (now esp. 'pigsty'), Russ. chlev, loanword fr. Gmc. *χlaiwa- 'hut' (Goth. hlaiw 'grave' beside hleiþra, hlija 'tent', etc. fr. IE *klei- 'incline'; Walde-P. 1.490 ff.). Berneker 389. Stender-Petersen 239 ff.

ChSl. graždĭ (late), Bulg. gražd (> Rum. grajd), deriv. of ChSl. gradŭ 'city' and 'garden', orig. 'inclosed place'. Berneker 330.

7. Skt. (beside go-ṣṭha-, above, 1) go-tra- fr. go- 'ox, cow' and suffix- -tra- denoting place, but not restricted to bovine species.

Av. gavō-stāna-, aspō-stāna-, etc. (above, 1) for the large animals, also (nmānəm) gāvayəm, lit. '(house) for oxen'. For small animals, as sheep, pasuš-hasta-, cpd. of pasu- 'small cattle' (3.15) and *hasta- fr. had- 'sit' = Skt. sad-. Cf. Vd. 15.23 ff., where the whole series occurs.

3.20–3.24. Groups of cognates which appear under several of these headings.

1. IE *g^{w}ou-, nom. sg. *g^{w}ōus, the old generic word for the bovine species, 'ox' or 'cow'. Restricted to 'ox' in the Romance languages, to 'cow' in Celtic, Gmc., Lett., Arm. Walde-P. 1.696 f. Ernout-M. 115. Pedersen 2.26, 51, 93.

Grk. βοῦς 'ox, cow', pl. βόες 'cattle', dim. βοΐδιον, whence NG βόδι 'ox', pl. βόδια 'cattle'; Lat. bōs 'ox, cow' (loanword fr. a rural dial., cf. Umbr. bum, bue, etc.), whence It. bue, bove, Fr. bœuf, Sp. buey, Rum. bou, all 'ox' (but also 'bull' in dialects, REW 1225); Ir. bo, W. buwch, Br. buoc'h, all 'cow', Br. pl. biou 'cattle', Ir. buar coll. 'cattle'; ON kȳr, OE cū, etc., all the Gmc. words for 'cow' (NE kine old pl., now coll. and sometimes used generically = cattle); Lett. guovs 'cow', ChSl. *govędo, SCr. govedo 'head of cattle', SCr. pl. goveda 'cattle' (Boh. hovado 'beast', Russ. govjadina 'beef'); Skt. go-, Av. gao- 'ox, cow'; Arm. kov 'cow'.

2. Goth. stiur 'male calf' (renders τὸν μόσχον), ON stjōrr (rare), OE stēor, OHG stior, all mostly 'young ox', MHG, NHG stier 'bull' (but dial. 'ox'), NE steer '(young) ox' (in U.S., where oxen are used for hauling, steer is still 'young ox', but otherwise and regularly in the packing industry steer is the grown castrated animal raised for beef, and ox is not in use) : Av. staora- 'large cattle', Skt. sthūra- 'strong, thick', sthavira- 'thick, sturdy', OHG stūri 'strong', etc. Further inclusion in this group of Grk. ταῦρος 'bull', etc., disputed but probable (see 3.21). Walde-P. 2.609. Feist 454.

3. Goth. auhsus, auhsa, ON oxi (uxi), OE oxa, etc., the general Gmc. word for 'ox', W. ych 'ox', Br. oc'hen 'oxen', Ir. oss 'stag', Skt. ukṣan-, Av. uxšan- 'bull', prob. : Skt. ukṣ- 'sprinkle, emit seed', Grk. ὑγρός 'moist', etc. Cf. Skt. vṛṣan- 'male, bull, stallion', Lat. verrēs 'boar' : Skt. vṛṣ- 'rain', etc. Walde-P. 1.248. Orig. 'bull', then kept for the castrated 'ox' in Gmc., etc. Cf. NE bullock orig. 'young bull', later 'ox' (cf. NED), likewise Lett. vērsis 'ox' (3.22). Walde-P. 1.248. Feist 66.

3.20. 'Cattle', understood here as a generic term for the bovine species, may be expressed by plural forms or by singular collectives belonging to the inherited group, Grk. βοῦς, etc. just discussed. Others have come through 'cattle' in the wider sense, mostly from 'property', several of these already discussed in 3.15. A few reflect 'living creature', 'horned', 'head'.

1. In the Romance languages there are no fully established popular and distinctive generic terms for the bovine species. It. buoi, pl. of bue 'ox', may be so used. The French peasant, according to various informants, will use le bétail (3.15), les bestiaux 'the animals' (pl. of bête, 3.11), les vaches 'the cows', etc. Sp. ganado (3.15) and Rum. vite (3.15) are also commonly used for 'cattle' in the narrower sense.

2. Ir. buar, Br. biou : Ir. bō 'cow', etc.

W. gwartheg : gwerth 'worth, value', with development through 'property' to 'cattle', as often. Loth, RC 36.159.

Br. saout, fr. Lat. soldus, solidus in its late use as the name of a gold coin, hence through 'money, property' to 'cattle' in wide sense, then in narrow sense, like NE cattle. MBr. Solt-, Soult in place-names seems to have meant a small landed property. Loth, Mots lat. 209.

3. ON naut, naut-fē (Dan. nød, Sw. nöt), OE nēat, ME nete (NE neat in neat cattle, but mostly obs.), OHG nōz, etc. : Goth. niutan, OE nēotan 'enjoy, make use of, obtain', Lith. nauda 'use, profit', Lett. nauda 'property, money'. Hence orig. 'useful property'. Walde-P. 2.325 ff. Falk-Torp 757.

Dan. kvæg, fr. MLG quek 'cattle' sb. use of quek 'living', hence orig. 'living creature, animal', then 'livestock' like ON kvikfē (3.15), now mostly 'cattle' in narrow sense. Falk-Torp 609.

Sw. boskap, in OSw. 'household, household goods, property', deriv. of bo 'house'. Hellquist 85.

OE hrīðer, ME rother, Du. rund, OHG (h)rind, MHG, NHG rind, all used in sg. for 'bovine animal, head of cattle', pl. 'cattle' (for which also coll. NHG rindvieh, Du. rundvee), prob. orig. 'horned animal' : OE horn, Lat. cornū, Grk. κέρας 'horn'. Walde-P. 1.407. NED s.v. rother.

NE cattle, see 3.15.

4. Lith. galvijas 'head of cattle', deriv. of galva 'head'.

Lett. guov(s)luops, lielluops (pl. -i in list), cpds. of luops 'domestic animal' (3.15) with guovs 'cow' or liels 'large'.

5. ChSl. *govędo (adj. govęždĭ Supr.), SCr. govedo 'bovine animal', pl. goveda 'cattle' (Russ. govjado obs., but govjadina 'beef'), etc. : Grk. βοῦς, etc. (above, p. 152). Berneker 338.

ChSl. (late) nuta, loanword fr. Gmc., ON naut, etc., above, 3. Stender-Petersen 307 ff.

Boh., Russ. skot, Pol. bydło, see 3.15.

3.21. 'Bull'. 1. Grk. ταῦρος; Lat. taurus (> It., Sp. toro, Rum. taur, OFr. tor, Fr. taureau), Osc. ταυρομ, Umbr. toru; Gall. tarvos, Ir. tarb, NIr. tarbh, W. tarw, Br. taro (Celtic forms with cons. transposition); ON þjōrr, Dan. tyr, Sw. tjur (these influenced by the group ON stjōrr, etc.) : OPruss. tauris, Lith. tauras 'wild ox', ChSl. turŭ 'wild ox'(?). Perh. IE *təu-ro- fr. *tēu- 'swell, be strong' in Skt. tāuti, tavīti 'is strong', etc. (so Walde-P. 1.711, Brugmann, Grd. 2.1.353), but more prob. to be combined with OE stēor, etc. Ernout-M. 1018. Falk-Torp 1309. Feist 454.

2. ON boli, ME bule, bole, NE bull, MLG bulle (> NHG bulle, much used in the north in place of stier; also the source of Lith. bulius, Lett. bullis), Du. bul, prob. : ON bǫllr 'ball, testicle', OHG ballo 'ball', OE beallucas 'testicles' (so NE balls in vulgar use), Grk. φαλλός 'penis', Lat. follis 'leather bag', etc. Walde-P. 2.178.

ON grað-ungr, also grað-uxi, cpds. of graðr 'entire', as in grað-hestr 'stallion', grað-hafr 'he-goat'.

ON tarfr (rare), loanword fr. Celtic, Ir. tarb, etc. (above, 1).

ON farri (rare), OE fearr, OHG far, farro, MHG varre, NHG farre (now dial.; Du. var 'young bull'; also Du. vaars, NHG färse 'heifer') : Grk. πόρτις (Hom. πόρις, πόρταξ) 'calf, young cow', Lat. parere 'bear, beget'. Orig. 'young of an animal', variously specialized . Walde-P. 2.41. Franck–v. W. 720, 723.)

3. ChSl. (late) bykŭ, SCr. bik, etc., all the Slavic words : SCr. bukati 'roar', Skt. bukkati 'roars', buk-kāra- 'lion's roar', fr. an imitative bu. Walde-P. 2.112 ff. Berneker 112.

4. Skt. ukṣan-, Av. uxšan- : Goth. auhsa 'ox', etc. (above, p. 153).

Skt. ṛṣabha- and vṛṣabha-, fr. vṛṣan-, etc. 'male' (2.23).

3.22. Most of the words for 'ox' have been discussed above (pp. 152, 153). The others are:

1. Ir. dam, NIr. damh : Skt. damya- 'to be tamed', 'young bull', Grk. δαμάλης 'young ox, steer', δάμαλις 'young cow, heifer', Skt. dam-, Grk. δάμνημι, Goth. gatamjan, etc. 'tame'. Walde-P. 1.789.

W. eidion, Br. ejen, OCorn. odion, etym.? Pedersen 1.370. Henry 111.

2. Lith. jautis : Lett. jūtis 'joint', Skt. go-yūti- 'yoke of cattle', yu- 'bind, yoke, harness', yuga- 'yoke', Grk. ζυγόν, Lat. iugum 'yoke', Lat. iūmentum 'draught-animal', etc., hence orig. 'yoke animal'. Walde-P. 1.201.

Lett. vērsis orig. 'bull', now 'ox' (Lith. veršis 'calf') : Skt. vṛṣan- 'male, bull, stallion', Lat. verrēs 'boar', etc. Walde-P. 1.269. Mühl.-Endz. 4.565.

3. ChSl. volŭ, etc., all the Slavic words, etym.?

3.23. The majority of the words for 'cow' represent the IE word for 'ox, cow', Grk. βοῦς, etc., with specialization to 'cow' in Gmc. and Celtic. See above, p. 152. The others are:

1. NG ἀγελάδα, through ἀγελάς, -άδος, fr. Grk. ἀγέλη 'herd'.

2. Lat. vacca (> Romance words), prob. : Skt. vaçā- 'cow' (for use cf. BR s.v., Macdowell-Keith 2.273). Walde-P. 1.214 (adversely). Ernout-M. 1068.

3. Ir. ferb, NIr. fearbh : Lat. vervex 'wether'? Walde-P. 1.270. Pokorny, Z. celt. Ph. 17.304 ff.

Ir. ag : Skt. ahī- 'cow' (rare), Av. azī- adj. 'with young' (of cows or mares), Arm. ezn 'ox'. Walde-P. 1.38.

4. Lith. karvė, ChSl. krava, etc., all the Slavic words for 'cow' (also OPruss. curvis, Pol. karw 'ox') : Lat. cervus, W. carw, OE heorot, etc. 'stag, deer' (3.75), all orig. 'horned' : OE horn, Lat. cornū, Grk. κέρας 'horn'. Walde-P. 1.406 ff.

5. Skt. vaçā-, above, 2.

3.24. Most of the words for 'calf' are specialized from 'young of an animal', this from 'young', 'yearling', etc.

1. Grk. μόσχος : Arm. mozi 'calf', root connection? Walde-P. 2.309. Boisacq 646.

2. Lat. vitulus (dim. vitellus > It. vitello, Fr. veau, Rum. viţel), orig. 'yearling' : Grk. dial. ἔτελον, ἔταλον 'yearling', ἔτος 'year', Skt. vatsa- 'calf', etc. Walde-P. 1.251. Ernout-M. 1118.

Sp. ternero, deriv. of tierno 'young', Lat. tener 'soft, tender'. REW 8645.

Sp. becerro, perh. fr. Lat. ibex 'chamois' (Korominas).

3. Ir. lāeg, lōeg, NIr. laogh, W. llo, Br. leue, prob. fr. *lāpego- : Alb. lopë 'cow'. Pedersen 2.22. Loth, RC 44.267 ff.

4. Goth. kalbō 'female calf', ON kālfr, OE cealf, etc., same word as ON kālfr 'calf of the leg', fr. *gel-bh- an extension of *gel- in Skt. gula- 'ball', Lat. galla 'gallnut', parallel to *gel-t- in Goth. kilþei 'womb', OE cild 'child', and with a similar semantic development, in this case 'swelling' to 'womb', 'fetus', 'young of an animal', 'calf'. But in part perh. blended with *g^{w}elbh- in Grk. δελφύς, Skt. garbha- 'womb', etc. In any case 'calf' is a specialization of 'young of an animal'. Walde-P. 1.615, 692. Feist 305 f.

5. Lith. telias, Lett. tel'š, ChSl. telę, dim. telĭcĭ, SCr., Boh. tele, Pol. cielę, Russ. telenok (pl. teljata), perh. as 'born' fr. *tel- 'raise, carry' (Lat. tollere, etc.), like Goth. barn 'child' fr. *bher- 'carry'. Walde-P. 1.740, top.

Lith. veršis, OPruss. werstian : Lett. vērsis 'ox' (3.22).

6. Skt. vatsa-, above, 2.

3.25. Generic words for 'sheep', several of them also or only 'ewe'.

1. IE *owi-, nom. sg. *owis. Walde-P. 1.167. Ernout-M. 717 f.

Grk. ὄϝις (Arg. acc. pl. ὄϝιυς), ὄϊς (Hom.), οἶς, the reg. word in Homer and most dialects, but replaced in Att. by πρόβατον; Lat. ovis (> OFr. oue, Rum. oaie), late dim. ovicula (> Sp. oveja 'ewe' but also generic); Ir. ōi generic and 'ewe', Ir. ōisc, NIr. fōisc (f by sentence phonetics) 'ewe', (W. ewig 'hind'); (Goth. awēþi 'herd of sheep', awistr 'sheepfold', but lamb 'sheep', cf. Jn. 10.15, 16), ON ær, OE eowu, ME, NE ewe, Du. ooi, OHG ou, ouwi, MHG ouwe (NHG dial. aue), all 'ewe'; Lith. avis, Lett. avs, 'sheep' or 'ewe', derivs. Lith. avinas, Lett. auns 'male sheep' ('ram' or 'wether'), Lith. avinėlis 'lamb', Lett. aita, aitin'a 'sheep'; ChSl. ovĭca, SCr. ovca, etc., all the Slavic words for 'sheep' or 'ewe', deriv. ChSl. ovĭnŭ, SCr. ovan 'ram'; Skt. avi- 'sheep', 'ewe'.

2. Att., NG πρόβατον, specialized fr. 'cattle, small cattle' (3.15).

3. It. pecora, fr. Lat. pecora pl. of pecus 'cattle, small cattle, sheep' (3.15).

Fr. mouton, orig. 'wether', 3.27.

Sp. carnero, orig. 'wether', see 3.27.

For the distribution of Lat. ovis, pecora, fēta, vervex in Romance, cf. Wartburg, Abh. Preuss. Akad. 1918, no. 10.

4. Ir. cāera, NIr. caora, deriv. of Ir. cāer 'berry, lump, clod', hence 'sheep' from its characteristic droppings. Thurneysen, Z. celt. Ph. 13.107.

Ir. cit, cetnait 'sheep' or 'lamb' : Arm. xoy 'wether', očxar 'sheep', NIcel. hjeða 'sheep, sheepshead'. Walde-P. 1.384. Pedersen 1.120. Johannesson, KZ 67.220.

W. dafad, Br. dañvad : Ir. dam 'ox', Grk. δαμάλης 'young ox', Skt. damya- 'to be tamed, young bull', Skt. dam-, Grk. δάμνημι 'tame', etc., orig. 'tamed animal' specialized in different ways. Walde-P. 1.789. Pedersen 1.132.

5. Goth. lamb, see 3.29.

ON sauðr (Norw. sau, Sw. dial. sö) : Goth. sauþs 'sacrifice', orig. the boiled mutton offered in pagan sacrifices : ON sjōða, OE sēoþan 'boil'. Walde-P. 2.471. Falk-Torp 952. Feist 413.

ON fær (rare), Dan. faar, Sw. får (Norw. riksmål får 'mutton' vs. sau 'sheep') : Grk. πόκος 'fleece', etc. Walde-P. 2.17. Falk-Torp 199.

OE scēap, NE sheep, OHG scāf, etc., the regular West Gmc. word, with no generally accepted etym., but perh. as orig. 'creature' : Goth. ga-skap-jan, etc. 'create'. Holthausen IF 39.74. Cf. Dan., Sw. kreatur, NE dial. creature, critter for 'cattle, livestock' (3.15), and the specialization of 'cattle' to 'sheep' in It. pecora, Grk. πρόβατον (above, 2, 3).

6. Balto-Slavic words, above, 1.

7. Av. anu-maya-, adj. in pasu-anumaya- 'pecus ovillum', and as sb. the usual word for 'sheep', orig. 'bleating' : Skt. mā- 'bleat', etc. Barth. 128.

3.26. 'Ram'. 1. Grk. κριός (Byz. κριάριον > NG κριάρι), orig. 'horned' : Grk. κέρας, 'horn', etc. Walde-P. 1.406.

2. Lat. ariēs (> Rum. dial. arete), Umbr. erietu : Grk. ἔριφος 'kid', Ir. heirp 'she-goat', all prob. fr. IE *er- in words of motion, as Grk. ὄρνῡμι, Skt. ṛ-, etc. (Walde-P. 1.135, 136 without connecting the two groups). G. S. Lane, Language 7.281 ff.

It. montone, orig. the same word as dial. molton, like Fr. mouton fr. Celtic (below, 3.27), but remade fr. montare 'mount, cover (the female)'. REW 5739.

It. also pecoro, new masc. to pecora.

Fr. bélier, OFr. belin, deriv. of Gmc. word for 'bell', as in Du. belhamel, NE bellwether. REW 1022a. Wartburg 1.318.

Sp. morueco, of Basque orig.(?). REW 5374.

Rum. berbec, fr. Lat. vervex 'wether' (3.27).

3. Ir. reithe, fr. rethim 'run', like Lith. tekis fr. tekėti 'run' (below, 5). G. S. Lane, Language 7.281.

W. hwrdd, same word as hwrdd 'push, thrust', used for 'ram' by semantic borrowing from NE ram.

W. maharen, MW maharaen, cpd. of oen 'lamb', first part : Lat. mās 'male'(?) Morris Jones 114.

Br. maout-taro, or maout-tourc'h cpds. of maout 'wether' (3.27) and taro 'bull' (3.21) or tourc'h 'boar'.

4. ON hrūtr, orig. 'horned' : Grk. κέρας 'horn', etc. Walde-P. 1.407.

On veðr, Dan. vædder, Sw. vädur, OE weðer (also 'wether'), OHG widar (also 'wether'), NHG widder : Goth. wiþrus 'lamb', orig. 'yearling', like Lat. vitulus 'calf', etc. (3.24) : Grk. ἔτος 'year', etc. Walde-P. 1.251. Shift from 'lamb' to the grown male, either 'ram' or 'wether'.

Sw. bagge : ON bǫggr, ME bagge 'bag'. Orig. applied to various fat, clumsy animals. Hellquist 46.

Sw. gumse, formed with -se fr. stem of older gummarlamb 'male lamb', etc., but further history dub. Hellquist 312 f.

OE ramm, ME, NE, Du., OHG, MHG ram, prob. : ON ramr 'strong', from the ram's strength in butting (rather than its strong smell). Walde-P. 2.371. Falk-Torp 874.

5. Lith. tekis, fr. tekėti 'run'. Cf. Lett. tekulis also used for 'ram' or 'boar'.

Boh. beran, Pol., Russ. baran 'male sheep' ('ram', or 'wether') : Grk. βάριχοι· ἄρνες, βάριον· πρόβατον (Hesych.), Alb. berr 'wether, livestock', ultimate source dub. Berneker 43.

6. Skt. meṣa-, Av. maēša- (alone or with varšni- 'male') 'ram', Skt. meṣī-, Av. maēšī- 'ewe', NPers. mīš 'sheep' : ChSl. měchŭ 'bag made of skin', etc., orig. 'sheepskin' or 'skin'(?), root connection dub. Walde-P. 2.303. Berneker 2.246.

Skt. uraṇa-, with urā- 'ewe' : Lat. vervex 'wether' (3.27), Grk. ἀρήν 'lamb', etc. (3.29).

3.27. 'Wether'. The castration of male sheep for fattening is an old and almost universal practice, and the 'wether' (understood here in the technical sense of NE wether 'castrated sheep') is the grown sheep par excellence. Hence the generic word for 'sheep', where it is not a distinctively feminine form, may be commonly applied to the 'wether', even though distinctive terms for the latter exist. Some of these are unfamiliar to the layman (as NE wether except in bellwether). Conversely some words that were originally specific for 'wether' have become generic (as Fr. mouton) or through generic use have acquired a new specialization (as Fr. brebis 'ewe', fr. Lat. vervex 'wether').

In some languages, however, 'wether' is expressed by the same word as that for 'ram', that is, the same word was used for 'male sheep' whether 'ram' or 'wether' (as OE weðer, Russ. baran, etc.).

1. In ancient Greek there is no quotable specific word. Covered by ὄϊς ὁ, ὄϊς ἄρσην in Homer, in Att. by τομίᾱς 'castrated animal' (3.14) or specifically τῶν προβάτων τομίᾱς (cf. βοῶν τομίαι, Aristot. HA 575b).

NG μουνουχισμένο κριάρι 'castrated ram', with pple. of μουνουχίζω 'castrate' (3.14).

2. Lat. vervex (specific meaning clear from Varro, LL 5.98, quoniam si cui ovi mari testiculi deempti vervex declinatum) : Skt. urā- 'ewe', Grk. ἀρήν 'lamb', ἔριον 'wool', etc. (3.29) going back to a word for 'wool' or the wool-bearing 'sheep', with various specializations. Walde-P. 1.268 ff.

Late Lat. vervex, berbex was used generically for 'sheep' (examples in Marc. Emp., 4th cent. A.D., etc.), in Gaul also specialized to 'ewe' (examples from about 800 A.D.). Hence Fr. brebis 'ewe' (but generic berger 'shepherd' fr. *berbicārius; so Rum. berbecar); Rum. berbec 'ram', berbec castrat 'wether' (or berbec batut, with pple. of băte 'beat', here 'castrate'), but generic in carne de berbice 'mutton'; meaning 'wether' retained in some Rum. and Rhaet. dialects. REW 9270. Gamillscheg 99. Wartburg, op. cit., p. 28 ff.

It. castrone (MLat. castronus, MHG kastrūn), deriv. of Lat. castrāre 'castrate' (3.14).

Fr. mouton, orig. 'wether' and still covering it, though felt as generic, fr. a Gallic form (cf. MLat. multo, -onis partly 'wether' but also generic 'sheep'; cf. Wartburg op. cit.) : Ir. molt, etc. 'wether' (below, 3). REW 5739.

Sp. carnero now generic, but orig. 'wether' (now carnero llano with llano 'plain'), as the fatted sheep, deriv. of carne 'flesh'. REW 1706.

3. Ir. molt, W. mollt, Br. maout, a general Celtic word for 'wether' and prob. fr. *mel- 'grind, crush' (Ir. melim, Lat.

molere, etc.), here in the sense of 'castrate' (cf. 3.19). Stokes 212. (Doubted in Walde-P. 2.287, where the meaning 'wether' is wrongly questioned.)

Ir. lon (rare) : Skt. lūna- pass. pple. of lu- 'cut'. Stokes 258. Walde-P. 2.407.

W. gwedder, fr. NE wether.

4. ON geldingr, fr. gelda 'castrate' (3.14).

Dan. bede, fr. bede 'castrate' beside bøde 'spay', fr. MLG bōten 'heal, castrate' (3.14). Falk-Torp 67.

Sw. gällgumse, cpd. of gäll- fr. gälla 'castrate' (3.14) and gumse 'ram' (3.26).

OE wether (also 'ram'), etc., see 3.26).

OHG hamal (late in this sense), MHG, Du. hamel, NHG hammel, fr. OHG hamal 'maimed', deriv. of ham 'mained' : Goth. hamfs 'maimed', ON hamla, OE hamelian 'maim' (NE hamble obs. or dial.). Falk-Torp 377. Weigand-H. 1.803.

NHG schöps, fr. Boh. skopec, below, 6. Weigand-H. 2.780.

5. Lith. avinas, Lett. auns 'male sheep' either 'ram' or 'wether', deriv. of avs 'sheep' (3.25).

6. SCr. škopac, Boh. skopec, Pol. skop (ChSl. skopĭcĭ 'eunuch'), fr. the verb for 'castrate', ChSl. skopiti, etc. (3.14).

SCr. ovan (3.25) is used for 'ram' and 'wether', likewise Boh. beran, Pol., Russ. baran (3.26).

7. Skt. petva- (cf. Zimmer, Altind. Leben 229) : pī- 'swell', pīvan- 'fat', etc., hence 'wether' as the 'fatted' sheep. Uhlenbeck s.v.

3.28. Most of the words for 'ewe' reflect the inherited generic word, IE *owi- (3.25), completely specialized to 'ewe' in Gmc., elsewhere generic and 'ewe', or belong with other words already discussed in 3.25–3.27. The few remaining are:

1. W. mamog, orig. 'pregnant sheep', same word as mamog 'womb', deriv. of mam 'mother' (y fam 'the womb').

2. Sw. tacke, fr. the calling cry. Hellquist 1156.

3. Boh. bahnice, fr. bahniti se 'produce lambs', this fr. *ob-agniti : ChSl. agnę, Boh. jehne, etc. 'lamb' (3.29). Berneker 24.

4. Lat. fēta 'breeding female' (fēta ovis 'ewe', etc.) is specialized to 'ewe' in various Romance dialects. REW 3269. Wartburg op. cit. 23 ff.

3.29. 'Lamb'. 1. IE *$ag^w(h)no$-. Walde-P. 1.39. Ernout-M. 24. Walde-H. 1.23.

Grk. ἀμνός; Lat. agnus, dim. agnellus (> It. agnello, Fr. agneau, Rum. miel; REW 284); Ir. uan, W. oen, Br. oan; Gmc. only in verb, OE ēanian 'bring forth lambs'; ChSl. agnę, agnĭcĭ, etc., the general Slavic word (Berneker 24).

2. Grk. ἀρήν (Cret. ϝαρήν), gen. ἀρνός, dim. ἀρνίον, NG ἀρνί, ἀρνάκι : Skt. urā- 'ewe', uraṇa- 'ram', Lat. vervex 'wether', Grk. ἔριον 'wool', Aeol. ἔπερος lit. 'having wool on' used for 'male sheep' (ἔπεροι καὶ ἀρνηάδες 'male sheep and ewes'), all going back to a word for 'wool' or the wool-bearing animal. Walde-P. 1.268 ff.

3. Sp. cordero, deriv. of Lat. c(h)ordus 'late-born'. Cf. Varro, RR 2.1.29, dicuntur agni chordi qui post tempum nascuntur. So (Diez, REW 1883 in first ed.) much better than deriv. fr. chorda, as 'led on a rope' (Gouchat, REW 1881 in new ed.). For Lat. cordus, cf. Walde-H. 1.273.

4. Ir. dīnu, fr. dīnim 'suck' : Grk. θῆσθαι 'suck', etc. Pedersen 1.183. Walde-P. 1.830.

5. Goth., ON, OE lamb, etc., the general Gmc. word, perh. : Grk. ἔλαφος 'stag' and other animal names, but root connection and primary sense dub. Walde-P. 1.154. Feist 321.

Goth. wiþrus, see 3.26, OE weðer, etc.

6. Lith. ėras, Lett. jērs, orig. 'yearling', like SCr. jare 'kid', etc. : Goth. jēr 'year', etc. Walde-P. 1.135 (to be added 1.105).

ChSl. agnę, etc., above, 1.

Boh. beranek, Pol. baranek, dim. of beran, baran 'male sheep' (3.26).

7. In Sanskrit and Avestan no special words are quotable for 'lamb', which was presumably expressed as 'young sheep'.

3.31–3.35. Note that in the headings and translations either swine or hog, is used as the generic term, barrow for the castrated, and pig for the young animal, that is, in accordance with its original (and still mainly U.S.) use, in contrast to the now current British generic use.

3.31. Here are discussed the generic words for 'swine' and also groups of cognates which include several of the words listed under the other headings. Swine were domesticated in Europe from the earliest times, but not in ancient India and Iran (the Skt. and Av. words listed refer to the wild species). Schrader, Reallex. 2.359 ff.

1. IE *sū-, prob. of imitative orig. Walde-P. 2.512 f. Ernout-M. 100 f. Feist 465. Kretschmer, Glotta 3.132 f.

Grk. ὗς and σῦς (sentence-doublets, not to be separated as in Walde-P.); Lat. sūs, Umbr. sif 'sues'; W. hwch 'sow' (formerly generic), Br. houc'h 'hog'; ON sȳr, OE sū, etc., all the Gmc. words for 'sow'; and fr. *swīno- (orig. adj. like Lat. suīnus) the generic words, Goth. swein, OE swīn, etc.; Lett. suvēns, sivēns 'pig'; ChSl. svinija, etc., the Slavic words, fr. a fem. deriv. of *swīno-; Skt. sūkara- (fem. sūkarī- 'sow'), Av. hū-; Alb. thí; Toch. B. suwo.

2. IE *porḱo-. Walde-P. 2.78. Ernout-M. 780 f. REW 6660, 6666.

Lat. porcus (in Varro, RR the regular word for 'pig', as 2.1.20 with co-ordinate agni, haedi, porci; but also generic as 2.4.20 porcorum gregem), whence It. porco, Fr., Rum. porc, Sp. puerco; Lat. porca 'sow' (> It. porca, Sp. puerca), Umbr. porca 'porcas'; Lat. dim. porculus, porcellus 'pig' (> It. porcello, Rum. purcel, W. porchell, Br. porc'hell 'pig'; but Fr. pourceau = porc; new dim. porcelet still dial. for 'pig', Gamillscheg 713), with fem. porcella (> Rum. purcea 'female pig' and 'sow'); Ir. orc 'hog', orcān 'pig'; OE fearh (ME, NE farrow 'litter of pigs,' whence vb. farrow still used by farmers), Du. varken, OHG far(a)h, farhelī(n), NHG ferkel 'pig'; Lith. paršas 'barrow', dim. paršelis, paršiukas 'pig'; SCr., Boh. prase Pol. prosię, Russ. porosenok, all 'pig' (Boh. prase also generic).

3. Grk. χοῖρος sometimes 'pig' but mostly generic 'swine' (so Hom. once and later; reg. in NT where ὗς does not occur; lit. NG), dim. χοιρίδιον 'pig', etym. dub. Walde-P. 610. Boisacq 1065.

NG γουρούνι (the usual pop. word), with fem. γουρούνα 'sow', dim. γουρουνάκι or γουρ(ου)νόπουλο 'pig' : γρωνάδες· σύες θήλειαι (Hesych.), formed fr. the grunting sound γρῦ, seen also in γρύζω, Lat. grunnīre, NE grunt, etc. Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 1.105, 2.294.

4. Fr. cochon 'hog', Sp. cochino 'hog', cochina 'sow', cochinillo 'pig', in OFr. 'pig', dial. forms 'wood louse', prob. connected with late Lat. cutiones 'wood lice', with the frequently observed relation between the names of such animals and words for 'pig', 'sow', etc., as in Lat. porcelliō 'wood louse', NE sow, sow bug, hog louse, but ultimate source dub. (fr. a calling cry?). Gamillscheg 233. REW 4745. Bloch 1.157.

Sp. cerdo 'hog', prob. of Basque orig. REW 9696 f.

Sp. marrano 'hog', marrana 'sow', fr. Arab. muharrama 'forbidden' (a form of the same word that is the source of NE harem), applied to the 'forbidden' pork, later to the animal.

5. Ir. muc(c), W. moch (sg. mochyn) Br. moc'h (sg. pen-moc'h), etym.? Stokes 219. Walde-P. 2.253.

6. ME hogge used generically, but also defined in some passages as the castrated male (an Hogge, maialis, est enim porcus carens testiculis), NE hog generic but in dial. applied also to young sheep, etc., orig. dub. NED s.v. hog. Björkman, IF 30.262.

In NE both hog and pig (3.35) are used generically in the plural in place of swine, which (though sometimes appearing in U.S. livestock reports beside the more usual hogs) has disappeared from common use among farmers. The former is the usual U.S. word (but in New England pig is also frequently generic, cf. Linguistic Atlas, Map 205), while in British usage pig is now definitely the common generic term (cf. NED s.v. pig, sb.[1] 2; and the heading pig as generic in the Encyclopaedia Britannica).

7. Lith. kiaulė, Lett. cūka 'swine, sow', Lith. kuilys, Lett. kuilis 'boar', relations and orig. dub. Walde-P. 1.467. Mühl.-Endz. 1.398.

8. SCr. krme 'swine' (with krmača 'sow'), deriv. of krma 'fodder' (5.12), krmiti 'feed animals', hence orig. the animal fattened for slaughter, but completely specialized to 'swine'. Berneker 668.

3.32. 'Boar'. Words that are used only of the 'wild boar' are not included (except the Sanskrit and Avestan) unless they belong with others which are used for the domestic boar. Thus Lat. aper is considered, but not Fr. sanglier, etc.

1. IE *epero-(?). Walde-P. 1.121. Ernout-M. 59. Walde-H. 1.56.

Lat. aper (only 'wild boar', but the Umbr. forms refer to domestic boars offered as sacrifice, e.g. abrof trif 'three boars' beside porca trif 'three sows'); OE eofor 'wild boar', OHG ebur ('wild boar'), MHG, NHG eber; ChSl. (late) veprĭ, SCr. vepar, Russ. vepr' 'wild boar'; Lett. vepris, Boh. vepř, Pol. wieprz 'barrow'.

2. Grk. κάπρος : Lat. caper, ON hafr 'he-goat', etc., root connection dub. Walde-P. 1.347. Walde-H. 1.157.

3. Lat. verrēs (> Romance words) : Skt. vṛṣan- 'male' (2.23), Lett. vērsis 'ox', etc., with various special applications of 'male'. Walde-P. 1.269. Ernout-M. 1090 f. REW 9239.

4. Ir. (muc-)cullach, NIr. collach (used also for 'stallion', 'he-ass', etc., but esp. 'boar'), like Ir. (ech-)cullach, Br. marc'h kalloc'h 'stallion' (3.42), lit. 'with testicles, uncastrated' (like Grk. ἔνορχος fr. ὄρχις 'testicle'), deriv. of word for testicle, W. caill, Br. kell (4.49). Stokes 72. Henry 50.

Ir. torc 'wild boar', but W. twrch, Br. tourc'h 'domestic boar', prob. a blend of orc 'hog' (3.31) with some other word, perh. *trogos : late Lat. troia 'sow' (3.34). Walde-P. 2.642. Vendryes, RC 35.220.

W. baedd, Corn. baedh (OCorn. bahet, Pedersen 1.16), etym.?

5. ON gǫltr, Dan., Sw., ME, NE (dial.) galt 'male swine' ('boar' or 'barrow'), Sw. fargalt 'boar' (far- : OE fearh 'pig', Lat. porcus 'swine', etc., 3.31) with fem. OE gilte, NE gilt, OHG galza 'young sow', NHG gelze 'spayed sow', etym. dub., but perh. : ON gelda 'castrate' (3.14), with shift from the castrated animal no more difficult to credit than that seen in Lat. vervex 'wether' > 'sheep' > 'ewe' (3.27). Walde-P. 1.628 f. Falk-Torp 298. Hellquist 269. NED s.v. gilt, sb.[2].

Dan. orne 'boar', Sw. dial. orne 'boar' or 'barrow' : Lat. verrēs 'boar', etc. (above, 3) Falk-Torp 867. Hellquist 737.

OE bār, ME bore, NE boar, Du. beer, OHG, MHG bēr, NHG dial. bär, etym.?

6. Lith. kuilys, Lett. kuilis : Lith. kiaulė 'swine' (3.31).

7. SCr. nerast, cpd. of neg. ne and rasti 'grow', lit. 'one that does not grow', applied to a tree that will not grow and to the 'boar' as the swine that will not fatten, in contrast to the castrated hog. Rječnik Akad. 8.46.

Boh. kanec, fr. Hung. kan 'male animal'. Berneker 479.

Pol. kiernoz = ORuss., Ukr. knoroz : ChSl. krŭnŭ 'mutilated', perh. compounded with a word for testicle cognate with Grk. ὄρχις, the whole meaning orig. 'castrated', with shift to 'boar'. Berneker 663 f. Brückner 229.

Russ. kaban, fr. Turk. Berneker 464. Lokotsch 975.

8. Skt. varāha-, Av. varāza- (but both only 'wild boar') etym.?

3.33. Special terms for the 'barrow' are often lacking or unfamiliar, the generic terms being commonly used in reference to the swine that is neither 'boar' nor 'sow'; or with added 'castrated' (cf. 3.14), as NE castrated hog, Fr. porc châtré, NHG verschnittenes schwein, NG μουνουχισμένο γουρουνι, etc.

1. Grk. τομίᾱς 'castrated animal' (3.14) was the technical term, just as for 'wether' (3.27), but usually simply ὗς or σῦς with ὁ or ἄρσην (as in Hom., Od. 14, 13 ff., where the 360 hogs used for eating, contrasted with the 600 sows, were, of course, castrated males).

NG μουνουχόχοιρος, cpd. of χοῖρος 'hog' with μουνοῦχος 'castrated' (3.19).

2. Lat. maiālis (Varro, RR 2.4.21 castrantur verres—quo facto nomen mutant atque e verribus dicuntur maiales), hence It maiale, perh fr. Maia (or only pop. etym.?), in any case prob. influenced by maior 'larger', with reference to the greater growth of the castrated animal. Walde-H. 2.13. Ernout-M. 582.

In Fr., Sp., Rum. only the generic words in common use, though the words for 'castrated' may be added.

3. In Celtic, only the generic words or with the addition of the words for castrated (3.14).

4. ON bǫrgr, OE bearg, ME baru, barowe, NE barrow, Du. barg, OHG barug, barh, NHG barch (borch, barg, borg), prob. fr. the root of ON berja 'strike', Lat. ferīre 'strike, cut', etc., here in the sense of 'castrate'. Walde-P. 2.160.

Dan., Sw. galt 'male swine', both also used alone for 'barrow', see 3.32.

5. Lith. paršas : Lat. porcus, etc. (3.31).

Lett. vepris, Boh. vepř, Pol. wieprz : ChSl. veprĭ, Lat. aper 'wild boar', etc. (3.31).

6. SCr. brav (also 'sheep'), Russ. borov, etc., with various applications in Slavic (Boh. brav 'small cattle, sheep, swine') prob. from the root of ChSl. brati 'fight', orig. 'strike', Lat. ferīre 'strike, cut', etc., here as 'castrate'. Cf. ON bǫrgr, etc. (above, 4). Walde-P. 2.161. Berneker 75.

7. There are naturally no Skt. or Av. words for the castrated hog, since swine were not domesticated in India or Iran.

3.34. Most of the words for 'sow' reflect the inherited generic word, IE *sū- (3.31), in this form completely specialized to 'sow' in Gmc., or belong to other groups discussed in 3.31 or 3.32. The others are:

1. Lat. scrōfa (> It. scrofa, Rum. scroafă, NG σκρόφα), loanword fr. an Italic dialect (hence the medial f), and perh. fr. a root *skerb(h)- in OE sceorpan 'scratch', Lett. skrabt 'scratch, hollow out', Lat. scrobis 'ditch', etc. (Walde-P. 2.582, without inclusion of scrōfa), hence 'sow' as 'rooter'.

2. It. troia, Fr. truie, fr. late Lat. troia, this prob. fr. *trogyā- : ON þrekkr, MHG drec 'filth', etc. Walde-P. 2.642.

3. Ir. crāin, fr. *krākni- : Lat. crōcīre 'croak', Lith. krokti 'grunt', etc., hence orig. 'grunter'. Walde-P. 1.414.

4. Br. gwiz, OBr. gues, Corn. guis : Lat. vitulus 'calf', Skt. vatsa- 'calf, yearling', etc., all orig. 'yearling'. Walde-P. 1.251. Stokes 268.

3.35. 'Pig' is understood here as the young animal. Only the most general terms are included, with omission of others like NE shote, 'pig after it is weaned' (common in U.S.; cf. Linguistic Atlas of New England, Map 205).

Most of the words listed have been included in the discussion of 3.31. The few others are:

Grk. δέλφαξ : δελφύς, Skt. garbha- 'womb', etc., with shift from 'womb' through 'fetus' to 'young of an animal', as often (cf. NE calf, etc., 3.24), then specialization to 'pig'.

Ir. banb, NIr. banbh, W. banw (obs.) 'pig', OCorn. baneu 'sus', Br. bano 'sow with litter', etym.? Pedersen 1.47. Loewenthal, Wört. u. Sach. 9.188.

ON grīss (> Scotch grice), Dan., Sw. gris, etym. dub., perh. : OHG grīs 'gray', etc. Walde-P. 1.602 f. Falk-Torp 348, 1473. Hellquist 300 (imitative orig.).

ME pigge (prob. OE picga*, like docga, frocga), NE pig, MLG bigge, Du. big, prob. : Dan. pig, Sw. pigg 'spike', etc. beside OE pīc 'pick, pike', etc. (cf. Falk-Torp. 823), and orig. an epithet referring to the shape. Björkman, IF 30.266 f. NED s.v. pig. Franck–v. W. 64.

Boh. sele, orig. 'suckling', deriv. of ssáti 'suck'.

3.36. 'Goat'. The generic and feminine words are taken together, since the latter are generally those used in generic sense.

Meillet, Rev. ét. sl. 5.8 f., brings together under a series of alternating forms groups that are here given separately, namely αἴξ etc. (1), OHG ziga etc. (4), Lith. ožys, Skt. aja- (7), and ChSl. koza (6).

1. Grk. αἴξ (mostly ἡ, rarely also ὁ) : Arm. aic 'goat', Av. izaēna- 'of (goat's) skin', perh : Skt. ejati 'stirs, moves', etc. Walde-P. 1.8 f., 11.

Hence dim. αἰγίδιον 'kid', whence NG γίδι generic for 'goat' (τὰ γίδια), with new fem. γίδα 'she-goat'.

Grk. χίμαρος (ὁ, also ἡ), χίμαιρα, orig. 'yearling' : Skt. himā- 'winter', Lat. bīmus (bi-himos*) 'two years old', etc. Walde-P. 1.547.

2. Lat. capra (> It., Sp. capra, Fr. chèvre, Rum. capră), fem. to caper 'he-goat' (3.37).

Fr. bique, prob. fr. a calling cry REW 1099. Wartburg 1.358 ff.

Sp. chiva, masc. chivo, source?

3. Ir. gabor, NIr. gabhar, W. gafr, Br. gaor, gavr, perh. with unexplained init. variation : Lat. caper, etc. So Thurneysen, Gram. 139, Z. celt. Ph. 13.103 ff. Otherwise Walde-P. 1.533, 547.

4. Goth. gaits, ON geit, OE gāt, etc., the general Gmc. word : Lat. haedus 'kid', perh. Lith. žaidžiu, žaisti 'play' as orig. 'jump, gambol'. Walde-P. 1.527. Feist 186.

OHG ziga, MHG zige, NHG ziege with dim. OE ticcen, OHG zickī(n), MHG zickelīn, NHG zicklein, perh. : Grk. δίζα· αἴξ. Λάκωνες (Hesych.), Arm. tik 'leather bag', root connection? Walde-P. 1.814.

5. Lith. ožka, new fem. fr. ožys 'he-goat' : Skt. aja-, etc. (below, 7).

6. ChSl. koza, etc., the general Slavic word, with Lett. kaza fr. Russ., perh. : OE hēcen, MLG hōken 'kid', root connection? Walde-P. 1.336. Berneker 595.

7. Skt. aja-, fem. ajā- : Lith. ožys, Lett. āzis, perh., through notion of rapid motion, fr. root of Skt. aj-, Grk. ἄγω, etc. 'drive'. Walde-P. 1.38.

3.37. 'He-goat'. 1. Grk. τράγος (hence fr. dim. form, NG τραγί) : τρώγω, aor. ἔτραγον 'nibble'. Walde-P. 1.732. Boisacq 978.

2. Lat. caper : ON hafr, OE hæfor 'he-goat', Grk. κάπρος 'boar', root connection dub. Walde-P. 1.347. Ernout-M. 146 f. Walde-H. 1.157. It. capro, Sp. cabrón, formed anew fr. fem. capra, cabra.

Lat. hircus (so, not caper, in Varro, RR, as 2.3.10 ad denas capras singulos parent hircos, and in general much more common than caper) perh. : Lat. hirtus, hirsūtus 'shaggy', etc. Walde-P. 1.610. Ernout-M. 454. Walde-H. 1.649 f.

Lat. bucca occurs as 'he-goat' in the description of the game "buck, buck", Petron. 64. Cf. Ullman, Cl. Ph. 38.94 ff. But it seems more likely to be a loanword adopted in this game than an inherited cognate of OE, Ir. bocc, OE buoca, etc. (below, 3.4).

It. becco, prob. of imitative orig. REW 1020a.

Fr. bouc, loanword fr. Gmc. or Celtic (below, 3, 4). REW 1378. Wartburg 1.590.

Rum. ţap : Alb. cjap and a widespread group of pop. or dial. terms for 'he-goat', based on a calling cry. Cf. esp. CGL 5.503.27 hyrcus caper zappu dicitur. REW 9599. Rohlfs, Z. rom. Ph. 45.664 f. Walde-H. 1.157.

3. Ir. bocc, W. bwch, Br. bouc'h, loanword fr. (or cognate with?) the Gmc. group (below, 4). Walde-P. 2.189.

4. ON bukkr, OE bucca, OHG boc,

NHG bock, etc., the most general Gmc. word (but NE buck no longer so used, now mostly for 'male deer') : Av. būza- 'he-goat', NPers. buz 'goat', root connection dub., perh. of imitative orig. Walde-P. 2.189. Rohlfs, Z. rom. Ph. 45.671.

5. Lith. ožys, Lett. āzis : Skt. aja- (3.36).

6. ChSl. kozĭlŭ, deriv. of fem. koza (3.36). Berneker 595.

SCr. jarac, deriv. of jare 'kid' (3.38).

7. Skt. aja-, see 3.36.

Skt. chāga- (fem. chāgā- rare), etym.? Walde-P. 1.336.

Av. būza- : OE bucca, etc., above, 4.

3.38. 'Kid' is often expressed by diminutive forms of words for 'goat'. So the Romance; Br. gaorig; OE ticcen, OHG zickī(n), NHG zicklein (also böcklein), Du. geitje; and the Balto-Slavic words.

1. Grk. ἔριφος : Lat. ariēs 'ram', etc. (3.26).

NG κατσίκι (with fem. κατσίκα), dim. fr. Alb. kats 'goat', ultimate source dub., perh. fr. a calling cry. G. Meyer, Alb. Etym. Wtb. 185.

2. Lat. haedus : Goth. gaits, etc. (3.36).

3. Ir. menn(ān), NIr. mionnān, W. myn, Br. menn (obs.), etym.? Taken as 'suckling' (Stokes 311, rejected by Walde-P. 2.232); or perh. : Ir. menb 'small' (Macbain with query) but all dub.

4. ON kið, Dan., Sw. kid, ME kide (fr. ON), NE kid, OHG kizzi(n), NHG kitze, kitzlein, prob. fr. a calling cry. Walde-P. 1.527 ff. Falk-Torp 506.

OE hēcen, see 3.36, ChSl. koza.

5. SCr. jare, orig. 'yearling' : Russ. ChSl. jarŭ 'spring', Goth. jēr 'year', etc. Walde-P. 1.105, 135. Berneker 446 ff.

3.41. While the agreement in most of the IE languages pointing to an IE word for 'horse' and its great frequency in personal names do not prove the IE domestication of the horse (cf. the similar situation for 'wolf'), there is strong probability on other grounds that the horse was at least partially domesticated in the IE period, and further that the use of the horse for drawing war chariots and for riding came to western Asia and Egypt through the medium of IE-speaking peoples of Asia Minor. Schrader, Reallex, 2.170 ff. For Celtic cf. also Loth, Mém. de l'institut de France 43.113 ff.

1. IE ek̂wo-*, root connection wholly obscure. Walde-P. 1.113. Ernout-M. 307.

Grk. ἵππος, dial. also ἴκκος (but with some unexplained phonetic features and taken as an Illyr. loanword by Kretschmer, Glotta 22.120); Lat. equus (with fem. equa 'mare'); Ir. ech, Gall. epo-* in names Eporedia, etc. (W. ebol, Br. ebeul 'colt'); ON jōr (poet.), OE eoh 'war-horse' (Goth. aihwa-tundi 'bramble bush', lit. 'horse-tooth'); Lith. (obs.) ešva, ašva 'mare'; Skt. açva-, Av., OPers.

aspa- (OPers. also asa-); Toch. A yuk, B yakwe.

Thus the word is attested in all the main branches of the IE family except Slavic, and it is still that in use in most of the modern Iranian languages (NPers. asp, etc.). But in all the European languages it has sooner or later been displaced by other terms (but cf. Sp. yegua, Rum. iapă 'mare'). Likewise in the Indic vernaculars, mostly by forms answering to the late and obscure ghoṭa-, ghoṭaka-, on which cf. Sommer, IF 31.363 ff.

2. NG ἄλογο, fr. neuter of Grk. ἄλογος 'unreasoning', not with primary application to the horse, to which it would be relatively inappropriate, but through the medium of 'animal' (so τὰ ἄλογα 'animals' in Plato, etc.) with specialization starting in military parlance, in which one commonly coupled ἄνθρωποι and ἄλογα 'men and beasts', that is, 'men and horses'. Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 1.142.

Byz. φάρας, φαρίον, MHG vārīs, etc., rather widespread medieval word for 'horse, steed', fr. Arab. fāris 'rider'. Lokotsch 591. Berneker 279.

3. Lat. caballus, in part attested as 'gelding', mostly 'work horse' (cf. καβάλλης· ἐργάτης ἵππος Hesych.), sometimes pejorative 'old nag', but eventually simply 'horse', in VLat. displacing equus, and so the source of the Romance words, also Ir. capall, W. ceffyl (Pedersen 1.226, Vendryes, De hib. voc. 121). Cf. also late Lat. cabō, ōnis in glosses (caballus, caballus magnus, equus castratus), Grk. κάβηλος 'castrated' (Hesych.), ChSl. kobila 'mare', etc. Certainly a loanword, but precise source dub. Prob. orig. 'gelding' and of ethnic orig. (Anatolian or Balkan) like Fr. hongre, NHG wallach, etc. (3.43). Walde-H. 1.125. Ernout-M. 124. Maas, Rh. M. 74.469. Kretschmer, Glotta 16.191, 20.248. Walde-P. 1.428. Falk-Torp 421.

ON hestr (also 'stallion'), Dan. hest, Sw. häst, with OE hengest, OHG hengist 'gelding', NHG hengst 'stallion' (> Dan., Sw. hingst 'stallion'), orig. a superl. form, perh. : Lith. šankus 'swift', šokti 'jump', etc. Walde-P. 1.334. Falk-Torp 402.

OHG parafrid, MHG pfert, NHG pferd, Du. paard, fr. late Lat. (Cod. Just.) paraverēdus 'extra post horse' (whence also with dissim. OFr. palefrei, ME, NE palfrey), cpd. of Grk. παρά 'beside' and verēdus (Martial., Cod. Just.), the latter a Celtic word like Lat. rēda 'carriage'. Weigand-H. 2.408. NED s.v. palfrey.

NHG gaul 'nag', in some dialects the common word for 'horse', MLG gūl 'war horse', etc. (cf. Weigand-H. s.v.), etym.? Sommer, IF 31.362.

For the local distribution of NHG pferd, ross, gaul, cf. Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 61, 600.

6. Lith. arklys, deriv. of arklas 'plow', this fr. the root of arti 'plow' : Grk. ἀρόω, Lat. arāre 'plow', etc., hence orig. 'plow horse'. Walde-P. 1.78.

Lith. žirgas (esp. 'riding-horse, steed'), Lett. zirgs (OPruss. sirgis 'gelding') : Lith. žergiu, žergti 'stretch the legs apart', hence lit. a 'wide-stepper'. Leskien, Ablaut 358.

7. ChSl. konjĭ, etc., the general Slavic word, etym. much disputed. Perh. fr. komnjo-* : ORuss. komon', OPruss. camnet 'horse', (here also Lith. kumelys, Lett. kumelš 'foal', Lith. kumelė 'mare'?), and further fr. kobnjo-* : ChSl. kobyla 'mare', Lat. caballus, etc. Walde-H. 1.125. Berneker 561, 555. Brückner 253 f. Junker, KZ 50.249 ff. Pokorny, KZ 56, 133.

Russ. lošad', now the usual word (kon' esp. 'charger, steed'), Pol. łoszak still specific for the small Tartar horse, fr. Turk. alaša 'pack horse'. Berneker 734. Lokotsch 55.

Skt. haya- : hi- 'set in motion, impel'. Walde-P. 1.546.

3.42. 'Stallion'. 1. Grk. (beside ὁ ἵππος, usual in Aristot., etc.), ὀχεῖον (also 'cock', both in Aristot.) : ὀχεύω, the technical word for 'cover, mount' (of the male), this : ἔχω 'hold', Skt. sah- 'overpower', etc. Walde-P. 2.481 f.

NG βαρβᾶτο ἄλογο, fr. βαρβᾶτος 'uncastrated', this fr. Lat. barbātus 'bearded' and orig. applied to the bearded uncastrated man in contrast to the eunuch. Cf. Rum. bărbat 'man' (2.21).

NG ἄτι, fr. Turk. at 'horse'. So ORum., SCr. at 'horse' or 'stallion'. Lokotsch 128.

2. Lat. (equus) admissārius (> VLat. armissarius > Rum. armăsar), deriv. of admittere 'give access to' in its special sense of 'put the male to the female'.

It. stallone, OFr. estalon (> ME stalon, NE stallion > NIr. stail, W. ystalwyn), Fr. étalon, deriv. of the Gmc. word for 'stable', OHG stal, etc. (3.19), hence used for the horse kept in the stable for serving mares. REW 8219.

Sp. caballo padre, lit. 'father horse', with padre as often for the male animal.

3. Ir. ech-cullach, or simply cullach, Br. marc'h-kalloc'h, with deriv. of word for 'testicle', W. caill, Br. kell. Cf. Ir. (muc-)cullach 'boar' (3.32). Also Br. marc'h-kalc'h with kalc'h 'penis'.

4. SCr. pastuh : ChSl. pastuchŭ 'herdsman, shepherd', (3.18), hence 'stallion' as protector of the stud(?).

SCr. ajgir, Pol. ogier, loanword fr.

Turk. aygır 'stallion'. Berneker 26. Lokotsch 40.

Pol. drygant, orig.? Brückner 99.

Pol. stadnik, deriv. of stado 'herd, stud' : OE stōd, etc. (above, 4).

7. Skt. for 'stallion' mostly simply açva- (3.41) or rarely açva-vṛṣa- (vṛṣan- 'male').

Skt. marya- 'young man' (: Grk. μεῖραξ 'girl' or 'boy') in RV also 'stallion'.

3.43. 'Gelding' is in part expressed only by phrases 'castrated horse', with words for 'castrate' (3.14), hence requiring no further comment here.

1. Xen. Cyrop. 7.5.62 refers to ἵπποι ἐκτεμνόμενοι. But Aristot., who uses τομίας (3.14) for the castrated ox, sheep, or swine (3.14), does not use it of a horse or make any reference to the castration of horses (cf. HA 6.22), which Strabo 7.4.8 says was peculiar to the Scythians and Sarmatians. Apparently it was not a common practice in ancient Greece.

2. Lat. cantērius, loanword fr. Grk. κανθήλιος 'pack-ass', with change of meaning fr. 'beast of burden, old hack' to 'gelding'. Ernout-M. 145. Walde-H. 1.155.

Fr. hongre, orig. 'Hungarian'. Cf. NHG wallach, etc. (below, 4).

Rum. jugan : jugăni 'castrate' (3.14).

3. Ir. gerrān (glosses Lat. caballus, here as 'gelding'), NIr. gearrān, deriv. of Ir. gerraim 'cut', gerr 'short'. Walde-P. 1.605.

NIr. gillīn (also 'eunuch'), prob. early loanword fr. ME geldyng, NE gelding, which were formerly also used for 'eunuch'.

W. adfarch, cpd. of march 'horse, stallion' and ad-, like adfwl 'castrated bull', with the depreciatory use of ad- as in adfyw 'half alive', adfyd 'adversity', etc.

MLG wallache (> Dan. vallak, Sw. vallack), NHG wallach (> Boh. valach, Pol. wałach, Lith. volokas), all orig. 'Wallachian'. The castration of horses as a general practice spread from Eastern Europe. Hence for 'gelding' also MLat. equus Hunnicus, Fr. hongre orig. 'Hungarian', early NHG reuss orig. 'Russian'.

5. Russ. merin, fr. Mongol. morin 'gelding'. Berneker 2.37.

6. Skt. vadhri- 'castrated' (3.14) not quotable with reference to horses.

3.44. 'Mare'. 1. Expressed by fem. forms of word discussed under 'horse' (3.41), as Grk. ἡ ἵππος, Lat. equa (> OFr. ive, Sp. yegua, Rum. iapă), It. cavalla, ON merr, OE mere, etc., Skt. açvā-, Av. aspā-.

The majority of the European words for 'ass, donkey' are derived, mostly through Latin, from some Asiatic name for this animal, the appearance of which in Europe was relatively late. Other words reflect the function of the ass as 'beast of burden', or sometimes other characteristics such as 'lascivious' or 'harsh braying'. Schrader, Reallex. 1.271.

1. Grk. ὄνος (prob., see below), Lat. asinus, loanwords fr. some Asiatic source, ultimately prob. the same word as Sumerian anšu 'ass'. Schrader l.c. Ernout-M. 79. Walde-H. 1.72 ff.

Lat. asinus, or in part dim. asellus, is the source of the common European words, the Romance, Celtic, Gmc. (ON asni, Sw. asna fr. OFr. asne; Dan. æsel fr. LG or HG; OE assa perh. fr. Ir. asan) and, through Gmc., the Balto-Slavic.

2. Grk. ὄνος is prob. fr. the same source as Lat. asinus, though the precise phonetic relation is obscure. The old view that it belongs with Lat. onus 'load, burden' (cf. NG γομάρι, It. somaro, below) has recently been revived by Grégoire, Byzantion 13.288 ff.

NG γαΐδαρος, γαϊδάρι, γαϊδούρι, fr. γαϊδάριον occurring in pap. of the 6th to 8th cent. A.D., parallel to a gaydor in a 4th cent. Talmudic text, with somewhat similar forms in other Semitic writings, doubtless a word of Asiatic origin, precise source uncertain. Hatzidakis Μεσ. 2.560 with references.

NG γομάρι, fr. neut. of adj. γομάρις, deriv. (suffix fr. Lat. -ārius) of class. Grk. γόμος 'load'. Cf. It. samaro (below, 3), NG dial. βασταγό(ς), βασταγούρι, and φορτίκι 'donkey', fr. adjs. βασταγός (: βαστάζω 'carry') and φορτικός (: φορτίον 'load'). G. Meyer, Alb. Etym. Wtb. 127. D. Georgacas, Ἀθηνᾶ 51.71 ff.

3. It. somaro (usual word for 'donkey' in parts of Italy; cf. R. A. Hall, Jr., Language 19.136), like Fr. sommier, OE sēamere, OHG saumari 'pack horse' or 'mule'), fr. late Lat. sagmārius (> Byz. σαγμάριος), deriv. of sagma, late sauma (> OE sēam 'pack-horse load', etc.) fr. Grk. σάγμα 'packsaddle' (: σάττω 'pack'). REW 7512.

Sp. burro, back-formation fr. borrico = It. brico 'ass, mule, old horse', Fr. bourrique 'she-ass', fr. late Lat. burricus 'small horse', this fr. burrus 'red'(?). REW 1413.

Rum. magar, Alb. magar (beside gomar), SCr. magarac, with transposition fr. NG γομάρι(?), or loanword fr. unknown source. G. Meyer, Alb. Etym. Wtb. 253. Berneker 2.2. Tiktin 939.

4. NE donkey, replacing ass in common use (ass for the animal still used in Ireland, otherwise lit.; now commonly applied to a person), orig. dialect or slang term, but precise orig. uncertain. NED s.v.

5. Skt. gardabha-, deriv. of gardha- 'desire', gṛdh- 'be eager', hence the 'lascivious' beast. Walde-P. 1.614.

Skt. rāsabha-, deriv. of rāsa- 'noise', rā- 'howl', hence the 'brayer'.

Most of the words for 'mule' go back ultimately, most of them through Lat. mūlus, to non-IE sources. A few are derived from words for 'ass' or 'horse'.

1. Grk. ἡμίονος, cpd. of ἡμι- 'half' and ὄνος 'ass'.

2. Lat. mūlus (muĝhslo-*?) : Grk. dial. μυχλός 'stallion-ass' (Hesych.), Alb. mushk, late ChSl. mĭskŭ, SCr. mazga, Boh. mezek (Russ. mesk obs.) 'mule', all prob. fr. some Anatolian source. Walde-P. 2.311 f. Ernout-M. 640.

Hence most of the European words, some of the Gmc. now with the addition of words for 'ass' or 'animal', as NHG maultier, maulesel.

3. Rum. catîr, like Bulg. katur, fr. Turk. katır 'mule'. Berneker 495. Lokotsch 1131.

4. Lith. asilėnas (neolog.), deriv. of asilas 'ass'.

5. ChSl. mĭskŭ etc., above, 2.

Russ. lošak : lošad' 'horse', Pol. loszak 'Tartar horse', of Turk. orig. (3.41).

Russ. išak, fr. Tartar išek 'ass', this fr. Arm. ēš 'ass' (: Lat. asinus, etc.). Berneker 438. Lokotsch 565.

6. Skt. açvatara- (with Iran. forms of similar orig., Pahl., NPers. astar, etc.; Horn 86), fr. açva- 'horse' with suffix -tara- as in vatsatara- 'calf that has been weaned' fr. vatsa- 'calf', in both cases giving the force of 'something different, not quite', hence 'kind of, sort of (horse, calf)'. Cf. Lat. mātertera 'aunt' as orig. 'a kind of mother'.

3.51–3.55. These are most conveniently discussed together. The words entered as generic are mostly those for the much more numerous female, the 'hen', in a few cases those for the young, the 'chicken'. Thus NE hen and chicken are both used generically, with varying local usage (in New England one used to keep hens, but now generally in U.S., chickens, chicken farm). Only occasionally is there a distinctively generic word, as NHG huhn, in common use. Some of the words listed under 'chicken' are used mainly of the very young 'chick'.

The majority of the terms are connected with words meaning 'sing, cry out', etc., or are of imitative origin, reflecting the characteristic cries. Some are in origin words for 'bird' or 'young of an animal'.

1. Grk. ἀλεκτρυών, orig. a personal name (Hom. Ἀλεκτρυών : ἀλέξω 'ward off'), then applied (cf. Fr. renard 'fox', etc.) to (at first the fighting) 'cock', secondarily, also 'hen'. Walde-P. 1.89. Also ἀλέκτωρ 'cock', and reg. fem. ἀλεκτορίς 'hen', freq. in Aristot. (where also generic τὸ τῶν ἀλεκτορίδων γένος).

Grk. ὄρνις 'bird' (3.64), in Att. also the usual word for the 'cock' (ὁ) or 'hen' (ἡ). Hence NG ὄρνιθα 'hen', still the common word in some regions.

Grk. ὀρνίθιον, dim. of ὄρνις, 'small bird', later also 'chicken'.

Grk. dial. καλαΐς 'hen' and 'cock' (IG 4.914), prob. fr. *καλαϝίς : καλέω 'call' (cf. Ir. cailech 'cock', below, 3). Bechtel, Gr. Dial. 2.510.

Grk. νεοσσός 'young bird' (deriv. of νέος 'young'), dim. νεοσσίον, νοσσίον, may be used of the domestic 'chick, chicken' as NT, Mt. 23, 37; νεοττίς Aristot. is 'young hen'.

NG πουλί 'chicken' and generic, also, but in this case secondarily, 'bird' (3.64), fr. late Grk. πουλλίον (ὀρνιθοπούλλιον 'chicken' in pap. of 6th or 7th cent. A.D.; Byz. πουλλίον common), loanword fr. Lat. pullus 'chicken' (below, 2). Hence also new dim. πουλάκι 'chicken' but mostly as endearing term 'darling'.

NG κόκκορας 'cock', a blend of Grk. κόρκορα· ὄρνις (Heysch.) belonging with Ir. cerc, etc. (below, 3) and a *κόκκος belonging with MLat. coccus, etc. (below, 2).

NG πετεινός 'cock', sb. use of old πετεινός 'winged', like πετεινόν 'bird' (3.64).

NG κόττα 'hen', fem. of κοττός· ὄρνις (Heysch.) this with reference to the cock's comb : κοττίς 'head', προκοττίς 'mane'. Cf. Hesych. (s.v. πρόκοττα) αἱ ἀλεκτρυόντες κοττοὶ διὰ τὸν ἐπὶ τῇ κεφαλῇ λόφον. Kukules, quoted in Glotta 5.285. Here also NG κοττόπουλο, κοττοπούλι 'chicken'.

2. Lat. gallus 'cock' (> It., Sp. gallo), etym. disputed. Perh. orig. 'Gallic' (cf. Grk. Περσικός and Μῆδος for 'cock'), on the assumption that the Romans became acquainted with the cock from Gaul, where it was brought by the Phoenicians; or, as a native word, 'crier' (like the Gmc. words, etc.) fr. galso-* : ChSl. glasŭ 'voice', OE callian 'call', etc. Walde-P. 1.538, Ernout-M. 409 f. Walde-H. 1.580 f. (but for Grk. καλαΐς, see above).

Hence fem. gallīna 'hen' (> It., Sp. gallina, OFr. geline, Rum. găină, etc. REW 3661).

Lat. pullus 'young of an animal', esp. 'chicken', fr. the same root as Grk. πῶλος, Goth. fula 'foal' (3.45), Grk. παῦρος, Lat. paucus 'little, few', Grk. παῖς, Lat. puer 'child', etc. Walde-P. 1.75 ff. Ernout-M. 822 f.

Hence It. pollo 'fowl', Sp. pollo 'chicken'; fr. new fem. forms Sp. polla 'pullet', Fr. poule 'hen'; and the various derivs., It. pulcino, Fr. poulet, poussin, etc., only partially listed under 'chicken'. REW 6828, 6818a, 6820, 6826.

MLat. coccus, Fr. coq, ON kokkr (rare), OE coc(c), ME cocke, NE cock, ChSl. kokotŭ, etc. (below, 6), Skt. kukkuṭa- 'cock', a group of imitative orig. reflecting cries like Grk. κόκκυ, Lat. coco. Walde-P. 1.455 ff.

Rum. cocoș 'cock', loanword fr. Slavic, SCr. kokoš 'hen', etc. (below, 6).

Lat. cāpus (Varro), usually cāpō, -ōnis 'capon' : ChSl. skopiti 'castrate', etc. (3.14). Ernout-M. 151. Walde-H. 1.161.

Hence all the words listed under 'capon', except the Baltic (where it is expressed as 'castrated cock'; Lith. kaplunas fr. Pol. kapłon is quoted in an old Lith. dictionary; Lett. kapauns in Drawneek, but not in Mühl.-Endz.). It was as an article of the Roman table that the capon spread over Europe.

3. Ir. cerc, NIr. cearc 'hen' : Grk. κερκίς, κέρκαξ, κόρκορα, etc. (Hesych., as names of birds), Skt. kṛkara- 'a kind of partridge', Lith. karkti, kirkti, 'croak, cackle', etc., all of imitative orig. Walde-P. 1.413 ff. Pedersen 1.126.

W. iar, Br., OCorn. yar 'hen', Ir. eirin 'pullet', outside connections? Walde-P. 1.199. Pedersen 1.65. Stokes 223.

Ir. cailech, NIr. coileach, W. ceilog, Br. kilhog 'cock' : Grk. καλέω 'call', Lat. clāmāre 'call', Skt. uṣa-kala- 'cock' (lit. 'crying at dawn'), etc. Walde-P. 1.443 ff. Stokes 73. Br. also kog fr. Fr. coq.

NIr. sicīn, fr. NE chicken.

W. cyw 'chicken' (also 'young bird', and in North Wales 'the young of animals'), prob. : Grk. κύος 'fetus', Skt. çāva- 'young of an animal', etc. (Walde-P. 1.365 ff., but without W. cyw). G. S. Lane, Language 7.280.

Br. poñsin 'chicken', fr. Fr. poussin. Henry 226.

4. Goth., OE hana, ON hani, OHG hano, etc. 'cock', with fem. ON hæna, OE henn, OHG henna, hanīn, etc., and generic (orig. coll.) ON hæns, Dan. høns, Sw. höns, Du. hoen, OHG huon, NHG huhn, all : Lat. canere, Ir. canim 'sing', etc. Here also Grk. ἠΐ-κανος· ἀλεκτρυών (Hesych.). Walde-P. 1.351. Falk-Torp 453. Feist 243 f.

Sw. tupp 'cock', named from its 'crest, comb', by-form of topp 'top' : NE top, etc. Hellquist 1245 f.

OE coc(c), etc. : MLat. coccus, etc. (above, 2). In U.S. cock is commonly replaced by rooster, for which roost-cock (cf. NED s.v.) is quotable earlier.

ON kjūklingr (rare; mostly ungi : ungr 'young'), Dan. kylling, Sw. kyckling, OE cicen, NE chicken, Du. kuiken, NHG küchlein, the most widespread Gmc. words for 'chicken', derivs. of words belonging with MLat. coccus, etc. (above, 2).

OHG huonichlīn, MHG huonlīn, hüenel, NHG hühnchen 'chicken', dims. of OHG huon, NHG huhn.

ME pultrie, NE poultry (fr. OFr. pouletrie : poule 'hen', etc.) is used as coll. for domestic fowls, but not limited to the genus Gallus. NED. s.v. poultry.

NE fowl, orig. 'bird' (3.65), now mostly for domestic birds, esp. 'cock' or 'hen', but in U.S., at least, includes ducks, geese, etc.

NE hen and chicken both used also generically, see above.

5. Lith. višta, Lett. vista 'hen', with dim. Lith. vištytis, viščiukas 'chicken', perh. as orig. 'house bird' : Skt. viç-, Grk. οἶκος 'house', Lith. vieš-pats 'lord' ('housemaster'), etc. Mühl.-Endz. 4.626.

Lith. gaidys, Lett. gailis : Lith. giedoti 'sing', ORuss. gajati 'crow', etc. Walde-P. 1.527. Mühl-Endz. 1.585.

Lett. cālis, cālitis 'chicken', etym.?

6. ChSl. kurŭ 'cock' (Cod. Zogr., etc.; for the distribution of ChSl. kurŭ, kokotŭ, pětelŭ, cf. Jagić, Entstehungsgesch. 355), Boh., Pol., Russ. kur 'cock' (but less common than the following), Boh., Pol., Russ. kura, ChSl., Russ. kurica 'hen', ChSl. kurę, Boh. kuře, Pol. kurcze 'chicken', prob. of imitative orig. like Skt. kāuti 'cries', etc. Walde-P. 1.331 f. Berneker 650.

ChSl. kokotŭ (Cod. Mar.) Scr. kokot, Boh. kohout, Pol. kogut 'cock', with fem. ChSl. kokošĭ, SCr. kokoš, Pol. kokosz 'hen' : MLat. coccus, OE cocc, etc. (above, 2). Berneker 540 f.

ChSl. pětelŭ, SCr. pijetao, Russ. petuch (> Pol. pietuch) 'cock' : ChSl. pěti 'sing'. Brückner 404.

ChSl. pŭtenĭcĭ 'young bird', dim. of pŭta 'bird' (3.64), also 'chicken' like νοσσίον which it renders (Mt. 23.37).

Boh. slepice 'hen' (similar forms in Polabian), deriv. of slepý 'blind' (4.97), based on the hen's blinking eyes? Miklosich 307.

SCr., Bulg. pile 'chicken' : Upper

Sorb. pilo 'duckling', Lower Sorb. pile 'gosling', Lett. pīle 'duck', Lith. pypti, Lat. pīpāre 'peep', etc., all of imitative orig. Oljinskij, KZ 43.178. Walde-P. 2.70.

Russ. cyplenok 'chicken', of imitative orig.

7. Skt. kukkuṭa- 'cock', kukkuṭī- 'hen', of imitative orig., like MLat. coccus, etc. (above, 2).

Skt. kṛka-vāku- 'cock' (second part : vāc- 'voice'), Av. kahrkatās 'cock' (vulgar term), NPers. kark 'fowl', belonging to the same imitative group as Ir. cerc 'hen', etc. (above, 3). Barth. 452.

Av. parōdarš 'cock' (ceremonial term), cpd. of parō 'in front, before' and darəs- 'see', hence lit. 'seeing ahead', that is, announcing the day. Barth. 859. On the pair parōdarš and kahrkatās, cf. Benveniste, Studia Indo-Iranica, Ehrengabe für W. Geiger, 219 ff.

Av. karətōdąsuš 'cock', cpd. of karəta- 'knife' and adj. dąsu-* : Skt. danç- 'bite', hence lit. 'biting with knives' with reference to the spurs. Barth. 454.

The dog is the earliest and most widespread of all domestic animals. Evidence of its domestication goes back at least to the earliest neolithic period, and from neolithic times on the dog was common throughout Europe, Asia (whence it was brought to America) and Egypt. Cf. Ebert, Reallex. and Schrader, Reallex. s.v. Hund. Hence familiarity with the dog in the IE period could be taken for granted, even without the confirmatory evidence of an IE word for 'dog'.

1. IE k̂uon-*, k̂un-, root connection much disputed and dub. Walde-P. 1.465 ff. Ernout-M. 142 f. Walde-H. 1.152 f. Feist 276.

Grk. κύων; Lat. canis (phonetic development peculiar, but connection not to be questioned), whence It. cane, Fr. chien, Sp. can (now mostly obs.), Rum. cîine; Ir. cū (NIr. 'hound'), W. ci, Br. ki; Goth. hunds, OE hund, etc., general Gmc.; Lith. šuo, Lett. suns, OPruss. sunis (Pol., Russ. suka 'bitch' here?); Skt. çvan-, Av. span-, Median σπάκα (Hdt.), and, fr. an Iran. form like the last, Russ. sobaka; Arm. šun; Toch. ku, kū.

2. NG σκυλί, fr. dim. form of late σκύλ(λ)ος, (σκύλλον· τὴν κύνα λέγουσιν, Hesych.) = Grk. σκύλαξ 'whelp, puppy', sometimes simply 'dog', for which see 3.612.

3. Sp. perro, orig. unknown (Iberian?). REW 6449.

4. Ir. matad, NIr. madadh, madradh etym.? Macbain 238.

NIr. gadhar, fr. ON gagarr 'dog', the latter : ON gaga 'mock', Lith. gagėti 'quack', etc. Macbain 238. Marstrander, Bidrag 158. Falk-Torp 302.

5. OE docga (once, in a gloss), ME dogge, NE dog, orig. unknown. Displaces hound as the generic term, the latter being specialized to 'hunting dog', esp. 'foxhound'. NED s.v. dog, sb.

6. ChSl. pĭsŭ, etc., the general Slavic word, etym. wholly dub. Walde-P. 2.9. Osthoff, Parerga 265 ff. (as orig. 'herd dog', a deriv. of IE pek̂u*).

Note on 'bitch'. Of the preceding words, Grk. κύων, Lat. canis, and sometimes others were used of the male and female dog, without distinction except as shown by the gender of the agreeing word. But for the female 'bitch' there are usually special terms. Some of these are simply new fem. forms of words for 'dog', as NG σκύλα, VLat. cania* (> It. cagna, MFr. caigne, Fr. chienne), Sp. perra, Br. kiez, Sw. hynda, NHG hündin, Skt. çunī-, also SCr. kučka (fr. kučak, a less common word for 'dog', based on a calling cry. Berneker 636 f.). Many more are quite unrelated. Rum. cațea, fr. Lat. catella 'female puppy' (REW 1763). ON bikkja, Norw. bikje, Sw. dial. bicka, OE bicce, ME bicche, NE bitch, etym. dub., perh. : Skt. bhaga- 'cunnus' (Walde-P. 2.148. Falk-Torp 72). OE tife, Du. teef, MLG teve (> Dan. tæve) etym. dub. (Falk-Torp. 1313. Franck-v. W. 690). OHG zōha, MHG zohe, NHG dial. zope, zauche, perh. as orig. Many of the words listed are applied not only to the 'puppy' but also to the young of other animals, and in this connection it will be convenient to notice some of the other terms used for the young of various wild animals (those for the young of domestic animals already have been noted under 'calf', 'lamb', etc.). These can always be denoted by words for 'young' or 'little', adj. or sb., and this is the usual method in some languages where the old special terms have been lost, e.g. Fr. petit, le petit, NHG jung, das junge. Or dim. forms of the animal names may be preferred.

1. Grk. σκύλαξ, NG σκυλάκι, Ir. cuilēn, NIr. coileān, W. (obs.) colwyn, OCorn. coloin (gl. catulus), Br. kolen (only in cpds. like kolen-ki 'puppy', etc.), beside Lith. kalė 'bitch', Alb. kulish 'puppy' (kelüš in G. Meyer, Alb. Etym. Wtb.), all prob. belonging together, but root connection? Walde-P. 1.445 f. Pedersen 1.104. Osthoff, Parerga 274 ff. Words of this group, though mostly 'puppy', are also used for the young of other animals, e.g. Grk. σκύλαξ for the young of the fox, weasel, dolphin, bear.

Grk. σκύμνος (etym.?), esp. the 'lion's cub' (Hom. +), is also used for the young of the fox, wolf, bear, and elephant (cf. Aristot. HA 511^{b}30, 578^{a}22, for the last two).

NG κουτάβι, fr. κουτός 'stupid, silly' (17.22).

2. Lat. catulus (used for the young of the dog and many other animals, as lion, tiger, wolf, etc., even serpent), dim. catellus (> Rum. cațel, OIt. catello, OFr. chael, Fr. cheau now obs.), perh. : ON haðna 'young goat, kid', Russ. kotit'sja, Pol. kocić się, etc. 'give birth to young' (of various 'animals'; cf. Berneker 589 f.). Walde-P. 1.338 f. Walde-H. 1.183. Osthoff, Parerga 250. REW 1763. Wartburg 2.496 ff.

Lat. fētus (used for the young of various animals), fr. the same root as in fēmina 'woman', fēlāre 'suck', etc., IE dhē(i)-* 'suck' (5.16). Ernout-M. 354 f. Walde-H. 1.490.

It. cagnuolo, fr. cagna 'bitch'.

hvellr 'making a shrill sound'. Falk-Torp 437. These words, like Lat. catulus, were used for the young of the dog and many other animals. Cf. NED s.v. whelp, sb.

NE whelp is now replaced in common use by puppy (orig. 'toy dog', fr. Fr. poupée, Lat. pūpa 'doll'; NED s.v.) in the case of dogs, and by cub (: Dan. kubbe 'block, stump'; Falk-Torp 430) in the case of foxes, lions, tigers, wolves, while calf (3.24) is applied not only to the young of any bovine animal (bison, etc.), but also to that of various large animals, as the moose, elephant, whale.

Du. jonge hond, NHG junger hund, now the usual term for 'puppy' (in place of the old welp, welf), and so in general Du. jong, NHG jung 'young', adj. and sb., for the young of other animals.

These words were formerly used also for the young of other animals, 'lion's cub', etc., but except as 'puppy' are now replaced either by words for 'young', as sbs. SCr. mlado, Boh. mládě, or by dim. forms of the animal's names, e.g. Russ. l'venok, Pol. lwiatko, 'lion's cub'.

Grk.	αἰέλουρος, αἴλουρος	Goth.	....	Lith.	katė

In marked contrast to the prehistoric and general domestication of the dog, the domestic cat was relatively late and for a long time only local. It appears in Egypt from about 2000 B.C., and hence became known to the Greeks and Romans. But it was not a familiar household animal in the classical period, and only after the beginning of our era did it become common and spread over Europe, together with its general European name.

1. Grk. αἰέλουρος, αἴλουρος, prob., as lit. 'wavy-tail', cpd. of αἰόλος 'quick moving' and οὐρά 'tail'. So Et. Mag., Buttmann, and J. Schmidt, KZ 32.324. Otherwise Walde-P. 1.287, Boisacq 22.

The word is used in Hdt. 2.66 with reference to the Egyptian cat, but elsewhere it refers to some native small animal, weasel, ferret, or marten, similar to the γαλῆ or ἴκτις, as clearly in Aristoph. Ach. 879. As domestic cat evidently in Aristot. HA 540^{a}10, Plut. Mor. 2.144c, and later, until the word was replaced by κάττα, quotable from 6th cent. A.D.

2. Lat. fēlēs, possibly : W. beleu 'marten'. Walde-P. 2.177. Walde-H. 1.474. In Plaut. Rud. 3.4.43 'mouser', prob.

marten or ferret, as in Varro. Used for 'cat' in Cic. with reference to Egypt and later (Pliny, etc.) common, until its displacement by cattus.

3. Late Lat. (4th cent. A.D.) cattus, catta, gattus, in Grk. form κάττος, κάττα, γάττος, of dub. orig. Ernout-M. 163. Walde-H. 1.182 f. Hence (or from the same source), with variation of init. c/g and medial tt/t, nearly all the European words. These are listed in the forms that are commonly used generically, whether the masculines, as the Romance (Fr. chat, It. gatto, Sp. gato, with fem. chatte, gatta, gata), and the Scandinavian (ON kǫttr, Dan. kat, Sw. katt, with fem. ON ketta, Norw., Sw. katta), or the feminines as NG γάτα, the West Gmc. (OE catte, OHG kazza, NHG katze, with masc. kater) and Balto-Slavic (Lith. katė, ChSl. kotŭka, Boh. kočka, Russ. koška; but Pol. kot masc. and generic, fem. kotka).

4. Rum. pisică, deriv. of pis a call-word for cats similar to Lith. puž, LG puus, Du. poes, NE puss. Cf. the use of NE puss, pussy as a common noun.

5. Lett. kak'is, kak'e, loanword? Mühl.-Endz. 2.139.

6. SCr. mačka, Boh. macka (obs.), orig. a pet-name form of Maria, like NHG Mieze, Mies also used for 'cat' (Weigand-H. s.v.), NE Malkin, pet-name form of Matilda, used for 'cat' (NED s.v. 5), also Gray-Malkin (Shaks.), Grimalkin (NED s.v.). The masculines, SCr. mačak, Boh. macek, are, of course, by this view formed secondarily to the feminines. Berneker 2.1.

7. Skt. mārjara- : mṛj- 'wipe, clean'.

Nearly all the words for 'fisherman' are derivatives of the words for 'fish' (2.65) through the corresponding verbs, or in some cases compounds, like NE fisherman which has displaced fisher in current use, Russ. rybolov 'fish-catcher'.

Thus Lat. piscātor (> Romance words, except Rum. pescar, fr. Lat. piscārius 'fishmonger', favored by the suffix of the Slavic word, ChSl. rybarĭ, etc.), Ir. iascach, NIr. iascaire, Goth. fiskja, OE fiscere, OHG fiscāri, Lith. žvejys, ChSl. rybarĭ, etc.

Exceptions are:

Grk. ἁλιεύς, fr. ἅλς 'sea' and in Homer also 'sailor'. But NG pop. ψαρᾶς 'fisherman' and 'fishmonger', fr. ψάρι 'fish'.

Skt., beside occasional matsya-jīvat- lit. 'one who makes a living from fish', matsya-bandha- (bandh- 'bind, catch'), and mātsyika- (Pāṇ.), more commonly kāivarta-, prob. orig. a term of opprobrium (cf. kev- 'serve' Dhātup.), and dhīvara-, prob. : dhīvan- 'skilful'.

The development of the Gmc. w-forms, as OHG lewo, NHG löwe (>Dan. løve), is obscure. From such come the Slavic forms and fr. the latter (Pol. or Russ.) the Lith. levas, while Lett. lauva is fr. MLG louwe. Walde-H. 1.785.

3.77, 3.78. Nearly all the European words for 'elephant' and 'camel' are from Grk. ἐλέφας or κάμηλος, which again are based upon Egyptian or Semitic words respectively. But the name of the elephant, known in southern Europe since Hannibal, was subject to great distortion and some confusion in application with the camel in northern and northeastern Europe, where both animals were long known only by hearsay as strange beasts.

1. Grk. ἐλέφας, -αντος 'ivory' (Hom. +) and 'elephant' (Hdt. +), to be analyzed as ἐλ-έφας, the second part, like Lat. ebur 'ivory' fr. Egypt. āb 'elephant, ivory', but first part disputed. Schrader, Reallex. 1.242. Ernout-M. 297 f. Walde-H. 1.389.

Hence most of the Eur. words for elephant, except the Balto-Slavic.

Hence also (though doubted by some), with shift to 'camel', Goth. ulbandus, ON ulfaldi, OE olfend, OHG olbanta, MHG olbente, olbende, and, through Gmc. and in form influenced by velĭ- 'great', ChSl. velĭbądŭ, late -blądŭ, Boh. velbloud, Pol. wielbłąd, Russ. verbljud (> Lith. verbliudas). Feist 515. Stender-Petersen 358 ff. Brückner 616. For the confusion note also that MIr. camall is used for 'elephant' in Book of Leinster (K. Meyer, Contrib. 311).

My colleague Gelb reports a Hitt. hieroglyph for 'ox', in this case prob. for some kind of wild ox, with accompanying cuneiform name u-lu-pa-ta-sa, which may be normalized as ulupantas or ulpantas and seems to belong to the same group.

2. Grk. κάμηλος, 'camel', loanword fr. Semitic, Hebr. gāmāl, etc. Hence through Lat. camēlus (VLat. also -ēllus, -ellus, REW 1544) the Eur. words (OE camel in Lindisf. vs. olfend in WSax. Gospels), except those fr. 'elephant' (above, 1) and SCr. deva fr. Turk. (Lokotsch 510).

3. W. cawrfil 'elephant', cpd. of cawr 'giant' and mil 'animal' (3.11).

4. ON fīll 'elephant' (still the common word in Icel.; ODan. fil), loanword through Slavic fr. some oriental source, Arab. fīl, NPers. pīl, etc. Falk-Torp 217. Lokotsch 605. Schrader, Reallex. 1.245.

5. Lith. dramblys 'fat-belly' and 'elephant' (NSB, etc., neolog. in this sense) : dribti 'roll down, tumble', etc. (Leskien, Ablaut 324 without dramblys), hence 'elephant' as the clumsy animal.

Lith. kupranugaris and kupris 'camel' (NSB, etc., neolog. for verbliudas) : kupra 'hump'.

6. SCr. slon, etc., the general Slavic word for 'elephant' (whence also obs. Lith. slonis, Lett. zilonis) : ChSl. sloniti 'lean', reflecting the popular notion that the elephant cannot bend its legs and sleeps leaning on a tree, a notion that is apparently referred to by Aristot. HA 498^{a} and persisted in medieval and modern times (cf. Sir Thomas Browne, Pseudodoxia 3.1). Brückner 500.

7. Skt. hastin- (at first adj. with mṛga- 'wild animal') 'elephant', deriv. of hasta- 'hand', with reference to the elephant's trunk as 'hand'.

Other Skt. words for 'elephant' are gaja- (: gaj- 'roar'), kariṇ- (deriv. of kara- 'doer' in its special use as 'elephant's trunk') and vāraṇa- (prob. fr. vṛ- in sense of 'ward off').

Skt. uṣṭra-, Av. uštra- 'camel', perh. with Skt. usra- 'ox, bull' as orig. 'male animal' fr. IE wes-* 'moisten' as 'impregnate', like Skt. vṛṣan- 'male', Lat. verrēs 'boar', etc. : Skt. varṣa- 'rain', etc. Walde-P. 1.308. Uhlenbeck 32.

Some of the verbs for 'hunt' (wild animals) are from the more general notion of 'try to seize, chase' or the like. Others, more distinctive from the outset, are derived from words for 'wild animal' or 'woods', or (in Grk.) connected with the use of dogs.

Nouns for the 'hunt' and 'hunter' are obvious cognates of the verbs.

1. Grk. θηράω, θηρεύω, fr. θήρ 'wild beast' (3.11).

Grk. κυνηγετέω, κυνηγέω, fr. the earlier κυνηγέτης (Hom.), κυνηγός 'hunter', cpds. of κύων 'dog' and ἄγω 'drive'.

2. Lat. vēnārī (> Rum. vîna), prob. (with grade wēn-* beside wen-*) : Skt. van- 'seek, desire', OE winnan 'strive, fight', etc. Walde-P. 1.230. Ernout-M. 1085.

Lat. sectārī 'follow, pursue' also used for 'hunt' animals, fr. sectus*, old pple. of sequī 'follow' (10.52).

It. cacciare, Fr. chasser, Sp. cazar fr. VLat. captiāre* for Lat. captāre 'try to seize, chase' (frequent. of capere 'seize, take'). REW 1662.

7. Skt. mṛgaya-, fr. mṛga- 'wild animal, game' (3.11).

3.81 INSECT

Most of the European words for 'insect' (generic, but of somewhat changing scope; sometimes including worms, etc.) are of learned origin, going back ultimately to Aristotle's naming of insects from the notches in their bodies. But there are some others which either have become the accepted technical terms (so Lith. vabzdyz, Boh. hmyz, Pol. owad) or are colloquial expressions used much like bug in U.S.

1. Grk. ἔντομα (sc. ζῷα), the term used by Aristot. (e.g. HA $487^{a}33$ καλῶ δ' ἔντομα ὅσα ἔχει κατὰ τὸ σῶμα ἐντομάς), fr. ἐντέμνω 'cut in', with reference to the incisions, notches. Translated by the Lat. insecta (: insecāre 'cut in') in Pliny, with later sg. insectum. Hence the widespread Eur. words, mostly borrowed directly, but translated in W. trychfil (fr. trychu 'cut', mil 'animal'), SCr. zareznik (fr. cpd. of rezati 'cut'), Russ. nasekomoe (fr. cpd. of seč', sekat' 'cut').

2. NE bug (the pop. word in U.S.; in British use 'bedbug'), prob. the same word as ME bugge 'scarecrow, bugbear' and ultimately connected with Lith. bužys 'scarecrow', būžys 'insect' (so separated in NSB), etc. Bugs are unpleasant creatures. Walde-P. 2.117. Endzelin, KZ 44.64. NED s.v. bug[1], bug[2].

Lith. vabzdys, now the accepted term (whence vabzdėdziai 'insectivora'), neolog. introduced by Javlonskis in 1908 and based on vabalas 'beetle', as I am informed by Senn.

Boh. hmyz : hemzati, SCr. gmizati 'crawl', etc. (12.41). Berneker 367.

Pol. owad = late ChSl. obadŭ, ovadŭ, SCr. obad, Boh. ovád 'gadfly', fr. obwado-*, orig. 'something that pesters, annoys' : Boh. vaditi 'harm, hinder, trouble', Pol. wadzić 'make quarrel, hinder (= ChSl. vaditi 'accuse', 21.31). Brückner 387.

Some words which normally denote a particular insect or a worm are also used generically, as NE fly (NED s.v. fly, sb.; cf. butterfly), W. pryf, Pol. robak, both 'worm' (3.84).

Of the numerous Skt. insect names (Zimmer, Altind. Leben 97 f.) none seems to be generic.

3. Lat. apis, dim. apicula, etym.? Hence It. ape, OFr. ef (Fr. dial. e, etc.); fr. dim., It. pecchia, Fr. abeille, Sp. abeja. (Fr. dial. also mouche à miel lit. 'honey fly'). Ernout-M. 61. Walde-H. 1.57. REW 523, 525.

Rum. albină, fr. late Lat. alvīna = alveārium 'beehive' (Keil, Gram. Lat. 7.107). Development fr. 'beehive' to coll. 'swarm of bees', then 'bee'. REW 393. Puşcariu 59.

4. W. gwenynen, Br. gwenanenn, OCorn. guenenen (new sgs. to coll. W. gwenyn, Br. gwenan 'bees'), fr. W. gwan, Corn. gwane 'thrust, stick, stab', this : Goth. wunds 'wound', etc. Walde-P. 1.212 (without mention of the words for 'bee'). Henry 150.

5. Skt. bhramara-, of imitative orig. here 'buzzing', but prob. the same as in Lat. fremere, OHG breman 'growl, mutter', NHG bremse 'gadfly', etc. Walde-P. 2.202.

Skt. ali-, etym.? Uhlenbeck 15.

Skt. bambhara- (rare), of imitative orig. : Grk. πεμφρηδών 'a kind of wasp', etc. Walde-P. 2.161.

3.83 FLY (sb.)

Grk.	μυῖα	Goth.	....	Lith.	musė

Of words for the 'fly' there is a widespread cognate group, probably of imitative origin. Another group, but only Gmc., is derived from the verb for 'fly', with early specialization.

1. IE mu-, mus-, prob. of imitative orig., with reference to the humming. Walde-P. 2.311. Ernout-M. 646. Falk-Torp 744.

Grk. μυῖα (μυσι̯α*), NG pop. μῦγα; Lat. musca (> Romance words); here, but as 'midge' ON mȳ, OE mycg, OHG mucca, etc. (NHG mücke also locally 'fly'); Lith. musė, Lett. muša, OPruss. muso; ChSl. mucha, etc., general Slavic.

2. Ir. cuil, W. cylionyn, Br. kelienenn : Lat. culex 'midge', prob. Skt. çūla- 'spit, pike', etc. Walde-P. 1.33. Pedersen 1.147.

W. gwybedyn, coll. pl. gwybed, early gwyðbed (Morris Jones 180), etym.?

3. ON fluga, OE flēoge, OHG fliuga, etc., general Gmc., fr. the Gmc. vb. for 'fly', OE flēogan, etc. (10.37), with early and general (though not complete) specialization.

4. Skt. makṣa-, Av. maxšī- prob. of imitative orig., like the group above, 1. Uhlenbeck 209.

3.84 WORM

Grk.	σκώληξ	Goth.	maþa (waurms)	Lith.	kirmėlė
NG	σκουλήκι	ON	ormr, maðkr	Lett.	tārps
Lat.	vermis	Dan.	orm	ChSl.	črŭvĭ
It.	verme	Sw.	mask	SCr.	crv
Fr.	ver	OE	wyrm, wurm	Boh.	červ
Sp.	verme	ME	werm, wurm	Pol.	robak
Rum.	vierme	NE	worm	Russ.	červ'
Ir.	cruim	Du.	worm	Skt.	kṛmi-
NIr.	cruimh, cnuimh	OHG	wurm	Av.	(kərəma-), NPers. kirm
W.	pryf	MHG	wurm
Br.	preñv	NHG	wurm

The majority of the words for 'worm' belong to one or the other of two groups, alike in suffix but from different roots. One of these groups and a few other words are based on the notion of 'turning around, winding'. A few are connected with verbs for 'bore' or 'rustle, gnaw' and must have applied at first to the woodworm.

Several of the words were also used frequently of, some even specialized to, the 'snake'.

1. IE wṛmi-, fr. wer- in words for 'turn, twist', seen esp. in the extension wer-t-*, in Lat. vertere, etc. (10.12). Walde-P. 1.271. Ernout-M. 1090. NED s.v. worm, sb.

Lat. vermis (> Romance words); Goth. waurms, ON ormr, OE wyrm, OHG wurm, etc., general Gmc., but in older period esp. 'snake', as Goth. waurms quotable only in this sense, ON ormr mostly 'snake' but also 'worm' (Fritzner s.v.), and Sw. orm now only 'snake'.

2. IE kʷṛmi-*. Walde-P. 1.523. Ernout-M. 1090. Pedersen 1.43. Berneker 169, 172 f.

Skt. kṛmi-, NPers. kirm (here prob. Av. kərəma- used with star- of a shooting star); Ir. cruim, NIr. cruimh, cnuimh, W. pryf, Br. preñv; OLith. kirmis, now kirmėlė (Lett. cerms 'maw-worm'); here also, with different suffix, ChSl. črŭvĭ, SCr. crv, Boh. červ, Pol. czerw (mostly 'grub, maggot'), Russ. červ'.

3. Grk. σκώληξ, NG σκουλήκι : σκολιός 'curved, bent, winding', σκέλος 'leg', and many other words based on the notion of 'curved, bent'. Walde-P. 2.598.

Grk. ἕλμις (in Aristot. used of intestinal worms) and εὐλή (mostly 'maggot'), both : εἰλέω, ἴλλω 'turn around, wind'. Walde-P. 1.299. Boisacq 245.

4. Goth. maþa (for σκώληξ Mk. 9.44 ff.; waurms only for ὄφις), ON maðkr, OE maþa, OHG mado, these mostly 'maggot' (ME, NE dial. mathe, Sc. mad also 'earthworm', NED s.vv. mad, sb.[1] and mathe; NHG made, etc.), but Sw. mask now reg. word for 'worm', possibly : OE moþþe 'moth', Skt. matkuṇa- 'bug', etc. Walde-P. 2.228. Falk-Torp 700. Hellquist 634.

5. Lett. tārps, prob. as the 'borer' fr. an extension of the root seen in Lat. terere 'rub', Grk. τετραίνω 'bore' (cf. τερηδών 'woodworm'), etc. Walde-P. 1.732. Mühl.-Endz. 4.150.

6. Pol. robak, older chrobak = Boh. chrobák 'beetle' : Pol. chrobotać 'rustle', Sloven. hrobati 'gnaw', of imitative orig., with development in Pol. presumably through the 'gnawing' woodworm. Berneker 403. Brückner 459.

1. Grk. ὄφις (NG φίδι fr. dim. ὀφίδιον), beside ἔχις, ἔχιδνα 'viper' (less generic than ὄφις cf. Aristot. HA $511^{a}14$ ff.); Lat. anguis; Lith., OPruss. angis; ChSl. ązĭ*, Pol. wąż, Russ. už; Skt. ahi-, Av. aži-; fr. parallel forms with and without nasal, but phonetic relations in part obscure. Walde-P. 1.63 ff. Ernout-M. 52. Walde-H. 1.48.

2. Lat. serpēns, pple. of serpere 'creep', like Skt. sarpa- fr. sṛp- 'creep'. Walde-P. 2.502. Ernout-M. 931.

Hence the Romance forms and ME, NE serpent fr. OFr., also W. sarff. REW 7855. Loth, Mots lat. 205.

3. Ir. nathir, NIr. nathair, W. neidr, Br. aer (MBr. azr for nazr*, Pedersen 1.255), Goth. nadrs (ἔχιδνα) ON naðr, OE næd(d)re, ME (n)addre (NE adder with restriction of use), OHG nāt(a)ra (NHG natter with restriction of use), here also Lat. nātrix 'water snake' (though doubtless felt as derived fr. nāre 'swim'), perh. fr. a root (s)nē-* 'turn, twist' in words for 'spin,' etc. (6.31). Walde-P. 2.327 f., 694.

4. Goth. waurms, ON ormr, Sw. orm, OE wyrm, ME worme (NE worm now obs. for 'snake'), OHG, NHG wurm (now rarely for 'snake' except in lindwurm 'dragon'), all orig. 'worm'. See 3.84.

ON snākr, Dan. snog, Sw. snok, OE snaca, ME, NE snake (displacing serpent in pop. use) : OHG snahan 'crawl', OE snægl 'snail', etc. Walde-P. 1.697 ff. Falk-Torp 1098.

OHG slango, MHG, MLG slange (> Dan. slange), Du. slang, NHG schlange : OHG slingan 'turn, wind', refl. 'crawl', OE slingan 'crawl', Lith. slinkti 'crawl', etc. (10.41). Walde-P. 2.714.

5. Lith. gyvatė, deriv. of gyvas 'living', with curious specialization, doubtless through 'animal' (cf. gyvolis 'animal', 3.11). This is the generic word, while angis (above, 1) and žaltys, fr. žalias 'green', are mostly 'viper, adder'.

Lett. čūska, from a poor imitation of the hissing sound? Mühl.-Endz. 1.425.

6. ChSl., SCr. zmija, Pol. żmija, Russ. zmeja, derivs. of word for 'earth', ChSl. zemlja, etc., hence for the animal that crawls on the earth. Walde-P. 1.663. Brückner 665.

Boh. had : ChSl. gadŭ 'reptile, harmful animal', gadĭnŭ 'foul, hateful', SCr., Pol., Russ. gad 'reptile, anything loathsome', Lith. gėda 'shame', OHG quāt 'filth' (NHG kot), etc. A term of loathing applied to the snake in many Slavic dialects. Berneker 289. Walde-P. 1.695.

Pol. wąż, Russ. už, above, 1.

7. Skt. ahi-, Av. aži-, above, 1.

Skt. sarpa- : sṛp- 'crawl', like Lat. serpēns.

Skt. also often uraga-, lit. 'breast-going', cpd. of uras- 'breast' and gam- 'go'.

4.11–4.49. Words for parts of the body, of which a rather large selection is included here, form a distinctive class, many of them of added importance because of their extensive secondary uses. They have been exhaustively discussed for certain fields[1], especially the Romance, where it has been noted that, with the inclusion of the dialects, there are some four hundred words answering to about eighty in Latin.

Many of the words belong to inherited groups reflecting definite IE terms for parts of the body both external and internal. A considerable familiarity with the latter, gained through the dissection of animals for food or sacrifice, is common among primitive peoples and is not surprising for the IE period.

In the case of such inherited words the root connection, and so the semantic source, is in large measure obscure. So far as we can judge from the words whose etymology is clear, the underlying notion is more often relating to the position or shape of the part than to its function. The inherited words for 'eye', 'ear', 'nose', 'mouth', 'foot' are not derived from any of the usual verbs for 'see', 'hear', 'smell', 'speak' (or 'eat'), 'walk', and so far as some cognates of the former are applied to function this is probably, and in most cases certainly, secondary. On the other hand, the derivation of the IE word for 'tooth' from the participle of the IE root for 'eat' seems too obvious on the formal side to be discarded, though even this situation may possibly be the result of a secondary association (see 4.27). The application of words for 'tongue' to 'speech, language' is almost universal, but the latter use is always secondary.

However, there are also examples enough of words for parts of the body derived from a function, as 'hand' from 'grasp, gather' (4.33), etc. and, regardless of priority, a relation between organ and function is widely observed.

There is frequent shift of application between words for parts of the body that are adjacent, of similar relative position, associated in function, or through common figurative uses with reference to the emotions. So between 'head'–'horn' (from 'summit'); 'head'–'skull'–'brain'; 'mouth'–'jaw', 'throat', 'cheek', 'chin', 'lip'; 'neck'–'throat'; 'shoulder'–'shoulder blade'–'back'–'arm'; 'hand'–'arm'; 'foot'–'leg'; 'finger'–'toe'; 'belly'–'womb'; 'breast' as front of the chest–'woman's breasts'; 'heart' from 'soul' (Rum. inimă, 4.44) or 'bowels' (W. calon, 4.44).

With such obvious exceptions as

'hand' or 'horn, tail, claw', the parts of the body correspond for man and beast and are generally expressed by the same word. But in some cases the etymology indicates that the original application was to one or the other. Words for 'head' that are based on the notion of 'top, summit' were most distinctly applicable to the head of man. Of the words for 'back', those connected with the notion of 'rear, behind' were applicable to man, those connected with 'ridge' or the like to animals. There are also some words which in actual use are applied primarily to animals and only contemptuously or facetiously to man, as NE muzzle or snout, Fr. gueule, NHG maul, etc. But words of this type, and in general vulgar expressions, of which there is a luxuriant growth, especially for certain parts (cf. Goldberger, Glotta 18.16 ff.), may in part become the accepted terms.

There are a few instances (some of the words for 'liver', 4.45) in which the name of the organ was originally one applied to it only as an article of food, parallel to the case of 'fish' as an animal from 'fish food' (NG ψάρι, 3.65).

Words for 'body' may also be used, as NE body, for the 'dead body, corpse', but those that are used distinctively in this latter sense are considered separately (4.77).

Several of the words must have been applied originally to the main part of the body, the 'trunk' as distinguished from the extremities (as sometimes NE body, cf. NED s.v., 5) and reflect notions like 'swelling, curved, bulging shape'. Some go back to 'covering', or 'surface', whence 'form, shape, body'. Some words for 'flesh' were also used for 'body', as Grk. σάρξ, Lat. carō, ME, NE flesh in ills of the flesh, etc., as conversely words for 'body' may be used for 'flesh', as Lat. corpus.

1. Grk. σῶμα (in Hom. only of the dead body), fr. twō-mn̥-* : Grk. τύλη 'swelling, lump', Lat. tumēre 'swell', etc. (σ- fr. tw- as in σός : Skt. tva-). Walde-P. 1.706 ff. Boisacq 935.

Grk. δέμας, in Hom. 'stature, living body' : δέμω 'build'.

2. Lat. corpus (> It. corpo, OFr. cors, ME cor(p)s, NE corpse, Fr. corps, Sp. cuerpo, Rum. corp, Ir. corp, W. corff, Br. korf, NHG körper), Ir. crī (? OE hrif 'womb, belly', OHG (h)ref 'body, abdomen, womb', root connection dub. Walde-P. 1.486f. Ernout-M. 222f. Walde-H. 1.277 f.

3. Ir. colinn (renders Lat. carō, but in the sense of 'body'), often also 'dead body, corpse'. ON hold 'flesh', OE hold 'carcass', W. celain 'corpse', best taken as, whether orig. 'body' or 'flesh', fr. 'covering' : Ir. celim 'hide', Grk. καλύπτω 'cover', etc. (12.26). Otherwise for root connection Walde-P. 2.592 and Falk-Torp 427.

4. Goth. leik ON līk (Dan. lig, Sw. lik 'corpse'), OE līc (oftener 'corpse', as mostly ME lich), OHG līh, MHG līch (NHG leiche only 'corpse') : Goth. galeiks, OE gelīc 'like', etc., Lith. lygus 'equal', etc. The semantic sequence seems to be 'like' (attested also in Alb., cf. Jokl, Wört. u. Sach. 12.83), whence 'likeness, form, body', but 'like' in the Gmc. cpds. secondary fr. 'having same form'. Walde-P. 2.398 f. Feist 327. Falk-Torp 642.

ON līkamr, līkami, Dan. legeme, OE līchama, ME likam(e), Du. lichaam, OHG līchamo, MHG lich(n)ame (NHG leichnam 'corpse'), cpd. of preceding and Gmc. haman-* 'covering' (OE hama 'covering', ON hamr 'skin, husk', Dan., Sw. ham 'skin, husk', etc.). Walde-P. 1.386. Falk-Torp 631.

Dan. krop, Sw. kropp : ON kroppr 'crop' (of birds), later 'trunk, body', OE cropp 'head' (of plants, etc.), 'crop' (of birds), OHG kropf 'crop (of birds), bunch, swelling', OE crēopan 'creep', cryppan 'curve, bend', Grk. γρυπός 'curved, hook-nosed', all with notion of 'curved shape, bunch'. Walde-P. 1.598. Falk-Torp 582. Hellquist 513.

OE bodig 'stature, trunk, body', ME, NE body : OHG botah, MHG botech 'trunk, corpse', prob. (though disputed) the same word as OHG botahha, NHG bottich 'tub, vat', fr. MLat. but(t)a, buttis, butica, butagium, etc., with application to the bulging 'trunk' of the body, then 'body'. NED s.v. Falk-Torp 89.

NHG leib, fr. MHG līp 'life' then 'living mass, body', fr. OHG līp 'life' : OE līf 'life', Goth. liban 'live', etc. (4.74). Weigand-H. 2.43.

5. Lith. kūnas, Lett. kūnis, perh. as orig. 'trunk' fr. IE keu-* in words denoting curved shape as Lat. cumulus 'heap', Lith. kaukas 'boil', etc. (Walde-P. 1.370 ff., without mention of these words for 'body'). Otherwise (as fr. a skeu-* 'cover'). Charpentier, Monde Or. 2.23.

Lett. miesa 'flesh' (4.17) is also the usual word for 'body'.

6. ChSl. tělo, etc., the general Slavic word, prob. through 'surface, form' : ChSl. tĭlo, 'ground', Skt. tala- 'surface', etc. Walde-P. 1.740. The assumption, after Lewy, of development through 'carved image' is unnecessary. ChSl. tělo in the Gospels renders σῶμα regularly, in two passages (Mt. 6.27, Lk. 12.25) ἡλικία where this means 'stature' not 'age'. Later often plŭtĭ 'flesh' used for body'. Jagić, Entstehungsgesch. 407.

Most of the words listed may be used, like NE skin, for the skin of man or beast, a few, like Grk. χρώς, only for human skin, and several (placed after a semicolon), like NE hide, only or mainly for the skin of animals. Several of the words are used also or mainly for 'leather' (6.29).

The semantic sources are partly 'covering, surface' of the 'body', but oftener 'cut, tear' or the like, orig. referring to the hide detached from the body. But such difference in origin is not reflected in actual difference in usage. A few show generalization from the skin of a particular animal, namely 'goatskin'.

1. Grk. δέρμα (in Hom. mostly 'hide', later the regular word for 'skin'; also δορά 'hide') : δέρω, Lith. dirti, etc., 'flay, skin' (9.29), OE teran 'tear', Skt. dr̥- 'split, tear', etc. Walde-P. 1.797.

Grk. χρώς (only of human skin and, mostly poet., also 'complexion, color') beside χροα (χροιά, Ion. χροιή), χρῶμα 'skin, complexion, color', all orig. 'surface' : χραύω 'graze, scrape', fr. an extension of IE gher-*, parallel to that in Skt. ghr̥ṣ- 'rub'. Walde-P. 1.648 ff. Boisacq 1071.

Grk. σκῦτος 'hide, leather' : OE hȳd, etc. (below, 4).

NG πετσί, fr. It. pezzo 'piece', pezza 'piece of cloth'. G. Meyer, Neugr. Stud. 4.70.

2. Lat. cutis (> It. cute, Sp. cutis) : ON hūð, OE hȳd, etc. (below, 4).

Lat. pellis 'hide' (> It. pelle, Fr. peau, Rum. piele 'skin, hide', Sp. piel 'pelt'; fr. dim. also Sp. pellejo 'hide'), Goth. þruts-fill 'leprosy', ON berfjall 'bearskin', OE fell, ME, NE fell, Du. vel, OHG fel, MHG vel, NHG fell : Grk. ἐρυσί-πελας 'inflammation of the skin', Lith. plėvė 'film', etc., prob. fr. a pel-* 'cover', an extension of which may be seen in Goth. filhan 'hide, bury' (4.78). Walde-P. 2.58 f. (adversely to this root connection). Ernout-M. 749. Falk-Torp 217. Persson, Beiträge 226, 946.

Lat. corium 'hide, leather' (> It. cuoio, Fr. cuir, Sp. cuero all mostly 'leather', but sometimes 'skin, hide'), Pol. skóra, Russ. škura, Skt. carman-, Av. čarəman-, all fr. IE (s)ker-* 'cut' in Grk. κείρω 'shear', etc. Walde-P. 2.573 ff. Ernout-M. 220. Walde-H. 1.274.

3. For the following, and some other, less important, Celtic words (as Ir. codal, bīan 'hide') cf. esp. Vendryes, Les noms de la "peau" en celtique, Wört. u. Sach. 12.241 ff.

Ir. cness, NIr. cneas, W. cnes (rare), perh. fr. knid-tā-* : Ir. cned 'wound', Grk. κνίζω 'scrape, chafe', OE hnītan 'strike', etc. (Walde-P. 1.395, without inclusion of Ir. cness, etc.). Vendryes, loc. cit.

Ir. croccenn, NIr. croiceann, W. croen,

Br. kroc'hen, fr. krokno-*, perh., like Lat. corium (above, 2) fr. IE (s)ker-* 'cut'. Morris Jones 165. Vendryes, loc. cit.

W. cen, Br. kenn (both now mostly in cpds.), Corn. cennen (Ir. cenni 'scales') : ON hinna 'membrane' and ON skinn, etc. (below, 4). Walde-P. 2.563.

Ir. seche, NIr. seithe : Lat. secāre 'cut', etc. Walde-P. 2.475.

4. ON hūð, OE hȳd, OHG hūt, etc., the general Gmc. word for 'skin' (NE hide now properly only of animals) : Grk. σκῦτος 'hide, leather', Lat. cutis 'skin', Lith. kiautas 'hull, husk', OPruss. keuto 'skin', Ir. codal 'hide'; Grk. κεύθω, OE hȳdan 'cover, hide', etc., fr. IE (s)keu-* with various extensions. Walde-P. 2.546 ff. Ernout-M. 249. Falk-Torp 425.

ON skinn (> ME skinn, NE skin), Dan. skind, Sw. skin : MHG schint 'fruit skin', Du. dial. schinde 'hide, bark', OHG scintan, NHG schinden 'remove the skin or bark', ON hinna 'membrane', W. cen 'skin', etc. (above, 3), fr. an IE (s)ken-* 'cut off', perh. an extension of sek-* 'cut'. Walde-P. 2.563 f. Falk-Torp 997.

ON hūð and skinn are both applied to the skin of man or beast. The distinction prevailing in Dan., less markedly in Sw., is secondary (cf. Falk-Torp 997), like the opposite distinction in NE.

For ON hǫrund 'flesh, skin' (of a human being, but even here not the usual word), see 4.13.

Most of the words for 'flesh', though not all, are also used for flesh as food, 'meat' (5.61). Words for 'flesh' are also used, esp. in eccl. writings, for 'body', and conversely some words for 'body' are also used for 'flesh'. Cf. 4.11. The semantic sources, where clear, are partly 'covering, surface', referring to 'flesh' vs. 'bone', but oftener 'cut', or 'raw, bloody', or name of an animal, in all these cases referring to the flesh of an animal cut off for food or sacrifice.

1. IE mēmso-, mēs-, root connection? Walde-P. 2.262. Feist 361.

Goth. mimz (once, here 'meat'; also mammō prob. related); Lith. mėsa, Lett. miesa, OPruss. mensā; ChSl. męso, etc., general Slavic: Skt. māṅsa-, mās-; Arm. mis; Alb. mish; Toch. B misa (pl. tantum); with other meanings, Grk. μηρός 'thigh', Lat. membrum 'part of the body', Ir. mīr 'portion, morsel', etc.

2. Grk. σάρξ : Av. θwares- 'cut', with development as in Lat. carō (below, 3). Walde-P. 1.751. Boisacq 854.

Grk. κρέας (but mostly 'meat') : Skt. kravis- 'raw flesh, carrion', krūra- 'bloody, raw', Av. xrū- 'raw flesh', Lat. cruor 'blood from a wound', OE hrēaw 'raw', Lith. kraujas 'blood', etc. (4.14). Walde-P. 1.478 ff. Walde-H. 1.295.

3. Lat. carō, gen. carnis (> It., Sp., Rum. carne, Fr. chair) : Umbr. karu 'pars' (but also karne, etc. 'flesh'), Osc. carneis 'partis', Umbr. kartu 'distributo', Grk. κείρω 'shear', OE sceran 'cut, shear', etc., IE (s)ker-* 'cut'. Development in Italic to 'portion' in general, then esp. 'portion, cut of the flesh, flesh'. Walde-P. 2.575. Ernout-M. 156. Walde-H. 1.170.

4. Ir. fēoil, etym.? Pedersen 1.139 compares W. gwanu 'pierce', OE wund 'wound', etc. (Walde-P. 1.212, Stokes 259, both without fēoil).

Ir. cūa (K. Meyer, Contrib. 540), etym.?

W. cig, Br. kig, OCorn. chic (Ir. cīch 'female breast'), outside connections? Pedersen 1.51. Walde-P. 1.334.

W. cnawd, prob. fr. knō-to-* : Grk. κνάω 'scrape, scratch', ultimately connected with Ir. cness 'skin' (4.12) in both cases orig. 'surface'. Vendryes, Wört. u. Sach. 12.243.

5. ON hold : OE hold 'carcass', Ir. colinn 'body', etc. (4.11).

ON hǫrund 'flesh, skin' (for actual uses, cf. Fritzner, and Vigfusson) : Lat. corium 'hide, leather', Lat. carō (above, 2), etc., fr. IE (s)ker-* 'cut'. Walde-P. 2.576.

ON kjǫt (occurs only as 'meat'), Dan. kød, Sw. kött, prob. : MLG kūte 'entrails', Du. kuit 'calf of the leg', Skt. guda- 'intestine', etc. Walde-P. 1.559. Falk-Torp 522, 1496.

OE flǣsc, etc., the WGmc. word for 'flesh' (ON. flesk 'pork, bacon', Dan. flesk, Sw. fläsk 'bacon'), prob. : ON flikki, OE flicce 'flitch of bacon', Lith. plėšti 'tear', all perh. from various extensions of IE (s)pel-* 'split'. Walde-P. 2.98 ff. Falk-Torp 235.

6. ChSl. plŭtĭ, in the Gospels (where męso does not occur; also less common than plŭtĭ in Supr.) reg. for σάρξ (whether 'flesh' or 'flesh' for 'body'), Russ. plot' 'flesh' = 'body' eccl., 'scurf on the skin' : Lith. pluta 'crust of bread', Lett. pluta 'flesh, skin', all prob. from the notion of a filmy, 'floating' covering, and so, with Russ. plot 'float, raft', Skt. pluta- 'floating', etc., fr. IE pleu-* 'flow, float' (Walde-P. 2.94 ff., without inclusion of the group here in question). Mühl.-Endz. 3.359. Brückner 420 f.

7. Av. gav- 'ox, cow' (3.20) is also used for 'flesh' and 'meat'. Barth. 507–8. Extension of 'ox flesh, beef' to 'flesh, meat' in general, as confirmed by NPers. gūšt 'flesh, meat' and similar forms in the other Iran. languages (Horn 944).

Some of the words listed have the same wide scope as NE hair. Some are used only or mainly for the hair of the head (a), others for that of the human body or an animal (b). Words for the long hair of a horse's mane or tail often go with a. The distribution may be fluctuating, so that the designation by a or b is only approximate. Special words for the hair of particular parts of the body are ignored except those for 'beard' (4.142).

'The hair' is expressed partly by singular collectives, more commonly by plural forms, some without singular in use, most of them with singular used for 'a hair' (in such cases the words are listed in the singular, as Fr. cheveu).

1. Grk. θρίξ, pl. τρίχες : Ir. gairbdriuch 'brush', further connections? Walde-P. 1.876. Pedersen 1.100.

Hence NG τρίχα 'a hair', pl. τρίχες, the latter commonly only of 'animal's hair, bristles'.

NG μαλλιά pl., the usual word for the human 'hair of the head', fr. dim. form of Grk. μαλλός 'lock of wool', rarely 'lock, tress of hair' : Lith. milas 'cloth', etc. Walde-P. 2.294.

For 'beard' there is a group common to Lat., WGmc., and Balto-Slavic, prob. cognate with words for 'bristle', 'point', etc. Several of these are used also for 'chin', as in the Romance languages (REW 944) and Slavic (SCr., Boh. _brada_, Russ. _boroda_), and the interchange between 'beard' and 'chin' is seen in several outside this group (below, 2 and 6).

An interesting secondary development rests on the similarity in shape between the beard and the blade of an ax, hence OHG _barta_, etc. 'ax' (9.25).

1. IE _*bhardhā-_, prob. fr. the same root as ON, OHG _burst_, OE _byrst_ 'bristle', Skt. _bhṛṣṭi-_ 'point, edge', etc. Walde-P. 2.135. Ernout-M. 103. Walde-H. 1.96. Berneker 72 f.

Of the two principal groups of cognates (1, 2, below) the first reflects an IE word for 'blood', of which nothing can be said as to any remoter semantic source. In the second the prevailing sense is 'raw flesh, raw', or 'blood outside the body, of a wound, gore', whence simply 'blood' in some languages. Other words are from such sources as 'red' (notably in Sanskrit), 'wound', 'vein'(?), and probably 'flow, gush' or the like.

1. IE _*ēsen-_, nom.-acc. _-ṛ_, a typical _r/n_ stem neuter. Walde-P. 1.162. Ernout-M. 80 f., 893. Walde-H. 1.72.

Grk. poet. ἔαρ, εἶαρ (ἦαρ Hesych.); OLat. _aser, assyr_ (Paul. Fest., with _assarātum_ 'drink of wine and blood mixed'); Lett. _asins;_ Skt. _asṛk_, gen. _asnas;_ Arm. _ariun;_ Hitt. _eshar_ (with derivs., Sturtevant, Hitt. Gloss. 37); Toch. _ysār_ (SSS, 6).

2. IE _*krew-, *krū-_, etc. Walde-P. 1.478. Ernout-M. 234 f. Walde-H. 1.294 f.

Lat. _cruor_ 'blood from a wound, gore' (as distinguished from generic _sanguis;_ cf. also _cruentus_ 'bloody'); Ir. _crū_, NIr. _crō_, W. _crau_ (obs.), Corn. _crow_, all used mostly like Lat. _cruor;_ Lith. _kraujas_, OPruss. _craujo, krawia_, ChSl. _krŭvĭ_, etc., the general Balto-Slavic (except Lett.) word for 'blood' : Grk. κρέας 'meat', Skt. _kravis-_ 'raw flesh', Av. _xrū-_ 'raw flesh', Skt. _krūra-_ 'raw, bloody', Av. _xrūra-_ 'bloody, fierce', OE _hrēaw_ 'raw', etc.

3. Grk. αἷμα, etym.? Possibly connected with certain words meaning 'drip' or 'juice'. Walde-P. 2.464 f. Boisacq 24.

4. Lat. _sanguis_ (early neut. _sanguen_) _-inis_ (> the Romance words), etym.? Connection with Skt. _asṛk, asnas_, etc. (above, 1) too complicated to be convincing. Cf. refs. in 1, above.

5. Ir. _fuil_ (beside _fuili_ 'bloody wounds') : W. _gweli_, Corn. _goly_, MBr. _gouli_ 'wound' (W. _gweli_ formerly also 'blood', as still in _rhed-weli_ 'artery', cpd. with _rhed_ 'course'), Lat. _vulnus_ 'wound', ON _valr_, OE _wæl_ 'the slain on the battlefield', etc. Walde-P. 1.304 ff. Pedersen 1.139, 162. Loth, RC. 41.208.

W. _gwaed_, Corn. _guit, goys_, Br. _gwad_, perh. as 'blood' fr. 'vein' : W., Corn. _gwyth_ 'vein', Ir. _fēith_ 'fibre', etc. (Walde-P. 1.224, without inclusion of the words for 'blood'). Henry 146.

6. Goth. _blōþ_, OE _blōd_, etc., general Gmc., prob. as 'that which bursts out' : Goth. _blōma_ 'flower', etc. Walde-P. 1.177. Falk-Torp 83 f. Feist 101.

NE _gore_, used much like Lat. _cruor_, fr. OE, ME _gor(r)e_ 'dung, filth'. NED s.v.

7. Lith. _kraujas_, ChSl. _krŭvĭ_, etc., above, 2.

8. Skt. (Vedic) _asan-, asṛk_, above, 1.

Skt. _rakta-_ neut., sb. use of _rakta-_ 'red', pple. of _raj-_ 'be colored, be red'. Likewise for 'blood' neuter forms of other words for 'red', as _rudhira-, lohita-, çoṇita-_. Cf. ON _roðra_ 'sacrificial blood' beside _rjōðr_ 'red'.

Av. _vohunī-_ (NPers. _xūn_ 'blood'), etym.? Barth. 1434.

Apart from the inherited group, words for 'bone' come by generalization from or through terms denoting a particular bone, esp. 'knuckle-bone', or by extension of 'hollow stalk', to the long bone of arm or leg, or by extension of the hard 'kernel' of fruits to the analogous parts of the body.

1. IE _*ost-_, etc. Walde-P. 1.185 f. Ernout-M. 716.

Grk. ὀστέον; Lat. _os_, gen. _ossis_, also _ossu, ossum_ (> It. _osso_, Sp. _hueso_, Fr., Rum. _os_); W. _asgwrn_, Br. _askourn_, Corn. _ascorn;_ Skt. _asthi-_, gen. _asthnas_, Av. _ast-, asti-;_ Arm. _oskr;_ Alb. _asht_. Here also ChSl. _kostĭ_, etc.? See below, 6.

2. NG κόκκαλο neut., fr. Grk. κόκκαλος 'kernel of the pine cone', deriv. of κόκκος 'kernel, grain, seed'.

3. Ir. _cnāim_, NIr. _cnāimh_ : Grk. κνήμη 'leg between knee and ankle', OE _hamm_ 'hollow at the back of the knee', etc. Walde-P. 1.460. Pedersen 1.53. Development of 'bone' through 'knuckle'.

4. ON _bein_, OE _bān_, etc., general Gmc. (but NHG _bein_ for 'bone' now only in cpds. as _elfenbein_ 'ivory'), origin obscure. Falk-Torp 69.

NHG _knochen_, fr. MHG _knoch knoche_, 'knuckle, knot', this with dim. MLG _knokel_ 'bone, knuckle' (> Dan. _knokkel, knogle_ 'bone'), ME _knokel_, NE _knuckle_, NHG _knöchel_ 'knuckle' : ON _knjūkr_ 'round summit', Lith. _gniaužti_ 'close the fist', etc. Walde-P. 1.582. Falk-Torp 69. The meaning 'knuckle' is the more general and earlier, whence 'bone' only by later extension (not 'knuckle' from 'bone', as in NED).

5. Lith. _kaulas_, Lett. _kauls_, OPruss. acc. _kaulan_ : Grk. καυλός, Lat. _caulis_ 'stalk', Ir. _cuaille_ 'post, stake', also Skt. _kulyā-_ 'canal, channel, ditch' (hence neut. _kulya-_ 'receptacle for bones', rarely 'bone', no direct connection with the Baltic use), with common notion 'long, hollow shape'. Walde-P. 1.332. Doubtless applied first to the long bone of arm or leg. Cf. Lat. _caulis_ used by Pliny of the 'bony part of an ox's tail'; also the use of ON _leggr_ (4.35).

6. ChSl. _kostĭ_, etc., general Slavic : Lat. _costa_ 'rib'. Further analysis of both as _k-ost-_, with relation to IE _*ost-_ (above, 1) is attractive but dub. Walde-P. 1.186. Ernout-M. 225, 716. Berneker 582 f.

Most of the words for 'horn' belong to a single group of cognates which includes words for 'horn, head, summit', etc. with the common notion of 'top'. Originally denoting an animal's horn and so considered here, most of them are also applied, like NE _horn_, to 'horn' as material and to objects of similar shape, esp. 'drinking-horn' or 'horn' for blowing. But such uses may also be distinguished by different forms, as Fr. _corne_, but _cor_.

1. IE _*k̂er-_ in a variety of formations meaning 'top, summit, head, horn'. Walde-P. 1.403 ff. Ernout-M. 221 f. Walde-H. 1.276.

Here as 'horn' : Grk. κέρας (cf. esp. Skt. _çiras-_, Av. _sarah-_ 'head'), Att. gen. κέρᾱτος, dat. κέρᾱτι, etc., whence NG κέρατο; Lat. _cornū_ (> It. _corno_, etc. general Romance; also Ir. _corn_ 'drinking-horn', W. _corn_, Br. _korn_); Goth. _haurn_, OE _horn_, etc., general Gmc.; Skt. _çṛṅga-_, Av. _srū-, srvā-_ (NPers. _surū_ 'horn'); in other senses, Grk. κάρᾱ, Skt. _çiras-_ 'head', etc. (4.21), Lat. _cerebrum_ 'brain', Grk. κορυφή 'summit', etc.

2. Sp. _asta_ 'lance' (fr. Lat. _hasta_) also 'horn' of deer, etc.

3. Ir. _adarc_, NIr. _adharc_, an old continental loanword with Celtic suffix (cf. Gallo-Lat. _adarca_ 'spongy growth on sedge') fr. Basque _adar_ 'horn'. Walde-H. 1.12. Pokorny, Z. celt. Ph. 14.273, 16.112.

Words for 'tail' are from such notions as 'projection', 'long slender shape', 'pointed shape' (or after particular objects of such shape), 'swinging motion'. Several are obscure. There are often special words for the 'tail' of different kinds of animals, some of which are mentioned beside the more generic.

1. Grk. οὐρά : ὄρρος, OE _ears_, OHG _ars_, Hitt. _arras_ 'rump, arse', Skt. _ṛṣva-_ 'high', all from the notion of 'what stands out, projects', root as in Skt. _ṛ-_ 'move, rise', Grk. ὄρνῡμι 'stir up', Lat. _orīrī_ 'rise', etc. Here also Ir. _err_ 'tail' (also 'end', etc., as NIr. _earr_), and Ir. _erball_, NIr. _earball_ 'tail', cpd. with _ball_ 'part of the body'. Walde-P. 1.138. Pedersen 1.83.

2. Lat. _cauda, cōda_ (> Romance words), etym.? Ernout-M. 164. Walde-H. 1.185. REW 1774.

Sp. _rabo_, fr. Lat. _rāpum_ 'turnip, radish', as applied first to the similar shaped pig's tail, etc. REW 7065.

3. Ir. _err, erball_, above, 1.

W. _cynffon_, cpd. of _cyn(t)_ 'former, earlier' but here 'hind' and _ffon_ 'stick, staff'. Morris Jones 246.

Br., Corn. _lost_ : W. _llost_ 'spear', arch. also 'tail', Ir. _loss_, NIr. _los_ 'point, end' rarely 'tail', ON _ljōstr_ 'fish-spear', all with the notion of 'pointed object', and perh. fr. the root seen in Skt. _lu-_ 'cut off', etc. Walde-P. 2.408. Pedersen 1.80.

4. ON _hali_, Dan. _hale_ : Ir. _cail_ 'spear', Grk. κῆλον 'shaft, arrow', OPruss. _kelian_ 'spear', etc. Walde-P. 1.431. Falk-Torp 373.

ON _rōfa_ 'bony part of horse's tail' (in NIcel. 'tail' of cats and dogs; for the many different words for 'tail', cf. Vigfusson s.v. _hali_), Norw. _rōve_ 'tail' : OHG _ruoba_, NHG _rübe_ 'turnip, etc.'. Falk-Torp 914.

ON _tagl_ 'horse's tail' (Sw. _tagel_ 'horse-hair', Goth. _tagl_ 'hair'), OE _tægl_, ME, NE _tail_, OHG _zagal_, MHG _zagel_ (NHG _zagel_ now 'penis') : Skt. _daçā-_ 'fringe of cloth', all with common notion of 'long slender shape', whence also Goth. _tahjan_ 'tear, scatter' through 'shred, tear in shreds'. Walde-P. 1.785. Falk-Torp 1242. Feist 470.

ON _stertr_ 'bony part of horse's tail' (Dan. _stjært_ mostly 'handle', Sw. _stärt_ mostly 'arse'), OE _steort_, Du. _staart_, MHG _sterz_ (NHG _sterz_ also dial. 'tail'; but of this group only Du. _staart_ now the normal word) : Grk. στόρθη, στόρθυγξ 'point, spike', etc., from extensions of _*ster-_ in Grk. στερεός, NHG _starr_ 'stiff', etc. Walde-P. 2.640. Falk-Torp 1170.

MHG _swanz_, MLG _swans_ (> Dan., Sw. _svans;_ Dan. in secondary uses), NHG _schwanz_, fr. MHG _swanzen_ 'move to and fro', intensive of _swanken_ beside _swingen_ 'swing, throw', etc. (Walde-P. 2.526). Weigand-H. 2.812. Kluge-G. 549. Hellquist 1121.

NHG _schweif_ ('tail' of large animals), fr. MHG _sweif_ 'swinging motion' : _sweifen_ 'turn around', ON _sveipa_ 'stroke, wrap', etc. (Walde-P. 2.520). Weigand-H. 2.817.

Thus NHG _schwanz_ and _schweif_ are of the same semantic origin, but the former is generic while the latter is still restricted to the swishing tail of large animals (or the similar tail of a comet).

5. Lith., Lett. _uodega_ (in Lett. of limited scope), etym. dub. Walde-P. 1.175. Mühl.-Endz. 4.412.

Boh., Russ. _chvost_, Pol. _chwost_, etym.? Berneker 409 ff. Brückner 187 f.

7. Skt. _puccha-_, perh. as orig. 'bushy' : Pol., Russ. _puch_ 'down, thin hair'. Walde-P. 2.82 ff.

Skt. _lāṅgula-_ : Lith. _lingoti_ 'move to and fro', etc. Walde-P. 2.436.

Av. _duma-_ (NPers. _dum_ 'tail') : OHG _zumpfo_ 'penis'. Walde-P. 1.816.

Both as regards origin and secondary uses of words for 'back', there are different associations for the horizontal back of an animal (with ridge, etc.) and the back of man as the hind-part. Many of the words were doubtless first applied only to the former or the latter, and later extended. But there is rarely historical evidence of actual distinction in usage (some in the case of Lat. _dorsum_). Some come from notions like 'bent', 'projecting part', 'ridge', 'hind-part', etc. In several cases 'back' rests on an extension from 'backbone, spine', 'shoulder', 'rump, anus', 'loins'.

1. Grk. νῶτον (also νῶτος), coll. pl. νῶτα (so NG νῶτα in certain phrases), perh. : Lat. _natēs_ 'rump'. Walde-P. 2.340. Ernout-M. 656.

2. Lat. _tergum_ (> It. lit. _tergo_), coll. pl. _terga_, also _tergus, -oris_, etym. dub. Walde-P. 2.629. Ernout-M. 1031 f.

Lat. _dorsum_, pop. form _dossum_ (cf. _dossennus_ 'hunchback')—whence It. _dosso_ (beside _dorso_), Fr., Rum. _dos_—prob. fr. _deorsum_ 'turned down', through some such stages as 'sloping, steep' (cf. _abruptus_ 'steep' fr. Words for 'head' are from the notion of 'top, summit' (as conversely often 'head' for 'top'), or through 'skull' from 'bowl, cup', 'potsherd', or 'bald'. No account is taken of the countless slang words for 'head' (NE bean, nut, etc.), except where such have become the standard words.

1. IE k̂er-* in various formations meaning 'top, summit, head, horn'. Walde-P. 1.403 ff. Ernout-M. 177.

2. IE kap-* in various formations meaning 'head, bowl', etc., root connection dub. Walde-P. 1.346 ff. Ernout-M. 151 f. Walde-H. 1.163. Falk-Torp 422.

Lat. caput (> It. capo, Rum. cap, etc.); ON hǫfuð, Dan. hoved, Sw. huvud, and with different suffix OE hafela; cf. Skt. kapucchala- (kaput-çala-*) 'hair on the back of the head', kapāla- 'cup, bowl, skull', Lat. capis 'bowl', etc.

3. Grk. κεφαλή (NG κεφάλι fr. dim. form) : Goth. gibla 'gable', etc. Walde-P. 1.571.

4. From Lat. caput (above, 2) the meaning 'head' of the body persists in Rum. cap, in part in It. capo, and in various dialects, while Fr. chef (> NE chief) and Sp. cabo (> Fr. cap, NE cape) have only secondary uses. But Sp. cabeza 'head', fr. Lat. deriv. capitium. REW 1668, 1637.

Lat. testa 'potsherd' was used in late Lat. for 'skull' and became a common colloquial word for 'head', partly displacing caput in this sense. Hence It. testa, Fr. tête as the standard words, while Sp. testa is still only colloquial for cabeza. REW 8682.

Of the words for 'skull', some are cognate with words for 'head' or cpds. of such with words for 'stone' (so the Celtic) or 'shell, bowl, pan' (latter also with words for 'brain'). A few (like some for 'head' through 'skull') are based on the notion of 'bald'. But the most frequent relation is with words for 'bowl, cup', etc., owing to the similarity in shape and the once widespread use of skulls as drinking-vessels. Cf. Scheftelowitz, BB 28.143 ff. (where are many less common words not included here).

The face is the most distinguishing and expressive portion of the body, and the words for 'face' are most commonly based on the notion of 'appearance, look', most of these derived from verbs for 'see, look', or in some cases on the notion of 'form, shape'. There is sometimes interchange between 'face' and 'cheek' in the same word or group.

Included in the list (in parentheses) are some words that are synonyms of those given in first place, either popular (but not vulgar, as NE mug), as It. viso, Sp. rostro, or now restricted to a lofty style, as NHG angesicht, antlitz.

1. Grk. πρόσωπον (in Hom. always pl.), fr. πρός 'toward' and deriv. of ὀπ- (IE ok^{w}-*) in ὄψομαι fut. of ὁράω 'see, look', ὄσσε 'eyes', ὤψ also 'face', etc. (15.51). Hence orig. the 'appearance, look'.

2. Lat. faciēs, orig. 'form, shape', then esp. 'face', fr. facere 'make'. Hence, through VLat. facia*, It. faccia, Fr. face (> ME, NE face), Rum. față (Port. face 'cheek', Sp. haz, faz fig.). But the use of Fr. face for the 'face' of a person was given up in the 17th cent. (Wartburg 3.356). Ernout-M. 322. Walde-H. 1.439. REW 3130.

Fr. visage, fr. older vis (now only in vis-à-vis) = It. viso (pop. for faccia), fr. Lat. vīsus 'sight'. REW 9384. Gamillscheg 893.

Sp. cara (the once quoted ante caram, Corippus in laud. Justini 2.413, is a false reading of ante casam now in the editions of Partsch and of Petschenig), OFr. chiere (> ME chere, NE cheer, NED s.v.), generally taken as fr. Grk. κάρα 'head'. The difficulties are (1) the fact that κάρα is only found in poets, (2) the change in sense (but κάρα used for 'face' in Soph. El. 1310), (3) the restriction of the group to the West. Apparently one would have to assume a literary poetical borrowing as the starting point, or else that the Grk. word was in ordinary prose use among those who founded the colonies in Spain and southern Gaul. REW 1670. Diez 87. Wartburg 2.350.

Sp. rostro (pop. word for 'face', not vulgar), fr. Lat. rōstrum 'beak'. REW 7386.

Rum. obraz, fr. Slavic, ChSl. obrazŭ 'form, shape, image' (12.57), SCr. obraz 'cheek', etc. Tiktin 1072 f.

3. Ir. agad, NIr. aghaidh, etym.? Pedersen 1.129.

Ir. enech, MW, MBr. enep, W. wyneb, (Br. enep, eneb 'the opposite'), a cpd. of IE ok^{w}-* 'see', like Grk. πρόσωπον (above, 1) and ἐνώπιος 'facing', Skt. anīka- 'face'? Walde-P. 1.171 (adversely). Pedersen 1.38. Morris Jones 154.

Br. dremm = W. drem 'sight, look', fr. dṛksmā-* : Skt. dṛç-, Grk. δέρκομαι, etc. 'see' (15.51).

4. Goth. andwairþi, fr. adj. andwairþs 'present', renders appropriately πρόσωπον where it means 'presence', but also where it means 'face' (as Mt. 6.16, Mk. 14.65, Lk. 9.29).

Goth. andaugi (twice for πρόσωπον), cpd. of and 'along, over', second part : augō 'eye'.

Goth. ludja (only acc. sg. Mk. 6.17), OHG antlutti, analutti and (Otfr., Tat.) annuzzi, MHG antlütte, antlütze (beside antlitze, etc., see foll.) : Goth. liudan 'grow', etc. Cf., fr. the same root, Av. raoδa- 'appearance' (Barth. 1495), NPers. rūy 'face'. Walde-P. 2.416. Feist 337.

Goth. wlits, andawleizn, ON andlīt (Sw. anlete arch.), OE andwlīta, MHG antlitze, NHG antlitz, fr. the root seen in ON līta, OE wlītan 'see, look' (15.51). Walde-P. 1.293. Falk-Torp 28. Feist 48, 571 f. Weigand-H. 1.73.

OE ansȳn (usual word), OHG anasiuni ('face' in Notker, etc.; cf. Weigand-H. 1.61, 704. Paul, Deutsches Wtb. s.v. Gesicht. Falk-Torp 26. Hellquist 24.

5. Lith. veidas, fr. the root weid-* in Grk. εἶδον 'saw', εἶδος 'appearance, form, kind', Lat. vidēre 'see', Lith. veizdėti 'look', etc. (15.51). Walde-P. 1.239.

Lett. vaigs 'face' and 'cheek', see under latter, 4.208.

6. ChSl., SCr. lice, Russ. lico (Boh. lice, Pol. lice mostly 'cheek'; Boh. obličej, Pol. oblicze 'face' but not the usual words) : OPruss. laygnan 'cheek', root connection? Walde-P. 2.395 f. Berneker 719 f.

Boh. tvář, Pol. twarz (the common words for 'face'), fr. the root of ChSl. tvoriti, etc. 'do, make' (9.11), hence orig. 'creation, form, kind' (attested for older Boh. and Pol.; cf. also ChSl. tvarĭ 'creation, work, deed', SCr. tvar 'material', stvar 'thing', Boh. tvar 'form, shape', Russ. tvar' 'creature'), with further semantic development like that in Lat. facies (above, 2). Brückner 586.

7. Skt. anīka- (RV 'face' lit. and fig.), Av. ainika- (Barth. 125), also Skt. pratīka- 'front' and sometimes 'face' cpds. with -īka-, fr. a form of IE ok^{w}-* 'see' as in Skt. īkṣ- 'see, look' (15.51). Cf. Grk. πρόσωπον (above, 1).

Words for 'forehead' have such semantic sources as 'between the eyes', 'front part', 'flat surface', 'high', etc.

1. Grk. μέτωπον, cpd. of μετά 'between', second part as in πρόσωπον 'face' (4.204), hence as if 'between the eyes', and so described by Aristot., HA $491^{b}12$.

NG κούτελο, prob. (through 'skull'), deriv. of class. Grk. κοτύλη 'hollow vessel'. Amantos, Ἀθηνᾶ 28, παραρτ. 128 f.

2. Lat. frōns, frontis (> Romance words), etym. dub. Walde-H. 1.551.

3. Ir. ētan (also cend-ētan, with cend 'head'), NIr. (ēadain 'front') clār a ēadain (with clār 'surface') : ON enni, OHG andi 'forehead', all as orig. the 'front side', derivs. of anti* in Grk. ἀντί, etc., 'over against, opposite'. Walde-P. 1.67. Falk-Torp 193.

Ir. tul (also tul cind, with gen. of cend 'head'), W., Br. tal, W. now tal-cen (with cen fr. Ir. tul cind) : Ir. talam 'earth', Skt. tala- 'surface', etc., with development of 'forehead' fr. 'flat surface'. Walde-P. 1.740. Pedersen 1.132.

4. ON enni, OHG andi, see under Ir. ētan, above, 3.

Dan. pande, Sw. panna = ON panna, OE panne, etc. 'pan' (5.28), with sense of 'forehead' fr. old Dan. hovedpande, old Sw. hovudhpanna 'head-pan' = 'skull'. Falk-Torp 813. Hellquist 747.

OE forhēafod, ME forhe(ue)de, NE forehead, Du. voorhoofd, cpds. of words for 'fore, front' and 'head'.

NE brow (poet. or rhet.), orig. a word for 'eyebrow' (4.206).

OHG stirna, MHG stirn(e), NHG stirn (cf. OE steornede gl. frontalis), fr. the root of Grk. στόρνῡμι, Lat. sternere, etc. 'spread out', with development, as in Grk. στέρνον 'breast', fr. 'flat surface'. Walde-P. 2.639.

OHG tinna (in gl.), MHG tinne (cf. OHG dunwengi, OE þunwange, etc. 'temple'), fr. IE ten-* in words for 'stretch' and 'thin'. Walde-P. 1.724. Falk-Torp 1262.

The majority of the words for 'eyebrow' belong to an inherited group. Of the others, some are based on the notion of 'covering', and some are compounds of words for 'eye' and 'on, upon'. There is some interchange of 'eyebrow' with 'eyelid' or 'eyelash', and even 'forehead' (NE brow). Several show the figurative sense seen in NE brow of a hill.

1. IE bhrū-; also bhrēu- (disputed, see below). Walde-P. 2.206 f. (and 2.169). Brugmann, Grd. 2.1.137. Hirt, Idg. Gram. 2.96. Pedersen 2.93. Falk-Torp 44, 109. NED s.vv. brow, sb.[1] and bree, sb.[1]. Weigand-H. 1.113, 280. Franck–v. W. 787. Berneker 91 f.

The following Gmc. group is taken by many as of wholly different origin and only secondarily mixed with the preceding (so Walde-P., Falk-Torp, NED, etc.) but more probably is based upon a different grade of the stem, namely bhrēu-* beside bhrū-* (so Noreen, Brugmann, Hirt, etc.).

ON brā 'eyelash' (so Fritzner, Falk-Torp; 'eyelid' Vigfusson, NED), OE brœw 'eyelid' (later forms also 'eyelash' and esp. 4.207–4.209. There is considerable interchange between 'jaw', 'cheek' and 'chin', notably in a widespread cognate group. This is not surprising, for the 'chin' is the prominent part of the lower jaw and the 'cheek' corresponds in position to the side of the jaw. Cf. Aristot., HA 492b22 ἔτι σιαγόνες δύο τούτων τὸ πρόσθιον γένειον, τὸ δ' ὀπίσθιον γένυς 'furthermore there are two jaws; of these the front part is the chin, the hinder part the cheek'. There is also some interchange with 'mouth' and with 'face', and between 'chin' and 'beard'.

4.207. Several of the words for 'jaw' owe this use to some resemblance in shape, as that of a 'sickle' to the lower jaw in side view, of a 'wagon, cart' to the palate or upper jaw, of a 'box' to the jaw as a box for the teeth, of a 'fork', and prob. of 'angle' to that of the jaw in the large cognate group. Some are derived from verbs for 'chew' or 'bite'. One (the modern Polish) seems to have started as a slang term for the 'chattering' jaw. Several are obscure in their ultimate root connection.

1. IE ĝenu-* in words for 'jaw', 'cheek', and 'chin'. Orig. sense 'jaw' and ultimate connection with the word for 'knee', IE ĝenu-* (neut.), Grk. γόνυ, Lat. genū, etc. (4.36), through some common notion like 'angle', is probable. Walde-P. 1.587. Ernout-M. 414. Walde-H. 1.589 f.

Grk. γένυς 'jaw' (so always in Hom.) and 'cheek', γένειον 'chin' (and 'beard'); Lat. gena 'cheek' (mostly in pl.; stem genu- in genuīnī dentēs 'back teeth'); W. gen 'jaw, chin' (Ir. gin, W. geneu, Br. genou 'mouth'); Goth. kinnus, ON kinn, Dan., Sw. kind 'cheek', OE cin, OHG kinni, etc. (all WGmc. words) 'chin' (but in early period traces of use for 'jaw', as OHG chinne 'jaws' Notker, Ps. 31.9, OHG chinnibacho 'jaw', OE cinbān 'jawbone'); Skt. hanu- 'jaw' (h for j secondary), Av. zānu- 'jaw' or 'chin' (in cpd., Barth. 1689), NPers. zanax 'chin'; Toch. śanweṃ 'jaws' (dual, SSS, 3, ftn.).

Here also, fr. an extension ĝon(ə)dh-*, Grk. γνάθος, Lith. žandas 'jaw', Lett. zuods (mostly 'chin', in some places 'jaw', Mühl.-Endz. 4.759).

2. Grk. σιᾱγών (the usual prose word), NG σαγόνι, etym.? Boisacq 862.

Aristot. uses σιᾱγών, γνάθος, γένυς (above, 1) in this order of frequency.

NG μασέλλα, fr. It. mascella (below, 3).

3. Lat. māla (mostly in pl.) and maxilla (> It. mascella 'jaw', but Sp. mejilla 'cheek', Rum. maseă 'back tooth'), belonging together like vēlum-vexillum, āla-axilla, with māla, perh. fr. makslā* and : Ir. smech, Lith. smakras 'chin', Skt. çmaçru- 'beard'. Walde-P. 2.689. Ernout-M. 582. Walde-H. 2.15.

Fr. mâchoire, fr. mâcher 'chew'.

For Fr. dial. words and their distribution, cf. H. Kahane, Bezeichnungen der Kinnbacken im Galloromanischen, in Berl. Beitr. z. rom. Ph. 2.2.

Sp. quijada, deriv. of Lat. capsa and capsus 'box', as if 'box for the teeth'. Cf. Prov. cais 'jaw' and 'cheek'. Port. queixo, formerly 'jaw', now 'chin'. REW 1659c. Zauner, Rom. Forsch. 14.400. Wartburg 2.316. Malkiel, Language 21.151 ff.

Rum. falcă, fr. falca* for Lat. falx, falcis 'sickle' (8.33), hence 'jaw' from the similar shape of the lower jaw in side view. REW 3175. Pușcariu 575.

4. Ir. carpat, NIr. carbad 'chariot, wagon' (10.75) used also for the 'upper jaw, palate' (cf. NIr. fiacla carbaid 'teeth of the upper jaw'), apparently from the resemblance in shape. Here also Br. karvan 'beam of a loom' and reg. word for 'jaw' (upper or lower), and W. car yr ên 'jawbone'. Pedersen 1.118, 494.

NIr. corrān 'sickle' (8.33) is used for the lower 'jaw'.

NIr. giall, prob., like Gael. ciobhal, fr. forms of OE ceafl, NE jowl (below, 5). Macbain 193.

W. gen, above, 1.

W. cern, also 'cheek', see 4.208.

5. ON kjǫptr (Dan. kæft, Sw. käft now more like 'mug'), OE ceafl, ME chavel, NE jowl (in part), MHG kiver, kivel, NHG kiefer, LG keve (> Dan. kæve) : Av. zafar- 'mouth' (of evil beings). Walde-P. 1.570 f. Falk-Torp 518, 521. Hellquist 544. Weigand-H. 1.103. NED s.v. jowl, sb.[1].

OE cēace, cēce (also and later reg. 'cheek', but 'jawbone' in Chaucer's an asses cheek; and cēacbān, NE cheek bone = 'jawbone' in all early uses, present use only since 19th cent., cf. NED s.v.), fr. the root in OE cēowan, OHG kiuwan 'chew' (: ChSl. žĭvati 'chew'), not (as NED s.v. cheek) fr. kākā* = Du. kaak, etc. (below), though it may have the added guttural by a blend with such form. Falk-Torp 1307. Franck–v. W. 283.

OHG chinnibahho, MHG kinnebacke, NHG kinnbacken, cpd. of OHG kinni (above, 1, here as 'jaw') and baccho 'jaw, cheek' (4.208).

Du. kaak, MLG kake, and with different vowel-grade MLG keke, Norw. kjake, Sw. käk, perh. fr. a root seen in NPers. gazīdan 'bite'. Falk-Torp 513. Hellquist 545. Franck–v. W. 283.

ME iow, iowe, iawe, NE jaw, etym. disputed. Now taken by many as fr. chowe* : OE cēowan 'chew', like MHG kiuwe 'jaw' fr. the same root (OHG chiwa, like OE cīan 'gills'). But the old deriv. fr. a form of Fr. joue 'cheek' is less difficult, despite the objection made in NED. For OFr. ioe, ioue must have been pronounced with [owe], not [ū], and the phonetic history would be parallel to that of ME powe, pawe, NE paw, fr. OFr. poe, poue = Prov. pauta. The transition fr. 'cheek' to 'jaw' may have started in 'cheek bone' = 'jawbone', which is in fact the sense in the earliest ME quotation (iow in Wyclif, see NED).

6. Lith. žandas, Lett. zuods, see above, 1.

Lett. žuokls, perh. with žākle 'fork of a tree', fr. the root in Lith. -žioti 'yawn, gape', etc. (4.52). Mühl.-Endz. 4.839.

7. ChSl. čeljustĭ, etc., general Slavic (but Pol. czeluść obs. in this sense), etym. dub. but prob. cpd. with second part : ChSl. usta 'mouth' (4.24). Berneker 142. Brückner 75.

SCr. vilica 'fork' (5.39, 8.26) also 'jaw'.

Pol. szczęka, early szczeka (Russ. ščeka 'cheek'), beside sb. szczęk 'clash, clatter', vbs. szczekać 'bark', szczękać 'clash, clatter', of imitative origin. Brückner 543, 544.

8. Skt. hanu-, Av. zānu-, above, 1.

4.208. In several of the words for 'cheek' this sense is clearly secondary to 'jaw', and in some it is a specialization of 'face'. Others are mostly based on a notion of swollen or curved rounded surface.

1. Grk. γένυς 'jaw' and 'cheek', see 4.207.

Grk. παρειά (Hom. in pl. only; sg. παρήϊον), Ion. παρήϊον, Aeol. παραύα, mostly a poet. word, but revived in lit. NG, fr. παρ-αυσ-ιᾱ-*, cpd. of παρά 'beside' and a form of either the word for 'mouth' (Lat. ōs, etc., 4.24), or that for 'ear' (Grk. οὖς, Lat. auris, etc., 4.22). Walde-P. 1.168. Boisacq 747.

Grk. σιᾱγών, usually 'jaw' (4.207), but 'cheek' in NT (Mt. 5.39, Lk. 6.29) and several pap. (Moulton-Milligan, s.v.).

Byz. μάγουλον (also in text of Melampus, but prob. Byz.) 'jaw' in κατωμάγουλον (Const. Porph.) and 'cheek', in NG reg. pop. word for 'cheek', orig. dub. G. Meyer, IF 3.68 f., Neugr. St. 3.40. Walde-H. 2.12.

2. Lat. gena : Grk. γένυς 'jaw, cheek', etc. See 4.207.

Lat. bucca (> Rum. bucă 'cheek', but other Romance forms 'mouth', 4.24), fr. an imitative bu- (beside bhu-) seen in many words based on the notion 'blow up, puff out', as OE pohha 'bag', (ā-)pyffan 'blow out, puff out', etc. Walde-P. 2.114 ff. Walde-H. 2.120.

It. guancia, fr. Gmc., OHG wanga, etc. (below, 5). REW 9499.

It. gota ('cheek' in phrases, but not the usual word), Prov. gauta, Fr. joue (OFr. iou, ioue), fr. a Celtic form like (if not the same as) Gall.-Rom. gabata

'dish'. REW 3706a. Gamillscheg 541. Meyer-Lübke, Einführung[3] 243.

For the numerous It. dial. words and their distribution, cf. H. Kahane, Language 17.212 ff.

Sp. mejilla, fr. Lat. maxilla 'jaw' (4.207). REW 5443.

Sp. carrillo, dim. of carro 'cart', and used, doubtless first as slang, for the lower jaw or cheek, with reference to the up-and-down movement in eating. Spitzer, Riv. fil. esp. 11.316.

Rum. obraz 'face' and 'cheek', fr. Slavic, ChSl. obrazŭ 'form, shape, image', SCr. obraz 'cheek', etc. Tiktin 1072 f.

3. Ir. grūad, NIr. gruadh, W. grudd : OE grēada 'bosom', with common notion of curved surface, but root connection? Walde-P. 1.658.

Ir. lecconn, NIr. leaca, prob. cpd. of leth 'side' and conn = cenn 'head'. Thurneysen, KZ 48.67 (rejecting the usual comparison with ChSl. lice 'face', etc., Pedersen 1.159, etc.).

Ir. āil, ōil : W. ael 'eyebrow' (4.206). Stokes 3. Otherwise (: Grk. οἶδος 'swelling') W. Lehman, Z. celt. Ph. 6.438.

NIr. pluc 'lump, knob' (beside ploc and prob. like W. ploc fr. NE block in sense of 'lump', as NED s.v. 11), hence also 'cheek'.

W. boch, Br. boc'h, fr. Lat. bucca (above, 2). Loth, Mots lat. 138.

W. cern 'side of the head' and so 'cheek' or 'jaw' (cf. NT, Lk. 6.29 cern vs. grudd Mt. 5.39) = Ir. cern 'corner' : ChSl. črěnovĭnaja 'molar teeth', Slovak. čren 'jaw', etc. Walde-P. 1.427. Loth, RC 42.354. Berneker 147.

Br. jod, fr. some early form of Fr. joue. Loth, Mots lat. 180.

4. Goth. kinnus, ON kinn, Dan., Sw. kind, see 4.207.

ON vangi (cf. Goth. deriv. waggareis 'pillow'), OE wange, wenge, ME wonge, Du. wang, OHG wanga, MHG, NHG wange, prob. : OE wang 'field', etc., with common notion of curved surface, and fr. the root seen in Skt. vañc- 'move crookedly', etc. Walde-P. 1.218. Falk-Torp 1350 f. Feist 540.

OE cēace (WSax.), cēce (Angl.) 'jaw' (4.207), also 'cheek' (so Mt. 5.39, Lk. 6.29 in Lindisf. vs. wenge in WSax. versions), and so reg. later, ME cheke, NE cheek. NED s.v. cheek.

OHG baccho (rare, gl. to mandibula, mala; cf. chinnibahho 'jaw'), MHG backe, NHG backe or backen, in early period partly 'jaw', now the popular word for 'cheek' vs. wange, except locally (Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 100 ff.), etym. dub., perh. : OE bæc 'back', etc. Walde-P. 2.148. Falk-Torp 41, 44. Or as 'jaw' fr. 'eater' fr. the root seen in Grk. φαγεῖν 'eat', φαγών 'glutton' and (Hesych.) 'jaw'? So, after Much, Weigand-H. 1.136, Kluge-G. 33. But the sense 'eat' in Grk. is secondary.

5. Lith. skruostas : skrosti 'split open'? Buga in Mühl.-Endz. 3.900.

Lett. vaigs (also 'face'), perh. as orig. 'curved surface' (cf. OE wange, etc., above, 4), fr. the root seen in ON veikja 'bend', etc. (Walde-P. 1.235). Mühl.-Endz. 4.435. Buga, Kalba ir Senovė 73.

6. ChSl. lanita (Boh. lanita, lanitva obs.), fr. olnita* : Grk. ὠλένη 'forearm'; OE eln 'ell', elnboga 'elbow', etc. (4.32). Development through 'jaw' with its angle or 'cheek' as 'bent, curved surface'? Walde-P. 1.157. Torbiörnsson, Liq. Met. 68.

SCr. obraz : ChSl. obrazŭ 'form, shape, image', with development through 'face' (cf. the loanword Rum. obraz in both senses).

Boh. líce, Pol. lice, orig. 'face' as ChSl. lice, etc. (4.204). Cf. OPruss. laygnan 'cheek'.

Russ. ščeka, prob. orig. 'jaw', as Pol. szczęka, earlier szczeka (4.207).

7. Skt. gaṇḍa-, mostly 'cheek', but also 'boil, pimple' and orig. 'swelling', fr. goldno-(?) or some form of the root gel- seen in numerous words for round or swollen objects (Goth. kilþei 'womb', etc.) Walde-P. 1.614.

4.209. Some of the words for 'chin' belong to the group of cognates in which 'jaw', 'cheek' and 'chin' interchange (4.207). Some reflect the 'shape 'as 'something projecting' or a 'hook'. Several belong with words for 'beard' (4.142), for just as 'chin' may give the word for 'beard', so conversely a word for 'beard' or 'behind the beard', 'what has a beard on it', may be used also for the 'chin', and, once so established, no incongruity is felt in applying the term equally to a woman's chin.

1. Grk. γένειον : γένυς 'jaw, cheek', etc. (4.207).

NG πιγούνι, with haplology fr. ἐπι-(πω)γώνιον 'that which has a beard on it' : πώγων 'beard' (4.142). Cf. Russ. podborodok 'chin', lit. 'what is under the beard'. Kretschmer, Glotta 9.231.

2. Lat. mentum (> It. mento; Fr. menton in form fr. mentō, -ōnis 'person with a long chin') : W. mant 'jaw, mouth' (and prob. Goth munþs, etc. 'mouth', 4.24), fr. root men-* in Lat. ēminēre, prōminēre 'stand out, project', mōns, montis 'mountain', etc. Walde-P. 2.263. Ernout-M. 608. Walde-H. 2.72 f.

Sp. barba, also and orig. 'beard', and Rum. barbie deriv. (barbīlia?* Tiktin 158) of barbă, Lat. barba 'beard' (4.142).

NIr.	srōn	OHG	nasa	Av.	nāh-
W.	trwyn	MHG	nase
Br.	fri	NHG	nase

Most of the words for 'nose' belong to an inherited group. The others are partly of obscure origin.

1. IE nas-, nās-*. Walde-P. 2.318. Ernout-M. 653, 655. Falk-Torp 779 f.

Lat. nāsus (> It. naso, Fr. nez, Rum. nas), also pl. nārēs 'nostrils, nose', late sg. nāris (> Sp. nariz); ON sg. nǫs 'nostril', pl. nasar 'nostrils, nose', OE nosu, nasu, OHG nasa, etc., general Gmc.; Lith. nosis, OPruss. nozy; ChSl. nosŭ, etc., general Slavic; Skt. nas-, nās- (in RV only dual, nom. nāsā, gen. nasos), Av., OPers. nāh- (sg. and dual in Av., sg. in OPers.). The meaning 'nostril' is implied by the early use of dual or pl. forms, but is not necessarily older than 'nose'. For it may be abstracted from the latter, and the dual was favored by its frequency in the case of 'eyes', 'ears', 'hands', etc.

2. Grk. ῥίς, gen. ῥῑνός, also pl. ῥῖνες 'nostrils, nose' (like Lat. nārēs), etym.? The explanation as 'running', either : Skt. sṛ- 'flow', etc. (Boisacq 842) or : Skt. ri- 'flow', etc. (Walde-P. 1.140 with query) is possible, the word being then orig. a vulgar epithet, displacing the IE word, like the following which displaced it in turn.

NG μύτη, fr. Grk. μύτις used by Aristot. (HA 524b15 ff.) for an organ of the cuttlefish connected with the ink sac, and attested as a vulgar term for 'snout, nose' by Eust., Comm. 950 (οἱ τὴν ῥῖνα μύτιν καλέσαντες), prob. : Lith. mute, Skt. mukha- 'mouth,' etc. (4.24). Walde-P. 2.310.

3. Ir. srōn = W. ffroen, Br. fron 'nostril' (here in some way Br. fri 'nose', MBr. fry), fr. skrok-nā-*, prob. : Skt. srakva- 'corner of the mouth', and fr. the root in Ir. srennim, Grk. ῥέγκω, ῥέγχω 'snore, snort', of imitative origin. Walde-P. 2.705. Pedersen 1.82. Lewis-Pedersen 22.

W. trwyn, OCorn. trein, perh. fr. an imitative group parallel to the preceding (cf. Grk. ῥύγχος 'pig's snout'). Pedersen 1.82. Morris Jones 156.

4. Lett. deguns, etym.?

5. Skt. ghrāṇa- 'smell' and 'nose', fr. ghrā- 'smell' (15.21).

The IE word for 'mouth' persisted in several languages in the literal sense, in some others in secondary uses, but was to a large extent replaced by other words. Most of these were originally expressions applied to the mouth of animals and vulgarly of persons, like Lat. rōstrum, NHG maul, NE jaw, snout, mug, and many others (not included in the list, except where they have become standard words for 'mouth'). There is frequent association between 'mouth' and 'throat', 'jaw', 'cheek', 'chin' or 'lip'.

1. IE ō(u)s-, əus-. Walde-P. 1.168. Ernout-M. 714 f.

Lat. ōs (also ōstium 'door, entrance, river-mouth', ōra 'edge, coast'); Ir. ā (rare); OPruss. austo (Lith. uostas 'river-mouth'); ChSl. usta, etc., general Slavic (but Russ. usta obs.); Skt. ās-, āsan-, āsya-, Av. āh- (also Skt. oṣṭha-, Av. aošta- 'lip'); cf. also ON ōss 'river-mouth', OE ōr 'beginning', ōra 'edge, bank', etc. But Hitt. ais, gen. issas 'mouth (Sturtevant, Hitt. Gloss. with refs.) points to a parallel ōis-*.

2. Grk. στόμα : Av. staman- 'dog's mouth', W. safn 'mouth, jaws' (of animals), MBr. staffn, Br. staoñ 'palate', root connection? Walde-P. 2.648. Pedersen 1.78.

3. It. bocca, Fr. bouche, Sp. boca, fr. Lat. bucca 'puffed-out cheek' (4.208) and also a pop. substitute for ōs (cf. Thes. s.v.). Ernout-M.110. Walde-H. 2.120. REW 1357.

Rum. gură (so Alb. gojë 'mouth', Fr. gueule 'mouth, jaws' of animals, in some dial. common word for 'mouth'), fr. Lat. gula 'throat, gullet' (4.29).

Lat. gurges 'whirlpool', late gurga, has through 'throat' (Fr. gorge) given dial. words for 'mouth'; likewise Lat. rōstrum 'beak, snout, mouth' (of animals, vulgarly of persons), as ORum. rost. REW 3921, 7386.

4. Ir. gin, W. geneu (beside gen 'chin'), Br. genou : Lat. gena, Goth. kinnus 'cheek', etc. (4.207).

Ir. bēoil, NIr. bēal, see bēl 'lip' (4.25).

5. Goth. munþs, OE mūþ, OHG mund, etc., general Gmc., prob. : Lat. mentum 'chin', etc. (4.209), rather than : Lat. mandere 'chew', as preferred in Walde-P. 2.270, Falk-Torp 738. Feist 368. Ernout-M. 608.

6. Lith. burna : Bulg. bŭrna 'lip', Arm. beran 'mouth', Ir. bern 'cleft, gap', Grk. φάραγξ 'cleft, ravine', φάρυγξ 'throat', etc. Walde-P. 2.159. Trautmann 40.

Lett. mute : Skt. mukha- 'mouth', etc. (below, 8).

7. ChSl. usta, etc., above, 1.

Pol. gęba : Boh. huba, SCr. gubica (both 'mouth' only in derogatory sense, 'mug'), Russ. guba 'lip', ChSl. gąba 'sponge', Lith. gumbas 'swelling, protuberance', Lett. gumba 'tumor', etc. Walde-P. 1.568. Brückner 138 ff. (Berneker 340 makes two separate groups.)

Russ. rot : ChSl. rŭtŭ 'peak', SCr. rt 'promontory', Boh. ret 'lip', etc., these prob. as orig. 'projection' (whence 'mouth' or 'lip' through 'snout' of animals) : Lat. orīrī 'rise', Skt. ṛṣva- 'high', etc. G. S. Lane, AJPh. 54.64.

8. Skt. (beside ās-, etc., above, 1) mukha- : Lett. mute 'mouth', OHG mūla, NHG maul 'mouth' (of animals, vulgarly of persons), Lett. maut 'roar', etc., an imitative group based on an utterance like Grk. μύ, Lat. mu. Walde-P. 2.309 ff.

Ernout-M. 513. Walde-H. 1.738 f. REW 4808, 4813. Falk-Torp 672.

Rum. buză, fr. or like Alb. buzë 'lip' (cf. below, 3).

3. Ir. bēl 'lip', pl. bēoil 'lips, mouth', NIr. bēal 'mouth, lip', etym.? Walde-P. 1.671. Pedersen 1.117.

W. gwefl 'lip of animals' = MBr. guefl 'mouth of animals', etym.? Stokes 335 (vs. 175).

Ir. bus 'lip' (rare), NIr. pus 'lips, mouth' (derogatory term), whence regular word puisīn, W. gwefus (fr. gwe-bus*; or gwef-us : gwefl?*), Br. gweuz : Alb. buzë, Rum. buză 'lip', NE buss, NHG bus 'a kiss', etc., of imitative orig. Walde-P. 2.113 ff. Thurneysen, Kelto-Rom. 86.

Br. muzell, fr. Prov. muzel (Fr. museau) 'snout, muzzle', dim. of mūsus*, It. muso, etc. Henry 208. REW 5784.

4. OE lippa, etc., above, 2.

Goth. wairilōm (dat. pl.), ON vǫrr, OFris. were, OE weler (fr. werel*) : OPruss. warsus 'lip', and perh. through notion of 'protuberance' : OE wearr 'callous skin', Lat. verrūca 'height' and 'wart', Skt. varṣman- 'height', etc. Walde-P. 1.266 ff. Feist 545.

5. Lith., Lett. lūpa : LG lobbe 'hanging lip', Fris. lobbe 'hanging lump of flesh', NE lob (NED lob, sb.[2]), etc., with common notion of 'loosely hanging'. Walde-P. 2.710.

6. ChSl. ustĭna, SCr. usne, deriv. of usta 'mouth' : Skt. oṣṭha-, Av. aošta- 'lip', Lat. ōstium 'door, entrance, river-mouth', etc., all derivs. of word for 'mouth' (4.24). Walde-P. 1.168 ff.

Boh. ret : ChSl. rŭtŭ 'peak', SCr. rt 'promontory', Russ. rot 'mouth' (4.24).

Boh. pysk = Pol. pysk 'snout' : Boh. puchnouti, Pol. puchnąć 'swell', Grk. φυσάω 'blow', etc. Walde-P. 2.81. Brückner 449 f.

Pol. warga, perh. : OPruss. warsus 'lip', etc. (above, 4). Brückner 602.

Russ. guba : Pol. gęba 'mouth', etc. (4.24), with shift to 'lips' in pl. guby, whence sg. in same sense.

Most of the words for 'tooth' belong to an inherited group.

1. IE dont-, dn̥t-, prob. a pple. form of ed-* 'eat'. But some think this is only a secondary association and connect with the root of Grk. δάκνω 'bite', OE tang 'tongs', etc. Walde-P. 1.120. Ernout-M. 260 f. Walde-H. 1.340 f. Feist 483.

Grk. ὀδών, ὀδούς, gen. -όντος (ὀδοντ-, fr. ἐδοντ-, as Aeol. ἔδοντες, and this prob. by reassociation with ἔδω, rather than an inherited form) NG δόντι fr. dim. form; Lat. dēns, dentis (> the Romance forms); Ir. dēt (NIr. dēad coll. 2. Ir. fiacail, NIr. fiacal, deriv. of a rare fec 'tooth' (Windisch 538), NIr. feac (Dinneen), this perh. in orig. identical with Ir. fec, NIr. feac 'spade' (though differing in decl. and gender), of which the etym. is dub. (Pedersen 1.159. Walde-P. 1.316). But cf. also Zupitza, KZ 36.208.

3. Lett. zuobs, ChSl. ząbŭ, etc., general Slavic : Lith. žambas 'edge of a beam', Grk. γόμφος 'bolt, pin, etc.', γομφίος 'molar tooth', Skt. jambha- 'tooth, tusk', Alb. dhëmp 'tooth', OE comb 'comb', etc., all with common notion of 'tooth' or 'toothlike object'. Walde-P. 1.575 ff. (with needless division of Grk. γόμφος into two words). Here also Toch. A kam, B keme 'tooth'.

Some words for 'neck' originally denoted only the 'back (nape) of the neck' (cf. NE neck : NHG nacken), and rest on the notion of 'projection, ridge'. Others, denoting from the outset the whole round neck, are connected with words for 'circle', 'column', or 'turn, wind'. Some were originally words for 'throat', with extension from the internal throat (cf. 4.29), the latter being the front of the neck, hence 'neck'. In general, words for 'throat' are sometimes used for 'neck', as conversely (cf. NHG halsweh 'sore throat', etc.).

1. Grk. αὐχήν (Hom.+, regular word in Aristot. and not at all restricted to 'nape of the neck'), perh.: Arm. awj- in awji-k 'collar'. N. Adontz, Mélanges Boisacq 1.10.

Grk. τράχηλος (Hdt.+, displacing αὐχήν in Hellenistic Grk., as always in NT), prob. : τροχός 'wheel', τρέχω 'run', etc. Walde-P. 1.874 f. (with query, but favored by analogies).

Grk. δέρη (poet.), see below, 7.

Grk. λαιμός 'throat' (4.29) is in NG also the usual word for 'neck' (τράχηλος lit.). Cf. also σβέρκος (= Alb. zverk) and σνίχι 'nape of the neck', loanwords but ultimate source?

2. Lat. collum (> It. collo, Fr. cou, Sp. cuello; Fr. col 'neck' of bottles, dresses, etc.) : Goth. hals, OE heals, etc., general Gmc. word for 'neck', all prob. fr. IE k^{w}el-* 'turn around' in Skt. car-, Grk. πέλομαι, etc., also Lith. kaklas 'neck' (below, 5), rather than fr. kel-* 'rise, project' in celsus 'high', collis 'hill', etc., though either connection is possible phonetically, and semantically according as the words orig. denoted the '(round) neck' or the 'nape of the neck'. Ernout-M. 204. Walde-H. 1.245 (vs. Walde-P. 1.434). Feist 242.

Rum. gît, orig. 'throat' (hence gîtlej 'throat'), loanword fr. Slavic, SCr. gut 'throat' (obs., but gutati 'swallow'), Slov. golt 'throat', Bulg. gŭltŭk 'a swallow', etc., these : Lat. gula 'throat', etc. (4.29). Tiktin 684. Berneker 309.

3. Ir. brāge 'neck' and rarely (inner) 'throat' (cf. K. Meyer, Contrib. s.v.), NIr. brāgha mostly 'throat' : MHG krage (below, 4), Grk. βρόχθος 'throat', Skt. gṛ- 'swallow', Lith. gerti 'drink', etc. Walde-P. 1.683. Pedersen 1.100, 183.

Ir. muin, muinēl 'nape of the neck', NIr. muinēal 'neck', W. mwn (arch.), mwnwgl 'neck' : ON men, OE mene 'necklace' (also OE manu 'mane', etc.), Lat. monīle 'necklace, collar', Skt. manyā- 'nape of the neck', Av. minu- 'necklace', manaoθri- 'neck' (both words in Yt. 5.127, cf. Barth. 1126), all prob. fr. IE men-* 'project' in Lat. ēminēre, prominēre 'project', mōns 'mountain', etc. Walde-P. 2.305, 265. Pedersen 1.33.

W. gwddf, Br. gouzoug (both also 'throat'), etym.? Pedersen 1.63. Henry 142. Morris Jones 145 (cf. Loth, RC 36.170).

4. Goth. hals, etc., above, 2.

ON svīri, OE swēora, swīra (so, not heals, always in the Gospels), ME swere (cf. NED s.v. swire) : OE swer, sweor 'column', Skt. svaru- 'post', etc. Walde-P. 1.528.

ME necke, NE neck, fr. OE hnecca 'nape of the neck' : ON hnakki, OHG hnac, NHG nacken, etc. general Gmc. for 'nape of the neck', prob. : Ir. cnoc 'hill', etc. Walde-P. 1.391. Falk-Torp 754.

MHG krage 'neck, throat, collar' (NHG kragen 'collar', rarely 'neck', Du. kraag 'collar'; ME crawe, NE craw with only specialized meaning) : Ir. brāge, etc. above, 3.

5. Lith. kaklas, Lett. kakls : Grk. κύκλος 'circle', Skt. cakra- 'circle, wheel', OE hweol 'wheel', etc., fr. IE k^{w}el-* 'turn', as prob. also Lat. collum, Goth. hals, etc. (above, 2). Walde-P. 1.515.

6. ChSl. vyja (so always in Gospels, Supr., etc., šija only in later texts), etym.? Löwenthal, Z. sl. Ph. 8.129, connects with Av. uyamna- 'lacking, deficient' (Walde-P. 1.108) as if orig. 'neck-hole' (in a garment).

ChSl. (late) šija (SCr. šija 'neck' of geese, etc.), Boh. šije, Pol. szyja, Russ. šeja, etym.? Wiedemann, BB 27.261 connects with Lat. sinus 'fold' fr. a doubtful root meaning 'bend'. Better (cf. Miklosich, Lex. s.v.) : Skt. si-, Lith. sieti, Lett. siet 'bind', ChSl. sětĭ 'cord', Lith. sija 'joist', etc. (Walde-P. 2.463 ff., without šija). Form (with š for s fr. a parallel form with šj-) like Lith. sija, semantic development like that in Lat. iugulum 'throat' (4.29).

ChSl. vratŭ (late), SCr. vrat, fr. the root of ChSl. vrŭtěti, vratiti, Lat. vertere 'turn', etc. (10.12). Walde-P. 1.275. Cf., fr. the same root, NPers. gardan 'neck' (vartana-*). Horn 903.

Boh. krk, Pol. kark (latter esp. 'nape of the neck') : Skt. kṛkāṭa- 'joint of the neck', prob. fr. same root as ChSl. sŭkrŭčiti 'contract', etc. Walde-P. 2.569. Berneker 667 f.

7. Skt. grīvā- (in Vedic only pl. 'vertebrae of the neck'), Av. grīvā- (Vend. 3.7, of a mountain called here the 'neck'; elsewhere also 'head' or 'back' of Arəzura, name of a fiend; NPers. garīva 'hill') : Grk. δέρη, δειρή 'neck' (poet.), Arc. δέρϝα 'ridge' (so δειράς 'ridge'), ChSl. griva 'mane', all prob. as orig. 'throat' : Skt. gṛ- 'swallow', Lith. gerti 'drink', Grk. βιβρώσκω 'devour', etc. Walde-P. 1.683.

Skt. kaṇṭha-, prob. a Middle Indic form of a kartra-* (> kaṭṭa, kaṭṭha-, then kaṇṭha- with the secondary nasalization frequent in Middle Indic), fr. k^{w}ol-tlo-, deriv. of the same IE k^{w}el- 'turn' as in Lith. kaklas, Lat. collum, Goth. hals, etc. (above, 2). Tedesco (to appear in JAOS).

Skt. çirodharā-, lit. 'head-supporter', cpd. of çiras- 'head' and dhṛ- 'hold'.

Av. manaoθri- : Ir. muin, etc., above, 3.

Most of the words listed are used for both the internal and external throat. But the Latin terms are differentiated, there being no single word with the broad scope of NE throat. The commonest semantic source is 'swallow', which with some others, as 'gurgle', 'abyss', 'round shape', 'narrow opening', indicate primary application to the internal throat. In a few cases the opposite is true, as in Lat. iugulum and the group including NE throat. Extension from 'throat' to 'neck' has been noted in 4.28.

1. Derivs. of vbs. for 'swallow, devour' either 1) IE gel-* in Ir. gelim, etc.; or 2) IE g^{w}er-* in Skt. gṛ-, Grk. βιβρώσκω, Lat. vorāre, etc.

IE gel-*. Walde-P. 1.621. Ernout-M. 437. Walde-H. 1.625 f.

Lat. gula 'throat (internal), gullet'

(> It., Sp. gola 'throat', but Fr. gueule 'jaws', Rum. gură 'mouth'; REW 3910); OE ceole, Du. keel, OHG kela, MHG kele, NHG kehle.

IE g^{w}er-*. Walde-P. 1.682 ff. Ernout-M. 438. Walde-H. 1.627 f. Falk-Torp 605. Berneker 369.

Lat. gurges 'abyss, whirlpool' (also 'gullet' to be inferred fr. ingurgitāre 'gorge oneself'), VLat. gurga* (> Fr. gorge 'throat'; REW 3921); ON kverkr (pl.); Lith. gerklė, OPruss. gurkle; ChSl. grŭlo, SCr. grlo, Boh. hrdlo, etc., general Slavic (gŭrdlo*, Berneker 369); here (or in preceding group?) Skt. gala-, Av. garō (pl.), garəman- (in pl.), NPers. gulū.

2. Grk. λαιμός, prob. (as fr. λαμιος*) : λάμια 'abysses', λαμυρός 'greedy', also λαμία 'monster', Lat. lemurēs 'ghosts'. Walde-P. 2.377, 434. Otherwise Boisacq 551.

Grk. σφαγή or pl. σφαγαί (both in Aristot.) 'throat', this prob. the earliest meaning of the word, whence σφάζω 'cut the throat, slay' (cf. Lat. iugulāre 'slay' fr. iugulum 'throat') and the resulting common use of σφαγή as 'slaughter'. No accepted etym., but prob. connected, by a series of parallel root-forms, with σφήξ, Dor. σφᾶξ (gen. -κός) 'wasp', σφήν, Dor. σφάν 'wedge', σφίγγω 'bind tight, constrict', all with common notion of 'narrow'. Cf. Dan. strube, etc., below, 4. (Different combinations in Walde-P. 2.651–53, 658.)

Grk. στόμαχος 'throat, gullet' (Hom., and reg. word for 'gullet' in Aristot., who does not use λαιμός at all), only later 'stomach', fr. στόμα 'mouth', hence the passage from the mouth to the stomach, cf. Aristot. HA 595^{b}19 ff. ὁ δὲ στόμαχος ἤρτηται μὲν ἄνωθεν ἀπὸ τοῦ στόματος, ... τελευτᾷ δὲ . . . . εἰς τὴν κοιλίαν.

3. Lat. faucēs (sg. faux rare), 'throat' (internal, esp. upper part), etym.? Walde-P. 1.565. Ernout-M. 339 f.

Lat. iugulum 'throat' (external), orig. the collarbone, joining the breastbone and shoulder blade : iugum 'yoke', iungere 'join'. Walde-P. 1.201. Ernout-M. 502. Walde-H. 1.737 f.

Lat. gula, etc., above, 1.

Lat. guttur 'throat' (internal), prob. : Hitt. kuttar 'neck, strength' and a large group of words denoting diverse objects of a round or curved shape. Walde-P. 1.560. Ernout-M. 439 f. Walde-H. 1.629.

Many of the words for 'shoulder' belong to an inherited group, of which the semantic source is unknown. Several were originally words for 'shoulder blade', these mostly from the notion of 'flat, broad', but also from 'joint'.

1. IE om(e)so-s*, root connection? Walde-P. 1.178. Ernout-M. 1123.

Grk. ὦμος, NG also νῶμος (ν from forms of the article); Lat. umerus (> It. omero, Sp. hombro, Rum. umăr), Umbr. ose 'in umero'; Goth. amsans (acc. pl.); Skt. aṅsa-; Arm. us.

2. It. spalla, Fr. épaule (Sp. espalda 'back', 4.19), fr. Lat. spatula 'flat piece, shoulder of an animal', dim. of spatha 'spattle, sword' (fr. Grk. σπάθη 'flat blade'). REW 8130.

3. Ir. gūalu, NIr. guala, etym. disputed, but possibly : Grk. γύαλον 'hollow', OHG kiol, OE cēol, ON kjöll 'keel, vessel', Skt. gōla- 'ball', etc. Walde-P. 1.571 (but rejected 1.556). Otherwise Pedersen 1.117 and Stokes 115.

Ir. formna (fr. for-monyo-*) : muin, muinēl 'neck' (4.28). Walde-P. 2.305.

W. ysgwydd, Br. skoaz, OCorn. scuid : Ir. sciath 'shoulder blade, wing', as 'flat piece' fr. the root in Br. skeja 'cut', Lat. scindere, Grk. σχίζω 'split'. Walde-P. 2.544. Pedersen 1.76.

4. Goth. amsans, above, 1.

ON herðr, usually pl. herðar (Dan. arch. and dial. hærde) : OHG harti, herti 'shoulder blade', also OHG skerti id., prob. fr. sker-dh-* an extension of (s)ker-* in Grk. κείρω, OE sceran 'cut, shear', etc. G. S. Lane, JEGPh. 32.293 f.

ON ǫxl, Sw. axel, OE eaxl, OHG ahsala, MHG ahsel, NHG achsel : Lat. āla 'armpit, upper arm' whence regularly 'wing', Du. oksel, OHG uochisa, etc. 'armpit', all orig. 'shoulder joint' : Skt. akṣa-, Lat. axis, etc. 'axle'. Walde-P. 1.37. Falk-Torp 18.

OE sculdor, NE shoulder, Du. schouder (MLG schulder > Dan. skulder, Sw. skuldra), OHG scultir(r)a, MHG, NHG schulter, prob. through 'shoulder blade' from 'flat piece' : Goth. skildus 'shield', Grk. σκαλίς 'hoe' (8.25), σκάλλω 'scrape, hoe', ON skilja 'divide, separate', Lith. skilti 'split', etc. Walde-P. 2.593. Solmsen, Beiträge 198 (but the assumed development first to 'shoulder blade as implement for digging' with closer relation to Grk. σκαλίς is not necessary; cf. the derivation of Fr. épaule, etc., and W. ysgwydd, above).

5. Lith. petys, OPruss. pettis, pette, prob. through 'shoulder blade' fr. the notion 'flat, spread out' : Grk. πετάννῡμι 'spread out', Lat. pandere 'spread, open', Av. paθana- 'broad'. Walde-P. 2.18.

Lett. plecs, mostly pl. pleci, either loanword fr. Russ. pleči (below, 6), or as native word : Lett. plāce 'shoulder blade', plakt 'become flat', Grk. πλάξ 'flat surface', etc. Walde-P. 2.90 Mühl.-Endz. 332 ff., 328.

Lett. kamiẽsis, OPruss. caymois (cammoys*), perh. : Arm. k'amak 'back'. Lidén, Arm. Stud. 30. Mühl.-Endz. 2.151.

6. ChSl. ramo, ramę, SCr. rame, see under Lat. armus, 4.31.

ChSl. plešte, SCr. pleća, Boh. plece, Pol. plecy (pl.), Russ. plečo, prob. fr. plet-yo-* : Lith. platus, Grk. πλατύς 'broad, flat', but could also be fr. plek-tyo-* : Lett. plāce 'shoulder blade', plakt 'become flat', Grk. πλάξ 'flat surface', etc., in either case fr. parallel extensions of the same root and fr. the notion of 'flat'. Walde-P. 2.100.

7. Skt. skandha-, etym.? Uhlenbeck 341.

Many of the words for 'arm' belong to an inherited group, derived from the notion of 'joint', and applied to both 'arm' and 'shoulder'. In several languages the words for 'hand' are extended to include, and in some are the usual terms for, 'arm' (cf. 'foot' for 'leg', 4.35).

1. IE arəmo-s*, r̥mo-s*, fr. IE ar(ə)-* in Grk. ἀραρίσκω 'fit', ἄρθρον 'joint', Lat. artus 'joint', etc. Walde-P. 1.73. Ernout-M. 74. Walde-H. 1.69.

Lat. armus mostly 'shoulder, forequarter' of animals, rarely 'arm' of men; Goth. arms, etc., general Gmc.; OPruss. irmo 'arm'; ChSl. ramo, ramę, SCr. rame 'shoulder', Boh. rámě, rameno, mostly 'arm', Pol. ramię, 'shoulder, arm'; Skt. īrma- 'forequarter' of an animal; Av. arəma- in arəmō-šūta- 'thrown by the arm'; Arm. armuka 'elbow'.

2. IE bhāĝhu-*. Walde-P. 2.130.

Grk. πῆχυς, Dor. πᾶχυς, mostly 'forearm', but also 'arm' (as Hom., Il. 5.314); Skt. bāhu-, Av. bāzu- (NPers. bāzū) 'arm'; ON bōgr, OE bōg, OHG buog 'shoulder' (mostly of animals); Toch. A poke 'arm' (SSS, p. 3, ftn. 1).

3. Grk. βραχίων, in part 'upper arm' (e.g. vs. πῆχυς in Plat. Tim. 75a; but also = πῆχυς in Aristot. HA 698b2), but mostly generic (cf. esp. Aristot. HA 493b26 f. with subordinate sequence ὦμος, ἀγκών, ὠλέκρανον, πῆχυς, χείρ 'shoulder, upper arm, elbow, forearm, hand'), an old comparative of βραχύς 'short', to be understood as first applied to the upper arm as 'shorter' than the forearm (including the hand; less prob. as shorter than the leg). Bechtel, Lexilogus zu Homer 83.

Hence Lat. bracchium > It. braccio (> NG μπράτσο), Fr. bras, Sp. brazo, Rum. braţ, W. braich, Br. brec'h. Ernout-M. 116. Walde-H. 1.114. REW 1256. Loth, Mots lat. 140.

Grk. χείρ 'hand' (4.33) is also used for 'arm' (Hom.; the double use is noted by Rufus, Onom. 82 χεὶρ δὲ τὸ ὅλον ἀπὸ τοῦ ὤμου καὶ ᾧ κρατοῦμεν), and NG χέρι is the usual pop. word for 'arm' as well as 'hand'.

4. Ir. lām, NIr. lāmh 'hand' (4.33), also 'arm'.

Ir. dōe : Skt. dōṣ- 'forearm', Av. daoš- 'upper arm, shoulder' (4.30).

W. braich, Br. brec'h, fr. Lat. bracchium (above, 3).

5. Goth. arms, etc., above, 1.

ON hǫnd 'hand' (4.33), also 'arm'.

6. Lith. ranka, Lett. ruoka, SCr., Russ. ruka, Pol. ręka 'hand' and 'arm', but orig. only the former. Cf. ChSl. rąka 'hand' (4.33).

ChSl. myšica (SCr. mišica 'arm' and 'muscle'), deriv. of ChSl. myšĭ 'mouse' in transferred sense 'muscle' (from the resemblance between the muscle of upper arm especially and a mouse). Cf. Lat. mūsculus 'little mouse, muscle', Grk. μῦς 'mouse' and 'muscle', etc. Walde-P. 1.312 f. Ernout-M. 645 f.

In some of the IE languages there is no single word for 'thumb', which is called the 'big finger', like NE big toe. Many of the single words are of similar semantic origin, being based on the notion of 'stout, thick'. Just as the same word may be used for either 'finger' or 'toe', so many of the forms listed here are used for either 'thumb' or 'big toe' (NE thumb obs. in latter sense). Several were also used for a measure of length, the 'thumb's breadth' (cf. NED s.v. thumb, sb.[4]) and in some cases came to be restricted to this use, with derivatives or compounds for 'thumb', as Dan. tomme vs. tommelfinger, Sw. tum vs. tumme.

1. Grk. μέγας δάκτυλος, NG μεγάλο δάχτυλο, the 'big finger'.

Grk. ἀντίχειρ (sc. δάκτυλος), as what is opposite the fingers.

2. Lat. pollex (> It. pollice, Fr.

Some words which meant originally only 'foot' have been extended to designate the 'leg' also (like 'hand' > 'arm', 4.31). Sometimes the original sense was 'bone' of the leg 'either above or below the knee'. Often (as in the case of 'hand', 'arm', and 'shoulder') the original term seems to have applied to various members of the body or to their articulations.

1. Grk. σκέλος, NG pop. σκέλι : σκολιός 'curved, bent', OHG scelah 'crooked,' Lat. scelus 'wickedness' (fr. 'crookedness'), prob. also (fr. kel-, beside skel-) Lith. kelys, Lett. celis, ChSl. kolěno 'knee', Lat. calx, Lith. kulnis 'heel'. Walde-P. 2.598.

It. gamba, Fr. jambe (OSp. camba), fr. late Lat. gamba 'hoof or hock of a horse', orig. only a veterinary's term, then applied to persons; this from Grk. καμπή 'bend', used in Aristot. for the joints of various parts. Ernout-M. 410. Walde-H. 1.581. REW 1539.

Sp. pierna, fr. Lat. perna 'ham, haunch' (esp. of pork) : Grk. πτέρνα 'heel, ham', Skt. pārṣṇi-, Av. pāšna-, Goth. fairzna 'heel', etc. Walde-P. 2.50 f. Ernout-M. 757. REW 6418.

Br., Corn. gar = W. gar 'thigh, ham', Ir. gairri 'calves' of the leg (cf. Fr. jarret 'hock' fr. Gallic garr-*), etym. obscure. Henry 129. Connection with Lett. gurni 'groins, hips' (as Bezzenberger in Stokes 107) apparently untenable (cf. Walde-P. 1.557, Mühl.-Endz. 1.684).

Words for 'breast' as front part of the chest and for 'breast' as woman's breast are in part the same, and where they are normally different there may be some overlapping. There is also overlapping on the other side with 'chest'. In fact, except where the distinctive Grk. θῶραξ (the whole 'trunk' in Aristot., later 'chest') has been borrowed, 'breast' as the front of the chest, and the whole 'chest' are generally not distinguished but covered by the same word. (So Lat. pectus, It. petto, Fr. poitrine and most of of the words listed here).

Omitted from the list are a number of words which, like NE bosom, are sometimes used of the breast in a literal sense but are generally poetical, or with emotional connotation. So Grk. κόλπος, Lat. sinus, Goth. barms (which renders κόλπος in this sense), Dan., Sw. barm, OE bearm, OHG barm, OE bōsm, NE bosom, NHG busen, etc.

The chief semantic source is the notion of 'curved shape, swelling'.

1. Grk. στῆθος, prob. related in some way (perh. a blend with some other word in -θος) to στήνιον· στῆθος (Hesych.), this : Skt. stana- 'woman's breast', etc. (4.41). Walde-P. 2.663.

Grk. στέρνον (in Hom. only of males), specialization of 'flat surface', fr. the root of στόρνυμι, etc. 'spread out' (9.34). Cf. OHG sterna 'forehead', fr. the same root. Walde-P. 2.639. Boisacq 931.

2. Lat. pectus (> It. petto, Sp. pecho, Rum. piept; Fr. pis once 'breast', now 'udder'; deriv. Fr. poitrine; REW 6335, 6332), perh. as denoting first the hairy breast of man (cf. Grk. λάσια στήθη) : Lat. pectere 'comb', Grk. πόκος 'fleece', etc. Walde-P. 2.17.

Fr. sein (It., Sp. seno, Rum. sîn 'bosom, lap') fr. Lat. sinus 'fold, bosom, lap', itself of dub. etym. Ernout-M. 946. REW 7950.

3. Ir. bruinne, W. bron (also dwyfron orig. 'the two breasts'), Br. (bronn only 'woman's breast') brennid : Ir. brū 'belly, womb', W. bryn 'hill', Goth. brusts, etc., all fr. a common notion of 'swelling'. Walde-P. 2.197 ff.

Ir. ucht, prob. fr. puptu-* : VLat. puppa, It. poppa, Lett. pups 'woman's breast' (4.41). Walde-P. 2.81. Stokes 55. Otherwise (: Lat. pectus) Pedersen 1.90, etc. (cf. Walde-P. 2.17).

4. Goth. brusts (pl. = στῆθος), OE brēost, etc., general Gmc. : Ir. bruinne, etc., above, 3.

5. Lith. krūtis (mostly 'woman's breast'), krūtinė, Lett. krūts : NIr. cruit, W. crwth 'hump' and a kind of 'violin', fr. common notion of 'curved, bent'. Walde-P. 1.489. Mühl.-Endz. 2.293.

6. ChSl. grądĭ* (quotable only in late form grudĭ), SCr. grudi (pl.), Boh. hrud', Russ. grud', perh. : Grk. βρένθος 'arrogance', Lat. grandis 'large', fr. a common notion of 'swelling'. Walde-P. 1.699. Berneker 356. Walde-H. 1.351.

ChSl. prŭsi (pl.), SCr., Boh. prsa (pl.) or prsi, prsy (pl.), Boh. sg. prs 'woman's breast', Pol. pierś : Skt. parçu-, pṛṣṭi-, Av. parəsu- 'rib'. Slavic shift from 'ribs' through 'chest' to 'breast', or 'ribs' and 'chest' fr. a common notion of 'inclosing'; uncertain which, since root connection doubtful. Walde-P. 2.44 f.

7. Skt. uras-, Av. varah- (rare, Barth. 1365, but NPers. bar 'breast') : Skt. uru-, Grk. εὐρύς 'wide, broad', etc. Walde-P. 1.285.

Words for woman's (or the corresponding man's) 'breast' are in part the same as those listed and discussed in 4.40. They are naturally of most frequent occurrence in the plural (or originally dual), but may be used in the singular and are so entered. Words for 'teat, nipple' are frequently used, especially in vulgar speech, for woman's 'breast', but these are not considered here, except where they have become serious terms in the latter sense. Numerous other vulgar terms, like Fr. nichon, etc. are likewise omitted.

1. Grk. μαστός, Ion. μαζός, late μασθός : Lat. madēre 'be moist' (Grk. μαδάω only with secondary meaning), Skt. mad- 'bubble, be glad', matta- 'drunk', OHG manzon 'udders', Alb. mënd 'suckle', etc. Walde-P. 2.230 f. Walde-H. 2.7.

Grk. στῆθος (4.40) only rarely for woman's 'breast', but in NG preferred as polite term, esp. in pl. pop. τὰ στήθια, to the following.

NG pop. βυζί, fr. late βυζίον (Test. Solom. +; cf. also βίζιν, βίζια in CGL), whence also Byz., NG βυζάνω 'suck', fr. adj. βυζός (Hesych. βυζόν· πυκνόν, κτλ.; belonging with βύζην 'closely', βύω, βύζω 'be full') and applied to the full, large breasts of women. Hatzidakis, Glotta 15.144 f.

2. Lat. mamma (> Sp. mama, Ir. mama, mām), mamilla (> It. mammella, Fr. mamelle, Sp. mamila), the first derived by some fr. mad-mā* : Lat. madēre, Grk. μαστός, etc. (above, 1), but prob. the same as the child's word for 'mother, mama' (2.36), just as Grk. μάμμη is also used for 'mother's breast'. Walde-P. 2.232. Ernout-M. 584. Walde-H. 2.21 f.

It. poppa fr. VLat. puppa* 'breast', same word as Lat. puppa, pūpa 'little girl, doll', beside pūpus 'little boy', etc., all words of infantile orig., as also Lett. pups 'breast', paupt 'swell'. Walde-P. 2.81. Ernout-M. 825. REW 6854.

Sp. teta, Rum. ţâţă : It. tetta, Fr. tette, OE titt, NE teat, NHG zitze, etc., widespread word for 'teat', of infantile orig. Walde-P. 1.704. REW 8759.

3. Ir. cīch, NIr. cīoch : W. cig, Br. kik 'flesh', outside connection dub. Walde-P. 1.334. Pedersen 1.51.

W. bron, Br. bronn, see 4.40.

4. OE brēost, etc., general Gmc. (Goth. brusts presumably used also for woman's 'breasts', but the passages containing μαστοί are lacking), see 4.40.

5. Lett. pups : VLat. puppa*, etc., above, 2.

6. ChSl. sŭsĭcĭ (Gospels in dual and pl. = μαστοί), sŭsŭ (Supr., etc.), SCr. sisa : ChSl. sŭsati, SCr. sisati, etc., 'suck', this fr. sup-s-* beside seug-* in Lat. sūgere, OE sūcan, etc., 'suck' (5.16). Miklosich 334 f.

SCr. dojka, fr. dojiti 'give suck' : Skt. dhayati 'sucks', Grk. θηλή 'teat', etc. (Walde-P. 1.829 f.). Berneker 205 f.

For other Slavic words, see 4.40.

7. Skt. stana-, Av. fštāna- (NPers. pistān) : Arm. stin 'woman's breast', Grk. στήνιον· στῆθος (4.40), perh. also OE spane, OPruss. spenis 'teat', etc., with orig. init. pst-. Walde-P. 2.663. Here also (or: Lat. pectus?) Toch. A päśśäṃ, B päścane (dual)? Pedersen, Tocharisch 74, 75.

Words for an animal's 'udder' are usually distinct from those for a woman's 'breast', but there is some overlapping. Aristotle uses μαστός as a general term of all animals, and its deriv. NG μαστάρι is 'udder', as Fr. pis from Lat. pectus is now 'udder'.

1. IE ūdhr/n-*, etc., with different grades of root syllable and the neuter r/n stem. Walde-P. 1.111. Ernout-M. 1076 f.

Grk. οὖθαρ, gen. -ατος; Lat. ūber (> Sp. ubre, Rum. uger, latter with g from suge 'suck'; REW 9026); ON jūgr, OE ūder, OHG ūtar, etc., general Gmc.; Skt. ūdhar, gen. ūdhnas; here also (from ūdh-men-) ChSl. vymę (not quotable), SCr. vime, etc., general Slavic.

2. NG μαστάρι, deriv. of Grk. μαστός 'breast', and βυζί 'breast' (4.41) also 'udder'.

3. It. poppa, mammella, same as for 'woman's breast' (4.41).

Fr. pis, fr. Lat. pectus 'breast' (4.40).

4. Ir. uth, NIr. ūth, perh. fr. puta-* : Lith. pusti 'blow up', putlus 'puffed up', Lett. pute 'blister, pustule', etc. Walde-P. 2.80. Stokes 54.

W. pwrs (also 'bag, purse') fr. ME purs 'purse'. Parry-Williams 160. Cf. the similar use of NE bag for 'udder' (NED s.v. bag, sb. 10).

Br. tez : Fr. tette 'teat', etc. Cf. 4.41, Rum. ţâţă.

W.	bogail	MHG	nabel(e)
Br.	begel	NHG	nabel

Most of the words for 'navel' belong to an inherited group. A recurring secondary sense of such words is 'center'.

1. IE ombh-, nobh-, etc. with various grades of the root syllable and different suffixes. Walde-P. 1.130. Ernout-M. 1122.

Grk. ὀμφαλός, NG pop. ἀφαλός, ἀφάλι; Lat. NIr.	ae	OHG	libara	Av.	yākarə
W.	afu	MHG	leber(e)
Br.	avu	NHG	leber

Several of the words for 'liver' belong to an inherited group. But the IE word has been largely replaced by others, partly within the historical period. Many of the new words denoted at first only the liver as an article of food.

1. IE yĕkʷr/n-*, a typical neuter r/n stem. Walde-P. 1.205. Ernout-M. 472. Walde-H. 1.673.

Grk. ἧπαρ, gen. -ατος; Lat. iecur (later iocur), gen. -oris, -inoris; Lith. jaknos (or jeknos, OLith. jekanas, all pl.), Lett. aknas (pl.); Skt. yakṛt, gen. yaknas, Av. yākarə, NPers. jigar.

2. NG συκώτι, dim. form of late Grk. σῡκωτόν, neut. of σῡκωτός (fr. σῦκον 'fig'), in ἧπαρ συκωτόν, denoting the liver of animals fed on dried figs, as explained in

Gal. 6.679, 704. Hence the Latinized form fīcātum (fr. fīcus 'fig'), whence (but with fluctuation of accent and of vowel of first syllable; cf. REW 8494), It. fegato, Fr. foie, Sp. hígado, Rum. ficat.

3. Ir. ōa, NIr. ae, W. afu, Br. avu, general Celtic word, etym.? Pedersen 1.313.

Ir. trommchride, cpd. of tromm 'heavy' and cride 'heart'. Pedersen 1.56.

4. ON lifr, OE lifer, etc., general Gmc., prob. : Grk. λίπος 'fat', λιπαρός 'fatty', etc., and at first applied to the 'liver' as an article of food (cf. Fr. foie gras). Walde-P. 1.205. Falk-Torp 639 (but with a less probable view of the semantic relation).

5. Lith. kepenys, fr. kepti 'bake, roast', as (and prob. in imitation of) Russ. pečen', pečenka fr. peč' 'bake, roast', orig., of course, the cooked liver.

6. ChSl. jętro, SCr. jetra, Boh. játra, Pol. wątroba (like ChSl. ątroba 'womb') : ChSl. ątrĭ, Lat. inter, Skt. antar 'within', Grk. ἔντερα 'entrails', etc. Walde-P. 1.127. Berneker 269. Brückner 605.

Words for 'belly' were used alike for the external 'belly' and the internal 'belly, stomach', and most of them are still familiar in the latter sense, in biblical language ("the whale's belly") and in common, partly vulgar, speech. Either the external or internal application may be the more original etymologically. Many of the same or related words were also used for 'womb' (4.47).

Words that denote more specifically the internal organ, the 'stomach', are added in the list after a semicolon. Some of these, like the Gmc. group, ON magi, etc. are old and have always been in common use. Some are less common, except in medical use, than the old words for 'belly', while NE stomach has virtually replaced belly in polite use.

Words that properly denote 'big belly, paunch', like It. pancia, Fr. panse, Sp. panza, NHG wanst, Russ. puzo, are not included in the list, except where such a word has become the usual one for 'belly', as Rum. pîntece.

1. IE udero-, wedero-. This is at least a convenient heading for a group of words for 'belly' or 'womb' which are obviously related, though showing phonetic disparity which must be due in part to analogical influence. Root connection wholly uncertain. Walde-P. 1.190 f. Ernout-M. 1085, 1141.

Skt. udara-, Av. udara- (in a cpd.) 'belly'; Lett. vēders, OPruss. weders 'belly' (Lith. vėdaras 'fish entrails', 'a kind of sausage', also 'stomach' in Donalit.?); Grk. ὄδερος· γαστήρ (Hesych.); Lat. venter 'belly' (> It., Fr. ventre, Sp. vientre 'belly'; Rum. vintre now 'abdomen'), Lat. uterus 'womb' (> It. utero, etc. only as learned words), in which the t of both forms is easily explained as due to the influence of words with suffix -ter, -tero-, like Lat. interus* (interior) 'inner', Grk. ἔντερα 'entrails', etc., and perh. the n of venter likewise.

2. Grk. γαστήρ (in Hom. 'belly' in connection with wounds, most frequently 'stomach' in connection with hunger, once 'womb'; in Aristot. 'belly' and 'womb', while κοιλία is 'stomach'), by dissim. fr. *γραστήρ : γράω 'gnaw, eat', γράστις 'fodder', Skt. gras- 'devour'. Walde-P. 1.657 f. Otherwise Boisacq 141.

Grk. κοιλία, used for various cavities in the body, but esp. 'belly' (not in Hom.; in Aristot. the technical word for the 'stomach' as organ; in NT more common than γαστήρ for both 'belly' and 'womb'; so in NG), fr. κοῖλος 'hollow' : Lat. cavus 'hollow', etc. Walde-P. 1.366 f.

Grk. στόμαχος, deriv. of στόμα 'mouth' (4.24), hence, as orig. the passage from the mouth, 'throat, gullet' (see 4.29), later 'orifice of the stomach' and finally 'stomach' (στόμαχος occurs only once in NT, namely 1 Tim. 5.23, likewise the only occurrence of stomach in the English Bible; elsewhere, as Mt. 12.40 'whale's belly', κοιλία, likewise in the translations NE belly, NHG bauch, Lith. pilvas, etc.). Hence Lat. stomachus > It. stomaco, Sp. estómago, Rum. stomac, Fr. estomac > ME stomak, NE stomach.

3. Lat. venter, etc., above, 1.

Rum. pîntece 'belly, womb', like It. pancia, OFr. panche (> ME paunche, NE paunch), pance, Fr. panse, Sp. panza 'big belly, paunch', fr. Lat. pantex, mostly pl. pantices 'entrails, bowels'. REW 6207.

4. Ir. brū 'belly, womb', NIr. brū mostly 'womb', W. bru 'womb' : Ir. bruinne, W. bron 'breast', W. bryn 'hill', Goth. brusts 'breast', etc., all with common notion of 'swelling'. Walde-P. 2.197 f.

Ir. bolg 'bag, bellows, belly', NIr. bolg 'belly, bag', W. bol, bola 'belly' : Goth. balgs 'leather bag' (Grk. ἀσκός), ON belgr 'skin, leather bag', OHG balg, OE bælg 'husk, pod', ME bali, beli 'belly', NE belly (and bellows), all fr. IE bhelĝh-, extension of bhel- in Lat. follis 'leather bag', Lat. flāre, OE blāwan 'blow', etc. Walde-P. 2.182 f., 2.177 f.

The majority of the words for 'womb' are related to those for 'belly' and so have been discussed in 4.46. Of the others the commonest source is 'mother', while some are words for 'body' or 'lap' used in specialized sense, or of various other sources.

1. Grk. μήτρα (in Aristot. HA 510^b distinguished from ὑστέρα or δελφύς 'womb' as the 'tube and opening of the womb'; in NG the technical word for 'womb', pop. κοιλιά); Lat. mātrīx 'breeding animal', late 'womb' (> It. matrice, etc.); SCr. materica, all derivs. of word for 'mother', as It., Sp. madre, Dan. moder, Boh., Russ. matka 'mother' also used for 'womb'. Cf. also NHG mutterleib, gebärmutter, etc.

Grk. ὑστέρα (the most usual technical term, Hipp., Aristot., etc.; cf. also ὕστρος· γαστήρ Hesych.), apparently : ὕστερος 'latter, behind', Skt. uttara- 'upper', ud 'upwards', so orig. 'back part' or 'upper part'? Or perh. ultimately : Skt. udara- 'belly', etc. (4.46) with analogical re-formation. Walde-P. 1.191. Boisacq 1008.

Grk. δελφύς (rare) : Skt. garbha-, etc., below, 7.

2. Lat. volva, vulva, prob. : Lat. volvere 'roll', vola 'hollow of the hand or foot', Grk. εἴλῡμα 'wrapper', etc. Walde-P. 1.301.

Fr. sein 'breast' (fr. Lat. sinus 'fold, bosom, lap') also the common expression for 'womb'.

3. W. croth (formerly also 'belly') : W. crwth, NIr. cruit 'hump', Lith. krutis 'breast', etc. (4.40). Walde-P. 1.489.

4. OE hrif (also sometimes 'belly'; cf. NE midriff), OHG (h)ref, prob. : Lat. corpus, Skt. kṛp- 'body', etc. (4.41). Walde-P. 1.486.

MHG muoterlīp, NHG mutterleib, Dan. moder(s)liv, livmoder, Sw. moderlif, lifmoder, cpds. of words for 'mother' and 'body' (4.11), the latter also used alone for 'womb' (as NHG leib in Luther).

MHG barmuoter, NHG gebärmutter, Du. baarmuoder, cpds. of words for 'bear' and 'mother'.

NHG schoss 'lap' (orig. part of a garment), also used for 'womb'. Weigand-H. 2.782.

5. Lett. mātes miesas or mātes klēpis, lit. 'mother's body' or 'mother's lap', translations of NHG mutterleib, mutterschoss.

6. Pol. łono 'lap' (ChSl. lono 'bosom, lap', etc.) also used for 'womb', like NHG schoss.

7. Skt. garbha-, Av. garəwa- : Grk. δελφύς 'womb' (rare), ἀδελφός 'brother' (2.44), with parallel forms in Goth. kalbō 'calf' (3.24), and with r in Grk. βρέφος 'foetus', etc. Walde-P. 1.692.

Skt. yoni- : Skt. yu- 'unite'? Uhlenbeck s.v.

Av. barəθrī- 'bearer' and 'womb' : Skt. bhartrī- 'supporter, mother', fr. Av. bar-, Skt. bhṛ- 'bear'. Barth. 946.

1. IE ōwo-, ōw(e)yo-, ō(w)yo-*(?). The words grouped here, despite some phonetic problems, prob. reflect an IE word for 'egg' derived fr. the word for 'bird' seen in Lat. avis, Skt. vi- (3.64). Walde-P. 1.21 ff. Ernout-M. 718. Pedersen 1.66. Falk-Torp 182. Berneker 26.

Grk. *ᾠϝεον (ὤβεα· ᾠά. The words for 'testicle', though naturally they are used mostly in the plural (or old dual), are listed in the singular unless otherwise noted. The Irish forms are singular collectives 'scrotum, testicles'. Of the numerous slang terms, only a few that seemed the most important are included in the list. The commonest are words for 'balls, stones, nuts, eggs'.

1. IE orĝhi-*, etc. Walde-P. 1.182 f.

Grk. ὄρχις, late dim. ὀρχίδιον (> NG ἀρχίδι); Ir. uirge (prob.); Av. ərəzi (dual, sg. 'scrotum'); Arm. orjik' (pl.); Alb. herdhe; cf. Skt. āvir-ṛjīka- 'with protruding testicles'.

2. Lat. testiculus (whence the literary Romance words, It. testicolo, etc., and Dan., Sw. testikel, NE testicle), dim. of testis also 'testicle' (Plaut., etc.), but the same word as testis 'witness'. This peculiar use of testēs is prob. in imitation of Grk. παραστάται 'testicles' (Plaut. Com., etc.), wrongly associated with the legal sense of παραστάτης 'supporter, defender' and so with (cf. superstes =) testis 'witness', instead of with the use of παραστάται for twin 'supporting pillars', 'props of a mast', etc., hence 'testicles', just as δίδυμοι 'twins' was also used in this sense (Galen, etc.). Cf. (but without the semantic explanation proposed here), Keller, Zur lat. Sprachgeschichte 144, Niedermann I Anz. 19.35, the latter assuming direct application of 'witness' to 'testicle'(!) and quoting Fr. slang témoins 'testicles' (student's slang influenced by Latin associations?).

Lat. cōleus (> Fr. couille, Rum. coĭŭ; VLat. cōleō*, -ōnis > It. coglione, Sp. cojon), etym. dub. Walde-H. 1.244. REW 2036, 2038.

Rum. boș (or boașe pl. tant.), orig. 'scrotum', fr. VLat. bursa* 'leather bag' (> It. borsa, etc.), Grk. βύρσα 'hide, leather'. REW 1432. Pușcariu 210.

3. Ir. macraille, NIr. magairle, prob. cpd. of which the first member is related to Ir. macc, W. mab 'son', etc., but final member? Pedersen 1.128.

Ir. uirge 'testicle', not 'penis' (K. Meyer, Ber. Preuss. Akad. 1912.800), see above, 1 and Pedersen 2.662.

W. caill, Br. kell : OE sceallan, OFris. skal 'testicles', possibly as 'scrotum' fr. 'leather bag', fr. the root skel-* 'cut, split' (cf. ON hreðjar, etc., below, 4). Walde-P. 2.592.

4. ON eista, prob. : ChSl. isto, below, 6.

ON bǫllr, usually 'ball' but also 'testicle', OE beallucas (pl.), ME ballok, NE ballock (but more commonly balls in vulgar speech) : OHG ballo, balla, etc., 'ball', Lat. follis 'leather bag, bellows', Grk. φαλλός 'phallic emblem', all from a root bhel-* 'swell'. Walde-P. 2.177 ff.

ON hreðjar (pl.) 'scrotum with testicles' (NIcel. 'testicles'), Dan. rædder, OE herþan 'testicles', prob. orig. 'scrotum' as 'leather bag' : OE heorþa 'deerskin', OHG herdo 'vellus', Lat. cortex 'bark, rind', scortum 'skin, hide' (here also late scrōtum?). Walde-P. 2.578. Falk-Torp 931.

OE sceallan : W. caill, above, 3.

Dan., Sw. sten, as also ME, NE stone frequently used for 'testicle'.

Du. teelbal, zaadbal, cpds. of telen 'beget', and zaad 'seed' with bal 'ball' (cf. above).

OHG hodo, MHG, NHG hode, prob. : W. cwd 'scrotum', Grk. σκῦτος 'leather', Lat. cutis 'skin', OE hyd 'skin, hide', etc., fr. IE skeu-t-* 'cover' (semantic development from 'leather bag', 'scrotum' as in ON hreðjar and W. caill, etc., above). Walde-P. 2.549. Falk-Torp 425.

5. Lith. pautas, Lett. pauts, orig. 'egg' (4.48).

6. ChSl. isto (pl. istesa 'kidneys', ORuss. du. jestesě 'testicles'), prob. : ON eista 'testicle' (both combined under id-s-to-, oid-s-to-) and Grk. οἶδος 'swelling, tumor', οἶδμα 'swelling', etc. Walde-P. 1.166. Berneker 434 f.

ChSl. jędro*, Russ.-ChSl. jadro 'kernel, testicle', Pol. jądro 'kernel', pl. jądra 'testicles' (Boh., Russ. jadro 'kernel'), etym.? Perh. as orig. ChSl. lono 'bosom, lap' (as in Russ., Pol., etc.), late ChSl. also 'testicle', etym. dub. Walde-P. 1.158. Berneker 732.

ChSl. mądo*, late mudo, SCr., Russ. (> Pol.) mudo, Boh. moud, etym. dub. Walde-P. 2.232. Miklosich 201.

SCr. jajce 'little egg', Russ. jajco, 'egg' (4.48), also testicle.

Boh. varle, etym.?

Boh. kulka (also esp. 'bullet'), dim. of koule 'ball', fr. LG kūle. Berneker 641.

7. Skt. aṇḍa- (du. aṇḍāu in AV.), same word as for 'egg' (4.48).

Skt. muṣka-, apparently dim. to mūṣ- 'mouse', from the shape (cf. Lat. musculus 'muscle', etc.). Walde-P. 2.313.

Av. ərəzi, above, 1.

4.492 PENIS

It would be futile to repeat in a list the usual euphemistic phrases like Lat. membrum virīle, Fr. membre viril, NE male organ, NHG männliches glied, Russ. mužkoj člen, etc.; and it would be difficult to make a selection from the innumerable vulgar terms in common or occasional use, many of which, moreover, are of obscure origin. Here are noted those of an inherited group and some others.

1. IE pes-, pesos-. Walde-P. 2.68. Ernout-M. 752.

Grk. πέος (Aristoph. +); Lat. pēnis (fr. pes-ni-s*, otherwise Walde-P.); Skt. pasas- (AV); prob. OHG faselt, MHG visel; perh. here Grk. πόσθη ('penis' in Aristoph., 'foreskin' in medical writers) analyzed as πόσ-θη.

2. Grk. αἰδοῖον (Hom. αἰδοῖα 'private parts'; αἰδοῖον in Aristot. the regular word for either male or female part), fr. αἰδώς 'shame'. Cf. NHG schamteil, etc.

3. Among the semantic sources of vulgar terms are:

'Pointed object'. Dan. pik, Sw. pick (Hellquist 760); NE prick (NED prick, sb. 17); W., Corn. cal, Br. kalc'h (: W. col 'sting', Ir. colg 'sword', Pedersen 1.105); W. llost ('sting, dart, penis'); Ir. gae 'spear' (20.26) and 'penis' (Laws, Gloss. 438); OE pintel (NE pintle 'a kind of pin or bolt'), MLG pint, pitte, Sw. dial. pitt (Falk-Torp 861); OHG zumpfo, MHG zumpfe (prob. : MLG timpe, Du. dial. tump 'tip, point', nasalized form of that in NE tip); Russ. chuj perh. : chvoj 'pine needle' (Berneker 408); Skt. çepa-, çepas- (: Lat. cippus 'stake, post', etc., Walde-H. 1.219); Sp. carajo (prob. fr. VLat. caracium*, Grk. χαράκιον, dim. of χάραξ 'pointed stake' (REW 1862); perh. here W. pidyn, Br. pidenn (Henry 223).

'Rod' or 'stalk'. Lat. verpa (cf. Grk. ῥαπίς 'rod', Walde-P. 1.276); Lat. virga, Fr. verge; NIr. slat; ME zerde, NE yard (NED yard, sb.^{2} 11); Du. roede, NHG rute; ChSl. kočanŭ, Alb. kotsh (Berneker 536); Av. fravaxs- (Barth. 99.).

'Swelling.' Lett. pimpis (: pempt 'swell', Mühl.-Endz. 2.218); Boh. pyj (prob. : Lith. pusti 'swell', Lat. praepūtium 'foreskin', Walde-P. 2.80 f.); VLat. pūtium (abstracted fr. praepūtium) > Rum. pulă, NG πούτσα (REW 6881).

'Tail' (4.18). Lat. cauda; ME tayl (but oftener 'pudendum', NED tail sb. 5c); NHG schwanz, zagel.

'Cock' (3.52, but prob. through the secondary sense of 'stopcock, tap' or 'cock' of a gun). NE cock (NED s.v. 20), NHG hahn (Grimm s.v. 4), SCr. kurac, kokot, Pol. kurek (Berneker 650).

'Tool'. NE tool (NED tool sb. 21), NIr. glēas ('means, instrument').

'Weapon'. OE wǣpen 'weapon' (20.21) and 'penis', whence wǣpned 'male'.

'Power'. OHG gimaht, MHG gemaht, NHG gemacht (: OHG maht 'power', Weigand-H. 1.671).

'Creation, form.' ON skǫpin (pl., with article, of skap 'state, condition'), OE (ge)sceap 'private parts' of either sex (NE dial. shape 'female parts', NED s.v. 16). Falk-Torp 976.

'Organ for urinating'. Skt. medhra- (AV +), fr. mih- (4.65), Lith. mizius, Lett. mīslis (Leskien, Ablaut 279).

Miscellaneous and doubtful. Lat. mūtō, Ir. moth (Walde-P. 2.312. Ernout-M. 649); Lat. mentula (> It. minchia), etym. dub. (Walde-H. 2.72. REW 5513) : It. cazzo (: cazza 'crucible'?); Rum. pulă (Tiktin 1277 f.); Ir. bīach (Walde-P. 1.667); Ir. bot, NIr. bod : W. both 'nave of a wheel, boss of a shield', perh. ChSl. gvozdĭ 'nail' (Pokorny, Z. celt. Ph. 16.405. Walde-H. 1.574); OE teors, ME, NE terse, tarse (NED tarse sb.^{1}), OHG, MHG zers (perh. : OE teran 'tear,' etc. Walde-P. 1.802); Lith. bybis; Pol. kutas ('tassle', Berneker 653) : Skt. çiçna- (Walde-P. 1.402); Skt. kapṛt(h)- (Walde-P. 1.348, 2.49).

A few of the words listed apply only to the exhalation of breath, as NHG hauch in contrast to atem, or are mostly so used. This was originally true of most, and probably all, of the others, as shown by the usual associations with 'blow, exhale, pant', etc.

Noun and verb are usually parallel, but not always, and both are listed.

1. IE an-*. Walde-P. 1.56 ff. Ernout-M. 53 f. Walde-H. 1.49. Falk-Torp. 5.

Lat. anima; Ir. anāl, W. anadl, Br. alan (with metathesis), whence the verbs Ir. anāluighim, W. anadlu, Br. alanat; Goth. anan (only uz-anan ἐκπνεῖν Mk. 15.37, 39), ON anda, Dan. aande, Sw. andas (refl.), with nouns ON ǫnd, andi, Dan. aande, Sw. ande; OE orþian (fr. oroþ 'breath', this fr. uz-anþ-*); Skt. an- but mostly cpd. pra-an-, with nouns ana-, prāṇa-, Av. ånti, parånti- 'inhalation', 'exhalation' (fr. anti-* 'breath' with ā and parā-) : Grk. ἄνεμος 'wind', ChSl. vonja 'odor', ąchati 'odorari', etc.

Here also Fr. haleine, fr. late Lat. alēna; Sp. aliento fr. alentar 'breathe, encourage' (fr. *alēnitāre) derivs. (with metathesis) of Lat. anhēlāre 'breathe hard, puff, pant', fr. an- + *anslā- (cf. hālāre 'breathe out, exhale', with unetymological h-). REW 472, 473.

2. Grk. πνέω (ἀναπνέω 'take breath', in NG the usual form for 'breathe'; cf. Fr. respirer, etc., below) with the sbs. πνεῦμα, πνοή : ON fnȳsa 'sneeze, snort', OE fnēosan 'sneeze', etc., IE *pneu- in words for 'puff, pant, breathe, etc.'. Walde-P. 2.85 (with other similar groups with initial *pn-, all of imitative orig.).

NG ἀνασαίνω (with sb. ἀνάσα, back-formation), deriv. of class. Grk. ἄνεσις 'relaxation' (: ἀνίημι 'let go'), through ἀνεσαίνω, then ἀνα- by pop. etym. 'Relax' > 'catch one's breath', then also simply 'breathe'. Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 2.58, ftn.

3. Lat. spīrāre (cpd. respīrāre 'breathe again, take breath, etc.' > It. respirare, Fr. respirer, Sp. respirar), with sb. spīritus (It. respiro fr. respīrāre) prob. : ChSl. piskati 'whistle', SCr. pištati 'hiss', ON fīsa 'pedere' (4.64), etc., IE *(s)peis- (imitative). Walde-P. 2.11.

It. fiatare, deriv. of fiato, fr. Lat. flātus 'blowing, snorting, breeze' sometimes also 'breath' : flāre 'blow', etc. REW 3359.

Fr. souffle (also 'wind, blast') back-formation fr. souffler 'blow, pant' (= Sp. sollar, Rum. sufla, etc.) fr. Lat. sufflāre 'blow' (10.38); Sp. resollar, Rum. răsufla (whence sb. răsuflare), fr. new cpd. parallel to Lat. respīrāre. REW 8430. Puşcariu 1447.

Sp. huelgo (Port. folego), back-formation to Sp. holgar (Port. folgar) 'rest, cease from labor', orig. 'stop for breath' from 'pant', fr. VLat. follicāre 'swell or move as a bellows', deriv. of Lat. follis 'bellows'. REW 3417.

4. Ir. do-berim anāl lit. 'give breath'; for anāl, etc., see above, 1.

5. Goth. anan, OE orþian, etc., above, 1.

OE ǣþm, Du. adem, OHG ātum, MHG, NHG atem, whence the vbs. OE ēþian, Du. ademen, OHG ātumōn, etc. : Skt. ātman- 'breath, soul, life', root connection? Walde-P. 1.118.

ME breth, breeth, NE breath (whence vb. ME brethe, NE breathe), fr. OE brǣþ 'odor, smell, scent' : OHG brādam 'exhalation, heat' (fr. the root in ON brāðr 'heated', OE brǣdan, OHG brātan 'bake', etc.). The meaning 'breath' comes by specialization, either of 'exhalation' (the sense 'exhalation, vapor, steam' common in ME). Walde-P. 2.158. NED s.v. breath.

NHG hauch, fr. hauchen, MHG hūchen 'blow the breath, breathe out', of imitative orig. Weigand-H. 1.820.

6. Lith. kvėpuoti, kvapas : kvėpti 'blow the breath', kvepėti 'smell, emit an odor', Lett. kvēpt 'steam, smoke', Grk. καπνός 'smoke', Lat. vapor 'steam', etc. Specialization of 'exhalation'. Walde-P. 1.380.

Lett. dvašuot, dvaša (Lith. dusti 'get out of breath', dvėsti 'expire, die', dvėsuoti 'pant', dvasia 'spirit' also 'breath'), ChSl. dychati (duchati 'blow') with sbs., dychanĭje, duchŭ, etc., general Slavic, fr. IE *dhwes-, *dhus-, extension of *dheu- in Skt. dhū- 'shake, agitate', Grk. θύω 'rage, seethe', etc. Walde-P. 1.846. Berneker 234 ff., 249.

Lett. elpēt, fr. the noun elpe, this prob. through 'weak breath' or 'pant' (cf. also Lett. alpa 'moment of time') : Lith. alpti 'faint', alpnas 'weak', this perh. : Skt. alpa- 'small'. Mühl.-Endz. 1.568.

7. Skt. an-, ana-, Av. ånti-, parånti-, above, 1.

Skt. çvas-, çvāsa- : Av. suši- 'the lungs', Lat. querī 'lament, bewail', ON hvæsa, OE hwǣsan 'pant', etc. Walde-P. 1.474.

The primary notion of the words listed here is 'open the mouth wide'. Many of them may be extended to 'open wide' in general (of the earth, etc.). Nearly all of them show secondary associations with mental attitudes of which the action is indicative, namely wonder, stupidity, or fatigue. In such secondary associations they may be differentiated, as NE yawn (with fatigue) and gape (indicating wonder or stupidity; hence also 'stare at' with open mouth, as usually NHG gaffen; but gape formerly and still locally 'yawn'), or be restricted to one or another of these notions.

1. IE *ĝhē(i)-, *ĝhī-, *ĝhiā-. Walde-P. 1.548 ff. Ernout-M. 453 f. Walde-H. 1.648.

Grk. χάσκω (late χαίνω), χασμάω, -άομαι (through χάσμα 'open mouth, yawning space, chasm', or *χασμός), NG χάσκω now 'gape', χασμοῦμαι (lit.) or χασμουριοῦμαι (as if from a *χασμοῦρα, like κλεισοῦρα 'gorge', etc.) now 'yawn'; Lat. hiāre; ON gīna, OE gīnan, ginian, gānian, ME ȝone, yane, gane, NE yawn (NED s.vv. gane, vb. and yawn, vb.), Du. geeuwen, OHG ginēn, geinōn, gīēn, giwēn, etc , MHG ginen, geinen, gewen, etc., NHG gähnen; Lith. žiovauti, in cpds. -žioti, Lett. žāvāties; ChSl. zinąti, zijati (pres. zěją and zijają), etc., general Slavic; Toch. A śew (G. S. Lane, Language 21.21).

Here prob. also ON, Sw. gapa, Dan. gabe (ME, NE gape fr. Norse), Du. gapen, MHG, NHG gaffen, fr. an extension of the same root, as if IE *ghə-b- (*ghə- as in Grk. χάσκω). Walde-P. 2.552. Falk-Torp 293 f.

2. OFr. baaillier, Fr. bâiller, fr. a late Lat. bataclāre (gl.), also It. sbadigliare, with different formation, but both derivs. of VLat. *batāre (> OFr. baer, beer, Fr. bayer 'gape', etc.) fr. an imitative ba. REW 986, 988. Wartburg 1.281 ff., 287.

Sp. bostezar, a differentiated form (with unexplained st, Cuervo, s.v.; perh. by a blend with a VLat. *ōsticāre by transposition fr. Lat. ōscitāre 'yawn'), of bocezar formerly 'yawn' (now 'move the lips', of animals eating), Port. bocejar 'yawn' : It. boccheggiare 'gasp' (of fish out of water), dial. boccheare 'yawn', all derivs. of bo(c)ca 'mouth' (4.24).

Rum. căsca, fr. Grk. χάσκω (above, 1). Tiktin 305.

3. Ir. mēnaigim, NIr. mēanfuighim (not used; rather doghnīm mēanfadhach 'make a yawn'), deriv. of mēn, NIr. mēan 'mouth' (4.24).

W. dylyfu gen, Br. dislevi gen, phrases with gen 'jaw, chin' (4.207), the verbs, used only in these phrases, being cpds. with prefix W. dy-, Br. di(s)-, but second

NIr.	casachtach (sb.)	OHG	huostēn	Av.	....
W.	pesychu	MHG	huosten
Br.	pasaat	NHG	husten

Some of the words for 'cough' are clearly of imitative origin, and so probably several of the others in which the appropriateness is less apparent (in some cases 'cough' may be a secondary specialization of an imitative expression applied to various sudden involuntary actions). Noun and verb are regularly parallel, in most cases the verb being derived from the noun. Only the verbal forms are listed, except for Irish, where the verbal notion is expressed only by a phrase containing the noun.

1. IE *kʷās-, prob. of imitative orig. Walde-P. 1.506.

Ir. casachtach 'a cough' (NIr. doghnīm casachtach 'cough', lit. 'make a cough'), W. pesychu beside peswch 'a cough' (derivs. of arch. pas id.), Br. pasaat (fr. sb. pas); ON hōsta, Dan. hoste, Sw. hosta, OE hwōstan, ME host (NE hoast), Du. hoesten, OHG huostēn, MHG huosten, NHG husten; Lith. kosėti, Lett. kāsēt, late ChSl. kašĭljati (fr. sb. *kašĭlĭ, kašelĭ), SCr. kašljati, etc., general Slavic; Skt. kās-.

2. Grk. βήσσω (with sb. βήξ, gen. βηχός), NG βήχω (new pres. to aor. ἔβηξα, with sb. βῆχας), perh. of imitative orig., though only the χ seems appropriate.

3. Lat. tussīre (> It. tossire, OFr. toussir, Sp. toser, Rum. tuşi; Fr. tousser fr. the sb.; REW 9015–16) deriv. of tussis 'a cough', prob. : Lat. tundere 'pound, beat', Skt. tud- 'pound, thrust, prick', Goth. stautan, OHG stōzan, etc. 'thrust'. Cf. the use of NE hack (NED s.v. hack, sb.[1] 5) and cough. Walde-P. 2.618.

4. ME co(u)ghe, cowe, NE cough : Du. kuchen, MDu. kuchen, kichen 'cough slightly', NHG keuchen, MHG kīchen 'breathe with difficulty, pant', MHG kūchen 'blow (the breath) hard', Sw. kikna 'choke'; all prob. of imitative orig. NED s.v. Weigand-H. 1.1028.

5. Lett. klepuot (sb. klepus), prob. : klapstēt 'clatter', Lith. klepterėti 'clap', ChSl. klepati 'knock', etc., all of imitative orig. (cf. NE clap, etc.). Mühl.-Endz. 2.214, 223.

Br.	strevia	NHG	niesen

All the words for 'sneeze' are of imitative origin. Noun and verb are regularly parallel. Only the verbal forms are listed, except for Irish, where the verbal notion is expressed only by a phrase containing the noun.

1. IE *pster-, imitative. Walde-P. 2.101. Ernout-M. 974.

Grk. πτάρνυμαι, NG φτερνίζομαι; Lat. sternuere (frequent. sternūtāre > It. starnutare, Fr. éternuer, Sp. estornudar, Rum. strănuta); MIr. sraod, NIr. sraoth (sb.; verb rendered by doghnīm 'make', cuirim 'put' with sraoth), W. (arch.) trewi, ystrewi, Br. strevia; Arm. p'rnčem.

2. IE *ksneu-(?), as common source of following, all imitative. Walde-P. 1.501 ff., 2.551.

*kseu-, *skeu- in Skt. kṣu-, Lith. čiaudėti, Lett. šk'aut, šk'audēt; *kneus- in ON hnjōsa, ME nēse (NE dial. neeze), Du. niezen, OHG niosan, niesan, MHG, NHG niesen; *keu-s- (*kūs-) in SCr.-ChSl. kuchnovenije (sb.), SCr. kihati, Boh. kýchati, Pol. kichać; but also with i-vowel, Russ. čichat', etc. Berneker 165, 658.

3. ON fnȳsa, OE gefnēsan (*fnēosan attested in fnēosung 'sternutatio'), ME fnese, Du. fniezen : Grk. πνέω 'breathe, blow', etc., all of imitative orig. Walde-P. 2.85. Falk-Torp 247.

ME snese, NE sneeze, perh. due in part to a misreading of fnese, but supported by new imitative association (or, as Walde-P. 2.551, an inherited form representing *sneus- beside *kneus-, etc., above, 2). NED s.v. sneeze, vb.

4. W. tisian, orig. dub. Formerly (Rhys) considered a loanword fr. Lat. tussīre 'cough' (4.53), but rejected by Loth, Mots lat. 211. Perh. an independent imitative formation?

The majority of the words for 'sweat' belong to an inherited group pointing to an IE word for this notion. In most of the others 'sweat' is a specialization of 'heat'. Noun and verb are regularly parallel, and in this case it is the nouns that are listed.

1. Derivs. of IE *sweid- (in part with r-suffix). Walde-P. 2.521. Ernout-M. 997.

Grk. ἱδρώς, NG ἵδρωτας (for accent, cf. Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 1.190, 2.91); Lat. sūdor (> It. sudore, Fr. sueur, Sp. sudor, Rum. sudoare); W. chwys, Br. c'houez; ON sveiti, OE swāt, etc., general Gmc. (ME swet, NE sweat fr. the vb. ME swete, OE swǣtan); Lett. sviedri (pl.); Skt. sveda-, Av. xᵛaēδa-; Arm. k'irtn, Alb. dirsë, djersë.

2. Rum. năduşeală, fr. năduşi 'make sweat, sweat', fr. năduf 'sultriness, closeness, asthma', this a loanword fr. Slavic, SCr. neduh 'asthma', etc. (neg. ne + duh beside dah 'breath', 4.51). Tiktin 774, 1030.

3. Ir. allas, NIr. allus, etym.? (Macbain 162 as *yas-l- : W. ias 'boiling, seething', Grk. ζέω 'boil', etc.; not in Walde-P. 1.208, Stokes 223).

4. Lith. prakaitas : kaisti, Lett. kaist 'become hot', etc., OHG heiz, ON heitr, OE hāt 'hot' (parallel t- and d- extensions of an IE *kăi-). Walde-P. 1.327.

5. ChSl. potŭ, etc., general Slavic, (but SCr. only dial.) fr. *poktŭ : ChSl. pekŭ 'heat', pešti, peką 'bake', Lat. coquere, Skt. pac- 'cook', etc. Walde-P. 2.18. Brückner 432.

SCr. znoj = ChSl., Boh., Russ. znoj, Pol. znój 'sultry heat, etc.'. Brückner 655.

The majority of the words for 'spit' are of imitative origin, and most of these belong to an inherited group, which, though partly affected by new imitative associations, clearly reflect an IE expression.

1. IE *spyēu-, spyū-, etc. Most of the forms included here are derivable by regular phonetic processes from init. *spy-, but some owe their form to new associations. Walde-P. 2.683. Ernout-M. 969.

Grk. πτύω, NG pop. φτύνω, φτυῶ, φτῶ; Lat. spuere, frequent. spūtāre (> It. sputare, OFr. espuer); Goth. speiwan, Du. spuwen, OHG spīwan, spīan, MHG spī(w)en, spüen, NHG speien (in the older language also 'spew, vomit', as chiefly OE spīwan, ON spȳja, cf. 4.57), ON spȳta, Dan. spytte, Sw. spotta, OE spyttan, ME spitte, NE spit, OE spǣtan, ME spete, NHG spucken (Weigand-H. 2.936, Falk-Torp 1137, 1138); Lith. spiauti, Lett. spl'aut; ChSl. pljĭvati, etc., general Slavic; Skt. ṣṭhiv-, ṣṭhīv- (Av. spāma- 'spittle, slime'); Arm. t'k'anem.

2. Fr. cracher, fr. an imitative *krak, but prob. blended with a Gmc. form belonging with OE hrǣcan, etc. (below, 4). REW 4752.

Sp. escupir, OFr. escopir (> Br. skopa), Rum. scuipa (Maced.-Rum. ascupi), history much disputed, but prob. fr. some VLat. deformation (with metathesis of c-sp to sc-p) of Lat. conspuere (cf. Port. cuspir). REW 8014. Puşcariu 1566.

3. Ir. saile, NIr. seile 'spittle', fr. Lat. salīva 'spittle'. Pedersen 1.211. Hence denom. NIr. seilighim, but in older language vb. 'spit' rendered by locutions as do-biur (fo-cerdim, lāim, etc.) mo saile, and commonly also NIr. gabhaim (cuirim, caithim) mo sheile lit. 'put (cast, etc.) my spit'.

W. poeri (poer sb.), orig.?

Br. skopa, fr. OFr. escopir (above, 2). Henry 243.

Br. tufa, prob. of imitative orig. Henry 274.

4. ON hrækja, OE hrǣcan, ME reche (NE retch, reach), also 'hawk, clear the throat' (as mostly OHG rachisōn, MHG rächsenen) : OE hrǣca, ON hrāka 'spittle', OE hraca, OHG rahho 'throat', etc., all of imitative orig. (cf. Skt. kharj- 'creak', etc.). Walde-P. 2.415. Falk-Torp 381, 867.

Beside the usual word for 'vomit', generally avoided in polite speech, there are in most of the modern languages a number of euphemistic expressions corresponding to NE throw up, as Dan. kaste op, Sw. kasta upp, NHG auswerfen, Boh. vrhnouti, Pol. womitować, etc., or 'reject, give back, return' as Fr. rejeter, rendre (la gorge), NIr. ūrlacaim, and especially in Slavic 'turn back, return', SCr. povraćiti, Boh. zvrátiti, etc., and 'tear, pull out' as Russ. rvat', vyrvat'. Such locutions (except some that have lost all association with the older literal meaning and are used only for 'vomit', like It. recere in contrast to Fr. rejeter), are not included in the list.

1. IE *wem-. Walde-P. 1.262 f. Ernout-M. 1133 f.

Grk. ἐμέω; Lat. vomere (> Fr. vomir; Lat. frequent. vomitāre > It. vomitare, Sp. vomitar, Rum. vomita); Lith. vemti, Lett. vemt; Skt., Av. vam-.

NIr.	greamuighim	OHG	bīzan	Av.	(dąs-)
W.	cnoi	MHG	bīzen
Br.	danta	NHG	beissen

Words for 'bite' are cognate with others meaning 'gnaw, crush, rub, scrape, split', of which the most original application is sometimes doubtful. A few are derived from words for 'tooth' or 'snout, mouth'.

1. Grk. δάκνω, late and NG δαγκάνω (new pres. to aor. ἔδακον after λαμβάνω, etc.), Skt. daṅç-, Av. dąs- in tiži-dąstra- 'with sharp bite' (Barth. 635) : OHG zangar 'sharp, biting', ON tǫng, OE tang(e), OHG zanga 'tongs', etc. Walde-P. 1.790.

2. Lat. mordēre (> It. mordere, Fr. mordre, Sp. morder) : Skt. mṛd- 'crush, rub to pieces', Av. marəd- 'destroy', etc., IE *mer-d-. Walde-P. 2.278 f. (Hardly to be questioned on semantic grounds as Ernout-M. 631; cf. introd. note, above).

Rum. muşca, like It. dial. mottsikare, etc. 'bite', deriv. of VLat. *mucceus, Lat. mūcus, muccus 'snot', through its use for 'snout, mouth' (of animals) as in Maced.-Rum. muts. REW 5707 (assuming blend with morsicāre). Puşcariu 1136.

3. NIr. greamuighim, fr. Ir., NIr. greim 'bite, piece, morsel', etym.? (As *gresmen : Skt. gras- 'eat, devour', Grk. γράω 'gnaw, eat', etc. Stokes 118; rejected by Walde-P. 1.658).

W. cnoi, etym.? Perh. : MIr. cnāim 'gnaw, chew', Grk. κνῆν 'scrape', etc. (Stokes KZ 41.385, Walde-P. 1.392, both without W. cnoi).

Br. danta, fr. dant 'tooth' (4.27).

Many of the words for 'sleep' belong to an inherited group reflecting an IE verbal root and an established substantive form for 'sleep'. Others are cognate with words meaning 'lie, rest, quiet, slack, blink'. Verb and noun are generally parallel, but not in Greek or Latin, and both forms are listed. The verbal forms listed are those that mean 'be asleep', beside which there are distinctive types for 'fall asleep' and 'put to sleep'. Several of the nouns are used also for 'dream' (4.62).

Many of the nouns for 'dream' are the same as, or derived from, those for 'sleep'. Other sources are notions like 'sight, appearance, revelation', or 'deceit'.

1. IE swep-no-s*, etc. 'sleep' (4.61) or derivs. of it.

Grk. ἐνύπνιον; Lat. somnium (> It. sogno, Fr. songe, Sp. sueño), later also insomnium (> Sp. ensueño, etc.) modeled on Grk. ἐνύπνιον; Br. huñvre (fr. hun 'sleep'); ON svefn, OE swefn (also 'sleep'), ME sweven; Lith. sapnas, Lett. sapnis, sapns; ChSl. sŭnŭ, SCr. san, etc. (also 'sleep', except Boh. sen); Skt. svapna- (also 'sleep'); Toch. A. ṣpäṃ (also 'sleep').

2. Grk. ὄνειρος and ὄναρ (nom.-acc. only), NG ὄνειρο : Arm. anurǰ, Alb. andërë 'dream', root connection? Walde-P. 1.180.

3. Fr. rêve, beside vb. rêver 'dream' also 'be delirious, mad', etym. much disputed. Derivation fr. VLat. rabia*,

Lat. rabiēs 'madness', with some, orig. local, differentiation from rage (so Diez 669; cf. also NED s.v. rave, vb.[1]) is semantically the most attractive, but is now generally rejected. REW 4210. Gamillscheg 762.

Rum. vis, fr. Lat. vīsum 'sight, appearance, vision'. REW 9383.

4. Ir. aisling, etym. dub., perh. cpd. : sellaim 'look' (15.52). Stokes ap. Macbain 12.

NIr. brionglōid fr. MIr. brinnglōid 'a vision' (K. Meyer, Contrib. 262) : MIr. brinda 'vision', NIr. brionn 'fiction, dream', but outside connection? Macbain 50.

NIr. taidhbhreadh, vbl. n. of vb. taidhbhrighim 'dream', cpd. of MIr. brigaim 'show, declare' beside bricht 'spell, charm, incantation'. A deriv. of this root brig-* is prob. also the final member of Br. huñ-vre (above, 1) and the first of W. breu-ddwyd, older breiddwyd, MW breiđwyt (the final member obscure). Transitive 'wake' (a) and intransitive (b) 'be awake' or 'become awake, awake' are generally expressed by different formation of the same root. There are two inherited groups (1 and 2, below), of which one may surmise that their primary values were still partially distinct in IE, as perhaps 1) 'be or make physically lively, awake', 2) 'be mentally conscious, awake'. The other words rest on such notions as 'stir up, rouse, call up' or 'be lively, vigorous', with a few from the absence of or emergence from 'sleep'.

1. IE ger-*. Walde-P. 1.598 f.

Grk. ἐγείρω (trans.; intr. in perf. act. ἐγρήγορα 'am awake' and aor. mid. or pass.); Skt. intens. jāgṛ- (intr.; trans. in caus.), Av. gar- (perf. ǰagāra 'is awake'; trans. in caus. a-garaya-, frāγrāγrāya-, frāγrāraya-); Alb. ngréhë 'raise up'.

2. IE bheudh-*. Walde-P. 2.147 f.

Lith. budėti 'be awake', (pa)busti 'awake', ChSl. bŭděti 'be awake, watch' (Boh. bdíti; SCr. bdjeti, Russ. bdjet' mostly obs.); trans. Lith. budinti, ChSl. buditi, etc., general Slavic (but more usually in cpd. perfect. forms, the more important of which are given in the list), with reflexive forms for intr. 'awake'; Skt. budh- intr. 'be awake, awake', also 'be conscious of, perceive', trans. in caus.; in derived senses, Av. bud- (baod-, Barth. 917), 'be aware of, perceive, smell', Grk. πεύθομαι, πυνθάνομαι 'learn of', Goth. ana-biudan 'command', etc.

3. NG (ἐ)ξυπνῶ, aor. (ἐ)ξύπνισα), with new pres. formation fr. late Grk. ἐξυπνίζω (Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 2.599 ff.), deriv. of late adj. ἔξυπνος 'awake', a phrase-cpd. of ὕπνος 'sleep' (4.61).

4. Lat. excitāre (also suscitāre) 'stir up, rouse' and so, like NE rouse, in phrases or situations involving 'sleep', equivalent to 'wake' (trans.), cpd. of citāre frequent. of cīre 'put in motion' : Grk. κῑνέω 'move', etc. Ernout-M. 184 ff. Hence VLat. de-excitāre*, It. destare, Rum. deștepta (with p after aștepta). REW 2515. Pușcariu 528.

Lat. expergiscī (intr.; trans. OLat. expergere, Lat. expergēfacere), much disputed, but prob. fr. pergere (cpd. of regere 'direct'; Grk. ὀρέγω 'stretch out') in an early sense of 'stretch out' (like porgere; pergere also 'awaken' according to Festus, but usual development > 'start up, go on' > 'proceed, continue'). Walde-H. 1.429 f. Otherwise (: Grk. ἐγείρω, etc., above, 1, and only secondary association with pergere) Walde-P. 1.599. Ernout-M. 315.

It. svegliare, Fr. éveiller (more commonly deriv. réveiller), VLat. exvigilāre*, cpd. of Lat. vigilāre 'stay awake, keep watch' (> Fr. veiller, etc.), deriv. of vigil 'awake, lively' : vigēre 'be lively, vigorous', etc. (cf. the Gmc. group, below, 6). REW 3114. Ernout-M. 1064 f.

Sp., Port. despertar, fr. Sp. despierto, Port. (d)esperto 'awake', deriv. of Lat. expergīscī (above, 1). REW 3043.

5. Ir. do-fūiscim (e.g. 3 sg. do-fūsci, nī diuschi, etc.), NIr. dūisighim, dūisim fr. di-, od-, and sech- (cpds. only e.g. dofa-r-siged 'significatum est') : Grk. ἐνέπω 'tell, relate', Lat. inseque imperat. 'tell', W. heb 'says', etc. Semantic development fr. 'call up' or the like to 'wake' (trans., then also intr.). Walde-P. 2.477 ff. Pedersen 2.620. Here also (imm-od-sc-al-*) NIr. mūsclaim, Gael. mosgail. Macbain 254.

W. dihuno, Br. dihuna, dihuni, lit. 'unsleep', neg. di- and huno, etc. 'sleep' (4.62).

W. deffroi, older effroi, fr. adj. effro 'awake', etym.? (Morris Jones, by dissim. fr. eks-pro-gr-*, with root as above, 1; but cf. Loth, RC 36, 168 f.).

6. Goth. us-wakjan, etc. all the Gmc. words : Lat. vigēre 'be lively, vigorous', vegēre 'move, excite', Skt. vāja- 'strength, vigor', etc., IE weĝ-*. Walde-P. 1.246 f. Falk-Torp 1338 f.

The original distribution of the Gmc. forms is seen in Goth. wakan, ON vaka 'be awake, watch', inchoative Goth. gawaknan, ON vakna 'become awake, wake up', caus. Goth. uswakjan, ON vekja 'cause to wake', and similarly in OE (where there are also a number of cpds. with on-, a- not given in the list); but the simple inchoative OE wæcnan, wæcnian means 'come into being', and only the cpd. onwæcnan is regularly 'become awake'. In ME the forms of the strong OE (wæcnan), wōc, wōcon coalesced with the weak OE wacian and ME (a)wake, (a)wakene are used indiscriminately for 'be awake, become awake', and also with causative sense superseding ME (a)wecche, OE weccan. Hence NE wake, awake, waken, awaken trans. and intr., but in common use wake 'become awake', awake only adj., whence be awake for the state. Cf. NED s.vv. wake, vb. and waken, vb.

7. Lett. muodināt, muodēt, muost : muodrs 'lively, gay', Lith. mandrus, mundrus 'lively, arrogant', OHG muntar 'zealous, lively' (NHG munter), etc. Walde-P. 2.270 f.

8. Pol. czuwać (only 'be awake') : ChSl. čuti 'feel, notice', Russ. čujat' 'experience, feel', Slov. čuti 'hear, wake', etc., Grk. κοέω 'notice', Lat. cavēre 'take heed', Goth. hausjan, etc. 'hear', etc., IE keu-*. Walde-P. 1.368 ff. Berneker 162.

Russ. prosnut'sja (refl.), apparently new formation after usnut' 'fall asleep', ChSl. usŭnąti, etc. id. : Russ. son, ChSl. sŭnŭ 'sleep', etc. (4.62).

Several of the more respectable verbs, like NE urinate, etc., are derived from Lat. ūrīna 'urine'. Among the more euphemistic but still common terms, many (though not entered in the list) are parallel to NE make water, as Fr. faire de l'eau, Rum. lăsa udul, Dan. lade vandet, NG κάνω (dial. χύνω) τὸ νερό μου.

Among those listed there is a widely distributed inherited group reflecting an IE root with this meaning. Another group, widespread through loanwords, is of imitative origin. Other words are connected with such notions as 'wet, pour, drip' or 'filth'. In several cases there are cognates meaning 'filth', 'lye', or 'wash', reflecting the common notions of either 'filth' or 'acidity', esp. the primitive use of urine as acid in washing.

Many of the verbs listed, and some of the nouns, belong to inherited groups reflecting a variety of roots, in part, of the imitative or nursery type, which were apparently applied already in the IE period to this bodily function. In the Gmc. group and several of the other words the development is from 'separate', whence 'discharge from the body'. The countless euphemistic expressions are mostly ignored, as for example those meaning lit. 'discharge, empty one's self, ease one's self, do one's need', and especially the widespread use of the simple verbs for 'do'. The current NE medical term defecate shows a recent specialization of 'cleanse of dregs, purify' (Fr. deféquer, Lat. dēfaecāre, fr. faecēs 'dregs'; NED s.v.).

The nouns for 'excrement, dung' are so numerous that a selection is sometimes difficult. The notion is often a specialization of 'filth', but the converse relation is also seen (as in NE dirt). A distinction between human excrement and animal dung is partly observed, though this is not indicated in the list and many words for 'manure' are not entered. The etymology of certain words reflects the use of dung for fertilizing the land.

1. IE kakka-*, orig. nursery word. Walde-P. 1.336. Ernout-M. 125. Walde-H. 1.127. Falk-Torp. 484. Berneker 470.

Grk. κακκάω (sb. κάκκη 'human excrement'); Lat. cacāre (> It. cacare, Fr. chier, Sp., Port. cagar, Rum. căca, deriv. sb. Rum. căcat); Ir. caccaim, NIr. cacaim, sbs. Ir. cacc, NIr. cac, W. cach, Br. kac'h (hence vbs. W. cachu, Br. kac'hout); Arm. k'akor 'manure'; still as nursery words in Slavic, SCr. kakati, kakiti, Boh. kakati, Pol. kakać, Russ. kakat'; disputed whether the Gmc. words, NE cack (rare, but OE cac-hūs 'latrina'), Du. kakken, Dan. kakke, NHG kacken (nursery words) are native of the same popular type (Walde-P., Walde-H., etc.) or through student slang fr. Lat. cacāre (NED, Kluge-G., Weigand-H., Falk-Torp). Re-formed to the original type apparently W. caca (vb. and sb.) like It. cacca, Fr. caca, etc.

2. IE ĝhed-*. Walde-P. 1.571.

Grk., NG χέζω (also χοδιτεύειν· ἀποπατεῖν ('retire to ease oneself', Hesych.); Skt. had-, Alb. dhjes 'cacare'; Av. zadah- 'rump', Grk. χόδανον· τὴν ἕδραν Hesych. etc.

Perhaps for no other notion is there such a boundless wealth of both euphemistic and vulgar expressions. In the former class are words meaning literally 'come together, have relations or intercourse with, be familiar or intimate with, lie or sleep with, know', etc. (cf. NE bibl. lie with, while sleep with is just now the popular expression).

Only a few of these, which are quite definitely specialized in the sexual sense, are included in the list. For the vulgar terms in most general use in the modern languages the selection must depend chiefly on information from native speakers, since the words are taboo and often unrecorded in the dictionaries. Those recorded by H. Sperber, Imago 1.405 ff., 429 ff., include a variety of dialect expressions, but the collection is, of course, incomplete (e.g. What are the NIr. and W. vulgar terms?).

The only indication of an IE term (there were doubtless several) is the agreement between a Greek, Slavic, and Sanskrit word.

1. IE yebh-*(?). Walde-P. 1.198. Berneker 452.

Grk. οἴφω (Cret., Lac., Ther.; οἰφέω or -άω in late Attic) : SCr., Boh. jebati, Pol. jebać, Russ. et' (1 sg. ebu), ebat'; Skt. yabh- (AV+).

2. Grk. ὀχεύω of animals, act. of male 'cover', pass. of female 'be covered' (Hdt. +, regular technical terms in Aristot. HA), orig. 'be master of' or the like: ἔχω 'hold, have', Skt. sah- 'prevail, overcome', Goth. sigis 'victory', etc. Walde-P. 2.481 ff.

Grk. ὁμιλέω, lit. 'consort with', is the usual euphemistic term for human sexual relations, with sb. ὁμιλία '(sexual) intercourse'.

Grk. βῑνέω (Aristoph., etc., prob. the commonest Attic term; also El. βενέοι), prob. : βία 'violence', etc. Boisacq 119. Otherwise Walde-P. 1.667 after Lidén.

Grk. γαμέω 'marry' (2.33) rarely used for mere sexual intercourse until late (Lucian), but Byz. and NG regularly in this sense.

Grk. βατέω 'cover' of animals (cf. LS s.v.) and so NG βατεύω, orig. 'tread on' : βαίνω 'walk, step'.

NG πηδῶ 'leap, jump' (10.43), also 'cover' of animals.

3. Lat. coīre lit. 'come together', the commonest euphemistic term, with sb. coitus.

Lat. futuere (> It. fottere, Fr. foutre, Sp. hoder, Rum. fute) etym. dub. Walde-P. 2.126. Ernout-M. 406. Walde-H. 1.574. REW 3622.

For Fr. ficher 'fix' used for foutre, cf. Wartburg 3.511.

4. Ir. goithimm (gl. futuo, Thes. 2.184) : W. god 'adulterous', godineb 'adultery, fornication', outside connection? Pedersen 2.34. Stokes 113.

MIr. conricim, lit. 'come together' (cpd. com-ro-icc-, Pedersen 2.556), in the Laws used also, like Lat. coīre, of sexual intercourse.

NIr. comluighim, lit. 'lie with' (cpd. of com-, luighim 'lie'), cf. also Ir. coblige 'coitus'. Pedersen 2.560. NIr. vulgar term?

W. cydio, deriv. of cyd 'union, copulation' : cy-, cyf-, Br. ke-, ked-, etc. Loth, RC 37.27 (vs. Morris Jones 264).

Br. en em bara, reflex. of para 'to pair, couple', deriv. of par, loanword fr. Lat. pār 'equal, mate, spouse'.

5. ON liggja hjā (or með) 'lie with', the common expression for sexual intercourse; so also Dan. ligge hos, Sw. ligga hos; Dan. also have samleje med.

ON serða 'stuprare' (> OE serðan 'violate', Mt. 5.27 Lindisf.), MHG serten 'futuere, stuprare' also 'beat, strike, torment', etc., etym. dub. Walde-P. 2.500. Wood, Mod. Ph. 5.283.

Dan. kneppe prob. same word as kneppe 'give a pinch, slight blow'. Dahlerup s.v. kneppe, II.5.

Dan. knolde, Sw. knulla : ON knylla, OE cnyllan 'beat, knock'. Falk-Torp 554. Dahlerup s.v. knolde, II. Ordbok Akad. s.v. knulle.

OE hǣman : hām 'dwelling, home' (7.122), hence orig. 'take home' then 'cohabit' with vulgar sense definitely prevailing over 'marry', just as in the current use of NE cohabit. Direct connection with the sense of the orig. root, namely 'lie' (as Walde-P. 1.359) is unlikely.

ME swive : OE swīfan 'move lightly over, sweep' (beside swift, NE swift), ON svīfa 'rove, ramble', OHG sweibōn 'sway, swing', etc. Walde-P. 2.520. NED s.v.

NE copulate, now the usual term with reference to animals, formerly 'couple, link together' in general, like its source Lat. cōpulāre.

NE fuck (the most notorious "four-letter word", taboo even for the NED, but quotable in print from the early 16th cent. A. W. Read, American Speech 9.267 ff.; a much earlier date is evidenced by the name John le Fucker quoted from 1278 A.D.) may be only a variant of ME, NE (esp. Sc.) fyke, fike 'move restlessly, fidget', also 'dally, flirt' (NED s.v. fike, vb., with quot. under 1b). Cf. NHG ficken (below) with dial. fucken (Grimm, s.v. ficken), and semantically ME swive (above).

OHG ubarligan, lit. 'lie over', sometimes 'coire' (Graff).

MHG bīslāfen* (not quotable, but bīslāfe 'beischläferin', bīslāfunge 'coniugium'; beslāfen is 'get with child'), NHG beischlafen, Du. bijslapen, etc., all lit. 'sleep beside'.

NHG ficken 'make quick movements to and fro, flick', earlier 'itch, scratch', vulgar sense quotable from 16th cent. Weigand-H. 1.528.

6. Lith. priguléti, Lett. piegulēt, lit. 'lie with', the usual euphemistic terms.

Lith. pisti, Lett. pist, the vulgar terms (Lith. also žaisti 'play') : ChSl. pĭchati 'strike', Boh. pichati 'prick', Russ. pichat' 'push, shove' (refl. pichat'sja also 'futuere'), Lat. pīnsere 'crush', etc. Walde-P. 2.1.

7. SCr. jebati, etc., general Slavic, above, 1.

8. Skt. yabh-, above, 1.

Av. miθ- (inf. maēθmanəm of dogs, Barth. 1107; cf. also mayah- 'coitus' Barth. 1141) : Av. miθwa-, miθwara- 'paired', Skt. mith- 'meet, alternate, etc.', mithuna- 'paired, pairing, copulation', etc. Walde-P. 2.247 f.

'Beget' of the father and 'bear' of the mother (4.72) are partly differentiated, partly expressed by the same terms with a common relation to 'be born' or 'offspring'. Several words originally belonging to this latter type have become restricted to either 'beget' or 'bear'. A few meaning properly 'bear' are sometimes used also for 'beget'.

Apart from the inherited groups (1, 2, 3, below), words for 'beget' are mostly specializations of 'get, obtain' or derivatives of words meaning 'child, offspring'.

1. IE ĝen-* (ĝenə-, ĝnē-, ĝnō-* ĝṇ-*) in words for 'beget' or 'bear', 'be born', 'birth', 'race', etc. Walde-P. 1.576 f. Ernout-M. 415 ff. Walde-H. 1.597 ff.

Grk. γεννάω mostly 'beget' but also 'bear', NG γεννῶ 'beget, bear'; Lat. gignere, generāre 'beget' (> It. generāre; Fr. engendrer, Sp. engendrar fr. Lat. ingenerāre), nāscī 'be born', also (mostly late) nāscere (> It. nascere, Fr. naître, Sp. nacer 'be born', but Rum. naşte act. 'beget, bear', reflex. 'be born'; REW 5832, Puşcariu 1155); W. geni 'bear', Br. genel 'bear, be born', Ir. geinim 'beget' (: Ir. gein 'birth'); OE cennan 'beget, bear', OHG gikennan 'beget'; Skt. jan- 'beget, bear' esp. in older language, later mostly 'be born', caus. janaya- 'beget, bear', Av. zan- 'bear', us-zan- 'beget'; Arm. cnanim 'beget, bear, be born'.

2. IE sū̆-* in words for 'beget, bear' and esp. 'son'. Walde-P. 2.469 f.

Skt. sū̆- 'bear' and 'beget' esp. in earlier language (in the later language for 'beget' pra-sū-, sam-pra-sū-), Av. hu- 'bear' (of evil beings), with Skt. suta-, sūnu- 'son', Av. hunu-, Goth. sunus, etc. id. (2.41).

3. IE tek-*. Walde-P. 1.715.

Grk. τίκτω 'beget, bear' of both parents, cf. οἱ τεκόντες 'parents', τέκνον 'child' : Skt. (gramm.) takman- 'offspring, child', ON þegn 'freeman, free subject', OE þegn 'nobleman, warrior', OHG degan 'boy, servant, hero'.

4. Ir. do-fuismim 'beget, bear', NIr. tuismim 'bear, be descended from', cf Ir. tuistidi pl. 'parents', fr. to-od-sem-*, root sem- 'pour' (only in cpds. e.g. doesmet 'they pour out', etc.) : Lith. semti 'dip, draw water'. Walde-P. 2.487. Pedersen 2.624 f. The orig. Ir. application only 'beget' (from the pouring out of semen)?

Ir. geinim, above, 1.

W. cenhedlu, fr. cenedl 'nation, tribe, kindred' : Ir. cenēl 'race, lineage, kind', cinim 'arise, spring from', ChSl. na-čęti 'begin' (za-čęti also 'conceive'), etc. Walde-P. 1.397 f.

Br. engehenta (cf. MBr. engue hentadur 'coitus', NBr. engehentadur 'conception'), fr. a cpd. of em- (reciprocal or reflexive), ke- ('co-'), and MBr. vb. hentaff 'visit, frequent' (fr. hent 'way, road'). Influence of Fr. engendrer is possible in both form and meaning. Henry 114.

5. ON geta, ME gete, begete, NE beget : OE (be)gietan only in lit. sense 'get, obtain (11.16)', Goth. bigitan 'find', OHG bigezzan 'obtain', OS bigetan 'seize', etc. Walde-P. 1.589. Falk-Torp 308.

ON ala mostly 'bear', but also 'beget' (esp. in speaking of both parents together), properly 'nourish, rear' : Lat. alere, Ir. alim 'nourish, rear', etc. Walde-P. 1.86.

Dan. avle, Sw. avla, in ODan., OSw. also 'acquire, earn', in the latter sense ON, NIcel. afla, fr. ON afl 'strength' : OE afol id., Lat. opus, Skt. apas- 'work', etc. Walde-P. 1.175 f. Falk-Torp 37 f.

OE gestrȳnan, lit. 'gain, obtain' = OHG gistriunan 'gain', denom. of OE (ge)strēon 'gain, treasure', OHG gistriuni 'gain' (11.73).

OE (ge)cennan, OHG gikennan, above, 1.

Du. verwekken, cpd. of wekken 'wake' (4.63).

Du. voortbringen, lit. 'bring forth', used for both 'beget' and 'bear' in contrast to NE bring forth only of the mother.

Du. gewinnen 'gain' (: NE win, etc.), also (esp. bibl.) 'beget'.

Du. telen, 'beget, bear', fr. MDu. tēlen 'produce, care for, attend' : OE tilian 'strive, cultivate land' (NE till), OHG zīlon 'hasten, aim', etc., root connection dub. Walde-P. 1.809. Franck-v. W. 692 f.

OHG giberan, MHG gebern 'bear' of the mother (4.72), but also 'beget' of the father (for OHG cf. esp. Mt. 1.2 ff. in Tat.).

OHG kindōn, MHG kinden, kindeln (NHG kindern) 'beget, bear', fr. kind 'child' (: OHG gikennan, etc., above, 1).

NHG zeugen, fr. MHG zuigen 'produce, prepare' late and isolated 'beget, bear' (of both parents), deriv. of zuic 'implement, equipment' (NHG zeug). Paul, Deutsches Wtb. 668. Weigand-H. 2.1320 f.

6. Lith. gimdyti 'beget, bear', Lett. dzimdēt 'bear' with new caus. dzimdināt 'beget', OPruss. gemton 'bear' : Lith. gimti, Lett. dzimt 'be born'; also Lith. gaminti 'prepare, produce' and 'beget' (: gamas 'nature, innate being'); outside root connection dub. Same root as IE g^{w}em-* 'come', with development 'come into the world, be born', or related to gem-* in Grk. γάμος 'marriage', etc.? Walde-P. 1.676. Feist 387.

7. ChSl., SCr. roditi, Russ. rodit' 'beget, bear', Boh. roditi, Pol. rodzić 'bear' : ChSl. rodŭ 'offspring, birth, race, etc.' (19.23).

Boh. (z)ploditi, Pol. (s)płodzić 'beget' : Boh. plod, Pol. płod, ChSl. plodŭ, etc. 'fruit (in wide sense), product, offspring', root connection dub. Walde-P. 2.103. Brückner 421.

8. Skt. and Av. words, above, 1, 2.

Br.	genel	NHG	gebären

The words discussed in 4.71 which are used for both 'beget' and 'bear' are not repeated here, except (in the list) where there are no special terms for 'bear'. Others are from 'bear, carry', 'feed, nourish' or, like 'beget', from 'obtain, get'.

Phrases like NE bring into the world, be delivered of, It. metter al mondo, Fr. mettre au monde, accoucher de, Sp. dar a luz, etc., are omitted, though some of these are perhaps in more common use than the words listed, e.g. Fr. mettre au monde than enfanter.

For all except the following, see 4.71.

1. Lat. parere 'bear' (> Sp. parir), parturīre 'be in labor' (> It. partorire), cf. parentēs 'parents' : Lat. parāre 'prepare, produce, obtain, get', Lith. perėti 'hatch, brood', etc. Semantic development prob. fr. the general meaning 'produce, get' seen in Lat. parāre and often in parere (and always in its cpds.) with specialization to 'produce offspring' in Lith. and partially in Lat. parere (so Ernout-M. 734 f.), rather than conversely (as Walde-P. 2.41 f.).

Fr. enfanter fr. enfant 'child'.

2. Ir. biru, NIr. beirim; Goth. (ga)bairan, ON bera (but chiefly of animals, cf. Dan. bære, Sw. bära 'calve'), OE beran, ME bere, NE bear, Du. baren (MDu. ghebaren prob. loanword fr. MHG, cf. Franck-v. W. 33), OHG (gi)beran, MHG (ge)bern, NHG gebären, all orig. 'bear, carry' : Grk. φέρω, Lat. ferre, etc. IE bher-* (10.61), with specialization through 'bear, carry the child in the womb' (cf. Lat. gerere 'bear, carry' and 'be pregnant with').

3. ON fœða, Dan. føde, Sw. föde also 'feed, nourish, rear', as mostly OE fēdan (rarely also 'bear', cf. Bosworth-Toller s.v.) = OS fōdian 'nourish, beget, bear', OHG fuotan, Goth. fōdjan 'feed, nourish' : ON fōðr, OE fōþer, fōdor, OHG fuotar 'food, nourishment', etc. (5.12).

Beside the words for 'pregnant' as applicable to woman there are in some languages special words for 'pregnant' of animals. These are given last, preceded by a semicolon. But there is no attempt to include all the technical words or phrases for particular animals, like Lith. veršinga of a cow (veršis 'calf'), kumelinga of a mare (kumelė 'mare'), etc., so also NE with calf, with foal, etc.

The words for 'pregnant' are mostly derivatives of nouns for 'womb, offspring, son, burden' or adjectives meaning literally 'heavy, swollen, big, full, carrying'.

1. Grk. ἔγκυος (with κυέω 'be pregnant'), Lat. inciēns (only of animals) : Skt. cvayate 'swells up, becomes strong', Grk. κοῖλος, Lat. cavus 'hollow', etc., IE k̂eu-*. Walde-P. 1.366. Ernout-M. 483 (suggesting that Lat. inciēns may be an adaptation of Grk. ἔγκυος with substitution of suffix). Walde-H. 1.690.

NG (ἐγ)γαστρωμένη, pple. of ἐγγαστρώνω 'make pregnant', fr. Grk. γαστήρ 'belly, womb' (4.46).

2. Lat. praegnāns, -antis, with secondary pple. form, beside more orig. praegnās, -ātis, this prob. a phrase-cpd. 'in face of birth', second part deriv. of gnā- in nāsci 'be born' (4.71), (g)nātus 'born, son'. Ernout-M. 803. Schwyzer, KZ 56.10 f. Hence Fr. prégnante, NE pregnant. But VLat. praegnis* > It. pregna, OFr. prein, deriv. Sp. preñarse 'become pregnant', pple. preñada. REW 6720. Gamillscheg 716.

Lat. gravida (> It. gravida), fr. gravis 'heavy' (15.81) also 'pregnant'. VLat. grevis* > Rum. grea 'heavy' and 'pregnant'. Ernout-M. 415.

It. incinta, Fr. enceinte, Sp. encinta, fr. VLat. incincta, by popular etym. 'girdled' or 'ungirdled' (Isid.), but perh. really based on an incienta*, formed fr. inciēns (cf. clienta : cliēns). Walde-H. 1.690. Schwyzer, KZ 56.11, 22.

Fr. grosse, lit. 'big' (12.55).

Fr. pleine (of animals only), lit. 'full', so also formerly NE full (cf. NED s.v.).

Rum. însărcinată lit. 'burdened', pple. of însărcina 'load, burden'.

3. Ir. torrach (NIr. torrach, tarrach 'big-bellied, pregnant'), NIr. toircheasach (cf. toircheas 'pregnancy') : Ir. tarr 'rear part, belly', NIr. tarr 'bottom, lower side, belly', W. tor 'bulge, belly, boss', etc. Pedersen 1.83.

NIr. bruinneach, bruinnteach, same word as Ir. bruinnech 'mother' (K. Meyer, Contrib. 277), deriv. of bruinne 'breast' (4.40), hence orig. 'with swelling breasts' or the like.

W. beichiog, arch. also in literal sense 'burdened', fr. baich 'burden, load'.

Br. brazez, fr. bras 'big, large'.

Br. dougarez, fem. of douger 'bearer', fr. dougen 'bear'.

4. Goth. inkilþō ('ἔγκυος'), fr. kilþei 'womb' (4.47).

Goth. qiþuhaftō ('ἐν γαστρὶ ἔχουσα'), cpd. of qiþus 'belly, womb' (4.47) and hafts 'bound'.

ON þunguð, lit. 'loaded', pple. of þunga 'load', fr. þungr 'heavy' (fr. the same root as Boh., Pol. words, below, 6).

ON ūlētt, lit. 'not light' (lēttr 'light'), cf. verða lēttari 'give birth' lit. 'become lighter'.

ON hafandi, Sw. havande, fem. pple. of hafa, hava 'have', hence lit. 'having' (i.e. a child in the womb). Cf. Grk. ἔχουσα Hdt. 5.41 beside the full ἔχουσα ἐν γαστρί id. 3.32. Hellquist 341.

ON með barni, OE med cilde, ME with cilde, with barne, NE with child are also usual. In ME no other expression quotable, and still common in NE, regular in NIcel.

ON frequently ekki heil, lit. 'not well'.

Dan. frugtsommelig extended from ODan. frugtsom 'fruitful' (fr. LG vrugtsam). Falk-Torp 278.

OE geēacnod pple. of (ge)ēacnian 'conceive', lit. 'increase' : ēacan 'increase, augment' (pple. ēacen 'increased' with bearn 'child', in bearn-ēacen 'pregnant'), Goth. aukan, ON auka 'increase', etc.

Du. zwanger, OHG swangar, MHG swanger, NHG schwanger (> Dan. svanger) = OE swangor 'heavy, slow' : Lith. sunkus 'heavy', sunkti 'become heavy', older Lith. sunkinga 'pregnant'. Walde-P. 2.525. Falk-Torp 1210.

Du. drachtig, LG drechtig (> Dan. drægtig, Sw. dräktig), MHG trehtec, NHG trächtig (of animals, MHG also of women), fr. MHG traht, MLG dracht 'burden' : OHG tragan, etc. 'carry'. Weigand-H. 2.1057. Falk-Torp 159.

MHG swœre sometimes 'pregnant' (as also MLG swār), lit. 'heavy' (NHG schwer, etc.).

5. Lith. neščia, fr. nešti 'carry'.

Lett. grūta lit. 'heavy'.

6. ChSl. neprazdĭna (cf. Jagić, Entstehungsgesch. 369), lit. 'not empty', cpd. of neg. ne- and prazdĭnŭ (see 13.22). So also Bulg. neprazdna.

SCr. trudna, fem. of trudan 'tired, feeble' : ChSl. trudŭ 'labor, toil'.

SCr. bređa, late ChSl. brěžda, Russ. berežaja (of the mare), Slov. bręja, Boh. březí (of animals), prob. fr. the root *bher- 'carry' in ChSl. berą, bĭrati 'gather, take', etc. Cf., fr. this root, Lat. forda in bos forda quae fert in ventre, Varro LL 6.15, etc. Walde-P. 2.157. Berneker 49.

SCr. noseća, fr. nositi 'carry'.

Boh. těhotná, Pol. ciężarna, derivs. of tihota, ciežar 'burden' : ChSl. tęgota, tęgostĭ 'burden', težikŭ 'heavy', Lith. tingus 'lazy', ON þungr 'heavy' (cf. above, 4), etc. Walde-P. 1.726 f. Brückner 64.

Pol. brzmienna, Russ. beremennaja, fr. Pol. brzemię, older Russ. beremja, ChSl. brěmę 'load, burden' : ChSl. bĭrati 'gather, take', etc. (cf. above SCr. bređa). Berneker 50.

7. Skt. garbhiṇī-, garbhavatī- fr. garbha- 'womb' (4.47).

Av. puθrā-, deriv. of puθra- 'son'. Barth. 910.

4.732. Verbs for 'conceive' or 'be pregnant' are in part derivatives of the same root as 'pregnant', as for example Grk. κυέω, OE (ge)ēacnian. But more commonly they are expressions for 'receive, take' like Grk. συλλαμβάνω, Lat. concipere which served as models for the greater part of the European terms, NIr. gabhaim, Goth. ganiman, OHG intfahen, NHG empfangen, Du. ontvangen, Dan. undfange (from MLG), Lett. ien'emt, etc. Others mean essentially 'begin', Lith. pradėti, ChSl. začęti, Russ. začat', etc.

In some languages the verb 'live' is expressed preferably by 'is living, alive', and in fact there are few languages where it may not be so expressed. But this locution is entered in the list only in case the language has a decided preference for it, as against the simple verb forms (as notably in Irish and Lithuanian). Likewise in many cases the original adjective forms are superseded by participial forms of the verb or by phrases 'in life' (so notably in Germanic). These are also omitted from the list where their competition with the adjective is not strong.

Most of the words belong to an inherited group reflecting IE words for 'live, alive', etc. The few others are from the notion of 'remain', or 'be', or are obscure.

In many languages the verbs for 'live, be alive' are also those commonly used for 'live, dwell' (7.11).

1. IE *gʷei- (gʷeyə-, gʷyē/ō-, etc.), adj. *gʷīwo-. Walde-P. 1.668 f. Ernout-M. 1118 f.

Grk. *ζήω (Att. ζῶ, ζῇ, pple. ζῶν), dial. also ζώω, adj. ζωός, sb. ζωή, and βίος (but the latter mostly 'mode of life', cf. βιόω 'pass one's life' as opposed to ζῶ 'be alive'); Lat. vīvere, vīvus, vīta (and the derived Romance group); Ir. bēo, bethu, NIr. beo, beatha, and the W., Br. forms; in Gmc. only as adjs. in the earliest dialects, Goth. qius, ON kvikr, OE cwic(u), ME quik, OHG, MHG quec; all the Balto-Slavic and Indo-Iranian words; Toch. A śo-, B śau-, śai-.

2. Grk. ἔμψυχος 'alive, animate', fr. ἐν 'in' and ψυχή 'breath of life, soul'.

3. Rum. trăi 'live', fr. the Slavic, cf. SCr. trajati 'last, continue', Bulg. traja 'last', etc. Tiktin 1634.

This replaced ORum. vie (fr. Lat. vīvere), homonymous with vie 'come', also vieţui (fr. sb. viaţa), the latter revived by modern writers. Tiktin 1734, 1738.

4. Ir. maraim, NIr. mairim 'remain' (12.16), also 'live'.

5. Goth. liban, libains, etc., the regular Gmc. group (the old adj. forms from IE *gʷei- being replaced by participles and forms derived from participles and by phrases 'in, on life'), generally and satisfactorily explained (though disputed by some who set up an independent IE *leibh- 'live' for which there is no good outside evidence) as 'live' from 'remain, be left' (perh. through 'be left alive after battle'), with the same root as Goth. bileiban, OE belīfan, OHG bilīban 'be left, remain', ON leifa 'leave' and lifa 'be left' as well as 'live', etc. (12.16, 12.18). Walde-P. 2.403. Falk-Torp 638, 648. Feist 330.

ON fjǫr, OE feorh 'life' : OS, OHG ferh, ferah 'soul, spirit, life', Goth. fairhwus 'world', OE fīras, ON firar pl., OHG firahim, OS firihun dat. pl. 'men', outside connections? Walde-P. 2.45. Feist 139.

6. Skt. asu-, Av. aŋhu- 'life', fr. as-, Av. as-, IE *es- 'be'.

The plain bald words for 'die' are listed, with omission of the numerous euphemistic expressions like NE pass away, depart, expire, perish, Grk. (βίον) τελευτάω lit. 'end one's life, come to an end', Lat. ex-, inter-, per-īre, lit. 'go from, etc.', dē- ex-cēdere lit. 'depart', etc., and likewise of vulgar expressions like NE croak, with the parallel Fr. crever, It. crepare (from Lat. crepāre 'crack, creak, rattle') and NG ψοφῶ (Grk. ψοφέω 'make a noise, knock, rattle').

Most of the common words, except in Greek and Germanic, belong to an inherited group, reflecting an IE root for 'die', whatever its ultimate semantic source. Others are originally euphemistic substitutes, cognate with words meaning 'be extinguished, endure pain', 'burn slowly, become stiff', etc.

1. IE *mer- 'die', perh. ultimately the same as *mer- in words for 'rub, crush'. Walde-P. 2.276. Ernout-M. 631 f.

Lat. morī, adj. mortuus, sb. mors (hence all the Romance forms); Ir. marb, NIr. marbh 'dead', W. marw 'die, dead', Br. maro 'dead, death' (hence mervel 'die'); Lith. mirti, pple. (perfect.) numiręs, sb. mirtis, Lett. mirt, pple. nuomiris, sbs. mira, mirte (but both rare); ChSl. mrěti, umrěti, adj. mrŭtvŭ, sb. sŭmrŭtĭ, and the other Slavic words (chiefly perfect. forms for the verb); Skt. mṛ- (3 sg. pres. mriyate, and marate), Av. 3 sg. pres. mairyeiti, etc., OPers 3 sg. imperf. amariyatā, pples.

Skt. mṛta-, Av. mərəta-, məša-; sbs. Skt. mṛti-, maraṇa-, mṛtyu-, Av. (ava-) mərəti-, mərəθyu-; Arm. meṙanim 'die'; Grk. βροτός 'mortal', ἄμβροτος 'immortal'; OHG mord, OE, ON morð 'murder', etc.

2. Grk. θνῄσκω, ἀποθνῄσκω, perf. pple. τεθνεώς, τεθνηκώς 'dead', sb. θάνατος, NG (ἀποθνῄσκω, τεθνηκώς lit.) πεθαίνω (new pres. to aor. ἀπέθανε), pple. πεθαμένος 'dead' prob. (cf. NG σκοτώνω 'kill', 4.76) : Skt. dhvan- 'be extinguished', pple. dhvānta- 'dark' and 'darkness', pointing to an IE *dhwenə-, but further root connections uncertain. Walde-P. 1.841. Otherwise (: θείνω 'strike', etc.) Kent, Language 11.207 ff.

3. Lat. nex 'violent death' (vs. mors, above, 1), late sometimes also for natural 'death' : Grk. νεκρός, νέκυς Av. nasu- 'corpse' (4.77), Skt. naç-, Av. nas- 'vanish, perish', Ir. ēc, etc. (below, 4) 'death'. Walde-P. 2.326. Ernout-M. 669 f.

4. Ir. at-balim (e.g. 3 sg. at-bail) = *as-t-bal- (with infixed pronoun, cf. Thurneysen, Gram. 267), OE cwelan, ME quele : W. aballu 'fail, perish', OHG, OS quelan 'endure torment', Lith. gelti 'sting, cause violent pain', gelia 'it hurts', galas 'end', OPruss. gallan 'death', etc., IE *gʷel-. Walde-P. 1.690. Pedersen 2.459 f. Vendryes, RC 40.433 ff.

Ir. bā- 'die' (forms in Lewis-Pedersen 339, Thurneysen Gram. 461), vbl. n. bās 'death', also MIr. bath 'death', etym. disputed. As orig. 'go (forth)' : Grk. ἔβην, Skt. agāt 'went', IE *gʷā- 'go', Pedersen 2.458. Otherwise, as a Celtic root bās- (with separation of MIr. bath), Thurneysen, KZ 37.112, 120 (Gram. 450, 461), Walde-P. 1.677 (with added suggestion of *bās- : ChSl. gasiti 'extinguish', etc.).

NIr. do-gheibhim bās reg. for 'die', lit. 'get death'.

Ir. ēc, NIr. ēag (hence vb. ēagaim), W. angeu, Corn. ancou 'death' (Br. ankou 'death' personified) : Lat. nex 'violent death', etc. (above, 3). Pedersen 1.46. Thurneysen, Gram. 127.

5. Goth. (ga)swiltan, ON svelta poet. (esp. 'die of hunger, starve', so NIcel., Dan., Sw.), OE sweltan, ME swelte 'die' (ME also 'be oppressed with heat', as NE swelter), OE swylt 'death' (ON sultr 'hunger'), cf. OHG swelzan, MHG swelzen 'burn up (with hot love), dissolve in fire', Crim. Goth. schuualt 'death', all with d-extension of *swel- in OE swelan 'burn slowly', Lith. svilti 'be scorched', etc. Walde-P. 1.531 f. Falk-Torp 1204, 1208. Feist 468.

Goth. gadauþnan, dauþs, dauþus, ON deyja (pple. dāinn), dauðr, dauði, and the Dan. and Sw. words, OE dēad, dēaþ (vb. lacking in OE, hence ME deye prob. fr. Norse), Du. dood, OHG touwen, tōt, tōd, etc. : Goth. diwans 'mortal', fr. an IE *dheu-, perh. connected further with *dhwenə- in Grk. θάνατος, etc. (above, 2), but ultimate relations of the various *dheu-groups uncertain. Walde-P. 1.835 f. Falk-Torp 175. Feist 118.

OE steorfan, ME sterve (NE starve), Du. sterven, OHG sterban, MHG, NHG sterben : ON starfa 'work, tire', stjarfi 'tetanus', LG starfen 'become stiff, coagulate', Lat. torpēre 'be stiff, numb', Lith. tirpti 'be numb', etc., labial extensions of IE *ster- in Grk. στερεός 'stiff, firm', etc. Walde-P. 2.632. Falk-Torp 1159.

6. Lett. nāve 'death' : nāvēt 'kill', ChSl. navĭ, Goth. naus, ON nār 'corpse' (4.77), Lith. novyti 'torture, kill', ChSl., Boh. naviti 'tire', etc. Walde-P. 2.316. Mühl-Endz. 2.703 f.

7. Av. riθ- (3 sg. pres. iriθyeiti), pple. irista-, euphemistic terms for 'die, dead' always used of good beings (leaving forms of the inherited root, above, 1, for evil beings) : Goth. -leiþan, ON līða, etc. 'go, pass', cf. ON pple. liðinn 'dead', leiði 'burial place', IE *leit(h)- 'go (away)'. Walde-P. 2.401 f. Barth. 1480 f.

Av. mahrka- 'destruction, death' (NPers. marg 'death') : mərəč- 'destroy, kill' (4.76), Skt. mṛc- 'hurt, injure', marka- 'eclipse', etc. Walde-P. 2.278. Barth. 1146.

Words for 'kill' are often originally the same as, or derived from, words for 'strike' (9.21). Frequently, as in Balto-Slavic, the perfective form of 'strike' is 'kill'. Some are derivatives of words for 'dead, death', or causatives of those for 'die'. Some are originally euphemistic expressions from such diverse sources as 'put in darkness', 'deprive of (life)', 'extinguish', etc.

1. Grk. ἀποκτείνω, less frequently (Hom., poet.) κτείνω : Skt. kṣan- 'hurt, wound'. Walde-P. 1.505.

Hom. aor. ἔπεφνον, perf. pass. πέφαται (pres. θείνω 'strike', sb. φόνος 'slaughter, murder', with vb. φονεύω mostly 'murder') : Ir. gonim 'wound, kill', Skt. han- 'strike, kill' (esp. with ni-, abhi-, etc.), Av., OPers. jan- 'strike, kill' (esp. with ava-), Hitt. kwen-, kun- 'strike, kill'; Arm. ganem 'strike, beat', Lat. dēfendere 'ward off', of-fendere 'strike', etc., IE *gʷhen- 'strike'. Walde-P. 1.679 f. Ernout-M. 344. Walde-H. 1.332 f.

Grk. σφάζω, mostly 'slaughter' (in Hom. only of animals), beside σφαγή 'slaughter, throat', root connection? See 4.29.

NG σκοτώνω, fr. class. Grk. σκοτόω 'make dark', Byz. 'kill', deriv. of σκότος 'darkness' (1.62).

2. Lat. interficere, cpd. of inter 'between' (but here in secondary use seen in interīre 'perish, die', interimere 'take away, destroy, kill') and facere 'do, make', hence 'do away with, take away' (Plautus, Merc. 832 f. usus, fructus, victus, cultus iam mihi harunc aedium interemptust, interfectust, alienatust), 'deprive of' (Plautus, Truc. 518 salve qui me interfecisti paene vita et lumine), then specialized to 'deprive of life, kill' (also in Plautus). Ernout-M. 324 f., 481. Walde-H. 1.409.443. Thierfelder, Glotta 20.172.

Lat. occīdere (> It. uccidere, OFr. ocire, Rum. ucide), cpd. of ob- and caedere 'cut, strike', also 'kill', perh. : Skt. khid- 'strike, tear, press'. Walde-P. 2.538. Ernout-M. 128 f. Walde-H. 1.129.

Lat. necāre : nex 'violent death', etc. (4.75).

It. ammazzare, orig. 'beat, maul', deriv. of mazza 'club' : OFr. masse (> ME, NE mace), Sp. maza, etc. REW 5425.

Fr. tuer, fr. Lat. tūtāre, tūtārī 'make safe (tūtus), protect', also 'protect oneself against, allay' (inopiam tūtārī Caes.), with development in certain phrases (e.g. famem tūtārī or focum tūtārī) to 'quench, smother, extinguish' as in OIt. stūtare, Prov. tudar, etc. and still in Fr. tuer le feu, hence finally 'kill' already in 12th. cent. French. REW 9018. Gamillscheg 872.

Sp. matar, fr. Pers. māt 'dead' (through the use in the game of chess of Pers. šāh māt 'the king is dead', NE checkmate). REW 5401. Lokotsch 1443.

Rum. omorî, loanword fr. Slavic, ChSl. umoriti, etc. (below, 6).

3. Ir. marbaim, NIr. marbhaim fr. Ir. marb 'dead' (4.75).

Ir. gonim : Grk. ἔπεφνον, etc., above, 1.

Ir. orgim ('strike, kill, injure, hurt'), with a (presumably) Gall. gl. orgę 'occide' (CGL 5.376.29) OBr. gl. orgiat 'caesar', Gall. Orgeto-rīx, perh. : Arm. harkanem 'strike,' fr. *perg- an extension of *per- in ChSl. perą, pĭrati 'beat', etc. Walde-P. 2.43. Pedersen 2.587, 590.

W. lladd (old also 'strike'), Br. laza : Ir. slaidim 'strike', outside connections? Walde-P. 1.439. Pedersen 2.630.

4. Goth. af-, ga-dauþjan (render θανατόω 'put to death'), ON deyða, Sw. döde, OE (a)dȳdan, Du. dooden, OHG tōtan, MHG tœten, NHG töten, fr. the adjs. Goth. dauþs, ON dauðr, etc. 'dead' (4.75).

Goth. usqiman, cpd. of us- 'out, off', and qiman 'come', hence 'come to the end' (as once = ἀποκτανθῆναι 'be killed', Lk. 9.22), then, mostly with dat., 'come to an end with, bring an end to, kill'. Cf. Delbrück, Vergl. Syntax 1.262.

Goth. af-slahan (slahan 'strike'), ON slā 'strike', later 'strike to death, kill', OE slēan, ME sley 'strike, kill', NE slay (now with rhetorical flavor, commonly replaced by kill), OHG (ir-)slahan, MHG (er)slān, NHG erschlagen, the simplex mostly 'strike, kill by striking', see under 'strike', 9.21.

ON drepa 'strike, kill', Dan. dræbe, Sw. dräpa 'kill' : OE drepan 'strike', OHG treffan 'strike, hit' (9.21). Falk-Torp 159. Hellquist 158.

ON vega, orig. 'fight' (20.11), also 'kill'.

OE cwellan, ME quelle (NE quell), caus. of OE cwelan 'die' (4.75).

ME culle, kille, also (earlier) 'strike, beat, knock', NE kill, orig. dub. The earlier meaning is against the supposition of OE *cyllan (Gmc. *kuljan) as an ablaut variant of cwellan, etc. NED s.v. kill, vb.

NHG umbringen, earlier 'destroy', MHG umbebringen 'avert, prevent, spoil, squander'. Weigand-H. 2.1107. Paul, Deutsches Wtb. 567.

5. Lith. užmušti, cpd. of už- 'on' (with perfect. force) and mušti 'strike'.

Lith. žudyti (Lett. zaudēt 'lose'), caus. of žūti 'perish', perh. : OE gētan 'destroy'. Walde-P. 1.564. Leskien, Ablaut 314.

Lett. nuokaut, perfect. of kaut 'strike, hew'.

Lett. nuonāvēt, perfect. of nāvēt 'kill, murder', fr. nāve 'death' (4.75).

6. ChSl. ubiti (iter. ubivati), SCr. ubiti, Boh. zabíti, Pol. zabić, Russ. ubit', perfect. of ChSl. biti, etc. 'strike'. Berneker 117.

ChSl. umoriti caus. to (u)mrěti 'die', etc. (4.75).

Late ChSl. usŭmrŭtiti, SCr. usmrtiti,

Boh. usmrtiti, Pol. uśmiercić, fr. ChSl. sŭmrŭtĭ, etc. 'death'.

7. Skt. han-, Av. jan- 'strike, kill' : Grk. ἔπεφνον, etc., above, 1.

Skt. vadh- 'smite, kill' (mostly in tenses supplementing han-), beside vadha- 'killing, murder', vadhar- 'Indra's weapon', Av. vadar- 'weapon, club' (20.22) : Grk. ὠθέω 'thrust, push'. Walde-P. 1.254 f.

Av. fra-kuš- (only once, janaiti frača kušaiti, but cf. NPers. kuštan 'kill'), prob. : Skt. kuṣ- 'tear, etc.', further connections dub. Walde-P. 1.331. Barth. 431.

Av. mərəč- 'destroy, kill' (with mahrka- 'destruction, death', 4.75) : Skt. mṛc- 'hurt, injure', prob. fr. a guttural extension of *mer- 'crush, rub'. Walde-P. 2.278.

4.77 CORPSE

Grk.	νεκρός, σῶμα, πτῶμα	Goth.	leik, naus	Lith.	lavonas

Most, though not all, of the words for 'body' (4.11) may be used for the 'dead body, corpse', even where there are also specific terms for this, just as NE body is often used in preference to corpse, and in some languages these are the only or the usual words for 'corpse'. Several of the old words for 'body' have even been specialized to 'dead body', as NE corpse, Dan. lig, NHG leichnam, etc. All these have been discussed in 4.11.

Again, words for 'the dead' are often used in preference to specific words for 'corpse' (as NG pop. πεθαμένος for lit. πτῶμα, It. morto for cadavere, etc.), and in some languages words for 'dead' or derivs. of them are the usual terms for 'corpse'. So Ir. marb, marbān, Lett. miruonis, SCr. mrtvac, Boh. mrtvola, all obvious derivs. of IE *mer- 'die' (4.75) and so needing no further discussion here. The inclusion, in the list, of words for 'body' or 'dead' beside the other specific terms is inconsistent, since they might be added in many other cases, but may indicate roughly their relative importance.

Words that are restricted to the dead body of an animal, as OE hold, NE carcass, NHG aas, Lith., Lett. maita, SCr. strvina, Russ. sterva, etc. are not included.

1. Grk. νεκρός, νέκυς, Av. nasu- : Skt. naç-, Av. nas- 'perish, vanish', Lat. nex 'violent death', etc. Walde-P. 2.326.

Grk. πτῶμα 'a fall' (: πίπτω 'fall'), hence esp. 'fallen body, corpse'.

2. Lat. cadāver, deriv. of cadere 'fall', analogous to Grk. πτῶμα. Hence as late loanwords It. cadavere, Fr. cadavre, Sp. cadáver, Rum. cadavru; also NHG kadaver now used only as 'carcass'. Ernout-M. 126.

Rum. leş, fr. SCr., Bulg., Turk. leš (below, 5).

3. Goth. naus (acc. pl. nawins), ON nār, OE nēo- in nēo-bedd 'bed for a corpse', etc. : ChSl. navĭ 'corpse', Lett. nāve 'death' (4.75), Lith. novyti 'torture, kill', ChSl. naviti 'tire', prob. also Goth. nauþs 'necessity', OE nēad 'violence, constraint, necessity' (NE need), etc. Walde-P. 2.316. Feist 372.

4. Lith. lavonas : Lith. liauti 'cease', OPruss. au-laut 'die', Russ. dial. luna 'death', etc. Walde-P. 2.405. Berneker 745.

Lett. līk'is, loanword fr. MLG līk 'corpse'.

5. ChSl. trupŭ (renders πτῶμα 'corpse' or 'carcass', while tělo renders σῶμα 'body', whether living or dead), Pol., Russ. trup 'corpse' (SCr., Boh. trup 'trunk, block', etc.) : ChSl. truplĭ 'hollow', Lith. trupėti 'crumble', Grk. τρυπάω 'bore', etc. Walde-P. 1.732. Brückner 578.

In the disposal of the dead both burial (inhumation) and cremation have been practiced, either at different periods or contemporaneously, among nearly all the peoples of IE speech. The Zoroastrian custom, attested also for some other Iranian peoples, was the exposure of the corpse to be devoured by dogs and vultures. Cf. Schrader, Reallexicon s.v. Bestattung. Even where cremation was practiced this was generally followed by burial of the bones or ashes.

Cremation was denoted by the usual verbs for 'burn', as Grk. καίω (καίειν νεκρούς in Hom.), Lat. ūrere (XII Tab. hominem mortuom in urbe ne sepelito neve urito), cremāre (the technical term in class. Lat., whence NE cremate, etc.), Skt. dah- (RV 10.15.14 ye agnidagdhā ye anagnidagdhā 'those who are and those who are not burned with fire'; AV 18.2.34 ye nikhātā . . . . ye dagdhā 'those who are buried and those who are burned'), uṣ- (hence upoṣana- 'cremation').

The words listed here are those for 'bury'—with the following reservations. Grk. θάπτω, while probably originally 'bury' and appropriate to the actual burial of Mycenaean times, is in Homer 'honor with funeral rites', which were normally those of cremation, and only rarely specifically 'bury' (as Od. 11.52 ἐτέθαπτο ὑπὸ χθονός), later usually 'bury', but cf. also πυρὶ θάπτειν 'cremate'. NHG bestatten, though commonly felt as 'bury with ceremony', is used in scientific writings as a convenient general term to cover burial, cremation, etc.

Many of the words for 'bury' are from those for 'dig' (8.22), in part differentiated from the latter by prepositional compounds with perfective sense. Some are from the notion of 'cover, hide' (12.26, 12.27), and some are derivatives of words for 'earth', 'grave', or 'corpse'.

1. Grk. θάπτω, with sbs. τάφος 'burial, grave', ταφή mostly 'burial', τάφρος 'ditch' : Arm. damban, dambaran 'grave, tomb', further connections dub. Walde-P. 1.852. Boisacq 334.

2. Lat. sepelīre (> It. seppellire, OFr. sevelir, OSp. sebellir; Fr. ensevelir generic 'bury' in literary use, but commonly 'prepare the corpse for burial'; Sp. sepultar new deriv. of sepolto 'buried', Lat. sepultus), generally combined on the basis of a sepelyo-* with Skt. (Ved.) saparyati 'honors', which clearly belongs with Skt. sap- 'serve, honor, love', Grk. ἕπω in ἀμφέπω, ἀμφιέπω 'be busy with, honor', ἐφέπω 'follow', etc. Walde-P. 2.487. Ernout-M. 925. But since Lat. sepelīre is expressly 'bury' (cf. ne sepelito neve urito, etc. quoted above), a more probable analysis is se-pelīre (se- as in solvere fr. se-luere*) with a root pel-* 'cover' inferred fr. Lat. pellis, OE fell, etc. 'skin, hide' and Goth. filhan 'hide, bury' (see below, 4).

Lat. humāre (not common), fr. humus 'earth'. Still less common tumulāre fr. tumulus 'mound, tomb'.

It. sotterrare (Sp. soterrar 'bury, hide' in wide sense), deriv. of phrase Lat. sub terrā.

Fr. enterrer (> ME enter, NE inter), Sp. enterrar (It. interrare 'put in the earth, cover with earth', not used for 'bury the dead'), late Lat. interrāre, deriv. of phrase in terrā.

Rum. înmormînta, fr. mormînt 'grave' (4.79).

Rum. îngropa, fr. groapă 'pit, grave' (4.79).

3. Ir. ad-naicim (for OIr. ad-anagim*, but re-formed in MIr. after vbl. n. adnacul, cf. OIr. co adanastais gl. 'ut mandarentur terrae'), also 'accompany', NIr. adhlacaim for adhnaclaim (fr. the vbl. n. adhnacal, OIr. adnacul, above), cpd. of ad- and anagim 'protect' (root connection dub., Pedersen 2.457, 558 n. 3). The senses 'bury' and also 'protect' are prob. fr. 'accompany', in the former case applied to attending the corpse to the burial place.

NIr. cuirim 'put' (12.12), elliptical for 'put away, put in the earth', now the reg. current term for 'bury'.

W. claddu, lit. 'dig' : Ir.cladi m, Br. klaza 'dig'.

4. Goth. ga-, us-filhan, cpds. of filhan 'hide' (also 'bury' Mt. 8.22), OHG felahan 'hide, bury', usually bifel(a)han, MHG bevelhen 'give up, yield, intrust', and 'bury' (chiefly in the latter sense MHG der erde bevelhen), OS bifehlan 'yield, bury', ON fela 'hide, cover', OE befēolan 'commit, deliver, grant', semantic relations peculiar and outside connections dub., but prob. as orig. 'cover', fr. an extension of a root to be seen also in Lat. pellis, OE fell, etc. 'skin, hide' (4.12). Walde-P. 2.59 (adversely to above). Falk-Torp 227. Feist 151. Weigand-H. 1.178.

Boh. pochovati, Pol. pochować, fr. Boh. chovati, Pol. chować 'keep, take care of' (11.24).

7. Skt. ni-khan-, cpd. of ni- 'down' and khan- 'dig'; used of 'burying' any object (treasure, etc.) but also of the dead (e.g. AV 18.2.34 quoted above), though burial in India was only an occasional practice beside the usual cremation (Oldenberg, Religion des Veda 570).

Av. nasu-spaya-, nasu-spā- 'burial, burier of corpses', cpds. of nasu- 'corpse' (4.77) and the root of spayeiti, etc. 'take away, remove'. These words occur only with reference to a sin, a violation of the prescribed Zoroastrian practice of exposing the corpse. Cf. Vd. 3.41 daēna mazdayasniš . . . . spayeiti nasuspaēm "the Mazdayasnian law removes the (sin of) corpse-burial". Barth. 1059 f., 1615.

The words listed are those commonly employed for the burial place of the dead without necessary implication of its precise form. Most of them are cognate with those for 'bury' (4.78) or meant originally 'ditch, trench' or 'mound'. Words for 'memorial, monument' are often used for 'burial monument, tomb', but in most cases are not among the common words for 'grave'.

1. Grk. τάφος 'burial, funeral' (Hom. +), later the usual word for 'grave' (ταφή mostly 'burial', rarely 'burial place') : θάπτω 'bury', τάφρος 'ditch', etc. (4.78).

Grk. σῆμα 'sign, mark' (12.94), hence also 'burial mound' (so in Hom., where τάφος is only 'burial'), 'grave, tomb' (Hdt., Thuc., etc., freq. in inscriptions, e.g. Ditt. Syll. 1218).

Grk. θήκη 'box, chest', also 'tomb, vault' for the dead (Aesch.+) : τίθημι 'place, put'.

2. Lat. sepulcrum (> It. sepolcro, OFr., ME, NE sepulcre, Sp. sepulcro, not popular words) : sepelīre 'bury'.

It. sepoltura, Sp. sepultura (also 'burial' as Fr. sépulture), fr. Lat. sepultūra 'burial' : sepelīre 'bury'.

Fr. tombe (> ME tumbe, NE tomb, formerly more generic than now) beside the less generic tombeau 'tomb', It. tomba 'tomb', fr. late Lat. tumba, this fr. Grk. τύμβος 'burial mound' : Lat. tumulus 'mound, burial mound', tumēre 'be swollen', Ir. tomm 'hillock', etc. Walde-P. 1.708. Ernout-M. 1063, -64. REW 8977.

Rum. mormînt fr. Lat. monumentum, monimentum 'memorial, monument' sometimes 'tomb', prob. influenced by mort 'dead'. REW 5672. Puşcariu 1109. Cf. the similar occasional use of Grk. μνῆμα, and of Lat. memoria in late times (Peregrinatio).

Rum. groapă ('ditch' and 'excavation for burial', 'grave' in narrower sense than mormînt), prob. through Alb. gropë 'grave, hole in the earth' fr. Slavic grobŭ (below). G. Meyer, Alb. Etym. Wtb. 131. Tiktin 703.

It. fossa, 'ditch' and pop. for 'grave' (as formerly Sp. fosa now obs. for 'grave'; Fr. fosse used only in the original narrow sense, the excavation, cf. tombe de fosse), fr. Lat. fossa 'ditch, trench', late 'grave' : fodere 'dig'.

3. Ir. fert, prob. (either as 'covering' or 'protected inclosure') : fern 'shield', Goth. warjan, ON verja 'protect', Skt. vṛ- 'cover', etc., cf. Alb. vorr 'grave' (wornā*), IE wer-*. Walde-P. 1.282. Stokes 271.

'Strong' is understood here in its application to bodily strength. But such words have a much wider range, being used also of mind, feelings, etc., and of inanimate things. Furthermore there is no sharp line between 'strong' and 'powerful, mighty', which are applied to bodily strength with more emphasis on the active quality.

While only the adjectives are listed, the nouns for 'strength' are mostly parallel, either the sources of or derived from the adjectives, and so are covered in the comments—where are added a few important nouns not so related.

Among the semantic sources are notions such as 'stiff, hard', 'hold', 'be able, have power', and various others.

Words for 'well' (in body) are from such notions as 'well-living, whole, strong, firm, in good condition, lively, fresh', etc.

The nouns for 'health' are mostly derivatives of adjectives for 'well' (in a few cases conversely), but the adj. and sb. forms in most common use are not always parallel (cf. It., Dan., NE, etc.).

Several of the words for 'health' in its original sense of 'good health' were extended to connote bodily condition, so as to include also (mostly with adj. for 'bad' or 'weak') 'bad health', e.g. Lat. valētūdō, Fr. santé, Dan. helbred (in contrast to sundhed only 'good health'), NE health, SCr. (slabo) zdravlje, etc.

1. Grk. ὑγιής (also ὑγιηρός > NG γερός), hence ὑγίεια, NG ὑγεία 'health' (hence the pop. greeting γειά σου), fr. su-*g^{w}iyēs, cpd. of IE su-* 'well' (Skt. su-, Av. hu-, etc.) and deriv. of IE g^{w}ei- 'live' in Grk. ζῶ etc. (4.74). Walde-P. 1.669.

But the NG phrase εἶναι καλά or στέκει καλά is the most common way of saying that a person 'is well'.

2. Lat. sānus (> It., Sp. sano, Rum. dial. sîn, sar, Fr. sain; NE sane restricted to 'mentally sound' after its opposite insane, Lat. insānus 'insane'; hence also present use of sanity), hence sānitās (> Fr. santé, Sp. sanidad, Rum. sănătate; VLat. sānitōsus* > Rum. sănătos), outside connection? Walde-P. 2.452. Ernout-M. 893 f. REW 7584.

Lat. salūs 'welfare, safety' and 'health' (> It. salute, Sp. salud esp. 'health'), deriv. of salvus 'unharmed, sound, safe' (> It. salvo, Fr. sauf, etc. 'safe') : Umbr. saluom 'salvum', Skt. sarva- 'whole, all', Av. haurva- 'whole', Grk. ὅλος, Hom. οὖλος 'whole', Toch. A salu, adv. 'entirely' (SSS 278). Walde-P. 2.510 f. Ernout-M. 890 f.

Lat. validus 'strong' (4.81), also frequently 'sound, well', and valētūdō (fr. valēre 'be strong') wholly specialized to 'bodily health', orig. 'good health', later often 'bad health, sickness' (hence valētūdinārius 'sickly', NE valetudinarian).

3. Ir. slān, NIr. also follāin (deriv. with fo-), hence slāntu, NIr. slāinte 'health', etym. dub. Direct equation with Lat. salvus (Pedersen 1.53; Brugmann, Grd. 1.477) is phonetically difficult. Cf. Walde-P. 2.511 (bottom). Perhaps slān results from a blend in a Celtic formula corresponding to Lat. sānus et salvus (cf. Ernout-M. 890).

W. iach, Br. yac'h (hence W. iechyd, Br. yec'hed 'health'), Corn. yagh : Ir. īcc 'healing, payment', Grk. ἄκος 'cure', ἀκέομαι 'heal'. Walde-P. 1.195. Pedersen 1.65.

4. Goth. hails, ON heill (> ME hail), OE hāl, ME hole (NE whole; but hale fr. North. dial. used for 'well, vigorous'), OHG, MHG heil (hence derivs. and cpds. for 'health', ON heilsa, Sw. hälsa, Dan. helbred, OE hǣlþ, hǣlu, ME helthe, NE health with new adj. healthy, OHG heilī, MHG heil), orig. 'whole, intact' (and so mostly in modern dialects, NE whole, NHG heil, Dan., Sw. hel, etc.) : ChSl. cělŭ 'whole, unharmed, well', cěliti 'heal', Russ. celyj 'whole, entire', etc. Walde-P. 1.329. Falk-Torp 393 f. Feist 232 f.

Dan. rask ('quick, active, brisk' but also the popular term for 'well', instead of sund) = Sw. rask 'quick, brisk', fr. MLG rasch = OHG rasc, NHG rasch 'quick, brisk', prob. : ON ras 'haste', Grk. ἐρωή 'quick motion, rush', etc. Walde-P. 1.150 n. 3. Falk-Torp 881 f.

Sw. frisk ('fresh', but also the popular word for 'well') = Dan. frisk 'fresh' (also 'well, hale') fr. MLG frisch = OHG frisc, NHG frisch 'fresh, cool', etc. : Lith. prieskas 'unleavened, fresh', ChSl. prěsĭnŭ id. Walde-P. 2.89. Falk-Torp 274 f. Hellquist 238 f.

OE gesund, ME isunde, sunde (NE sound), Du. gezond (MLG gesunt, sunt > Dan., Sw. sund), OHG gisunt, gisunti, MHG gesunt, NHG gesund, prob. : Goth. swinþs, OE swīþ 'strong' (4.81). Walde-P. 2.525. Falk-Torp 1205.

NE well (used chiefly predicatively, in U.S. also attributively with man, person, etc.) = well 'bene' (used predicatively with dat. in OE, cf. Beowulf 186 wel biþ þæm 'bene erit eis') : ON, Icel. vel, OHG wela, etc. 'bene'. Cf. NED s.v. Cf. the similar use of Fr. bien portant, Sp. bueno, etc.

5. Lith. sveikas (hence sveikata 'health'), Lett. sveiks, perh. fr. su-ei-kas*, cpd. of su- = Skt. su- 'well' (13.71) and deriv. of root in eiti- 'go'. Fraenkel, Mélanges Pedersen 448 ff.

Lett. vesels (hence veselība 'health'): ChSl. veselŭ 'joyful, gay' (16.22).

6. ChSl. sŭdravŭ, SCr. zdrav, etc., general Slavic words (with the deriv. nouns ChSl. sŭdravĭje, etc.), cpd. of prefix sŭ- = Skt. su- 'well' and dorvŭ* : Skt. dhruva- 'firm, stable', Av. drva- 'well', OPers. duruva- 'secure, safe', Lat. dūrus 'hard', etc. Walde-P. 1.804 ff. Berneker 214.

ChSl. cělŭ : Goth. hails (above, 4). Berneker 123 f.

7. Skt. svastha- (hence svāsthya- 'health', not common), lit. 'self-abiding, being in one's natural state', cpd. of refl. pron. sva- and -stha- : sthā- 'stand'.

Skt. kuçala-, adj. 'appropriate, fitting, well, etc.' as neut. sb. 'good condition, health' (hence also adj. kuçalin-), etym. dub. Uhlenbeck 60.

Skt. aroga- (hence adj. arogin-), cpd. of a-privative and roga- 'disease' (4.84).

Av. drva- (hence sb. drvatāt-) : ChSl. sŭdravŭ-, above, 6.

Av. abanta- cpd. of a-privative and banta- 'sick' (4.84).

'Sick, sickness' are preferred, in the heading and translations, to 'ill, illness', since NE sick is the old unambiguous word and the one still in most common use in U.S. Ill is now preferred in British usage (sick being especially 'sick at the stomach, nauseated') and by many in U.S. as a more refined expression.

Many of the words are from the notion of 'weak, without strength or power', or that of 'bad, evil'. Some were doubtless applied originally to a special form of ailment and so may be from the most diverse sources, as 'burning' (> 'feverish' > 'sick'), 'bent, twisted' (> 'deformed or abnormal' > 'weakly' > 'sick'), perhaps 'worried' or 'angry' as applied first to mental illness. But a considerable number of the words are of uncertain origin.

Most of the nouns for 'sickness' are derivatives of the adjectives for 'sick'. These are entered in the list, but generally not repeated in the discussion. But there are also some important nouns without parallel adjectives.

1. Grk. ἀσθενής 'weak' (4.82), also 'sick', but this often expressed rather by pple. of ἀσθενέω 'be sick' (aor. 'become sick'), or of νοσέω (below).

Grk. ἄρρωστος 'weak' (4.82), increasingly common for 'sick' in Hellenistic times (inscr., pap., NT, etc.) and the NG common word (ἀσθενής more lit.).

Grk. νόσος, Hom. νοῦσος 'sickness', whence νοσέω 'be sick', pple. often for 'sick', etym. much disputed and altogether doubtful. Walde-P. 2.333. Boisacq 672.

2. Lat. aeger : Toch. A ekro, B aik(a)re 'sick' (SSS, 11), also (?) ChSl. jędza 'sickness', root connection dub. Walde-P. 1.9. Ernout-M. 16. Walde-H. 1.16.

Lat. morbus 'sickness', etym. dub., perh. : Grk. μαραίνω 'quench', mid. 'waste away' (σῶμα), 'dry up' (αἷμα), 'wither', Skt. mṛ- 'crush', etc. Walde-P. 2.277. Ernout-M. 630.

It. malato, Fr. malade, fr. Lat. male habitus, lit. 'ill conditioned', parallel to sē habēre bene, male 'be well, ill'. REW 5264.

Sp. enfermo, fr. Lat. infirmus 'weak' (4.82).

Rum. bolnav, fr. Slavic (below, 6).

3. Ir. lobur 'weak, sick', see 4.82.

Ir. serg 'sickness' : Lith. sergas 'sick', sirgti 'be sick', Lett. serga 'pestilence', perh. Goth. saurga 'care', etc. (16.14). Walde-P. 2.529. Feist 413.

NIr. tinn = MIr. tind 'sore, painful'

NIr. breoidhte, breoite 'sick' (chiefly Munster, Dinneen s.v.), pple. adj. of breodhaim 'oppress, sicken, enfeeble', intr. 'wither, decline', etym.?

NIr. aicīd 'sickness, calamity' (for aicidhid*), fr. Lat. accidentia (> OIr. accidit grammatical term). Pedersen 1.234 n. 3.

W. claf, Br. klañv : Ir. clam 'leprous', Grk. κλαμαράν· πλαδαράν, ἀσθενῆ Hesych., Skt. klam- 'be weary'. Walde-P. 1.498. Pedersen 1.163.

W. clwyf 'disease' (obs. or of special diseases), perh. : Skt. klība- 'emasculated, impotent, eunuch', fr. an extension of the root kel-* in Lith. kalti 'strike', Gr. κλάω 'break', etc. (Walde-P. 1.436 ff.). G. S. Lane, Language 13.23.

4. Goth. siuks, ON sjūkr, OE sēoc, etc., general Gmc. (but NHG siech 'sickly', as 'sick' replaced by krank) with sbs. Goth. siukei, sauhts, ON sōtt, OE suht, etc., later replaced by new derivs. of the adjectives, as ON sjūkleiki, sjūkdōmr, OE sēocness; outside connections dub., but perh. through 'careworn, worried' : Lith. saugus 'cautious', saugoti 'pay attention to'. The distinction between a 'wound' resulting from an external blow, and a 'sore' which may result from a wound or from an internal source, is generally observed, but with some overlapping or shift. The words for 'wound' are mostly from roots denoting 'strike' or other actions (as 'pierce' or 'tear') from which the wound resulted. But some, without such reference to a causal action and not originally distinguished from 'sore', are connected with notions of 'pain', 'foulness', etc.

1. Grk. τραῦμα, Dor., Ion. τρῶμα : Grk. τρώω 'pierce, wound', τιτρώσκω 'wound, harm', τρῶσις 'wounding, injury', τρύω 'rub down, wear out', fr. an extension of IE ter-* in Grk. τείρω 'rub, pierce, distress', τορός 'piercing, loud', Lat. terere 'rub', etc. Walde-P. 1.730. Boisacq 972.

Grk. ἕλκος 'wound' (Hom.+), but chiefly 'sore' (so in NT), cf. ἕλκανα· τραύματα Hesych., ἑλκαίνω 'be wounded' : Lat. ulcus 'sore', Skt. arças- 'hemorrhoids'. Walde-P. 1.160. Ernout-M. 1120.

Grk. ὠτειλή 'wound' (Hom., Hipp.) and 'scar' (fr. *ὀϝατελνᾱ, cf. γατάλαι· οὐλαί Hesych.; οὐτάω the regular Hom. vb. for 'wound' clearly belongs here, though the ου is unexplained) : Lett. vāts 'wound', Lith. votis 'ulcer, boil', fr. IE wā-* beside wen-* in OE wund, etc. (below, 4). Walde-P. 1.211. Solmsen, Unters. 298 f.

Grk. πληγή 'blow, stroke', NG 'wound', Doric πλᾱγά, whence prob. (though it could be native) Lat. plāga 'blow', also 'wound', late also 'plague' (> Fr. plaie 'sore, wound', also OFr., ME plage, NE plague; It. piaga, Sp. llaga 'sore', Rum. plaga mostly 'plague') : Grk. πλήσσω 'strike', Lat. plangere 'strike, beat the breast, lament', etc. Walde-P. 2.91 f. Ernout-M. 774.

NG pop. λαβωματιά, fr. λαβώνω 'wound', this fr. λαβή 'handle, grip' in the sense 'hold, grip' in wrestling. Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 1.145.

2. Lat. vulnus (earlier volnus), W. gweli, Br. gouli : Ir. fuil 'blood', fuili 'bloody wounds', Grk. οὐλή 'scar', ON valr 'corpses of the slain', OHG wuol 'defeat, pestilence', OPruss. ulint 'fight', Hitt. walh- 'strike, defeat, destroy' (Sturtevant, Hitt. Gloss. 75 f.), Toch. A wäl- 'die'. All fr. a root wel-* (ultimately the same as in Lat. vellere 'pluck, tear out', etc.?). Walde-P. 1.304 f. Ernout-M. 1129.

It. ferita, Sp. herida, fr. It. ferire, Sp. herir 'wound, hit', fr. Lat. ferīre 'strike, beat'.

Fr. blessure, fr. vb. blesser 'wound', OFr. blecier 'bruise, crush, injure, wound', fr. deriv. of a Frank. blēta* (freobleto in Lex Salica 'running wound'?) : OHG bleizza gl. livor, OE blāt 'livid, pale', hence a 'bruise' or 'wound' fr. its 'livid' (that is, 'black and blue') appearance. REW 1168. Gamillscheg 115. Wartburg 1.406.

Rum. rana, fr. Slavic (below, 6).

3. Ir. crēcht, NIr. crēacht : W. creithen, MBr. creizenn, NBr. kleizenn 'scar', perh. as orig. 'scab' (cf. NE scar fr. OFr. escare 'scab') : ON skrā 'dry piece of skin, scroll', etc. (Falk-Torp 1021), G. S. Lane, Language 13.23 f.

Ir. cned, NIr. cneadh : Grk. κνίζω 'scrape, scratch', ON hnīta 'strike, wound to death', OE hnītan 'strike, thrust', etc. Walde-P. 1.395.

NIr. goin : Ir. guin 'a wounding', vbl. n. of gonim 'wound, kill' (4.76).

W. archoll, prob. (with irregular mutation) cpd. of ar- 'fore-' and coll 'destruction, loss' : Goth. halts, OE healt, etc. 'lame' (4.94). Morris Jones 264.

W. gweli, Br. gouli, Corn. goly : Lat. vulnus, above, 2.

W. briw, Corn. brew, prob. fr. some form of the root seen in Ir. brīum, OE brȳsan 'crush, bruise'. Pedersen 1.54 f. But cf. also Loth, RC 42.74 f.

Br. gloaz = W. gloes 'pang, ache', etym.?

4. Goth. banja (renders πληγή 'blow, wound' and ἕλκος 'sore'), ON, OE ben : ON bani 'death', OE bana, OHG bano 'murderer', Av. banta- 'sick' (4.841), etc., all prob. fr. a root bhen-* 'strike'. Walde-P. 2.149. Feist 80.

Most of the words listed may be used for 'cure' with either the person or the disease or wound as the object, but a few only with reference to the person, and this was the primary application in nearly all cases.

Some of the words are in origin '(make) well, whole, alive, vigorous, etc.', or 'protect, rescue, save', and in all such the notion of 'cure' is inherent.

Others are from 'care for, attend to', specialized to medical care, or are derivatives of words for 'physician'. These then meant properly only 'treat medically', but generally acquired the optimistic implication of successful treatment and so came to be used for 'cure' just like those of the preceding type.

1. Grk. ἰάομαι : ἰαίνω (isṇyō*) 'heat, warm, cheer', Skt. iṣ- 'set in motion, urge, animate', iṣira- 'refreshing, active, vigorous', ON eisa 'dash forward', etc., all prob. fr. a root meaning 'animate, enliven' or the like. Walde-P. 1.106. Boisacq 262 f.

Grk. θεραπεύω 'attend, do service, take care of', hence esp. 'treat medically, cure' : Grk. θεράπων 'servant, attendant' (19.43). Walde-P. 1.857. Boisacq 340 f.

Grk. ἰατρεύω 'doctor, treat medically', NG γιατρεύω 'cure', fr. ἰατρός 'physician' (4.87).

2. Lat. sānāre (> It. sanare, Sp. sanar), fr. sānus 'well, healthy' (4.83).

Lat. cūrāre, fr. cūra 'care', hence 'take care of' and in medical language 'treat medically, cure'. Hence Sp. curar 'cure' and (through OFr. curer 'care for, clean') ME cure 'care for' and 'cure', NE cure.

Lat. mederī 'give (medical) attention to, cure' (with dat., rarely acc.), beside medicus 'physician' (whence also poet. and late Lat. medicāre), medicīna 'medicine', remedium 'remedy, medicine', etc. : Av. vī-mad- 'physician', vī-māδaya- 'act as physician', prob. an early specialization of the root med-* in Grk. μέδομαι 'be mindful of', Lat. meditārī 'reflect on', Ir. miduir 'judge', etc. Walde-P. 2.260. Ernout-M. 599. Walde-H. 2.54 f.

It. guarir, Fr. guérir, OSp. guarir, etc. fr. the Gmc. vb. seen in Goth. warjan, OE werian, etc. 'ward off, prevent, defend.' REW 9504.

Rum. vindeca, fr. Lat. vindicāre 'lay claim to, avenge, set free, restore, rescue', with further specialization of 'restore, rescue' to 'cure'. REW 9347. Puşcariu 1893.

Rum. tămădui, fr. Hung. tamad 'arise, come into being'. Tiktin 1554 f.

3. Ir. īccaim, W. iachau, Br. yac'haat, fr. Ir. īcc 'healing, remedy', W. iach, Br. yac'h 'well, healthy' (4.83).

Ir. fris-ben (3 sg.), common in early glosses, prob. cpd. of fri(s) 'to, towards, against' and ben- 'strike', through 'touch' in healing (cf. benim fri often simply 'touch'). This semantically better than cpd. of ben- 'be' (as Pedersen 2.443), though there is confusion here as elsewhere in the forms of the two roots.

NIr. leigheasaim, fr. leigheas 'cure, medicine' (4.88).

Br. parea, fr. pare 'healed', fr. Fr. paré 'prepared'. Henry 218.

4. Goth. hailjan (but ON, NIcel. heila 'make good, restore'), Sw. hela, OE hǣlan, ME hele, NE heal, Du. heelen, OHG–NHG heilen, fr. Goth. hails, etc. 'well, healthy, whole' (4.83).

The majority of the words for 'physician' are connected with the verbs for 'cure', discussed in 4.86. Some are words for 'teacher' or 'learned person' used in specialized sense. Several, according to their probable etymological connections (cf. below, 3, on Ir. līaig, etc., and 6 on ChSl. balĭji and vračĭ), reflect the primitive antecedent of the physician, the 'conjurer' or 'medicine man'. Cf. also under 'medicine' (4.88), and Schrader, Reallex. 1.58 f.

1. Grk. ἰᾱτρός, Hom. and dial. ἰᾱτήρ : ἰάομαι 'cure' (4.86).

2. Lat. medicus (> It. medico, OFr. mie, miege; and learned borrowings Sp. médico, Rum. medic; Fr. médecin, back formation to médecine 'medicine', 4.88), also poet. and late Lat. medēns pple. : medērī 'cure' (4.86).

3. Ir. līaig, NIr. liaigh, prob. fr. *lēp-agi- 'conjurer' : W. llef 'voice', MW llefein 'cry', Br. leñv 'groan', Skt. lap- 'chatter, talk, whisper', etc. Hence prob. ME fisicien, NE physician (also ME and earlier NE 'student of physics') fr. OFr. fisicien 'médecin' (Godefroi), deriv. of Lat. physica 'physics' (fr. Grk. φυσικός 'natural'), but which came to be used extensively in medieval Latin for medicina (Du Cange). NED s.v.

NE doctor, the usual term in common use, found also in ME in the special sense (cf. Chaucer's Doctur of Phesike), fr. OFr. doctor, Lat. doctor 'teacher'. Similar usage is found more or less colloquially in all the European languages : It. dottore, Fr. docteur, etc., Dan., Sw., NHG (esp. northern dials.) doktor (and hence Lith. daktaras, Lett. dakteris), and in the modern Slavic languages.

OHG arzāt, MHG arzet, arzt, NHG arzt, MLG arste, Du. arts, fr. late Lat. archiater, Grk. ἀρχ-ῑᾱτρός (both frequent in late inscrr.) 'chief, (and hence court) physician'. Weigand-H. 1.90. Kluge-G. 25.

5. Lith. gydytojas : gydyti 'heal' (4.86).

Lett. ārsts, ārste fr. MLG arste (above, 4).

6. ChSl. balĭji (cf. balĭstvo 'medicine', balovati 'curare'), as orig. 'conjurer' : late ChSl. bajati 'relate, conjure, heal', SCr. bajati 'enchant, conjure', etc., fr. the root in Grk. φημί 'say', etc. Berneker 42.

ChSl. vračĭ, Russ. vrač = SCr. vrač 'sorcerer, fortuneteller', etc., orig. 'conjurer' : Russ. vorčat' 'growl, grumble, mutter', vraka 'nonsense, idle talk', etc., fr. the root *wer- in Grk. εἴρω 'say', Skt. vrata- 'command, vow', etc. Walde-P. 1.283. Solmsen, Unters. 263.

ChSl. (late) lěkarĭ, SCr. lijekar, liječnik, etc., fr. the Gmc. (above, 3).

7. Skt. bhiṣaj- : bhiṣaj-, bhiṣajya- 'cure' (4.86).

Skt. vāidyá-, lit. 'one versed in science (vidyā- : vid- 'know'), learned', then, like the current European adoption of Lat. doctor, (above, 4), 'one skilled in medical science, doctor'.

Skt. cikitsaka-, fr. cikitsa- 'heal, cure' (4.86).

Av. vīmad- : Lat. medērī 'cure', etc. (4.86). Barth. 1450.

The words listed cover the wider 'medicine', as any medicinal substance or preparation, and the narrower 'drug', as a simple medicinal substance or ingredient. The majority are connected with those for 'cure' or 'physician', discussed 4.86, 4.87. Some are the result of specialization, as from 'herb' through 'healing herb', from 'substance' to 'medicinal substance', from 'dry wares'(?) to 'drugs', from 'knowledge' through 'magic'.

1. Grk. φάρμακον (also 'poison, enchantment, etc.'), prob. : Lith. burti 'practice sorcery', Lett. burt 'enchant', root connection dub. Walde-P. 2.161.

NG γιατρικό, neut. of adj. ἰατρικός, deriv. of ἰᾱτρός 'physician' (4.87).

2. Lat. medicāmen(tum), medicīna (also 'medical science'), remedium (but with extension beyond medical sense, as likewise its derivs. Fr. remède, NE remedy, etc.) : medērī 'heal' (4.86). Hence It. medicina, Fr. médicament (OFr. medecine > ME, NE medicine), Sp. medicamento, Rum. medicament, W. meddyginiaeth, Dan., Sw. medicin, NHG medizin, also more or less common in Slavic, SCr. medicina, Boh. medecina, Pol. medycyna, Russ. medicina, medicament.

Words for 'poison', apart from an inherited group, are in some cases the same as those for 'drug' (4.88). Several are euphemistic expressions from 'drink' or 'gift'. Some are from verbs meaning 'injure, pollute, consume' or the like. Other sources are 'love (potion)', '(poison) of arrow', 'swelling' (through 'pus'), '(means of) death'.

1. IE *wĭs-o-, root connection dub. (possibly an IE specialization of 'fluid' to 'poisonous fluid', but evidence of an IE *weis- 'flow' meager). Walde-P. 1.243 f. Ernout-M. 1114.

Grk. ῑός (poet.); Lat. vīrus (also 'slimy liquid, sperm'); Ir. fī; Skt. viṣa-, Av. viš-, vĭša-.

2. Grk. φάρμακον 'drug' (4.88) and 'poison', hence, fr. dim. form, NG φαρμάκι 'poison'.

3. Lat. venēnum, earlier (ante-classical) 'potion, drug', then (like Grk. φάρμακον) 'poison' (> It. veleno, Sp. veneno, Rum. venin, Fr. venin, OFr. velin, venim, latter > ME venim, NE venom), prob. (as 'love potion') fr. *wenes-no- : Venus 'love', Skt. van- 'wish, desire, gain', etc. Ernout-M. 1083. REW 9195.

It. tossico, Sp. tósigo, fr. Lat. toxicum 'poison on arrows' and also 'poison' in general, fr. Grk. τοξικὸν (φάρμακον) 'poison for smearing arrows' (: τόξον 'bow').

Fr. poison (> ME, NE poison), OSp. pozon fr. Lat. pōtiō 'drink'; also OSp. ponçoña, Sp. ponzoña by influence of Sp. punzar 'punch, prick, stick' (fr. VLat. *punctiāre). REW 6699.

Rum. otravă, fr. Slavic (below, 7).

4. Ir. neim, NIr. neimh, prob. : Grk. νέμω 'deal out, distribute', Goth. niman 'take', etc., with development similar to that of NHG gift (below, 5). Macbain 262.

W. gwenwyn fr. Lat. venēnum (above, 3). Loth, Mots lat. 175.

Br. kontamm, back-formation fr. vb. kontammi 'poison' fr. Lat. contamināre 'corrupt, pollute'. Henry 75.

5. ON eitr, OE ātor, āttor, ME atter, OHG eitar, MHG eiter (NHG eiter 'pus') : OHG eiz 'abscess, boil', Grk. οἰδέω, Arm. aitnum 'swell', prob. also ChSl. jadŭ, etc. 'poison' (below, 7). Walde-P. 1.166. Falk-Torp 180.

OE lybb 'drug, poison', OHG luppi 'poison', MHG lüppe 'astringent fluid, poisoning, sorcery' : ON lyf 'drug', etc. (4.88).

OHG gift (pl. die gifte 'venena', Boeth. De Consol. Phil.), MHG vergift, gift, NHG gift, identical with OHG, MHG gift 'gift' (NHG mit-gift, etc.), fr. OHG geban 'give'. Hence the sense of 'poison' in the Du., Dan., Sw. forms. The euphemistic use for 'poison' may have been aided by imitation of Grk. δόσις 'gift, portion, dose of medicine'. Falk-Torp 308. Weigand-H. 1.727 f. Kluge-G. 206. Franck–v. W. 199.

Several of the words for 'tired' are based upon the causal action 'work, toil', as one who has toiled hard and is therefore 'tired'. Some are based upon various actions or conditions which may be associated with weariness, as 'rest, keep still, leave off, cease', or 'weak, faint, slow, wretched, sad'. Some are from a transitive 'tire', which itself may be from 'vex, torment, oppress' (these again from 'press, beat, shave, etc.'), 'break' or even 'kill'.

1. Grk. (ἀπο)καμών, κεκμηκώς, Hom. κεκμηώς, aor. and perf. pples. of Grk. κάμνω 'work, toil, be weary', ἀποκάμνω 'be weary' : Skt. çam- 'toil, labor', etc. Walde-P. 1.387.

Grk. κοπιάω 'be tired' (hence perf. pple. κεκοπιακώς 'tired' as NT, Jn. 4.6), fr. κόπος 'toil, trouble, weariness,' orig. 'beating' : κόπτω 'strike, beat'.

NG κουρασμένος, pple. of κουράζω 'tire, fatigue', attested in Byz., meaning prob. 'punish' (cf. also kuradzo 'beat, flog' in dial. Bova), prob. fr. κουρά 'a shearing, tonsure', with semantic development similar to that in NHG scheren 'cut, shear' and 'vex, torment', schererei 'vexation, annoyance'. Kretschmer, Byz. Zt. 7.403. Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 2.513. Psaltes, Gram. d. Byz. Chron. 42. Cf. Fr. raser 'shave', also 'demolish' (cf. NE raze), and colloq. 'tire, bore'.

2. Lat. fatīgātus (> Fr. fatigué, Sp.

fatigado), pple. of fatīgāre 'tire' (trans.), 'vex', deriv. of fatis in ad fatim 'sufficiently, enough', whence also fatīscere 'fall apart, become weak, faint', adj. fessus 'weak, weary', outside connections dub. Walde-P. 1.829. Ernout-M. 336. Walde-H. 1.463.

Lat. lassus (> Fr. las, Sp. laso), fr. *ləd-to- : Grk. ληδεῖν 'be tired', Goth. lētan 'leave, let', lats, ON latr, OHG laz 'lazy', etc. (4.92). Walde-P. 2.395. Ernout-M. 525 (with uncalled-for doubt), Walde-H. 1.767 f.

It. stanco, cf. Rum. stîng 'left', OFr. estanc 'weak, dry', etc., orig. dub. REW 8225. Gamillscheg 390.

Sp. cansado, pple. of cansar 'tire' (now trans.; refl. 'get tired'), this (not : Fr. casser 'break', fr. Lat. quassāre 'shake', as Diez 91, REW 6939, but) = It. cansare 'avoid', fr. Lat. campsāre 'turn aside from', fr. Grk. κάμψαι aor. of κάμπτω 'bend' (9.14). So Körting, Menéndez Pidal, C. C. Rice, Language 13.18 f., 19.154. Leo Spitzer, Language 14.205 f., Wartburg 2.156. Lat. campsāre occurs in Ennius in the nautical sense of doubling a headland (frequent in Grk.), then only in late Latin in more general sense of 'turn aside from' e.g. ut de via camsemus Peregrinatio 10.8 and in many glosses. The semantic development in Spanish was prob. (otherwise Rice) 'avoid' > 'cease' > 'get tired'. Although a sequence 'get tired' > 'cease' is the easier, the association is there, and one may compare esp. Russ. ustavat' 'get tired', Boh. ustati 'get tired, cease' = ChSl. ustati, ustaviti 'cease' (below, 6).

Rum. obosit pple. of obosi 'tire' (trans. or intr.), fr. Slavic, SCr. obositi (deriv. of bos 'barefoot') 'be barefoot' or of horses 'be unshod', with development from application to horses (since they tire more easily when unshod) to intr. 'tire'. Tiktin 1072. Densusianu 367.

3. Ir. scīth, Gael. sgith, Br. skuiz, etym.? (Pedersen 1.76 · Grk. ἀσκηθής 'unharmed', Goth. skaþjan 'harm', but?). Walde-P. 2.558.

NIr. tuirseach, also 'depressed, sorrowful', fr. tuirse 'grief, fatigue' : Ir. torsi 'sadness', outside connections?

NIr. cortha, pple. of coraim 'tire out, weary', etym.?

W. lluddedig, fr. lludded 'fatigue', lludd 'faint', prob. : ON lūta, OE lūtan 'bow, stoop', OHG luzeda 'infirmatio', Lith. liusti 'become sad, grieve', etc., with common notion of 'bend down, be downcast'. Walde-P. 2.415 f. (with much wider grouping). Falk-Torp 658 f.

W. blin, cf. OBr. pl. blinion 'inert', Gael. blian 'lean, insipid' etym. dub., perh. (fr. IE *mlēno- or *mlīno-): Skt. mlāna- 'faded, withered, exhausted, languid', pple. of mlā- 'fade, wither, grow weary', SCr. mlitav 'tepid, listless', etc. fr. extensions of IE *mel- 'rub, grind' (Walde-P. 2.284 ff.). G. S. Lane, Language 13.21 f.

4. Words for 'lazy' are mostly from notions like 'not working, inactive, idle' or 'weak, sluggish, slow, tired', with acquired derogatory connotation. But in some, cognate with words for 'bad, evil, foul', the derogatory sense is earlier, specialized to 'lazy'.

1. Grk. ἀργός, Hom. ἀεργός, neg. cpd. of ἔργον, ϝέργον 'work' (9.12).

Grk. ἄπονος 'untroubled' and 'lazy', neg. cpd. of πόνος 'toil, work' (9.12).

NG τεμπέλης, fr. Turk. tembel 'lazy'.

NG (lit.) ὀκνηρός 'lazy', so also in NT, but class. Grk. 'shrinking, timid' : ὄκνος 'shrinking, hesitation', ὀκνέω 'shrink from, hesitate'. Walde-P. 1.169.

2. Lat. piger (> It. pigro), also 'slow', beside piget 'it irks, is displeasing', prob. as opprobrious terms: OE fācen 'fraud, evil' etc. (cf. OHG trāgī 'lazy' = OE trāg 'evil, bad', below, 4). Walde-P. 2.10. Otherwise Ernout-M. 766 (without outside connections and taking 'slow' as the earlier sense).

Hence pigritia 'laziness' > Fr. paresse, Sp. pareza id., whence adj. Fr. paresseux, Sp. perezoso 'lazy'. REW 6493.

Lat. ignāvus, neg. of nāvus (old gnāvus) 'industrious, active': W. go-gnaw 'activity, active', prob. belonging with IE *ĝnō- 'know' in Lat. (g)nōscere, etc. (cf. 'be able' fr. 'know how', in NE can, etc., 9.95). Walde-P. 1.580. Ernout-M. 657.

It. infingardo, Fr. fainéant (transformed fr. OFr. feignant, by connection with faire and néant), fr. It. fingere, Fr. feindre 'feign' (OFr. soi feindre 'be lazy'), fr. Lat. fingere 'form, shape' but in the transferred sense 'contrive, feign' (as commonly the pple. fictus 'feigned, false'). REW 3313. Gamillscheg 403.

Rum. leneş fr. lene 'laziness', fr. Slavic, ChSl. lěnĭ, etc. 'laziness' : lěnŭ 'lazy' (below, 6).

Rum. trîndav, fr. trînd 'slow, ponderous', fr. Slavic, cf. ChSl. trądŭ name of some disease (Pol. trąd 'leprosy, scurf', Boh. trud 'pimples'). Tiktin 1650. Densusianu 254.

3. Ir. lesc, NIr. leisceamhail (cpd. with amhail 'like, as') : W. llesg 'weak, feeble, faint', perh. from *legh-sko- fr. the root *legh- 'lie'. Walde-P. 2.425. Walde-H. 1.768. Otherwise (: ON lǫskr 'slack') Pedersen 1.147, Falk-Torp 625.

W. diog, Br. diek, cf. OCorn. diauc gl. segnem, cpd. of neg. di-, second part : Lat. ōcior 'swifter', Grk. ὠκύς, Skt. āçu- 'swift'. Walde-P. 1.172. Pedersen 1.48.

Br. lezirek, fr. MBr. lezir fr. Fr. loisir 'leisure'. Henry 185.

4. Goth. lats, ON latr, Dan. lad, Sw. lat, OHG, MHG laz, MHG lezzic (NHG lass, lässig), the common Gmc. term for 'lazy, slow' (but OE læt 'slow, late', NE late) : Lat. lassus (*ləd-to-) 'tired, weary' (4.91), Grk. ληδεῖν 'be tired', Goth. lētan, ON lāta 'leave, let', ChSl. lěnŭ (*lēd-no-) 'lazy', prob. also Lat. lēnis 'soft'. Walde-P. 2.395. Falk-Torp 616. Feist 323.

Dan. doven = ON dofinn 'dull, drowsy' : ON dofna 'become dull, lose strength', OE dofian 'be silly, stupid', OHG tobēn, NHG toben 'rage', prob. fr. the root dheubh-* in Goth. daufs 'deaf', etc. (4.95). Walde-P. 1.840. Falk-Torp 149 f.

OE slāw 'dull, sluggish' and 'slothful' (= 'lazy', so Mt. 25.26), ME slow partly in this sense, hence slowthe 'sloth' and adj. slouthful, NE slothful (now commonly replaced by lazy) : ON sljōr, slǣr 'dull', OHG sleo 'exhausted, dull, weak', etc., outside connections dub. Du. traag, OS trāg, OHG trāgi, etc. = OE trāg 'evil, bad', fr. a lengthened grade of the root in Goth. trigō 'grief, repugnance', ON tregi 'grief, hindrance', perh. : Skt. drāgh- 'be tired', Av. drigu-, drəgu- 'poor, needy, weak'. Walde-P. 1.821. Falk-Torp 1291 f.

NHG faul, fr. MHG vūl 'rotten, weak' (also 'lazy'), OHG fūl 'rotten' = Goth. fūls, OE fūl, ON fūll 'foul, rotten' (: Lat. pūtēre 'stink, rot'). Walde-P. 2.82. Paul, Deutsches Wtb. s.v., assumes development from 'rotten' through 'physically incapacitated, weak' to 'lazy'. But perh. rather through the well-attested secondary sense 'worthless', applied as an opprobrious epithet to the 'lazy'.

Du. lui = MLG loi, loie id., etym. dub., perh. as Gmc. hlu-ja-* : hlēw-a-* in Du. lauw, OHG lāo, NHG lau 'tepid', etc., fr. IE k̑leu-, extension of k̑el- in Lat. calidus 'warm', etc. Franck–v. W. 400 f. (372). Walde-P. 2.709 (1.430). Otherwise Falk-Torp 680.

5. Lith. tingus : ChSl. tęžĭkŭ 'heavy', tęgostĭ (deriv. of tęgŭ*) 'weight', ON þungr 'heavy', etc. Walde-P. 1.726.

Br.	moal	NHG	kahl

Most of the words listed may be used either of the head or of the person having a bald head (NE his head is bald or he is bald), though the latter may also be called 'bald-headed', and so usually NHG kahlköpfig.

The words for 'bald' seldom have any connection with those for 'hair', words meaning literally 'hairless' being used otherwise. The commonest source, where this is clear, is the notion of 'bright, shiny' or 'smooth'.

1. Grk. φαλακρός (NG pop. also, with metathesis, καραφλός) : φαλός· λευκός Hesych., φαλιός, φαλᾱρός 'having a white spot', Ir. ball 'spot', Lith. baltas 'white', Skt. bhāla- 'splendor, forehead' (cf. also ME balled, below, 4). Walde-P. 2.175 f.

2. Lat. calvus (> It., Sp. calvo, Fr. chauve) : Av. kaurva-, NPers. kal 'bald', Skt. ati-kulva-, -kūlva- 'entirely bald', prob. also, Skt. khalati-, khalvāta- 'bald-headed'. Walde-P. 1.447. Ernout-M. 137. Walde-H. 1.144.

Sp. pelón, fr. pelo 'hair' (4.14), through ironical use of 'hairy' for the opposite, or through a derogatory sense common alike to 'hairy' and 'bald'(?).

Rum. chel, fr. Turk. kel 'bald'. Lokotsch 1152.

Rum. pleşuv, fr. the Slavic, cf. ChSl. plěšivŭ, etc. (below, 6).

3. Ir. mael (also 'dull, without horns'), NIr. maol, W. moel (OW mail 'mutilum'), Br. moal, perh. (as mai-los*) fr. the root mai-* 'cut off, hew', in Goth. maitan 'hew, cut', ON meita 'cut', etc. Walde-P. 2.222. Otherwise Stokes 204.

4. ON skalli (sb. 'a baldhead'), adj. skǫllōttr, Dan. skaldet, Sw. skallig, perh. fr. s-form of the root in Lat. calvus, etc. (above, 2). Ernout-M. 137. Falk-Torp 980 (but combined with the following).

OE calu, ME calouh (NE callow), Du. kaal (LG kal > Sw. kal), OHG kalo, MHG kal, NHG kahl : ChSl. golŭ 'naked', etc. (4.99). Walde-P. 1.537 f. Berneker 325 f. Combined by some with Lat. calvus, etc. (above, 2) on the basis of IE variant initial k/g, or even as loanword from it (cf. Walde-P. 1.538).

ME balled, NE bald (cf. also Dan. bældet 'bald, callow', of birds), prob. fr. ball 'white spot' on the forehead (in spite of the fact that this is not quotable as early as balled), this (whether or not through Celtic) : Grk. φαλᾱρός, etc. (above, 1). Walde-P. 2.175. Falk-Torp 123. NED s.v.

5. Lith. plikas, Lett. pliks (also 'naked'), ChSl. plěšivŭ, SCr. plešiv, Boh. plešivý, plešatý, Russ. plešivyj (also Lith. pleikas 'bald spot', Lett. plaikums 'spot') : Lith. plynas 'plain, even, smooth', plynė 'plain, open field', Norw. dial. flein 'bald, naked', Sw. dial. flen 'naked', but further root connection dub. Walde-P. 2.93. Mühl.-Endz. 3.344. Falk-Torp 235.

Lett. kails 'bald, naked, bare' : Ir. cōil 'thin, slender', W., Corn. cul 'lean, narrow'. Walde-P. 1.455.

6. ChSl. vŭz-lysŭ, Boh. lysý, Pol. łysy, Russ. lysyj : Skt. ruçant- 'bright, shining', IE leuk̑-, beside leuk- in Lat. lūx 'light', etc. Walde-P. 2.411. Berneker 752.

Br.	kamm	NHG	lahm, hinkend

The words listed are those used primarily for 'lame' in the leg or foot (as in NE he is lame), but most of them are or were also used for 'lame' in wider sense, 'crippled' in any limb.

They are from diverse notions such as 'break, bend, twist', some from the name of a part affected (as 'hip'), some probably of imitative origin (from the clumping sound of a lame person), several quite obscure.

1. Grk. χωλός, etym.? Boisacq 1072.

NG κουτσός, Byz. κουτζός (κοτσός Chron. Mor.), orig. 'crippled' as in cpds. κουτζοδάκτυλος 'stump-fingered' (Byz.), κουτζομύτης 'snub-nosed', κουτσοχέρης 'with crippled hand', κουτσαύτης 'crop-eared', etc. (G. Meyer, Neugr. Stud. 2.97 ff.), now plausibly explained as fr. κοψο- (: κόπτω 'cut') in cpds., the change of πσ to τσ perh. first by dissim. in cases like κοψο-πόδης > κοτσο-πόδης. Amantos, Ἀθηνᾶ 28, παραρτ. 124 f. Georgacas, Ἀρχ. Θρᾳκ. Θησ. 14.227, n. 4. The Slavic words, Bulg. kuc 'lame', etc. (Berneker 636), are then loan words.

2. Lat. claudus, history obscure, but prob. connected in some way with claudere 'shut'—either directly through 'shut off, prevent' (as fugam claudere) and hence 'hamper', or more remotely through the underlying root of claudere and clāvis 'key', with the notion of 'bend, hook'. Walde-P. 1.492. Walde-H. 1.231.

It. zoppo, blend of zanca 'leg' and VLat. cloppus 'lame' (see below). REW 9598.

It. ranco, through Cat. or Prov. ranc fr. Frank. rank* (= MLG rank 'twisted') : NHG renken, NE wrench, etc. REW 7044. Weigand-H. 2.570.

Fr. boiteux (beside boiter 'limp'), OFr. boisteux, apparently a deriv. of OFr. boiste, Fr. boîte 'box', also 'bone-socket' (fr. MLat. buxida, Grk. πυξίς, -ίδα 'box'), hence orig. 'club-footed' (perh., but not necessarily, influenced by bot 'club-footed'). REW 6892. Gamillscheg 119.

Sp. cojo (Cat. coix, Port. coxa), fr. VLat. coxus 'claudus' (gl.), fr. Lat.

coxa 'hip, hipbone'. REW 2292a. Ernout-M. 226.

Rum. şchiop fr. VLat. cloppus 'lame' (gl.), cf. cloppicāre* in Fr. clocher, Prov. clopchar 'limp', Alb. shqep 'lame', prob. of imitative orig. Ernout-M. 199. Walde-H. 1.237. REW 1997. Puşcariu 1550.

3. Ir. losc, etym. dub., perh. : Grk. λοξός 'slanting, oblique', etc. Stokes 244. (Walde-P. 1.157 with query.)

Ir. bacach (= W. bachog 'hooked, crooked'), fr. Ir. bacc, W. bach 'hook' (orig. dub. Walde-P. 2.105).

W. cloff, fr. VLat. cloppus (cf. above, 2, Rum. şchiop). Pedersen 1.238. Loth, Mots lat. 150.

Br. kamm 'crooked' (12.74), also 'lame'.

4. Goth. halts, ON haltr, OE healt etc. the old Gmc. group for 'lame' (NE halt arch.) : Ir. coll 'destruction, loss, ruin', W. coll 'loss, damage', prob. fr. d-formations of the root kel-* in Grk. κλάω 'break', Lat. per-cellere 'strike, beat, destroy' (cf. clādēs 'destruction'), Lith. kalti 'beat, hammer', etc. Walde-P. 1.439. Falk-Torp 375. Feist 242 f.

ON lami, OE lama, OHG lam, etc., in the older periods 'maimed, crippled' and esp. 'paralytic, palsied' (so still commonly in Dan., Sw., Du.) : OHG lemmian, OE lemian 'lame', ON lemja 'strike, hit', ChSl. lomiti, OPruss. limtwei 'break', etc., IE lem-*. Walde-P. 2.434. Falk-Torp 621.

Du. kreupel, MLG kröpel (> MHG, NHG krüppel) = OE crypel 'a cripple', etc., fr. the root of OE crēopan, MLG krūpen 'creep, crawl' : Grk. γρυπός 'crooked', etc. (extensions of IE ger-* 'twist, turn'). Walde-P. 1.598. Franck–v. W. 348.

Du. mank (MDu. manc, MLG mank) fr. Lat. mancus 'maimed, infirm, defective' orig. 'crippled in the hand' : manus 'hand'. Ernout-M. 585., Walde-H. 2.23. Franck–v. W. 413. Falk-Torp 694.

MHG hinkende, NHG hinkend, pple. of hinken 'limp' (= ON hinka, etc.) : Skt. khañj- 'limp', khañja- 'lame', Grk. σκάζω 'limp', ON skakkr 'awry, twisted', IE (s)keng-*. Walde-P. 2.564. Falk-Torp 406.

Lith. šlubas (whence šlubuoti 'limp'), šlumas, Lett. slums, history dub. Not directly : Skt. (RV) çrōṇa- 'lame' (so W. Schulze, Berl. Sitzungsber. 1910 p. 801, Mühl.-Endz. 3.941), since this is rather a deriv. of çrōṇi- 'hip, buttock' (name of the defect from the part of the body affected, cf. VLat. coxus 'lame', above, 2). The Baltic words may be independent derivatives of a root k̑leu-* 'crack, break'(?) assumed as underlying the words for 'hip', Skt. çrōṇi-, Lith. šlaunis, W. clun, etc. Walde-P. 1.499 f.

Lett. tizls, etym.? Mühl.-Endz. 4.199.

Lett. klibs, cf. Lith. klibas 'bowlegged, tottering' : Lith. klibėti 'shake, totter', Lith. klebėti, Lett. klabāt 'shake, rattle', outside root connection? Mühl.-Endz. 2.225.

6. ChSl. chromŭ, etc., general Slavic : Skt. (Ved.) srāma- 'crippled, lame', root connection? Walde-P. 2.706. Berneker 403.

SCr. šepav, cf. šepati 'limp, hobble', Ukr. šepast 'lame', etc., outside connections? Miklosich 338.

Boh. kulhavý, Pol. kulawy, with vbs. Boh. kulhati, Pol. kulać 'limp', history difficult. Brückner 281 derives Pol. kulawy fr. kula 'staff, crutch' (this fr. NHG dial. kūle = keule 'club'),—attractive for the Polish, but not for group as a whole, for which cf. Berneker 642 f.

The common words for 'deaf' are not from such a logical source as 'not hearing', but rather from more general notions such as 'dull' or 'mutilated', as are likewise several of the words for 'dumb' or even 'blind'. 'Deaf' and 'dumb' were expressed by the same word in Greek, and OHG tumb was sometimes used in both senses.

1. Grk. κωφός, in Hom. 'dull, blunt' (κωφὸν βέλος 'blunt missile') and 'mute, noiseless' (κύματι κωφῷ 'with noiseless wave'), later both 'dumb' and 'deaf' (so still in NT), but NG κουφός only 'deaf', prob. : κηφήν 'drone', ChSl. chabiti 'spoil', pochabŭ 'foolish', Boh. ochabiti 'make loose, weak'. Walde-P. 1.348. Boisacq 452.

2. Lat. surdus (> Romance words) also 'dull (of sound), indistinct (also of smell and color), inaudible', prob. (as orig. 'indistinct' of sound) fr. the root in susurrus 'muttering, whisper', susurrāre 'hum, mutter, whisper', Skt. svar- 'sound', ON svarra 'roar'. Walde-P. 2.528. Ernout-M. 1007.

3. Ir. bodar, NIr. bodhar, W. byddar, Br. bouzar, prob. (with IE o) : Skt. badhira- 'deaf'. Stokes 176. Pedersen 1.111, 363. Thurneysen, Gram. 74. Otherwise Walde-P. 2.190, with attempt to combine with Goth. bauþs.

4. Goth. bauþs, etym. dub. Possibly as orig. 'blunt' : MDu. bot 'dull, stupid', LG butt 'blunt, coarse', Norw. dial. butt 'blunt', cf. also Arm. bot' 'blunt'. Persson, Beiträge 256. Feist 86. Otherwise Walde-P. 2.190 (cf. above, 3).

ON daufr, OE dēaf, OHG toub, etc., general Gmc. words for 'deaf', 'dumb', and 'blind'. Walde-P. 1.840. Falk-Torp 179.

5. Of the words for 'dumb', only a few are from such a logical source as 'not speaking'. Some are from the general notion of 'dull', with the same word or cognates used also for 'deaf' (4.95). The majority are from 'stammer' or the like, most of these being of imitative origin.

1. Grk. κωφός, same as for 'deaf' (4.95).

Grk. ἄφωνος (often merely 'silent', but also 'dumb'), neg. cpd. of φωνή 'voice'.

Late Grk. βωβός (quotable as 'dumb' from Plut., etc., in Hesych. 'lame'), common in Byz. Grk., NG βουβός, prob. in origin a mere derogatory epithet of the same type as Sp. bobo 'stupid', NE boob, booby, OFr. bobu 'simpleton', etc. G. Meyer, IF 6.109.

The words listed are the commonplace words for a person who is 'drunk', with omission of the more elegant expressions parallel to NE intoxicated, inebriated, etc. and of the boundless variety of colloquial and slang terms parallel to NE full, soaked, lit up, etc., etc. (but Lett. pilns lit. 'full', used for 'drunk' in version of NT, and Dan. fuld, Sw. full not felt as slang).

Many are in origin participial forms of verbs for 'drink' (5.13). Some are derived from the name of an intoxicating drink 'mead, beer', and some are in origin similar to NE full or soaked.

1. Grk. μεθύων, NG μεθυσμένος (pples. of μεθύω 'get drunk'), W. meddw, Br. mezo, and prob. Ir. mesc (-sko-formation, cf. Grk. μεθύσκω), fr. Grk. μέθυ 'wine' (orig. 'mead'), OIr. mid, W. medd, Br. mez 'mead' (5.85). Walde-P. 2.261. Pedersen 1.63, 367. Otherwise for Ir. mesc, as mik̑-sk̑o-* 'mixed' : Lat. miscere, etc. Pokorny, Hist. Reader of OIr p. 40.

2. Lat. ēbrius (> OIt ebbro, Fr. ivre, Sp. ebrio), hence late Lat. ēbriācus (> It. (ub)briaco), obviously related to its opposite sōbrius 'sober', both presumably cpds. with a common second part, but this, and consequently the precise analysis, is entirely obscure. Ernout-M. 292. Walde-H. 1.387 f. REW 2818, 2820.

Sp. borracho, as sb. 'drunkard', orig. a facetious epithet 'wine flask', masc. to borracha 'leather wine flask' (= It. borraccia, of dub. orig., REW 1411).

Sp. beodo, Rum. beat, fr. Lat. bibitus 'drunk' pple. of bibere 'drink'. REW 1080.

3. Ir. mesc, NIr. meisceamhail (cpd. with amhail 'like'), W. meddw, Br. mezo, see above, 1.

4. Goth. drugkans (I Cor. 11.21), OE druncan etc., the regular Gmc. expression, pples. of Goth. drigkan, OE drincan, etc. 'drink'.

ON ǫlr, later ǫlvaðr, fr. ǫl 'ale, beer' (5.92).

Dan. fuld, Sw. full (so also NIcel. fullur, Scotch fou, and NE slang full), lit. 'full (of strong drink)'.

5. Lith. girtas (old pple., Leskien, Ablaut 326), pasigeręs, Lett. piedzēriēs (pples. of refl. perfect. forms) : Lith. gerti, Lett. dzert 'drink'.

Lett. pilns, lit. 'full', but also 'drunk' (like Dan. fuld, etc., above). Mühl.-Endz. 3.216.

6. ChSl. pĭjanŭ (deriv. pĭjanica ὁ μεθύων, Mt. 24.49), SCr. pijan, Pol. pijany, Russ. p'janyj (old mid. pple.? Cf. Meillet, Études, 438), Boh. opilý, zpilý (pples.) : ChSl. piti, etc. 'drink'.

7. Skt. matta- 'drunk', pple. of mad- 'be drunk, rejoice' = Av. maδ- 'get drunk' (pple. masta- happens not to be quotable in this sense, but cf. NPers. mast 'drunk') : Lat. madēre 'be wet', also 'be drunk' (whence madidus 'wet, soaked, drunk'; mattus, Petr. Sat. 41 and in glosses 'drunk' fr. maditus*), Grk. μαδάω 'be moist, flaccid' (of a disease of fig trees), 'fall out' (of hair), μαδαρός 'wet'. Walde-P. 2.230 f. Walde-H. 2.6 f.

Ernout-M. 578 reject the connection between the Latin (and Greek) and the Indo-Iranian forms, on formal and semantic grounds. But the Skt. mand- forms make no serious difficulty, and on the semantic side, the secondary sense of 'be drunk' which appears in Latin (cf. also U.S. slang soaked) may well have developed in part in the IE period, and prevailed to the exclusion of 'be wet' in the Indo-Iranian period, with some new extension in Sanskrit ('be exhilarated, glad'). Separation seems entirely uncalled for.

A majority of the words for 'eat' belong to an inherited group representing an IE ed-*. A few of these survive only as homely words used of animals 'feeding' or vulgarly of men. The substitutes are partly words meaning originally 'chew, nibble, swallow', etc., which were used of animals 'feeding' and also as colloquial or slang expressions with reference to men (cf. NE where'll we feed?), until they finally became the standard words for 'eat'. Others are derivatives of nouns meaning 'food, meal' (these of various sources discussed under 'food', etc.), that is, 'take food, a meal'; or again from the notion of 'partake of', with specialization to 'partake of food', as frequently in NE.

Cf. cpd. Goth. fra-itan (for κατεσθίω 'eat up, devour'), OE fretan, OHG frezzan 'devour', whence NHG fressen, used of animals, etc. (NE fret with total loss of any relation to food).

2. Grk. τρώγω 'gnaw, nibble, feed on' (perh. : Lat. tergēre 'rub off', terere 'rub', etc. Walde-P. 1.732), used mostly of animals, but also of men, and in late times simply 'eat'. In the NT, while less common than ἐσθίω, it is usual in the Fourth Gospel and must have there a fully respectable standing, for it is put in the mouth of Jesus (Jn. 13.18, etc.). For other examples in pap., cf. Moulton-Milligan s.v. NG τρώ(γ)ω is the reg. word for 'eat' in the present.

Grk. aor. ἔφαγον, still persisting in NG ἔφαγα, fut. θὰ φά(γ)ω, etc. : Skt. bhaj- 'give or receive a portion', bhakṣ- 'partake of, eat or drink'. Locr. παματοφαγεῖσται 'have one's property confiscated' is a relic of the more general meaning. Walde-P. 2.127.

Grk. βιβρώσκω 'devour, eat up' and simply 'eat', βέβρωκα, ἐβρώθην being used in Hellenistic Greek as tenses of ἐσθίω, fr. IE g^{w}er-* 'swallow, devour' (cf. Grk. βάραθρον 'pit') in Skt. gr̥-, Lat. vorāre, ChSl. žrěti, etc. Walde-P. 1.682 ff.

3. Lat. comedere (> Sp., Port. comer) cpd. of edere.

Lat. mandūcāre 'chew' (beside older mandere), used colloq. for 'eat' and freq. in this sense from Varro on (esp. Petronius, Peregrinatio, Itala, etc.). Hence OIt. manicare, Fr. manger (> It.

mangiare), Rum. mînca, etc. Ernout-M. 585. Walde-H. 2.24. REW 5292.

4. Ir. ithim : Skt. pitu- 'food, drink', ChSl. pitěti 'feed', etc. (5.12). Pedersen 2.559.

W. bwyta, fr. bwyd 'food' (5.12).

Br. dibri, MBr. dibriff, OBr. sb. diprim 'food', Corn. dibry., prob. fr. a cpd. di-prim-* : NIr. creimim 'gnaw, chew' (Ir. vbl. n. creim, K. Meyer, Contrib. 511). Henry 95. Loth, Vocab. vieux-breton 105. (Otherwise, but to be rejected, Pedersen 1.111).

5. Goth. matjan (more common than itan), fr. mats 'food' (5.12).

Dan. spise, fr. sb. spise, loanword fr. MLG spise 'food' (5.12). As the polite term this has displaced the old æde (above, 1), as NHG speisen has encroached on essen, but without displacing it (Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 469).

6. Lith. valgyti (displacing ėsti, above, 1), fr. valgis 'food, meal' (5.12).

7. Russ. kušat', polite term 'partake of' food or drink : ChSl. = kusiti 'taste', etc. (15.31).

8. Skt. aç- 'eat, devour', etym. dub. Walde-P. 1.112.

Skt. bhuj- 'enjoy', esp. 'enjoy food, eat', prob. : Lat. fungī 'be engaged in, perform'. Walde-H. 1.566 (with refs.).

Skt. ghas-, Av. gah- 'eat, devour' (Av. only of evil beings), etym.? Walde-P. 1.640. Barth. 517.

Skt. khād- 'chew', colloq. for 'eat' and in MIndic mostly displacing ad-. Wackernagel-Debrunner, KZ 67.158.

Av. x^var- 'consume, eat or drink' (cf. NPers. xurdan, the reg. word for 'eat') points to a root swer-* or swel-*, and under the latter head may be connected with the Gmc. group, OE swelgan 'swallow', NE swallow, etc. Walde-P. 2.530. Barth. 1865 f. For 'eat' fr. 'swallow', cf. Grk. βιβρώσκω, above, 2.

Many of the words listed cover 'food' for man or beast. Words that are used only of food for animals ('fodder') are not included in the list, though several of these belong to the same cognate groups and are mentioned in the discussion.

The commonest derivation is naturally from words for 'eat' or 'feed'. But some of the verbs for 'feed' and many more of the nouns for 'food' are the result of specialization from meanings that originally had no specific reference to food, such as 'means of life, a living', 'rear, nourish, preserve, save', 'portion', 'expense, outlay', 'provisions', etc. In some cases a word originally denoting some special kind of food comes to be used for food in general—the opposite of the specialization seen in NE meat.

1. Derivs. of IE ed-* 'eat' (5.11). Grk. ἐδωδή, ἔδεσμα, Hom. εἶδαρ; Lat. ēsca; ON āt, OE æt, OHG, MHG āz; Lett. ēdiens ('an article of food'); ChSl. jadĭ, SCr. jelo, Boh. jídlo, Pol. jadło, jedzenie, Russ. jastva; Skt. anna-. But some of these are among the less common words for 'food', and still others are used only in a specialized sense, e.g. OE ǣs, OHG ās, NHG, Du. aas 'carrion, bait', Lith. ėdesis 'fodder, bait', etc.

2. Derivs. of IE pā-* (cf. Lat. pāscere, ChSl. pasti 'feed cattle, pasture'), pī-, (relationship between pā- and pĭ-* on the basis of pāi-* prob.; otherwise Walde-P. 2.73). Walde-P. 2.72 ff. Ernout-M. 737 f. Feist 157.

Lat. pābulum 'fodder'; the Gmc. group represented by NE food and fodder (below, 6); Skt. pitu- 'food, drink', Av. pitu- 'food'; ChSl. pišta 'food', Boh. pice 'fodder', Russ. pišča 'food' (cf. ChSl. pitěti 'feed').

3. Grk. τροφή, fr. τρέφω 'make thrive, nourish, rear' (Walde-P. 1.876), with the same specialization to 'food' as in Lat. alimentum fr. alere.

Βρῶμα, βρῶσις, fr. βιβρώσκω 'devour, eat'. (5.11)

Σῖτος 'grain' (8.42) is also used for 'food', and so especially σῖτα or σῖτία (neut. pl.), also σῖτησις.

NG τὸ φαγί, fr. the old aor. infin. φαγεῖν 'eat'. Cf. It. il mangiare, NHG das essen. NG φαγητό is mostly 'an article of food'.

4. Lat. cibus (> It. cibo 'food', but Sp. cebo 'fodder'), etym. dub. Ernout-M. 183. Walde-H. 1.210.

Lat. penus 'food supply, provisions' : Lith. penas 'food, fodder', penėti 'feed, fatten'. Walde-P. 2.25. Ernout-M. 753 f.

Lat. alimentum (> It., Sp. alimento, Fr. aliment), fr. alere 'nourish'. Walde-P. 1.86. Ernout-M. 36 ff.

Lat. nūtrīmentum (> It. nutrimento, etc.; so with different suffix Fr. nourriture, fr. nourrir), fr. nūtrīre 'nourish, feed, suckle' : Skt. snu- 'drip, give milk'. Walde-P. 2.623. Ernout-M. 689 f.

Derivs. of Lat. vīvere 'live'. Lat. vīctus (> It. vitto), late vīctuālia (> OFr. vitaile > ME vitaile, NE victuals), vīvenda (> Sp. vianda, OFr. viande > NE viands; Fr. viande now 'meat'), It. vivere infin. used as sb., pl. viveri. Cf. NHG lebensmittel and the Celtic forms below.

Rum. hrană, fr. SCr., Bulg. hrana (below, 8).

Rum. mîncare, old infin. form of mînca 'eat'.

5. Ir. biad, NIr. biadh, W. bwyd, Br. boed, OCorn. buit, fr. IE g^{w}ei-* 'live' in Lat. vīvere, etc. (4.74). Walde-P. 1.668 ff. Pedersen 1.58.

Ir. tūare, deriv. of tūar 'preparation, provision', vbl. n. to do-ferim 'establish', like fūar 'preparation', vbl. n. to fo-ferim. 'Food' as specialization of 'provision'. K. Meyer, Ber. Preuss. Akad. 1918.628.

6. Goth. fōdeins (renders τροφή, vs. mats = βρῶμα; but in OE Gospels mete for both), ON fœða, Dan. føde, Sw. föda, OE fōda, ME fode, NE food, Du. voedsel; beside OE fōder, NE fodder, OHG fuotar, NHG futter 'fodder'; see above, 2.

Goth. mats, ON matr, Dan. mad, Sw. mat, OE, ME mete (NE meat, still 'food' in NT, King James version, but now specialized to flesh-food), OHG, MHG maz, and with different grade of the root and with s- suffix, OE mōs, OHG muos, muas (the usual word in Tat. and Otfr.), MHG muos (NHG mus 'stewed fruit', etc.) etym. disputed. From mad-* in Lat. madēre 'be moist', Skt. medas 'fat', etc., through 'moist or fatty food'

(cf. Lith. valgis, below, 7); or fr. med-* in Goth. mitan 'measure', etc. through 'portion', like Lat. carō 'flesh' fr. 'portion', Grk. φαγ- 'eat' fr. 'partake'. Walde-P. 2.232. Falk-Torp 638. Feist 349.

ON vist, OE, OS, OHG wist (in OE one of the commonest words for 'food') : Goth. waila wisan, bi-wisan 'be merry', wailawizn 'food, feasting', frawisan 'spend, waste', Ir. feis, W. gwest 'feast', Skt. vas- 'consume' (rare), Av. vāstra- 'fodder, pasture'. Walde-P. 1.307 f. Falk-Torp 1403. Feist 568.

OE feorm 'food, provisions' (also 'feast, meal', 5.41), prob. fr. Lat. firma, as a 'fixed amount, ration'. NED s.v. farm, sb.[1].

OHG spīsa, MHG spīse, NHG speise, Du. spijs (Dan. spise, Sw. spis, fr. MLG), fr. MLat. spē(n)sa (Lat. expēnsa) 'outlay, expense' (cf. It. spesa > NHG spesen), specialized to 'outlay for provisioning', then 'provisions, food', and now used mostly of prepared food. Falk-Torp 1124. Weigand-H. 2.907.

NHG kost 'food, fare, board' (MLG koste > Dan., Sw. kost), fr. OHG chosta 'expense' (cf. NHG pl. kosten, NE cost, etc. 11.72).

MHG nar, narunge, nerunge, NHG nahrung (MLG neringe > Dan. næring, Sw. näring) : NHG nähren 'nourish', this fr. OHG nerjan = OE nerian, Goth. nasjan 'heal, make well', caus. of nes- in Goth. ganisan, OHG genesan, etc. 'get well'. Walde-P. 2.334 f. Weigand-H. 2.270.

For other examples of partial specialization to 'food', cf. NE fare in good fare, bill of fare, fr. fare 'journey' through 'provisions for journey'; (good) board, fr. board 'table'; provisions; NHG gericht 'article of food, dish', fr. richten 'arrange, prepare'.

7. Lith. valgis, used of prepared food, also 'an article of food' : vilgyti 'moisten', Lett. valgs 'moist', SCr. vlaga 'moisture', Russ. vologa used of rich soup and various dainties. Development through 'moist food, dainty' to 'article of food, food'. Walde-P. 1.306. Brückner, KZ 45.104.

Lith. maistas 'food, provisions' (Lith., Lett. maita 'carrion' with specialization fr. 'food', like NHG aas) : maitinti 'feed', misti 'feed on, live on, get one's living', Lett. mist 'live on, get one's living, thrive', mitināt 'support, provide maintenance', all with the underlying notion of 'living, maintenance' and prob. connected with Av. mit-, miθ- 'dwell', maēθana- 'dwelling'. Walde-P. 2.247.

Lett. barība, beside baruōt 'feed, fatten', prob. : Russ. dial. bor 'millet', fr. bhar-* beside bhars-* in ChSl. brašĭno 'food', etc. (below, 8). Mühl.-Endz. 1.265.

8. ChSl. jadĭ, etc. above, 1.

ChSl. pišta (in Gospels = τροφή), Russ. pišča, above, 2.

ChSl. brašĭno (in Gospels = βρῶμα) : SCr. brašno 'meal', Russ. borošno 'rye-meal', Lat. far 'spelt', Goth. barizeins 'made of barley', etc. Walde-P. 2.134. Berneker 74. Cf. the use of Grk. σῖτος 'grain' for 'food' (above, 3).

ChSl. krŭma 'food, fodder', SCr. krma, Pol. karm, Russ. korm 'fodder' but Pol. pokarm, Boh. pokrm 'food', perh. (despite the k) : Lith. pašaras 'fodder', šerti, 'feed cattle', etc. Brückner 220. Osthoff, Parerga 62. Berneker 668 f.

Late ChSl. chrana, SCr., Bulg. hrana 'food, provisions' (> Rum. hrană) = Russ. chorona 'protection', Boh. chrana 'place of refuge' : ChSl. chraniti 'guard, preserve, keep', Lat. servāre, etc. For the semantic development, cf. NHG nahrung (above, 6). Walde-P. 2.498. Berneker 397 f.

For distribution of ChSl. forms, cf. Jagić, Entstehungsgesch. 327, 378.

Boh. potrava, Pol. potrawa, strawa : ChSl. trava 'grass', fr. the root in truti 'consume', na-truti, 'nourish, feed', tryti 'rub', etc. Walde-P. 1.731. Trautmann 327. Brückner 518, 575.

9. Skt. anna-, Skt., Av. pitu-, above, 1, 2.

Av. x^varəθa-, fr. x^var-* 'consume' (5.11). Hence Arm. χor 'food' (Hübschmann, Arm. Gram. 160).

5.13 DRINK (vb.)

Grk.	πῖνω	Goth.	drigkan	Lith.	gerti

NIr.	ōlaim	OHG	trinkan	Av.	x^var-
W.	yfed	MHG	trinken
Br.	eva	NHG	trinken

Most of the words for 'drink', apart from the Gmc. group, are inherited from IE pō(i)-* 'drink', of which any further relations are problematical. Some are from 'swallow, devour' with specialization to 'drink', as in other cases to 'eat'.

1. IE pō(i)-, pī-. Walde-P. 2.71. Ernout-M. 109. Walde-H. 1.103 f.

Grk. πῖνω; Lat. bibere (pple. pōtus), whence It. bere, Fr. boire, Sp. beber, Rum. bea; Ir. ibim (vbl. n. oul, ōl, whence NIr. ōlaim), W. yfed, Br. eva; OPruss. poutwei; ChSl. piti, etc., general Slavic; Skt. pā-; Alb. pî.

2. Goth. drigkan, OE drincan, etc., general Gmc., etym. disputed. Semantically the deriv. fr. 'draw' (cf. NE take a draught, Lat. dūcere pōcula, sucōs, etc.) is the most attractive, and so ultimate connection with OE dragan 'draw', etc., through a nasalized form of a parallel root (dhreg-* perh. seen in Skt. dhraj- 'move, glide'). Cf. also Toch. A tsuk- 'drink' : Lat. dūcere 'draw, lead', etc. Walde-P. 1.874. Feist 125. G. S. Lane, Language 14.27.

3. Lith. gerti, Lett. dzert : ChSl. žrěti, Skt. gr̥-, Lat. vorāre, Grk. βιβρώσκω, IE g^{w}er-* 'swallow, devour'. Walde-P. 1.682 ff.

4. Av. x^var- 'consume, eat, drink', x^vāšar- 'a drinker', see 5.11.

The words for the sb. 'drink' are nearly all obvious derivs. of the roots appearing in the verbs, as Grk. πῶμα, πόσις, Lat. pōtiō, pōtus, NHG getränk, etc. Those of different orig. are as follows:

Ir. deog, NIr. deoch, W. diod, MW diawt, OCorn. diot, MBr. diet, orig. obscure. Walde-P. 1.786. Stokes 146.

Ir. lind (NIr. lionn 'ale'), W. llyn, prob. the same word as Ir. lind (s-stem), W. llyn 'lake, pond' (1.43). Pedersen 1.37. Persson, Beiträge 878. But separated by Walde-P. 2.438.

W.	newyn	MHG	hunger
Br.	naon	NHG	hunger

Words for 'hunger' come by specialization from either 'want, distress, wasting away' or 'desire, longing'. Cf. the specialization of NE starve from OE steorfan 'die'.

1. Grk. λῑμός : λοιμός 'plague', λιάζομαι 'withdraw, shrink', Goth. aflinnan 'depart', ON linna 'cease', etc., IE lei-. Walde-P. 2.388. Whatever the ultimate relations of the various IE roots lei-, the immediate Greek development is fr. 'waste away' to 'hunger'.

Grk. πεῖνα, Ion. πείνη, fr. *πένι̯α : Grk. πενία 'poverty', πένης 'poor', πένομαι 'toil, be poor', πόνος 'toil', outside connections dub. Walde-P. 2.8 f., 661.

2. Lat. famēs (> Romance words) etym. dub. Walde-P. 1.829. Ernout-M. 328 f. Walde-H. 1.451.

3. Ir. nūna, NIr. naoine 'famine', W. newyn, Br. naon 'hunger, famine', OCorn. naun (gl. famis), prob: Goth. nauþs, OHG nōt, OE nēad 'necessity, distress' (NE need). Walde-P. 2.316. Pedersen 1.61. Stokes 193.

Ir. gorte, NIr. gorta : Ir. goirt 'bitter, painful', fr. the root of gorim 'heat', ChSl. gorěti 'burn', etc. (1.85). Walde-P. 1.688. Pedersen 1.33.

NIr. ocras, cpd. of od- and root of caraim 'love'. 'Hunger' fr. 'desire'. Pedersen 1.476.

4. Goth. hūhrus, ON hungr, OE hungor, etc. general Gmc. : Grk. κένκω· πεινῶ (Phot.), κέγχει· ἐπιδάκνει (Hesych.), Lith. kenkia 'it hurts', kanka 'pain', ON hā 'vex, distress'. Walde-P. 1.401. Falk-Torp 432. Feist 273.

Goth. grēdus (once = λῑμός) with adj. grēdags : ON grāðr 'hunger, greed', OE grǣdig 'hungry, greedy' (NE greedy, whence greed), fr. ghrēdh-, prob. an extension of gher-, in Goth. gairnjan, OE giernan 'desire' (NE yearn), Osc.-Umbr. her- 'wish', etc. Walde-P. 1.601. Feist 220. Walde-H. 1.658. Otherwise Falk-Torp 339.

5. Lith. alkis, Lett. izalkums : Lith. alkti, Lett. alkt, ChSl. alkati 'be hungry', outside connections dub. Walde-P. 1.159.

Lith. badas, Lett. bads, prob. : Skt. bādh- 'press, urge', bādha- 'distress'. But cf. Mühl.-Endz. 1.248.

6. ChSl. gladŭ, etc., general Slavic: ChSl. žlŭděti 'long for, desire', also(?) Skt. gṛdh- 'be eager, long for', gardha- 'desire'. Walde-P. 1.633. Berneker 320.

7. Skt. kṣudh-, kṣudhā-, Av. šud-, NPers. šud : Skt. kṣudh- 'be hungry', outside connections?

Words for 'thirst' come, through the verb, from 'be dry, parched', or, like those for 'hunger', by specialization from 'wasting away, growing weak' or 'desire, longing' (as also conversely 'long for' from 'thirst for').

1. Derivs. of IE ters-* in Grk. τέρσομαι 'become dry', Lat. torrēre 'make dry', Goth. þaursjan 'be thirsty', OHG derran 'make dry', Skt. tṛṣ- 'be thirsty, etc. Walde-P. 1.737 f. Ernout-M. 1048. Pedersen 1.81.

Ir. tart; Goth. þaurstei, OE þurst, etc. general Gmc.; Lith. troškulys, troškimas (trokšti 'be thirsty', troškus 'thirsty'); Skt. tṛṣṇā-, Av. taršna-.

2. Grk. δίψα, δίψος, with vb. διψάω, etym.? Boisacq 192.

3. Lat. sitis (> Romance words) prob.: Grk. φθίσις 'wasting away, decay', Skt. kṣiti- 'disappearance, destruction'. Walde-P. 1.506. REW 7961.

4. Ir. ītu, NIr. īota, etym. dub. Pedersen 1.65. Walde-P. 1.197, 2.8.

W. syched, Br. sec'hed fr. W. sych, Ir. secc 'dry', loanwords fr. Lat. siccus 'dry' (: sitis? see 15.84). Loth, Mots lat. 209.

Most of the verbs for 'suck' belong to one of two considerable groups of cognates. Some are derived from the nouns for a woman's 'breast' or 'teat', and some are of imitative origin reflecting the sound of sucking.

The notion 'give suck, suckle' is mostly expressed by the same form (e.g. Grk. θηλάζω) or by related forms, as NE suckle vs. suck, NHG säugen vs. saugen. Cf. also ChSl. dojiti (of the inherited group, below, 1) in the Gospels only for θηλάζω as 'suckle' vs. sŭsati for θηλάζω as 'suck' (Lk. 11.27).

5.21. Words for 'cook', that is, general terms for preparing food by the use of heat, covering boiling, roasting, baking, etc., belong mostly to an inherited group representing an IE pek^{w}-*. The forms of this root in Indo-Iranian, Tocharian, Greek, and Latin have the general meaning 'cook' (also 'ripen' fruit in Skt., Grk., Toch.; in Lat. also 'prepare anything by heat', as 'bake' (bricks), but in Balto-Slavic (also Alb.) are specialized to 'roast, bake' (Russ. only 'bake', as also W., Br.), and in several languages are used most commonly for 'boil' (conversely 'boil' for 'cook' in Balto-Slavic).

With the spread of the Roman art of cookery, the Lat. derivs. coquus 'a cook' and coquīna 'kitchen' were widely borrowed in Celtic and Gmc., and through the latter in Slavic; much less widely the verb coquere and mostly in the sense of 'boil'. But in some cases new verbs for 'cook' were formed from the noun.

Some languages have no distinctive general word for 'cook', but use the more specific terms for 'boil', 'roast', etc., as the case may be, or in a phrase like 'cook a meal' use words meaning 'prepare, make ready', some of these latter being almost specialized in this direction.

1. IE pek^{w}-*. Walde-P. 2.17 f. Ernout-M. 218 f. Walde-H. 1.270 f.

Skt. pac-, Av. pač- 'cook'; Toch. päk- 'cook' (SSS 448); Grk. πέσσω, Att. πέττω, πέπτω, fut. πέψω 'cook, bake'; Lat. coquere, with its derivs. (below); Br. poba, W. pobi 'bake',

Br. poaza 'cook' (formed to the pple. poaz 'cooked' = W. poeth 'hot', Lat. coctus 'cooked'); Lith. kepti, ChSl. peką, pešti, etc., general Balto-Slavic 'bake, roast'; Alb. pjékë 'bake, roast, ripen'.

Lat. coquere > It. cocere, Fr. cuire, Sp. cocer, Rum. coace (esp. 'bake'); also Du., MLG koken (> Dan. koge, Sw. koka), OHG kochōn, MHG, NHG kochen, all mostly 'boil' but also 'cook' (cf. NHG gekochtes fleisch 'boiled meat', but ungekochtes fleisch 'uncooked meat').

Lat. coquus 'a cook' > It. cuoco, Ir. cōic, NIr. cōcaire, W. cog, cogydd (whence vb. coginio, but ending influenced by cegin 'kitchen', below), OE cōc, NE cook, Du. kok, OHG coch, NHG koch (> Dan. kok, Sw. kock). From cōc comes the later verb ME coke, NE cook.

Lat. coquīna 'kitchen' > Sp. cocina, It. cucina, Fr. cuisine, whence the vbs. Sp. cocinar, It. cucinare, Fr. cuisiner, and new nouns for 'a cook', Fr. cuisinier, Sp. cocinero; NG κουζίνα, fr. Venetian cusina = It. cucina; W. cegin; OE cycen, NE kitchen; OHG kuchina, MHG küchen, NHG küche, whence most of the Slavic words for 'kitchen' and 'a cook', as SCr. kuhinja 'kitchen', kuhar 'a cook', and vb. kuhati 'boil' and 'cook (a meal)', Boh. kuchyně, kuchař, Pol. kuchnia, kucharz.

2. Grk. μαγειρεύω (late, but reg. NG word), fr. μάγειρος 'a cook' : μάσσω, aor. ἐμάγην 'knead', μάγις, μάκτρα 'kneading-trough', Br. meza 'knead', ChSl. mazati 'smear, anoint', etc. Walde-P. 2.226. Hence μάγειρος was orig. the 'kneader' of bread, etc. But cf. Meillet, BSL 33.41.

3. Sp. guisar 'arrange, prepare', but esp. 'prepare food, cook', fr. guisa 'manner', loanword fr. Gmc. wīsa (NHG weise) 'manner'. REW 9555.

Rum. găti 'make ready, prepare', whence also 'dress' and esp. 'prepare food, cook', fr. gata 'ready', loanword fr. Slavic, SCr. gotovŭ, etc. 'ready' (14.29).

Rum. bucătar 'a cook', bucătărie 'kitchen', fr. bucată 'bit' (pl. bucate 'viands') = It. boccata, Fr. bouchée 'mouthful', fr. VLat. buccāta*, deriv. of Lat. bucca 'cheek', later 'mouth'. REW 1358. Tiktin 230 f.

4. Ir. fo-no-, NIr. fuinim 'cook, bake', perh. as orig. 'prepare' fr. a genuine cpd. fo+gnī* > fōni* (later treated as separable fo-ni-* by analogy) : gnīu 'do, make', cf. air-fogni 'prepares (food)'. Pedersen 2.586.

Br. darevi 'prepare, ripen, cook', fr. darev 'ready, ripe, cooked' (14.29).

5. In the Gmc. languages there is a dearth of distinctive words for 'cook', apart from NE cook, which is derived from the noun (above, 1). OHG kochōn, MHG, NHG kochen may be used in the general sense, though usually 'boil'. Otherwise 'cook' is expressed by words meaning 'prepare' as OE gegearwian (cf. NHG garkochen, garkoch, etc.), NHG zubereiten, Dan. lave mad, Sw. tillaga, ON būa til matar or cpd. matbūa, also matgera, NIcel. matreiða (with matr 'food').

6. In Balto-Slavic 'cook' may be expressed by the words that mean also and orig. 'boil', as Lith. virti, ChSl. variti, etc. (5.22). This wider use is confirmed by derivs. like Lith. virėjas, Lett. pavars 'a cook', Lith. virtuvė 'kitchen', Russ. povar' 'a cook'.

7. Skt. pac-, Av. pač-, above, 1.

Skt. çrā-, esp. 'boil' but also 'roast, bake' (cf. çṛta- 'cooked' vs. āma- 'raw') : Grk. κεράννῡμι, 'mix'. Walde-P. 1.419.

5.22. Words belonging under IE pek^{w}-* 'cook' (5.21) serve also in several languages for the specific 'cook by boiling', e.g. Lat. coquere, NHG kochen,

Skt. pac-. The other words for this are mostly the same as those for the intransitive 'boil' (10.31), used transitively, or made transitive as Fr. faire bouiller, OE wiellan, caus. of weallan. The few others are as follows:

1. Grk. ἕψω (only 'cook by boiling' vs. ζέω 'boil' intr.) : Arm. ephem 'boil', further connections unknown. Walde-P. 1.124. In later Greek 'cook' and then 'roast, bake' (5.23).

2. It. lessare fr. late Lat. ēlixāre, fr. Lat. ē-lixus 'thoroughly boiled' : Lat. liquēre 'be fluid'. Ernout-M. 556. REW 2848.

5.23. Words belonging under IE pek^{w}-* 'cook' (5.21) may also serve for the specific 'roast', and in Balto-Slavic are used only for 'roast' or 'bake'.

Most of the words listed cover also 'fry', 'broil', 'grill', and 'toast'. Some specific words for 'fry' are added, separated by a semicolon if clearly differentiated.

1. Grk. ὀπτάω (used of all kinds of cooking by means of fire or dry heat as opposed to ἕψω 'boil'), fr. ὀπτός 'roasted, baked', this prob. (though not generally accepted) fr. o-pk^{w}-to-* (pek^{w}-), like ὄζος 'branch' fr. o-zdo- (sed-* 'sit'). Prellwitz 364. Boisacq 708 (adversely).

Grk. φρῡ́γω; Lat. frīgere, whence It. friggere, Fr. frire (> Br. frita, ME frye [> W. ffrio], NE fry), Sp. freir, Rum. frige; Skt. bhrajj-, all with various extensions of bher-*, prob. the same as in Lat. fervēre 'boil', etc. Walde-P. 2.165 ff. Ernout-M. 390. Walde-H. 1.548.

Grk. φώγω : ON baka, OE bacan, OHG backan 'bake', etc. fr. an extension of bhē-* in OHG bāen, NHG bähen 'soften by warm applications' and 'toast (bread)', OE bæþ 'bath', etc. Walde-P. 2.187. Falk-Torp 42.

NG ψήνω, new present formed to ἔψησα, ψητός, etc. of Grk. ἕψω 'boil' (5.22), with shift (prob. through a generalized 'cook') to 'roast, bake' (but still 'boil' or 'cook' in some phrases, as ψήνω καφέ, also ψημένος 'well done').

NG τηγανίζω 'fry' (already in LXX) fr. τήγανον 'frying-pan' : OE þeccan 'burn', etc. Walde-P. 1.717. Boisacq 936.

2. Lat. torrēre, lit. 'make dry', hence 'roast' or 'bake' : Grk. τέρσομαι, Goth. gaþairsan 'dry up', Skt. tṛṣ- 'thirst', etc. (5.15). Walde-P. 1.737 ff. Ernout-M. 1047 f.

Lat. assāre (> Sp. asar), late deriv. of assus 'roasted' : Lat. ārēre 'be dry', Gr. ἄζω 'dry up', Skt. āsa- 'ashes, dust', etc. Ernout-M. 80. Walde-H. 1.65. REW 716.

It. arrostire, OFr. rostir (> ME roste, NE roast [> NIr. rostaim, W. rhostio], Br. rosta), Fr. rôtir, all fr. Gmc., OHG rōstan, etc. (below, 4). REW 7098.

Rum. prăji, fr. Slavic, ChSl. pražiti, etc. (below, 5).

3. Ir. fo-no- general 'cook' (5.21), but MIr. pple. fonaithe 'roasted' (cf. Atkinson, Passions and Homilies 714).

NIr. grīoscaim, fr. grīos, MIr. grīs 'fire, embers'.

W. crasu 'roast, bake, toast', Br. kraza 'dry up, broil', fr. W. cras 'parched, baked', Br. kraz 'dried up, broiled', outside connections dub. Henry 80. Loth, Mots lat. 153. Morris Jones 137.

4. ON steikja (with sb. steik > ME steke, NE steak), Dan. stege, Sw. steka, lit. 'stick' (on a spit) : Goth. stiks 'point', OE stician 'stick, stab', etc. Falk-Torp 1155. Hellquist 1070.

OE brǣdan, Du. braden, OHG brātan, NHG braten : ON brǣða 'melt', OE brǣþ 'odor, exhalation' (NE breath), all fr. bhrē-* beside bhrō-* in MHG bruot

'heat, hatching, brood' (OE brōd, NE brood) and ultimately connected with other extensions of bher-* as in Goth. brinnan 'burn', Lat. fervēre 'boil', etc. Walde-P. 2.158. Falk-Torp 96.

OE hyrstan, OHG harstan, fr. OE hyrste, OHG harst 'gridiron' (OE hearstepanne 'frying-pan'): Lith. karštas 'hot', kurti 'to heat', ON hyrr 'fire', etc. Walde-P. 1.418.

OHG rōstan, MHG ræsten, NHG rösten, Du. roosten, fr. OHG rōst, etc. 'gridiron', Weigand-H. 2.610. Franck-v. W. 560.

5. Lith. spirginti, ChSl. pražiti, SCr. pržiti, Boh. pražiti : Lith. spragėti 'crackle', sprogti 'burst, explode', Skt. sphurj- 'crackle, rumble', Lat. spargere 'scatter, strew', etc. Walde-P. 2.673. Brückner 434.

Boh. smažiti, Pol. smażyć : Boh. smah 'fire, brand', smahlý 'dried up', ChSl. smaglŭ 'dark colored', outside connections? Brückner 502 compares Lith. smogis 'blow', smogti, smagiu 'strike', but semantic relation?

Russ. žarit', fr. žar 'heat, glow' : ChSl. gorěti, etc. 'burn' (1.84).

5.24. Most of the words for 'bake' have been discussed under 'cook' or 'roast'. The most distinctive group is the Gmc., ON baka, OE bacan, etc., which regularly have the specific force of 'bake', but are related to Gr. φώγω 'roast' (5.23). Others are the general words for 'cook', the application to baking being apparent from the object (as 'bread') or directly expressed by a phrase (as It. in forno); or words used for both 'roast' and 'bake', which are very commonly undifferentiated.

Among the derivatives of IE pek^{w}-*, the Balto-Slavic forms mean 'roast' and 'bake', but Russ. peč' now only 'bake'; and 'bake' is dominant in Gr. πέσσω, Rum. coace, W. pobi, Br. poba.

5.242. Words for 'baker' are derived from the words for 'bake' or from those for 'bread' or 'oven'.

From 'bake', OE bæcere, NE baker, OE bæcestre (orig. fem.), NE dial. baxter, NHG bäcker, etc.; NIr. fuinneadōir, W. pobydd; Lith. kepėjas, SCr. pekar, Russ. pekar', etc.

From 'bread' (5.51) Gr. ἀρτο-κόπος (-κόπος : πέσσω), ἀρτο-ποιός, NG ψωμᾶς; Sp. panadero; NIr. arānōir(?). So Fr. boulanger, OFr. bolenc, formed fr. a MLG bolle 'round cake', this prob. fr. It. bolla, Lat. bulla 'knob'. Wartburg 1.427 ff. Rum. brutar, fr. brut used of coarse, black bread (loanword fr. NHG brot, Tiktin 229).

From 'oven' (5.25). Late Lat. furnārius (earlier furnāria 'baker's trade'), NG φούρναρης, Sp. hornero, It. fornaio. REW 3601.

But Lat. pistor, orig. 'miller' (fr. pīnsere 'pound, crush'), then the reg. word for 'baker', hence in this sense OIt. pistore, OFr. pesteur. Ernout-M. 770. REW 6539.

NIr.	bācūs	OHG	ovan	Av.	....
W.	ffwrn, popty	MHG	oven
Br.	forn	NHG	(back)ofen

Words for 'oven' are derived from verbs for 'bake', from words for 'hot', or are in origin words for some kind of a 'pot' or 'pan' (an earthen pot sunk in coals is the primitive antecedent of the cooking oven). Several of these words have come to be used for 'stove' (7.32), and then the 'oven' for cooking may be expressed more specifically by a compound, as NHG backofen.

1. From IE pek^w-* (5.21), mostly where the derivs. of this root are used especially for 'bake'. Rum. cuptor (Lat. coctōrium*); W. popty, properly 'bakehouse' (ty 'house'): all the Balto-Slavic words, as Lett. ceplis, ChSl. peštĭ, SCr. peć, Russ. peč' (> Lith. pečius), etc.; Skt. āpaka-.

2. Grk. ἰπνός, Goth. auhns, ON ofn, Dan. ovn, Sw. ugn, OE ofen, ME, NE oven, OHG ovan, etc. : Skt. ukhā- 'pot' (for cooking), Lat. aulla, ōlla 'pot'. These words almost certainly belong together, though their phonetic history is complicated. Walde-P. 1.24 f. Ernout-M. 91 f. Walde-H. 1.84. Falk-Torp 808. Feist 65 f.

Grk. κλῑβανος, (Att. κρῑβανος) in earliest use 'an earthen pot for baking bread', later 'furnace, kiln' and 'oven', an old loanword, perh. related to Goth. hlaifs 'bread'. Walde-P. 1.499. Boisacq 470.

3. Lat. furnus, fornāx : Lat. formus, Grk. θερμός 'hot', etc. (15.85). Walde-P. 1.687 ff. Ernout-M. 380. Walde-H. 1.533 f.

Hence NG φοῦρνος, It. forno, Fr. four, Sp. horno; Ir. sornn ('furnace, kiln', also 'oven' for cooking?), W. ffwrn, Br. forn. Pedersen 1.221.

4. Ir. fulacht 'act of cooking' and 'cooking-pit' (nearest approach to an oven?) : fo-sligim 'smear over'? Laws, Gloss. 433.

NIr. bācūs, fr. NE bakehouse.

5.26–5.39. Utensils for cooking, eating, and drinking are so multifarious, and so different according to the country and the period, that only the crudest classification is possible. There are so many kinds of 'pot', 'kettle', 'bowl', etc., and the terms are so vaguely definable, that the words grouped under each head are only roughly synonymous and the choice may often seem arbitrary.

Noteworthy is the extensive European borrowing of Latin words for such utensils. Several oriental words have passed through Turkish into the Balkan languages and even further.

Br.	kaoter	NHG	kessel

The words listed under 'pot' (5.26) may include pots for boiling. Here under 'kettle' are added those that are applied more specifically to vessels for boiling, usually of metal.

1. Grk. λέβης (> Lat. lebēs), of unknown source, prob. an old loanword (Aegean?). Boisacq 563.

Grk. χαλκίον, fr. χαλκός 'copper', is often 'kettle'.

NG τέντζερες, fr. Turk. tencere 'kettle, stewpan'. So Rum. tingire 'stewpan', etc. Lokotsch 2066 (without the NG word).

2. Late Lat. caldāria, fr. Lat. caldus 'hot' (15.85). Hence It. caldaia (derivs. calderone 'large kettle', calderotto 'small kettle'), Fr. chaudière (deriv. chaudron 'small kettle'), Sp. caldera, Rum. căldare, also Br. kaoter, W. callor (obs.). REW 1503.

It. paiuolo, Sp. perol, fr. VLat. pariolum*, dim. of parium*, this of Celtic orig. (cf. W. pair, below, 3). REW 6245, 6246.

Fr. bouilloire, fr. bouillir 'boil' (5.22).

3. Ir. coire, W. pair (both now 'caldron, boiler'), OCorn. per, ON hverr, OE hwer, OHG (h)wer (cf. Goth. hwairnei 'brainpan, skull') : Skt. caru- 'a kind of pot'. Walde-P. 1.518. Pedersen 1.69.

Ir. scaball, scabell ('caldron, large cooking pot'; Laws, Gloss. 641), NIr. scabhal, fr. Lat. scaphula, dim. of scapha 'small boat' (fr. Grk. σκάφη 'trough, tub'). Pedersen 1.236.

NIr. citeal, fr. NE kettle. Cf. W. tegell, tecell, fr. NE teakettle.

W. crochan 'pot' (5.26), also commonly used for 'kettle'.

4. Goth. katils* or katilus* (only gen. pl. katilē quotable), OE cetel, etc., general Gmc., whence also the Balto-Slavic words, Lith. katilas, ChSl. kotĭlŭ, etc., fr. Lat. catīnus (5.31) a kind of bowl for food, also (Pliny) a 'crucible' for melting metals, and also (Vitruv. 10.7) the 'water-tank' of a pumping-engine. The view that it was just in this last use that the word was first borrowed, and then extended to any metal 'kettle', is propounded in the most recent discussion, namely Brüch, Kretschmer Festschrift, 6 ff. For other discussions, cf. Feist 308, Walde-H. 1.182.

5. The Skt. and Av. words listed under 'pot' cover in part a 'boiling pot, kettle'.

Br.	plad	NHG	schüssel

Generic words for 'dish', that is, with the scope of NE dish, which may be applied to all kinds of eating or even drinking utensils (cf. wash the dishes, dish-closet), are lacking in most of the other IE languages. The notion is covered, but still more broadly, by words for 'vessel' or 'utensil' like Lat. vās or NG σερβίτσιο πιαττικά, NHG geschirr (cf. tischgeschirr, tischgerat).

The words listed here are such as are applied to a wide variety of dishes and furnish some approximation to a generic 'dish'. Several of them are the same as those listed also under 'plate' (5.32) or 'bowl' (5.33).

1. Grk. λέκος, λεκάνη, Lat. lanx, perh. fr. lek-, lenk- 'bend' in Lith. lenkti 'bend', etc. Walde-P. 1.158, 2.435. Ernout-M. 522. Walde-H. 1.761.

2. Lat. catīnus, dim. catillus prob. : Grk. κότυλος, κοτύλη 'cup' (also 'hollow'), fr. the common notion of 'hollow'. Walde-H. 1.182. Otherwise Meringer, Wört. u. Sach. 7.16.

Rum. farfurie, usually 'plate' (5.32), also 'dish' (cf. dulap pentru farfurie 'dish-closet, cupboard').

Fr. plat, It. piatto, NG πιάτο, etc., also and orig. 'plate, platter'. (5.32).

3. Ir. tesc 'lanx' (for t cf. Pedersen 1.224), W. dysgl, OE disc ('platter' and 'dish', ON diskr 'platter'), NE dish, fr. Lat. discus, Grk. δίσκος 'quoit'. Used for a flat serving-tray, hence 'platter' and 'dish' (and, with development in another direction, NE desk, NHG tisch 'table').

4. Ir. mias 'table, dish', NIr. 'dish', Goth. mēs 'table, platter', ChSl. misa 'platter', Boh. mísa, Pol. misa 'bowl, dish', Russ. misa, miska 'soup-dish', etc. fr. VLat. mēsa, Lat. mēnsa 'table' (7.44). Feist 355. Stender-Petersen 404.

5. Dan. fad, Sw. fat (ON fat, OE fæt 'vessel', NE vat) : Lith. puodas 'pot', etc. (5.26). Falk-Torp 200.

OE scutel 'catinus' (NE scuttle), Du. schotel, OHG scuzzila, NHG schüssel 'platter, bowl, dish' (cf. schüssel-brett, -schrank, etc.), fr. Lat. scutella 'platter' (5.32, 5.33).

6. Lith. bliūdas, Lett. bl'uoda 'bowl, dish', fr. Russ. bljudo 'platter, dish' = ChSl. bljudo 'platter', loanword fr. Gmc., Goth. biuþs 'table', etc., orig. 'serving-tray' (7.44) Berneker 64. Stender-Petersen 404.

SCr. zdjela, fr. sdjeti*, ChSl. sŭ-děti 'put together, make'.

7. Skt. bhājana- used for various dishes, fr. bhaj- 'partake of' (cf. bhakṣ- 'eat, drink', Grk. φαγεῖν 'eat', etc.).

Skt. pātra- used for 'cup, bowl, plate' or any receptacle. As 'cup' it may be = Lat. pōculum, fr. IE pō(i)-*, Skt. pā- 'drink', but in wider use, and so perh. even when 'cup', fr. Skt. pā- 'protect, guard', hence orig. 'container'. Walde-P. 2.71, 72.

Skt. carāva- 'shallow dish', also 'cover' : carman- 'shelter', etc., fr. IE kel-* 'cover' in Ir. celim, OE helan, Lat. occulere 'hide', etc. Walde-P. 1.432.

The ancestor of the modern individual plate is the serving 'platter', originally a piece of flat board. The words listed here from earlier periods mean 'platter' and in part other forms of dishes. Several of them have been discussed under 'dish'.

1. Grk. πίναξ 'board, plank, tablet' and 'platter' : Skt. pināka- 'staff', ChSl. pĭnĭ, Russ. pen', etc. 'tree-trunk' or 'stump'. Walde-P. 2.71.

2. Lat. lanx, in part a deep platter, see 5.31.

Lat. scutella (also scutra, scutula) 'flat tray, platter', etym.? Ernout-M. 912 f. Hence ON skutill 'platter' and many words for 'dish' (5.31) or 'bowl' (5.33).

Fr. plat (> Br. plad 'platter', It. piatto [> NG πιάτο], Sp. plato, ME, NE plate [> NIr. plāta, W. plat]), fr. VLat. plattus, Grk. πλατύς 'flat'. REW 6586.

Under 'bowl' are listed some of the more common words for a (usually) round dish of some depth in contrast to the flat 'plate'. But some are used only of shallow, others only of deep, bowls, while some cover a wider range and have also been listed and discussed under 'dish'. Some of the words rest on the notion of hollow or rounded shape, but in some cases what was originally a flat dish has become a deep platter or bowl.

1. Grk. κρᾱτήρ 'mixing-bowl' (> Lat. crāter), fr. κεράννῡμι 'mix' (5.17).

Grk. φιάλη 'shallow bowl', etym.?

NG σκουτέλι, see below, 2.

2. Lat. catīnus, see 5.31.

It. scodella, Fr. écuelle, Sp. escudilla, Br. skudell, NG σκουτέλι, (ON skutill 'platter', OE scutel 'catinus', Du. schotel, OHG scuzzila, etc. 'platter, dish', 5.31), fr. Lat. scutella 'platter' (5.32), with partial development through 'deep platter' to 'bowl'.

Fr. bol (> Br. bolenn, Rum. bol), fr. NE bowl (below, 4).

Rum. strachină ('shallow bowl'), fr. Grk. ὀστρακινά 'earthenware'. Tiktin 1505.

3. Ir. cūach, W. cawg, fr. late Lat. caucus, caucum 'drinking-vessel', beside Byz. καῦκα, καῦκος, καυκίον 'a kind of cup', orig. dub. Walde-H. 1.184 f. Vendryes, De hib. voc. 133.

NIr. scāla, bulla fr. ON skāl, bolli (below, 4).

Many of the words listed here under 'pitcher' are applied to a great variety of vessels, covering what in NE would be called a jug or mug, or in part a jar or can.

1. Grk. χοῦς, mostly used of a specific liquid measure, fr. χέω 'pour'.

Grk. ἀμφορεύς, fr. Hom. ἀμφιφορεύς (ἀμφί 'on both sides', φέρω 'bear') a jar with two handles.

Grk. ὑδρία fr. ὕδωρ 'water'.

Grk. κάλπις, κάλπη : Ir. cilornn 'pitcher' (K. Meyer, Contrib. 369), NIr. ciolarn 'pitcher, bucket', W. celwrn 'milk-pail', etc. Walde-P. 1.447. Pedersen 1.94.

Late Grk. ξέστης, fr. Lat. sextārius, a Roman measure, is in NT (Mk. 7.8) a 'pitcher'.

NG κανάτα, fr. MLat. cannata beside canna 'a drinking-vessel', this generally taken as loanword fr. Gmc., OHG channa, etc., (OE canne, NE can). Walde-P. 1.535. Ernout-M. 144. Walde-H. 1.154. But otherwise, and better, as Lat. canna 'reed' applied to a vessel with long spout, and the source of the Gmc. group. Wartburg 2.204, 208. Frings, Germania Romania 129 f.

NG στάμνα, σταμνί fr. class. Grk. στάμνος, σταμνίον 'wine-jar' : ἵστημι 'stand'.

2. Lat. urceus (> It. orcio 'large oil-jar'), dim. urceolus (> Rum. urcior), beside orca 'tun' with Grk. ὕρχη 'a kind of jar', perh. an old loanword. Lat. urceus or orca > OE orc, Goth. aurkjus (only aurkjē gen. pl.). Ernout-M. 1136 f. Feist 68.

It. boccale, fr. late Lat. baucālis, Grk. βαυκάλις 'vessel for cooling wine', orig.? REW 1002.

It. brocca, Fr. broc (> Br. brog), late Lat. broci, fr. Grk. βροχίς 'a kind of vessel for liquids', deriv. of βρέχω 'wet'. REW 1320. Wartburg 1.549. Vendryes, BSL 25.40.

Sp. jarra, jarro, Fr. jarre (> NE jar), fr. Arab. ğarrah 'earthen water-vessel'. REW 3944. NED s.v. jar, sb.².

3. Ir. cilornn, NIr. ciolarn : Grk. κάλπις, above, 1.

NIr. crūiscīn, fr. ME cruskyn, this like OFr. creusequin fr. MFlem. kruyseken dim. of kruyse (NE cruse, etc., below, 4). NED s.v. cruskyn.

W. piser fr. NE pitcher.

4. The Gmc. group, ON krukka (rare), Dan. krukke, Sw. kruka, OE crōg, crūce, crocca, Du. kruik, OHG kruog, NHG krug, is of obscure source (possibly some connection with Grk. κρωσσός 'water-pail, pitcher') and shows a great variety of parallel forms, including some with s as MHG krūse, MLG krūs (Du. kroes 'cup, mug'), NE cruse, etc. Walde-P. 1.487, 594, 597. Falk-Torp 583, 584.

From one or another of the Gmc. forms come Fr. cruche (cf. MHG krūche), NIr. crūiscīn (above, 3), Lith. kragas, OPruss. kragis, Lett. krūza (fr. MLG krūs), Russ. kružka.

ME picher, NE pitcher (in British usage now somewhat arch. or dial., but in U.S. the usual word), fr. OFr. pichier, MLat. picārium, bicārium 'a drinking-vessel' (whence also OHG pechari, behhari, NHG becher, NE beaker, etc.), this fr. Grk. βῖκος 'wine-jar, drinking-bowl', this again a loanword of unknown source. NED s.v. pitcher[1]. REW 1081a. Weigand-H. 1.173.

NE jug, in U.S. usually denoting a large earthenware vessel with stopper and no spout, but in current British speech displacing pitcher, e.g. jug (U.S. pitcher) of cream, prob. fr. the female pet name Jug = Joan. NED s.v.

5. Lith. ąsočius, ąsotis, fr. ąsa 'handle' : Lat. ānsa 'handle'.

ChSl. čivanŭ (Mk. 7.8 Mar.), Boh. čban, džban, Pol. dzban (Russ. žban 'wooden jug, tub'), obscure. Berneker 165. Brückner 107.

ChSl. vrŭčĭ (late), SCr. vrč, prob. through Gmc., fr. Lat. urceus (above, 2) or fr. the same source. Miklosich, Lex. Palaeoslov. s.v.

Russ. kuvšin beside kovš 'scoop, ladle' : Lith. kaušas 'ladle', Lett. kauss 'bowl', Skt. koça- 'pail, cup', etc. Berneker 594.

Russ. kružka fr. the Gmc., MHG krūse, etc. (above, 4). Berneker 628.

7. Skt. kalaça- (vessel for holding liquids, esp. the soma) : Grk. κύλιξ, Lat. calix 'cup' (5.35).

5.35 CUP

Some of the words listed have the broad range of NE cup. But some are used only for the modern small cup for serving tea, coffee, etc., while different words are employed for the larger drinking-vessels.

1. Grk. κύλιξ, Lat. calix 'goblet' : Skt. kalaça- 'pot, pitcher', root connection? Walde-P. 1.442. Ernout-M. 135. Walde-H. 1.138 f.

Grk. ποτήριον (NG ποτήρι 'a glass') : πῖνω 'drink', etc. Walde-P. 271 ff.

Grk. κύπελλον 'large drinking-cup, beaker' (> NG κύπελλο) : Lat. cūpa 'tub, cask', Skt. kūpa- 'hole, pit, cavity', OE hȳf 'beehive', fr. IE keu-p-* in words for curved shape. Walde-P. 1.372. Ernout-M. 243. Walde-H. 1.310 f.

NG φλιτζάνι (φιλτζάνι less common), SCr. fildžan, Pol. filiżanka, fr. Turk. fincan, filcan 'cup'. Berneker 281. Brückner 121 f. Lokotsch 608. Orig. used only of the small Turkish coffee cup, but no longer so restricted.

2. Lat. pōculum : Lat. bibere 'drink', pple. pōtus, etc. (5.13). Ernout-M. 800. Walde-H. 1.103 f.

MLat. cuppa, a late form of cūpa 'tub, cask' : Grk. κύπελλον, etc., above, 1. Hence It. coppa, Fr. coupe (> ME coupe), Sp. copa, Rum. cupă, etc., now used for a large drinking-vessel and otherwise replaced by tazza etc.; NG κούπα; Ir. copp, copān, etc. (Vendryes, De hib. voc. 130), NIr. cupān, W. cwpan, Br. kop; and so prob. the Gmc. group, ON koppr, OE cuppe, OHG kopf, etc. (otherwise, as genuine Gmc., fr. IE geu-, parallel to keu-. Persson, Beiträge 104, Falk-Torp 564, Walde-P. 1.562). Walde-H. 1.311. REW 2409. Weigand-H. 1.118 f. NED s.v. cup.

It. tazza, Fr. tasse (> Br. tas; NHG tasse, this > Lett. tase), Sp. taza, fr. Arab. tassah 'bowl, basin'. REW 8594.

Rum. ceașcă fr. Slavic čaša (below, 6).

3. Ir. airidech, airdech, apparently a cpd. of air- 'for', but second part obscure (the late spelling irdeoch, as if fr. deoch 'drink' only a pop. etym.). Thurneysen, Z. celt. Ph. 8.71 f.

Ir. cailech, fr. Lat. calix (above, 1).

Ir. copān, etc., fr. MLat. cuppa (above, 2).

4. Goth. stikls (reg. for ποτήριον), orig. the pointed drinking-horn : ON stikill 'pointed end of a horn', OE sticel 'sting, goad', Goth. stiks 'point', Skt. tij- 'be sharp', etc. Walde-P. 2.612 ff. Feist 453.

ON koppr, OE cuppe, etc., see above, 2.

OE calic (reg. word for 'cup' in Gospels, as also Lat. calix in Vulgate), OHG kelih, NHG kelch, etc., fr. Lat. calix (above, 1).

OHG behhare, MHG, NHG becher, like NE beaker, fr. the same source as NE pitcher (5.34).

5. Lith. puodelis, puodukas, dims. of puodas 'pot' (5.26).

6. ChSl., SCr. čaša, Boh. čiše, Russ. čaška (Russ. čaša 'bowl or large drinking-cup'), Skt. caṣaka-, Arm. čašak, all perh. fr. Iranian (cf. NPers. čašidan 'taste'). Berneker 137.

Boh. šalek, dim. fr. NHG schale 'bowl'.

Pol. czarka, dim. of czara 'drinking-bowl' (cf. Russ. čar, čarka 'drinking-glass'), prob. fr. Turk. dial. čara 'large bowl'. Berneker 136. Brückner 72.

7. Skt. caṣaka-, above, 6.

Skt. pātra-, as 'cup' apparently fr. pā- drink, IE pō(i)-*, like Lat. pōculum. But see under 'dish' (5.31).

Av. tašta- 'cup' or 'bowl' (NPers. tašt 'bowl, saucer'), fr. Av. taš 'cut out, fashion' : Skt. takṣ- 'fashion', etc. Walde-P. 1.717. Barth. 646.

5.36. Saucer. Words for the modern saucer placed under the cup are mostly compounds of 'under' and 'cup', or diminutives of the words for 'dish' or 'plate'.

1. Cpds. of 'under' and 'cup'. It. sottocoppa, after which was modeled Fr. soucoupe (earlier soutecouppe), NIr. fochupān (fo+cupān), Icel. undirskāl, Dan. underkop, NHG untertasse, Lett. apakštase. Cf. Boh. spodní šalek, lit. 'lower cup', Pol. spodek (od filiżanki), dim. of spod 'under part'.

2. Dims. of 'dish', 'bowl', 'plate'. NG πιατάκι, πιατέλο, It. piattello, Sp. platillo, Rum. farfurioară, Du. schoteltje, NHG

Spoons of wood, bone, or clay are known from neolithic times, and of metal in the orient and in classical antiquity. Some of the North European words reflect the development of the wooden spoon from a flat chip. Others are from roots for 'lick, gulp, drink', or of miscellaneous sources.

1. Grk. μυστίλη, also μύστρον, μυστιλάριον, orig. a piece of bread hollowed out for supping soup or gravy, later used also of metal spoons (μύστρων χρυσῶν Athen. 128c), etym.? Boisacq 653.

Grk. κοχλιάριον, the usual word in late writers (Diosc.+), fr. Lat. cochleārium (below, 2). Hence NG χουλιάρι (with assim. of gutturals and subsequent dissim. loss of the second). Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 1.328, 2.284.

NG κουτάλι (κουτάλιν 'spoon' quotable from 12th cent. A.D.), also κουτάλα 'ladle' and dial. 'shoulder blade', belongs (for ου fr. ο, ω, cf. Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 2.281 ff.) with Byz. κώταλις 'ladle' (Suidas, λάκτιν τὴν λεγομένην κώταλιν, τορύνην, ὅ ἐστι ζωμήρυσιν) and 'winnowing-fan' (Eust. 1675.57), all having in common the notion of shovel-shape. The deriv. fr. Lat. scuta 'platter' (G. Meyer, Neugr. Stud. 2.99, 3.61, but with no mention of κώταλις) is unsatisfactory.

2. Lat. coc(h)leāre, coc(h)leārium, a small spoon with one end pointed, used for eating snails and eggs (Mart. 14.121 sum cochleis habilis, sed non minus ovis. Numquid scis potius cur cochleare vocor), deriv. of coc(h)lea 'snail', this fr. Grk. κοχλίας. Hence It. cucchiaio, Fr. cuiller, cuillière, Sp. cuchara, also OE cuc(e)ler. Walde-H. 1.241. Ernout-M. 201. Walde-H. 1.241. REW 2012.

Lat. ligula, also lingula (> Rum. lingură) fr. the root of Lat. lingere 'lick'. Ernout-M. 552. REW 5036.

3. Ir. liag, NIr. liach, W. llwy, Br. loa, fr. the root of Ir. ligim, etc. 'lick'. Walde-P. 2.400. Pedersen 1.101.

4. ON spānn, spōnn, 'chip', also 'spoon', OE spōn 'chip', ME spone 'spoon', NE spoon : OHG spān, NHG span, Sw. span 'chip', and, fr. the same root, Grk. σπάθη 'broad, flat blade', OE spadu 'spade', etc. Walde-P. 2.652 ff. Falk-Torp 1110. Development of 'spoon' fr. flat piece of wood, as also in the next following.

ON skeið 'weaver's rod, etc.', also 'spoon' (so NIcel.), Dan. ske, Sw. sked :

Goth. skaidan 'separate, Grk. σχίζω, Lat. scindere 'split', etc. Walde-P. 2.543 ff. Falk-Torp 990. Hellquist 930.

Du. lepel, OHG leffil, MHG leffel, NHG löffel : OE lapian 'lap, drink', OHG laffan 'lick', Lat. lambere 'lick', etc. Walde-P. 2.384. Weigand-H. 2.77 f.

5. Lith. šaukštas, prob. : Lith. šukė 'shred', šiukšmės 'sweepings', etc. Cf. 'spoon' fr. 'chip', above, 4. So, with query, Leskien, Ablaut 318. Bezzenberger, BB 27.170, connects with Grk. κυκάω 'stir, mix', in which case 'spoon' fr. 'stirrer, mixer'. But cf. Walde-P. 1.377.

Lett. kar'uote, perh. : ChSl. koryto 'trough', with development through 'scoop, ladle'. Mühl.-Endz. 2.166.

SCr. kašika, fr. Turk. kaşik 'spoon'. Lokotsch 1120.

7. Skt. camasa-, a kind of ladle, fr. cam- 'sip, drink'.

Skt. darvī- 'ladle' : dāru- 'wood', etc.

5.38 KNIFE

Words for 'knife' as a table utensil are the same as those for 'knife' in general (9.23).

5.39 FORK

The use of a fork for eating is still far from world-wide and in Europe became common only in the 15th and 16th centuries, having spread from Italy. Cf. Schrader, Reallex. s.v. Gabel and NED s.v. fork, sb. 2. Roman forks used in cooking are mentioned by Petronius, passim. But small bronze and silver forks like our modern table forks have also been found (so my colleague Ullman informs me), though there seems to be no literary reference to the use of forks for eating.

The words are mostly either the same as or diminutives of those used for the much earlier farm implement (8.26), but a few are from other sources.

1. Same as words listed in 8.26. Lat. furca (Petronius for the fork used in cooking, and so also for the smaller forks; or for these an unattested dim. form?), NE fork (in this sense > NIr. forc, W. fforc vs. fforch), NHG gabel, Dan., Sw. gaffel.

2. Dims. of words listed in 8.26. It. forchetta, Fr. fourchette (> Br. fourchetez), Rum. furculiță; Lith. šakutė (or -ės pl.), Lett. dakšina (or -as pl.); SCr. viljuška, vilica, Boh. vidlička, Pol. widelec, Russ. vilka.

3. Grk. κρεάγρα 'hook for taking meat out of the pot' (the nearest approach to a 'fork'), cpd. of κρέας 'meat' and ἄγρα : ἀγρέω, 'seize'.

4. NG πιρούνι, fr. late Grk. περόνιον, dim. of περόνη 'pin, brooch', fr. the root of πείρω 'pierce'. Doubtless first used of a single pronged utensil and then extended to the modern 'fork'. But in this form (er > ir in contrast to the normal ir > er) and sense prob. through the medium of Venetian pirun 'fork'. REW 6366. Rohlfs, Etym. Wtb. d. unterital. gräzität 1673a.

5. Sp. tenedor, also and orig. 'holder', fr. tener 'hold'.

Words for 'a meal' are words for 'food, portion of food'; 'portion'; 'time' specialized to 'mealtime, meal'; 'table'; words usually applied to a particular meal.

1. Hom. δαίς 'meal, feast', orig. 'portion', fr. δαίομαι 'divide', IE dā(i)-* Walde-P. 1.763.

Grk. δεῖπνον in Hom. used of any meal, later mostly 'dinner', etym. dub. Walde-H. 1.324.

Grk. τράπεζα 'table' (7.14) also used for 'meal' or 'course'.

NG φαγί 'food' (5.12), also 'meal'.

2. Lat. epulum (also pl. epulae), mostly 'a sumptuous meal, feast' on religious or public festivals, prob. as orig. ritual term: Lat. opus 'work', Skt. āpas- 'religious act', OHG uoba 'festival'. Ernout-M. 306, 709. Walde-H. 1.410.

Lat. daps 'religious feast, feast', sometimes a simple 'meal' : Grk. δαπάνη 'expense', δάπτω 'devour, rend', fr. an extension of IE dā(i)-* 'divide'. Walde-P. 1.764. Ernout-M. 253. Walde-H. 1.323.

Lat. cibus 'food' (5.12), also 'meal' (Suet., Isid.).

Lat. mēnsa 'table' (7.44) also 'meal, course'. Hence Rum. masă 'table, meal'.

It. pasto, fr. Lat. pāstus 'fodder, food'. Fr. repas, fr. repaître, late Lat. repāscere 'feed'. REW 6283, 7216.

Sp. comida 'food' (5.12) and 'meal'.

Rum. mîncare 'food' (5.12) and 'meal'.

3. Ir. dithat (K. Meyer, Contrib. 661), prob. a deriv. of (do- +) ithim 'eat' (5.11). But not mentioned in Pedersen 2.558 f.

NIr. bēile, fr. bēil 'mouth' (4.24).

W. pryd, Br. pred 'time' (14.11) and 'meal'. Cf. Gael. trāth 'time' and 'meal'.

4. Goth. -mats 'food' (5.12), also 'meal' in cpds. undaurni-, nahta-mats (5.42–45).

ON verðr (also in cpds dagverðr, etc., 5.42, 5.45) prob. : Goth. wairdus, OHG wirt 'host' (19.57), with sense 'meal' fr. 'portion offered'. Falk-Torp 1371. Hellquist 693, 1393.

ON māl, Norw. maal, Sw. mål, OE mǣl, ME mele, NE meal, Du. maal, MHG māl, NHG mahl, same word as Goth. mēl, ON, OHG māl, OE mǣl, etc. 'time' (14.11). Hence also, with addition of another word for 'time' (14.11) MLG māltīt (> late ON māltīð, Dan. maaltid, Sw. måltid), Du. maaltijd, MHG mālzīt, NHG mahlzeit. Falk-Torp 685. Hellquist 674.

OE feorm 'food, provisions' (5.12), also 'feast, meal', translating ἄριστον, prandium in Mt. 22.4 and δεῖπνον, cēna in Mk. 6.21, Lk. 14.12, 16, hence ME farme 'meal' (this hasty farme had bene a feast, Chaucer). NED s.v. farm, sb.[1].

OHG gouma : goumen 'give attention to, protect', Goth. gaumjan 'perceive, see', OE gīman 'take care of, heed', also 'provide' (cf. Bosworth-Toller, Supplement s.v. gīman), outside root connections dub., but 'meal' fr. 'caring for, provision for'. Walde-P. 1.635 f. Falk-Torp 314. Feist 207.

5. Lith. valgis 'food' (5.12) and 'meal'.

Lett. maltite, fr. MLG māltīt (above, 4).

6. ChSl. obědŭ, etc., see under 'dinner' (5.42–45).

SCr. ručak, fr. ručati 'take a meal' : ručiti 'reach out the hands', denom. of ruka 'hand'. Development in the vb. fr. 'reach out' or 'handle' with specialized reference to food.

Boh. jídlo, Pol. jedzenie, jadło '(article of) food' (5.12), also 'meal'.

Russ. stol 'table' (7.44) and 'meal'.

See also words listed under 'dinner'.

7. Skt. bhojana- 'eating, food, meal', fr. bhuj- 'enjoy', esp. 'enjoy food, eat' (5.11).

The words for the principal meals are discussed together because of the frequent fluctuation in application due to local and social differences of custom, in modern times especially between city and country. Words for 'breakfast' may shift to 'lunch', with substitutes for 'breakfast' such as 'first' or 'little breakfast', or merely 'coffee' or 'tea'. 'Dinner', that is, the principal meal, may be a midday or evening meal. In the former case the three regular meals are 'breakfast', 'dinner', and 'supper', while 'lunch' is a slight, casual meal. In the latter case the three regular meals are 'breakfast', 'lunch', and 'dinner', while 'supper' is an extraordinary, late evening meal. Grk. δεῖπνον, Lat. cēna, both used of the principal meal, but shifting in time, are commonly rendered by 'dinner', but regularly the 'Lord's Supper'.

For detailed discussion of the distribution in Romance, cf. Herzog, Die Bezeichnungen der täglichen Mahlzeiten in den romanischen Sprachen und Dialekten.

1. Grk. ἄριστον, orig. 'breakfast' as in Hom., later 'lunch' : ἦρι 'early', Goth. air 'early', NE ere, etc.; -στο- fr. -d-to-, pple. of ed-* 'eat'. Walde-P. 1.3.

Grk. ἀκράτισμα, the later word for 'breakfast' : ἀκρατίζομαι 'drink unmixed wine' (ἄκρατος 'unmixed') = 'take breakfast', the breakfast consisting of bread dipped in wine (cf. Ath. 11c ff.).

Grk. δεῖπνον, in Hom. any 'meal' (5.41), later 'dinner'.

Grk. δόρπον, in Hom. 'evening meal' (in later epic 'meal', but in prose displaced by δεῖπνον) : Alb. darke 'evening, evening meal', dreke 'midday meal', prob. fr. an extension of der-* 'flay, split' (Grk. δέρω 'flay', δρέπω 'pluck', etc.) with development fr. 'part split off' to 'portion, meal'. Cf. sources of Grk. δαίς (5.41), Lat. cēna (below), etc. Walde-P. 1.801. Boisacq 197.

NG γεῦμα 'dinner', fr. class. Grk. γεῦμα 'a taste, food' (fr. γεύομαι 'taste'). Hence NG πρόγευμα 'lunch'; for 'breakfast' πρωινό, fr. adj. πρωινός 'in the morning', κολατσιό (fr. It. colazione, below, 2) or simply καφές 'coffee'.

2. Lat. ientāculum, iantāculum 'breakfast', fr. vb. ientāre, iantāre 'take breakfast' : iēiūnus, iāiūnus 'hungry', further etym.? Ernout-M. 472. Walde-H. 1.674 f.

Lat. prandium 'lunch' (> It. pranzo 'dinner', Rum. prînz 'midday meal', dim. prînșisor 'breakfast'), prob. fr. prām-(e)dio-m* lit. 'early eating', with prāmo-* : Lith. pirmas 'first', Dor. πρᾶν 'formerly', etc., and ed-* 'eat'. Walde-P. 2.37. Ernout-M. 806. REW 558.

Lat. cēna 'dinner' fr. kert-snā-* 'portion' (cf. Osc. kerssnaís 'cenis'), fr. IE kert-*, in Skt. kṛt- 'cut', Lith. kertu, kirsti 'hew', etc. Walde-P. 2.578. Ernout-M. 173. Walde-H. 1.198.

Hence It., Sp. cena, OFr. cene, Rum. cină 'supper' (Fr. cène 'Lord's Supper'), W. cwyn (obs.), Corn. coyn, Br. koan 'supper', W. cinio 'dinner'. Wartburg 2.576 f. Loth, Mots lat. 149, 150.

It. colazione 'breakfast' or 'lunch', fr. OFr. colation 'evening meeting and meal of the monks' (NE collation, cf. NED s.v. II.8, 9), Lat. collātiō 'bringing together'. REW 2043.

VLat. disiēiūnāre* 'to breakfast' (fr. dis- and iēiūnāre 'fast'), OFr. desiuner and disner, whence, used also as sb., (1) Fr. déjeuner 'breakfast', later 'lunch' (> Rum. dejun, neolog.), Sp. desayuno 'breakfast', (2) Fr. dîner, ME diner, NE dinner (> NIr. dinnēar), NHG diner, It. desinare 'dinner'. REW 2670.

Fr. souper 'supper' (OFr. soper > ME soper, NE supper), sb. use of souper 'sup' deriv. of soupe in its earlier sense of 'sop', orig. a Gmc. word (5.64).

Sp. almuerzo 'lunch', formerly and still locally 'breakfast', orig. 'a bite', fr. VLat. admordium* (with substitution of Arab. al-), fr. Lat. ad-mordēre 'bite'. REW 182.

Sp. comida 'food' (5.12) used for 'meal' and esp. the principal meal 'dinner'.

Rum. masă 'table, meal' (5.41), also 'dinner'.

Rum. ojina 'supper', fr. Slavic, cf. SCr. užina 'vespers', Russ. užin 'supper'.

For the Rum. usage in names of meals, cf. especially Tiktin s.v. prînz.

3. NIr. cēadbhēile 'breakfast', lit. 'first meal', from cēad 'first' and bēile 'meal' (5.41).

Ir. praind, proind, NIr. proinn 'dinner', fr. Lat. prandium (above, 2). Vendryes, De hib. voc. 169. The early application was to the chief meal of the day, taken in the evening. Thurneysen, Heldensage 82.

NIr. seire 'supper', fr. Ir. sēre, sēir, 'food, meal', source?

But the preceding NIr. words (though given in Dinneen) are no longer in use, being replaced by the NE words in the form bricfeasta, dinnēar, suipēar.

W. boreufwyd or boreubryd 'breakfast', cpd. of bore (old also boreu) 'morning' and bwyd 'food' or pryd 'meal'. But now mostly brecwast fr. NE breakfast.

W. cinio 'dinner' fr. Lat. cēna (above, 2). W. swper fr. NE supper.

Br. pred-beure 'breakfast', cpd. of pred 'meal' and beure 'morning'. Cf. W. boreubryd.

Br. lein 'dinner', MBr. leiff, etym.? Henry 182.

Br. koan 'supper', fr. Lat. cēna.

Br. merenn 'dinner' and (dialects) 'afternoon lunch', fr. Lat. merenda 'afternoon lunch' (deriv. of merēre 'earn, gain'). Loth, Mots Lat. 187.

4. Goth. undaurnimats = ἄριστον, OE undernmete = prandium : OE undern 'third hour of the day', later 'sixth hour, midday' (cf. NED s.v. undern), MLG undern, etc.; Goth. nahtamats = δεῖπνον : Goth. nahts 'night'. Both cpds. with mats 'food', here 'meal'.

ON dagverðr, lit. 'day-meal', in time 'breakfast', but the principal meal (cf. Vigfusson s.v.), nāttverðr, lit. 'night-meal' (Dan. nadver, Sw. nattvärd 'Lord's Supper'), both cpds. of verðr 'meal' (5.41).

Dan. morgenmad, but Dan., Sw. simply middag ('dinner', regardless of time), Dan. aftensmad, Sw. aftonmåltid, lit. 'morning-, midday-, evening-food (meal)'.

Dan. frokost, Sw. frukost 'breakfast' or 'lunch', fr. MLG vrōkost, fr. vrō 'early' and kost 'food' (5.12).

Sw. kvällsvard 'supper' fr. kväll 'evening' = ON kveld, and vard = ON verðr 'meal' (5.41).

OE morgenmete, undernmete (cf. above), æfenmete, lit. 'morning-, noon-, evening-food (meal)'.

OE wist 'food' (5.12) and feorm 'food, meal' (5.12, 5.41) are used for prandium and cēna respectively in Lk. 14.12.

ME diner, NE dinner fr. Fr. dîner (above, 2).

ME soper, NE supper, fr. OFr. soper (above, 2).

ME (late) brekfast, NE breakfast, cpd. of break (ME breke) and fast. Cf. VLat. disiēiūnāre*, Fr. déjeuner, above, 2.

NE lunch, of which luncheon, though quotable from a few years earlier, is an extension, was first used of a 'hunch, hunk' (of bacon, bread, etc.), and was prob. a colloq. blend of lump and hunch. Cf. NED s.v.

Du. ontbijt 'breakfast', fr. MDu. ontbīten, like OE onbītan 'partake of', cpd. of bītan 'bite'. Similarly OHG imbīz (gl. Lat. prandium), cpd. of bīzan 'bite', whence NHG imbiss 'smack, lunch'.

OHG gouma 'meal' (5.41) also renders Lat. prandium and cēna.

MHG vruostücke (also vruoessen), NHG frühstück 'breakfast', fr. vruo 'early' and stücke 'bit'.

MHG, NHG mittag(s)essen, -mahl 'midday meal', MHG ābentessen, -māl, -brōt, NHG abendessen, -brot 'evening meal' (abendmahl mostly for the Lord's Supper), all obvious cpds. of 'midday' or 'evening' with 'food, meal, bread'. For the NHG local usage, cf. Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 63 ff., 336 f.

5. Lith. pusryčiai (pl.) 'breakfast', cpd. of pusė 'half' (13.34) and rytas 'morning' (14.34), so lit. 'midmorning' (meal).

Lett. bruokastis 'breakfast', fr. MLG vrōkost (above, 4). Mühl-Endz. 1.342.

Lett. azaids 'midday meal', also locally 'breakfast' or 'lunch', etym.? Mühl.-Endz. 1.233.

Lith. pietūs (pl.) 'midday meal, dinner', orig. 'food' : ChSl. pitěti 'feed', pišta 'food', Skt. pitu- 'food, drink', etc. (5.12).

Lett. pusdiena 'midday, noon' (14.45), hence pl. pusdienas 'midday meal'. Mühl.-Endz. 3.425.

Lith. vakarienė, Lett. vakarinas 'supper', fr. Lith. vakaras, Lett. vakars 'evening'.

6. SCr. zajutrak 'breakfast', Russ. zavtrak 'breakfast' or 'lunch' (in which case 'the first meal' is pervyj zavtrak 'first breakfast', or often simply čaj 'tea'), cpd. of za 'at, for' etc. and jutro 'morning' (14.34).

Boh. snidane, Pol. śniadanie 'breakfast', cpd. of sŭn- 'with' and jad-, IE ed-* 'eat'. Berneker 273.

ChSl. obědŭ (in Gospels renders Grk. ἄριστον 'the midday meal', while Grk. δεῖπνον 'the evening meal' is rendered by večerja; but it is entered in the list under 'dinner', since it is the principal meal in Slavic, as in) SCr. objed, Pol. obiad, Russ. obed, all fr. ob(ŭ)jad-, perfect. cpd. of jad-, IE ed-* 'eat'. Berneker 273.

SCr. ručak 'meal' (5.41), also esp. the principal meal, the noon 'dinner'. Hence also doručak 'breakfast', cpd. with do- 'until, beside'.

ChSl. večerja, SCr. večera, Boh. večeře, 'supper' (Pol. wieczerza, Russ. večerja now mostly of the Lord's Supper), fr. ChSl. večerŭ, etc. 'evening' (14.36).

Pol. kolacya 'supper', fr. Lat. collātiō, through a special use among the monks. Cf. It. colazione, above, 2. Brückner 244.

Russ. užin 'supper' : SCr. užina, Pol. juzyna 'afternoon or evening lunch', orig. at noon, fr. jug 'south' in sense of 'noon' (cf. NHG mittag for 'south'). Brückner 210.

7. Skt. prātarāça- 'breakfast', cpd. of prātar 'early morning' and aç- 'eat'. But in general Skt. bhojana- 'meal' (5.41) was used for any meal.

Av. sūirya-, xšafnya- 'morning, night meal', fr. sūr- 'morning', xšapan- 'night'. Barth. 550, 1586.

Words for 'bread', as being the most important food, the "staff of life", may come by specialization from 'food' or 'grain'. Some are from 'bit, piece'. Several denoted primarily the shaped loaf of bread baked in a pan, and this may be reflected in their source. Relation to the use of yeast in leavening bread is commonly assumed for the Gmc. group NE bread etc., but this is doubtful.

1. Grk. ἄρτος, generally called obscure. But the deriv. fr. ἀρ- in ἀραρίσκω 'join, fit, prepare' is possible, either through the general sense of 'prepared' (Prellwitz), or through the literal sense as applied to the loaf 'fitted' in the baking pot (κλῑβανος). For ἄρτος is, from Homer down, distinctively the 'loaf', pl. ἄρτοι 'loaves', normally of wheat bread (in Hdt. 2.92 of Egyptian loaves made from lotus-root).

The more common diet of the populace (cf. Ath. 137e, etc.) was the μᾶζα 'barley-cake' (5.52).

In NG ἄρτος is used of the consecrated bread in the church, but otherwise displaced by ψωμί, fr. late Grk. ψωμίον, dim. of ψωμός 'bit, piece' : ψῆν 'rub'. ψωμίον is already a 'bit of bread' dipped in wine, 'sop' in the NT, Jn. 13.26 ff., and ψωμία occurs frequently in the papyri, where it is commonly translated 'cakes' or 'dainties', but in part at least is already simply 'bread'. Cf. passages quoted in Moulton-Milligan, s.v., also Kretschmer, Glotta 15.60 ff. Cf. Alb. bukë 'bread', fr. Lat. bucca 'mouth' through 'mouthful, morsel' (as Byz. βούκκα, NG μπουκιά), G. Meyer, Alb. Etym. Wtb. 51.

2. Lat. pānis (> Romance words), orig. 'food' fr. the root of Lat. pāscere 'feed', pābulum 'fodder', NE food, etc. (5.12). Ernout-M. 729.

3. Ir. bairgen, W., Br. bara : OE bere 'barley', Lat. far 'spelt', etc. Walde-P. 2.134. Walde-H. 1.455. Pedersen 1.101.

Ir. arān, prob. : Ir. arbor 'grain', root connection? Stokes 16 (but resemblance to Grk. ἄρτος accidental).

4. Goth. hlaifs, OE hlāf (NE loaf), OHG (h)leib (NHG laib), etc., the old Gmc. word for (loaf of) 'bread', orig. 'loaf' as in ON hleifr 'loaf' brauð-hleifr 'loaf of bread', etym. dub., perh. : Grk. κλῑβανος, 'earthen pot for baking bread', without known root connection. Walde-P. 1.499. Feist 260.

Hence as loanword (less prob. fr. a common source) the general Slavic word, ChSl. chlěbŭ, etc., also Lith. kliepas (from WhRuss.), Lett. klaips (fr. LG) 'large loaf of bread'. Berneker 389. Stender-Petersen 297 ff.

ON brauð, OE brēad, OHG brōt, etc., becoming the general Gmc. word at the expense of the preceding, is commonly derived fr. the root of OE brēowan 'brew', etc., as if connected with the use of yeast. So Walde-P. 2.168, Falk-Torp 112, Schrader, Reallex. 1.166, etc. But more probable is the view preferred in NED s.v. bread, that the development is from 'bit, morsel' (cf. OE gl. brēadru 'frusta' and the Northumbrian brēad = OE bitan, Vulgate buccella, Grk. ψωμίον in Jn. 13.27, 30; also = ἄρτον, Vulgate panem in Jn. 6.23), just as in Grk. ψωμίον (above, 1), SCr. kruh (below, 6), and Sc. piece bread (NED s.v. piece, sb. 3b). In this case the word may be connected with OE brēotan 'break', through a parallel extension of IE bhreu-* (Walde-P. 2.196).

Before 1200 A.D. brēad had replaced hlāf as the general word for 'bread' as a substance, while ME loof, NE loaf, and similarly MHG leip, NHG laib, remained in the sense of 'loaf of bread'. For the present local use of NHG brot and laib, cf. Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 150 ff.

Lett. maize : miezis 'barley'. Mühl.-Endz. 2.553.

A 'cake' is understood here in the earlier sense of NE cake, distinguished from bread more in form than composition (NED s.v. 1.a,b), though the usual implication of a richer composition than the ordinary bread (NED s.v. 1c, whence 2) is common also to many of the words listed.

The commonest source is the notion of flat or round shape (cf. NE roll, bun, etc.).

1. Grk. πλακοῦς, gen. -οῦντος (> Lat. placenta), fr. πλακόεις 'flat' : πλάξ 'anything flat', ON flaga 'slab of stone', NE flagstone, Lett. plakt 'become flat', etc., fr. an extension of the root seen in Lat. plānus 'flat', etc. (12.71). Walde-P. 2.90. After πλακοῦς was formed a whole series, τυροῦς 'cheese-cake', οἰνοῦττα 'wine-cake', etc.

Grk. μᾶζα 'barley-cake', fr. μάσσω 'knead' (5.54).

NG πίττα > Alb. pitë, SCr. pita, etc., perh. through an Italianized form of a VLat. picta*, fr. Grk. πηκτή fem. of πηκτός 'fixed'. Cf. Dor. πᾱκτά 'cream-cheese'. G. Meyer, Alb. Etym. Wtb. 340, BB 19, 153. Rohlfs, Wtb. d. unterit. Gräzität 1714 (adversely).

2. Lat. lībum, most commonly a 'sacrificial cake', and prob. a back-formation : Lat. lībāre, 'make an offering' (not restricted to liquids), Grk. λείβω 'pour a libation', etc. Walde-H. 1.796.

In Italian there is no single popular word for 'a cake'.

Italian scholars render Grk. πλακοῦς, Lat. lībum by focaccia, which in actual use denotes a very special kind of cake, orig. a sort of 'ash-cake', like Fr. fouace, fr. focācea* (cf. focācius Isid. 20.2.15), deriv. of focus 'hearth'. REW 292. The Sprach- und Sach-Atlas Italiens und der Südschweiz, Karte 1007 (vol. 5) also gives focaccia (schiacciata) as the heading = NHG Kuchen, Fr. gâteau. The schiacciata is a flat, brittle cake, fr. schiacciare 'break, crack'.

Among other approximations are torta 'pie, tart' and pasta 'piece of pastry' (see below), or dolce 'a sweet'.

Fr. gâteau 'cake', OFr. gastel, Br. gwastell, fr. Gmc. wastil*, dim. of OS, OE wist 'food' (5.12). REW 9514. Gamillscheg s.v.

Sp. pastel, NG παστέλλι 'a cake of sesame and honey', fr. It. pastello, Lat. pastillum, pastillus 'small loaf, cake', dim. of pasta 'dough' (5.52). REW 6274.

Other derivs. of pasta show the extension of 'dough' to 'pastry, pastry-cake, pie', etc., as It. pasta, Fr. pâte, ME paste, NE pasty, pastry.

Rum. plăcintă, fr. Lat. placenta.

Rum. prăjitură, fr. prăji 'roast, toast' (5.23).

Late Lat. tōrta 'loaf of bread' (Vulgate, glosses) is the source of the widespread group applied mostly to a large cake or pie, It., Sp. torta, Rum. turtă, Fr. tourte, NHG torte, etc. Ernout-M. 1049. REW 8802.

3. Ir. bairgen 'bread' (5.51), also 'cake', as NIr. bairghean.

W. teisen, Corn. tesan, etym.?

Br. kouign, fr. OFr. cuignet kind of 'cake', fr. dim. of cuneus 'wedge', in MLat. also 'loaf of bread' (Du Cange s.v.). Henry 77. Gamillscheg s.v. quignon.

Words for 'knead' are mostly cognate with words for 'mix, press, break, crush, mold, handle', of which 'knead' is an easy specialization. A few are derived from nouns for 'dough' or 'kneading-trough'.

1. Grk. μάσσω, prob. new present for μάζω*, aor. ἐμάγην (cf. sbs. μαγίς, μαγεύς, μᾶζα, etc.) : ChSl. mazati 'anoint', etc. Walde-P. 2.226 (but separating μάσσω, taken, 2.268, with Lith. minkyti 'knead', etc.).

NG ζυμώνω, fr. class. Grk. ζῡμόω, denom. of ζύμη 'leaven', now 'dough' (5.52).

2. Lat. subigere 'turn up, break up (land)' is also 'knead' (Cato, Pliny).

Lat. depsere (rare), fr. Grk. δέψω 'soften by working' (as leather), beside δέφω, this perh. : SCr. depati 'hit'. Walde-P. 1.786. Ernout-M. 262. Walde-H. 1.342.

It. impastare, fr. pasta 'dough' (5.53).

Fr. pétrir, fr. VLat. pistrīre* or pistūrīre*, deriv. of Lat. pistor 'baker', pīnsere 'crush, pound'. REW 6542. Gamillscheg 690.

Sp. amasar, denom. of masa 'dough' (5.52).

Rum. frămînta, fr. VLat. fragmentāre* 'break into fragments'. REW 3473. (Not fr. Lat. fermentāre, as Tiktin and formerly Puşcariu.)

3. NIr. fuinim, same word as fuinim 'cook, bake' (orig. 'prepare'? see 5.21).

W. tylino, etym.? (fr. tyle 'mound, hill', as 'form a mound'?).

Br. meza, dial. meat, deriv. through sb. (Van. me) of OFr. maie, mait 'kneading-trough' (fr. Lat. magis, fr. Grk. μαγίς : μάσσω). Ernault, Glossaire 414.

Br. merat 'touch, feel' and 'knead', same word as mera 'handle, administer', MBr. maerat, merat, fr. OFr. mairer 'master, control', fr. maire 'chief, master' (Lat. maior). Ernault, Glossaire 383 f.

4. ON knoða, OE cnedan, etc., general Gmc., also Boh. hnísti ('press' and 'knead') : ChSl. gnetą, gnesti 'press', OPruss. gnode 'trough for kneading of bread', etc. Walde-P. 1.580 ff. Falk-Torp 543. Berneker 311 f.

Dan. elte : ON elta, Sw. älta 'press, stamp' and 'drive away, pursue', this perh. fr. an extension of the root of Grk. ἐλαύνω 'drive', etc. Walde-P. 1.156. Falk-Torp 188.

5. Lith. minkyti, Lett. mīcit : Skt. mac- 'pound, grind', perh. OE mengan 'mix', etc. (5.17). Walde-P. 2.268.

ChSl. u-měsiti, SCr. mjesiti, Pol. miesić, Russ. mesit', the usual Slavic word for 'knead', orig. 'mix', as ChSl. měsiti, etc. (5.17).

6. In Skt. there is no word for 'knead' or for 'dough', but only words for crushing the grain. So piṣ- 'crush, pound' : Lat. pīnsere, etc. (Walde-P. 2.1); or mṛd- 'crush, pound, rub' : Lat. mordēre 'bite', etc. (Walde-P. 2.278 ff.).

The earliest process of converting grain into meal was 'crushing' by pounding, whence later the 'grinding' between two stones. For the earlier process there is a distinctive group of cognates, namely Grk. πτίσσω (also 'winnow'), Lat. pīnsere, Skt. piṣ- (Walde-P. 2.1. Ernout-M. 770). But such was also the more original force of IE mel-*, which furnishes most of the European words for 'grind' and 'mill', but shows its earlier sense in Arm. malen 'pound, bruise', Skt. mṛ-, mṛd- 'crush', Lat. mollis 'soft', Toch. 'Mill' is understood here in the original sense of 'grist-mill, flour-mill', not in the extended sense of NE mill in sawmill, woolen-mill, etc., which is foreign to the other words for 'mill' and is expressed rather by words for 'factory', 'workshop', or the like.

Most of the words for 'mill' are derivatives of IE mel-* 'crush, grind', but in large part through the medium of Latin.

1. From IE mel-* 'crush, grind' (5.56). Walde-P. 2.284 ff. Ernout-M. 626.

Grk. μύλη (Hom.), later μύλος 'mill' or 'millstone', also μυλών 'mill' (as the place), NG μύλος 'mill'.

Lat. mola 'millstone' (> Fr. meule, Sp. muela 'millstone', Rum. moară 'mill'), pl. molae 'millstones' = 'mill'.

Lett. sudmalas, cpd. of which the first part sud- is obscure, possibly fr. suta 'vapor, steam, seapage', with first application of the word to a water-mill(?). Mühl.-Endz. 3.1114.

2. Rum. rîşniţă 'handmill', fr. a Slavic deriv. of the word for 'hand', ChSl. rąka, etc. Tiktin 1329.

Skt. guru-, Grk. βαρύς 'heavy', IE g^{w}er-*. Walde-P. 1.685. Feist 59. Meillet, Mélanges Boyer 1 ff. The words of this group meant first 'millstone', then especially in plural (like Lat. molae) 'mill'. After the spread of Lat. molīna (above, 1), they mostly survived only in the sense of 'handmill' or sometimes 'millstone'. Only Sw. kvarn is still the usual general word for 'mill', but frequently in general sense also Icel. kvörn and Lett. dzirnavas (Mühl.-Endz. 1.555).

4. Skt. peṣaṇa-, quoted as 'handmill' (BR s.v.), but mostly the act of 'crushing', fr. piṣ- 'crush' (5.56).

Av. suduš-, but meaning and etym. dub. Barth. 1583.

Words for 'meat' are mostly the same as those for 'flesh' (4.13). The exceptions are:

Fr. viande, 'meat' (chair 'flesh'), orig. 'food' (cf. NE viands) fr. Lat. vīvenda 'means of life, sustenance'. REW 9410.

ON kjǫt always 'meat' (hǫrund 'flesh') but orig. also 'flesh', as Dan. kød, Sw. kött (4.13).

NE meat, orig. 'food' (5.12). NED s.v.

Lett. gal'a 'meat' (miesa 'flesh'), possibly as orig. 'raw meat' : Slav. golŭ 'naked'. Mühl.-Endz. 1.598. Or better (suggestion of F. K. Wood) as orig. 'portion' (like Lat. carō 'flesh, meat' fr. 'portion', 4.13) : Lett. gals, Lith. galas 'end', the latter used also for 'piece' (of bread, etc.).

The 'butcher' was primarily the one who slaughters large domestic animals for their meat, then the one who cuts up the meat in the shop and sells it, simply a dealer in 'meat'.

Several of the words are derived from verbs for 'slaughter' or 'cut' (a 'cutter' may be specialized to 'butcher' or 'tailor'). The majority are derived from words for 'flesh, meat' (4.13, 5.61). A small group shows generalization from 'one who slaughters goats or deals in goat's flesh'.

1. Grk. σφαγεύς (: σφάζω 'slaughter', esp. animals for sacrifice) is used for 'slayer, murderer' and technically for the one who slaughters the sacrificial victims, but is not quotable as a tradesman's name. Instead we have κρεοκόπος, -ποιός (both rare), and esp. κρεο-, κρεω-πώλης (as in NG), cpds. of κρέας 'flesh, meat' with words for 'cut', 'make', and 'sell'.

NG χασάπης, fr. Turk. kasap 'butcher'.

2. Lat. lanius, late laniō, beside vb. laniāre 'tear in pieces, mangle', perh. of Etruscan origin. Walde-P. 2.434. Ernout-M. 522. Walde-H. 1.759 f.

Lat. macellārius (> It. macellaro, macelaio, Rum. măcelar, NG μακελλάρης), fr. macellum 'market', esp. 'meat-market', this fr. Grk. μάκελλον 'inclosure' (IG 4².1.102, etc., 4th cent. B.C.; pl. in Hesych.; late μάκελλος as 'market' after Lat.), this again of Semitic orig. (cf. Hebr. miklā 'inclosure'). Ernout-M. 575. Walde-H. 2.1.

Fr. boucher (OFr. bochier, bouchier > ME bocher, boucher, NE butcher), fr. bouc, OFr. boc 'he-goat', hence orig. 'one who slaughters he-goats' (young he-goats were regularly killed for their meat except for a few reserved for breeding). REW 1378. Wartburg 1.587 f. Otherwise Gamillscheg 125.

It. beccaio, fr. becco 'he-goat'.

Sp. carnicero, fr. carne 'flesh, meat'.

3. NIr. būistēir, fr. NE butcher (for transposition of tš, cf. Pedersen 1.230).

W. cigydd, Br. kiger, fr. W. cig, Br. kig 'flesh, meat'.

4. Dan. slagter, Sw. slaktare, ME slaghterman, Du. slager, OHG slahtari (killer of sacrificial victims), MHG vleischslahter, NHG schlächter (or schlachter), all fr. vbs. for 'slaughter' (: Goth. slahan, etc. 'strike, slay' 9.21).

OE hyldere (fr. hyldan 'flay', 9.29) and cwellere (: cwellan 'kill', 4.76) occur as glosses to Lat. laniō, macellārius.

ME bo(u)cher, NE butcher, fr. OFr. bo(u)chier (above, 2).

MHG vleischhouwer, NHG fleischer (locally also fleischhauer, fleischhacker), fr. fleisch 'flesh, meat'.

MHG metzeler, fr. metzeln 'slaughter', this fr. late Lat. macellāre 'slaughter' (cf. macellārius, above, 2).

MHG metzjære, NHG metzger, perh. in form fr. MLat. matiārius 'sausage-dealer', fr. matia 'intestine' (CGL 6.684 matia intestina, unde matiarii dicuntur qui eadem tractant aut vendunt), but influenced by metzjen beside metzeln 'slaughter' (above). 5.62 BEEF

Grk.	βόε(ι)ον κρέας	Goth.	....	Lith.	jautiena

Lat.	būbula	Dan.	oxsekød	ChSl.	....

W.	cig eidion, biff	MHG	rintvleisch
Br.	bevin	NHG	rindfleisch

Words for 'beef' are chosen as typical of the names of meats in general. These are regularly from the animal names, (1) without change (cf. NE lamb, chicken, and the whole Fr. series bœuf, veau, mouton, agneau, porc), (2) with a derivative suffix (so regularly in Lith. and Slavic), or (3) cpds. or phrases with the words for 'meat' (5.61). In English a difference has been established by the fact that the Fr. words, used for the animal and the meat, were borrowed and restricted (in the main) to the latter sense in contrast to the native animal names. So NE beef, veal, mutton, pork. Cf. also Norw. sau 'sheep', but får (Dan. faar 'sheep') 'mutton'. NHG rindfleisch, kalbfleisch, but for 'mutton' not schaffleisch but hammelfleisch or locally schöpsenfleisch, fr. words for 'wether'. Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 228 f. Cf. It. castrato 'mutton'.

1. Words for 'beef' connected with those for 'cattle', 'ox', or 'cow' (3.21–3.23).

(1) Without change. Fr. bœuf (> ME boef, NE beef > W. biff), Av. gao- (cf. Barth. 507–8).

(2) With suffix. NG βοδινό, Lat. būbula, Br. bevin (fr. Lat. bovīnum), OHG rinderīn, Lith. jautiena, SCr. govedina, Pol. wołowina, etc.

(3) Cpds. ON oxakjǫt, Dan. oxsekød, Sw. oxkött, Du. rundvleesch, MHG rintvleisch, NHG rindfleisch, Skt. gomānsa-.

(4) Phrases. Grk. βόε(ι)ον κρέας (quotable only in pl.; the sg. would be 'piece of beef'; cf. ἄρνεια κρέα, etc.), It., Sp., Rum. carne de bue, de vaca, de vită respectively, W. cig eidion, OE hrīðeren flǣsc (cf. NED s.v. rotheren), Lett. versu gal'a.

2. Ir. martfeōil, NIr. mairtfheoil, cpds. of word for 'flesh, meat' with mart 'the carcass of an ox or cow slain for food' (cf. Laws, Gloss. s.v.), orig. 'dead body', fr. the root in marbh, Lat. mortuus 'dead' (4.75). Loth, RC. 41.56.

There are some names for meats that are from a different source, the result of specialization, as for example:

The old Gmc. word for 'flesh, meat' is specialized to 'pork, bacon' in the Scand. languages, as ON, Dan. flesk, Sw. fläsk.

A word denoting a certain part of any animal may be used specifically for the meat of that part of a particular animal. So words for 'ham' mainly that of swine, as NE ham, once 'hollow back of the knee', 'back of the thigh, buttock' (cf. NED s.v.), NHG schinken (: schenkel 'thigh'), Fr. jambon (: jambe 'leg'), Russ. okorok (: SCr. krak 'thigh'), etc. Cf. also NE bacon (: back), NHG speck 'bacon' (: OE spic 'fat, fat meat or bacon', etc.).

The words for 'vegetables' are partly singular collectives, partly words that are used nearly always in the plural, though some of these may be used also in the singular for 'a vegetable'.

'Vegetables' are simply edible plants and are sometimes denoted only by the general word for 'plant, herb' (8.53). The commonest source is words for 'green' or 'growing'; some are from words for 'garden'; some are specialized from 'food' or 'fruit'.

1. Lat. (h)olus, early helus, ChSl. zelĭje, Boh. zelenina, Russ. zeleń : Lat. helvus 'yellowish red', Lith. žalias 'green', žolė 'grass', ChSl. zelenŭ 'green', etc. (15.68), words applied to the 'green' or 'yellow' of growing things. Walde-P. 1.624 f. Ernout-M. 456. Walde-H. 1.654.

2. Grk., NG λάχανα (NG sg. 'cabbage') : Grk. λαχαίνω 'dig' (8.22).

NG χόρτα, esp. 'greens' but also 'vegetables', pl. of χόρτο 'herb', fr. class. Grk. χόρτος 'fodder, grass' (8.51).

3. It. legumi, Fr. légumes, Sp. legumbres, Rum. legume, fr. Lat. legūmen 'leguminous plant', etym. dub. Ernout-M. 538. Walde-H. 1.781. REW 4972.

It., Sp. verdura properly 'verdure', but also 'vegetables, deriv. of It., Sp. verde, Lat. viridis 'green'. REW 9368a.

Rum. zarzavat, fr. Turk. zerzavat 'vegetables'. Tiktin 1797. Lokotsch 1747.

4. NIr. glasraidh, deriv. of glass 'green' (15.68).

W. llysiau, Br. louzou 'plants, herbs' (8.53), also 'vegetables', in Br. esp. cpds. with kegin 'kitchen', pod 'pot', or taol 'table'.

5. Goth. gras (for λάχανα Rom. 14.2; gen. pl. grasē Mk. 4.32) = ON gras, OE græs, etc. 'grass' (8.51).

ON urt, OE wyrt, OHG wurz 'plant, herb' (8.53) served also for 'vegetable', and OE wyrte (pl.), OHG wurz, pl. wurzī frequently gloss Lat. olus or olera. Cf. also OE wyrt-mete, lit. 'plant-food'.

Dan. grøntsager, Sw. grönsaker, lit. 'green things', fr Dan. grøn, Sw. grön

'green' and Dan. sag, Sw. sak 'thing'. So Du. groenten, fr. groen 'green'.

NE vegetables, sb. use of adj. vegetable, fr. OFr. vegetable 'capable of growing', Lat. vegetābilis 'animating, vivifying', deriv. of vegetāre, iter. of vegēre 'move, quicken' beside vigēre 'be lively' : Skt. vāja- 'strength', etc. Walde-P. 1.246 f. Ernout-M. 1079, 1107.

MHG (late) gemüese, NHG gemüse, orig. 'cooked food of garden produce', then the 'garden produce itself', collective of OHG, MHG muos 'food' (5.12). Weigand-H. 1.674.

6. Lith. daržovės, Lett. dārzaji, fr. Lith. daržas, Lett. dārzs 'garden' (8.13), hence lit. 'garden produce'. Cf. SCr. povrce (below). Mühl.-Endz. 1.448.

ChSl. zelĭje, etc., above, 1.

SCr. povrce, fr. po-vrt-je*, lit. 'what is in the garden' : vrt 'garden' (8.13).

Pol. warzywo (Boh. vařivo 'eatables') : warzyć 'boil, cook' (5.21). Brückner 633.

Br.	favenn	NHG	bohne, fasole

Both the unripe pod and the grown seeds of the 'bean' are common articles of food. In several languages, instead of a comprehensive term like NE bean, there are two words, distinguished according to the variety. The commonest source is the notion of 'swelling'.

1. Grk. κύαμος : κυέω 'be pregnant', orig. 'be swollen' : Skt. çvā-, çū- 'swell', etc. This etym., questioned by Walde-P. 1.366, is perfect formally (κυα- from dissyllabic root, parallel to πρια- in πρίαμαι : Skt. krī-) and semantically.

Grk. φάσηλος (> Lat. phasēlus), of obscure formation, and possibly a pre-Greek loanword, but the first syllable φα- is prob. the same as that of Lat. faba, etc. (below, 2). Later forms φασήολος, φασίολος, whence NG φασόλι, φασούλι (> Rum. fasole, SCr. pasulj), Lat. phaseolus (> It. fagiuolo, Sp. frijol, MHG fasōl, NHG fas(e)ole > Boh. fazol, Pol. fasola, Russ. fasol'). REW 6464. Berneker 280. Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 135 ff., 603.

NG κουκκί fr. Grk. κοκκίον, dim. of κόκκος 'kernel, berry' (5.80).

2. Lat. faba (> It. fava, Fr. fève, Sp. haba; Ir. seib, etc., below, 3); OPruss. babo, ChSl. bobŭ, SCr., Boh. bob, Russ. bob, perh. fr. a reduplicated form bhabha-* with the notion of 'swelling'. Walde-P. 1.131. Ernout-M. 318 f. Walde-H. 1.436. Berneker 65.

Fr. haricot, fr. Mexican ayacotli

'bean'. REW 847. Gamillscheg 508. Wartburg 1.190.

Sp. judía, fr. haba Judía 'Jewish bean'. Cf. NE lima bean, NHG türkische bohne, etc. Rohlfs, Z. rom. Ph. 40.340.

3. Ir. seib, W. ffa (coll.; sg. ffäen), Br. fao, fā (coll. pl.; sg. favenn) fr. Lat. faba. Vendryes, De hib. voc. 176. Loth, Mots lat. 166.

NIr. pōnaire (pl.) fr. ON baunir, pl. of baun 'bean' (below, 4). Marstrander, Bidrag 59, 96.

4. ON baun, OE bēan, etc., general Gmc., prob. : Goth. ufbauljan 'cause to swell up, blow up', OHG būlla, OE byle 'boil', and other words containing bhu-, bheu- with the notion of 'swelling' (Walde-P. 2.114 ff.). But some derive from a reduplicated form like Lat. faba, etc. (above, 2), which amounts to the same thing semantically. So Walde-P. 2.131.

5. Lith., Lett. pupa : Lett. paupt 'swell', pups 'woman's breast', Lat. pūpus 'small child', and other words containing pū-, peu-, with notion of 'swelling'. Walde-P. 2.79 ff. Against the view of borrowing fr. Slavic bob (accepted in Walde-P. 2.131 in contrast to 2.81) cf. Persson, Beiträge 246, ftn.

6. ChSl. bobŭ, etc., above, 2.

SCr. grah, orig. 'pea' (5.77).

7. Skt. māṣa- : NPers. māš, Pamir dial. max 'pea', prob. a loanword on one side or the other, and without known root connection. Uhlenbeck 223. Horn 960.

The potato was introduced into Europe from the Western Hemisphere, first the sweet potato from the West Indies, then the common potato from Peru. The native Haitian name of the former was widely adopted and extended to the second. Cf. NED s.v. potato.

Other designations arose, and spread either by direct borrowing or literal translation, such as those meaning 'earth-apple', 'earth-pear', or words for 'bulb' or the like that were applied to the new product. There is a wealth of local dialect words that are not considered here. Cf. Spitzer, Wört. u. Sach. 4.147 ff., Niedermann, ibid. 8.33 ff., Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 256 ff.

'Fruit' is understood here in the current sense of the NE fruit as a generic name for 'tree fruit', covering apples, pears, etc. This notion is commonly, but not always, the result of specialization from 'fruit, product' in the widest sense.

1. Grk. μῆλον, Dor. μᾶλον, whence Lat. mālum, both used for 'apple' and other fruits, prob. of pre-Greek orig. See 5.72.

Grk. ὀπώρα 'late summer, fruit season', hence also 'fruit' (cf. LS s.v.), cpd. of ὀπι- as in ὄπι-θεν 'behind, after' and perh. *ὀ(σ)αρα : Goth. asans 'harvest-time, summer', ChSl. jesenĭ, etc. 'autumn' (14.67). Schulze, Quaest. Ep. 474 f. Walde-P. 1.161 f. Boisacq 709 (but Dor. ὀπάρα very dub.). Hence, through adj. ὀπωρικός NG (ὀ)πωρικό.

NG φροῦτο, the usual word, fr. It. frutto.

2. Lat. pōmum, orig. dub., loanword? Osthoff, IF 5.317 ff. Ernout-M. 786 f. Hence Rum. poamă 'fruit' (also 'apple', dial. 'grape'), pom 'fruit tree', It. pomo 'fruit, fruit tree', and other Romance words for 'fruit' or 'apple'. REW 6645.

Lat. frūctus 'product, fruit' in widest sense, fr. fruī 'enjoy' : Goth. brūkjan, OE brūcan 'use', etc. Walde-P. 2.208. Ernout-M. 393 f. Walde-H. 1.552. Hence with special though not exclusive application to 'tree fruit', It. frutto, coll. frutta, Fr. fruit (> ME frut, NE fruit), Sp. fruto, coll. fruta, Rum. fruct, W. ffrwyth, Br. frouez, MLG vrucht (> Dan. frugt, Sw. frukt), Du. vrucht (OHG fruht, NHG frucht only in wider sense 'product, fruit'), Russ. frukt.

3. MIr. torad, NIr. toradh, also 'product, fruit' in widest sense, (as always W. toreth), cpd. to-rad fr. to-ret* : Ir rethim 'run', hence 'that which comes to one, in-come'. Pedersen 2.600, 677.

W. aeron : Ir. āirne, MBr. irin 'wild plum', Goth. akran 'fruit' (in widest sense, καρπός), etc. Walde-P. 1.173. Pedersen 1.103.

5 Lith. vaisius 'fruit' in widest sense (cf. vaisa 'fertility', veislus 'fruitful', etc.), also but esp. pl. vaisiai 'fruit' as intended here : veisti 'propagate, produce', Lett. viest 'nurture, increase', refl. viesties 'thrive', prob. also Gmc. group OE wīse 'sprout, stalk', etc. Walde-P. 1.242. Mühl.-Endz. 4.670.

Lett. auglis, fr. Lett. augt, Lith. augti 'grow' (12.53). Mühl.-Endz. 1.216.

2. Lat. dūracinus 'hard-berried', cpd. of dūrus 'hard' and acinus 'berry', was applied to fruit with stones, as grapes, peaches, cherries. Hence words in various Romance dialects specialized to 'grape', 'cherry' or 'peach', the latter in Sp. durazno. Hence also late Grk. δωράκινον (also δορ-) and ῥοδάκινον (LS s.vv., without connecting them), the latter (reg. Some of the words listed, as Grk. βότρυς, σταφυλή, are collectives meaning 'a bunch of grapes, grapes', the single 'grape' being expressed by a different word, as Grk. ῥάξ (also 'berry'). Many others were originally used only in this way, and in general the notion of 'bunch, cluster' is a frequent source of the words for 'grape'. Several are connected with words for 'wine' or 'vine'.

1. Grk. βότρυς, without convincing etym. and perh. a loanword fr. a pre-Greek source. Meillet, MSL 15.163. Walde-H. 1.113.

'Olive' is understood here as the fruit, though this and the olive tree were originally, and still are in part, expressed by the same word.

1. Most of the words are directly or indirectly fr. Lat. olīva, itself a loanword fr. Grk. ἐλαί(ϝ)α 'olive tree, olive', this again prob. fr. some Mediterranean source. Schrader, Reallex. 2.130 ff. Ernout-M. 700.

Many of the forms are of comparatively recent introduction. It was only the oil of the olive that was exported to the north in early times, and several of the words for 'olive' are derived from the name of the better known olive oil (5.79), as OE eleberge, OHG oliberi lit. 'oil-berry'; likewise Goth. alēwabagms 'olive tree'. In Ireland olives are virtually unknown, but if occasion arose the English word would doubtless be used.

2. Sp. aceituna fr. Arab. zaitūna, like aceite 'oil' fr. Arab. zait. REW 9612. Lokotsch 2186.

3. ChSl. maslina (quotable only for the tree), SCr. maslina (fruit and tree), Russ. maslina (now mostly of the tree), fr. Slavic also Rum. măslin (tree), măslină (fruit) : ChSl., Russ. maslo 'oil', etc. (5.79).

'Oil' was originally olive oil, an important article of food in southern regions, used also for cleansing the body (cf. under 'soap' 6.95), and as an illuminating fluid in lamps, while in most recent times its use as a lubricant or fuel dwarfs all others in magnitude. In general, the same word has remained in use, with all the extension in application.

1. Most of the Eur. words are directly fr. Lat. oleum (beside olīvum), itself a loanword fr. Grk. ἔλαι(ϝ)ον, belonging with ἐλαί(ϝ)α 'olive' (5.78). Although there is a word for 'berry' in most of the Eur. languages, it is only in the Gmc. group that the word furnishes a long series of cpds. denoting the special kinds of berry. Thus NE berry, whence strawberry, raspberry, blackberry, blueberry, cranberry, gooseberry, etc., formerly also wineberry (OE weinberige, like Goth. weinabasi), now replaced by grape. Similarly, NHG beere, with erdbeere, himbeere, etc., and in the other Gmc. languages. Elsewhere the names of 'strawberry', 'raspberry', etc., are unrelated to each other, e.g. Fr. fraise 'strawberry' (with the other Romance words, fr. Lat. fragum), but framboise 'raspberry' (fr. a Frank. brombasi* 'blackberry' like NHG brombeere, first part : NE bramble, etc.); Russ. zemljanika 'strawberry' (fr. zemlja 'earth', like NHG erdbeere), but malina 'raspberry' (: Grk. μέλας, Lett. melns 'black', etc.).

Words for 'vinegar' go back to expressions for 'sharp, sour, acid', sometimes in combination with words for 'wine'.

1. Grk. ὄξος (> Russ. uksus > Lith. uksusas), late dim. ὀξείδιον, NG ξίδι : Grk. ὀξύς 'sharp, pointed, acid' (cf. εὖρος 'breadth' : εὐρύς 'broad'), Lat. acidus 'acid', ācer 'sharp', etc. Walde-P. 1.28 ff.

NG γλυκάδι fr. late Grk. γλυκάδιον 'vinegar' (EM, Choerob.), this fr. γλυκύς 'sweet'.

2. Lat. acētum, orig. pass. pple. of acēre 'be sour', beside acidus 'sour, acid' : ācer 'sharp', etc. Walde-P. 1.28 ff. Ernout-M. 8. Walde-H. 1.6.

Honey was the old IE sweet, and so among the Greeks and Romans and in Europe generally until the introduction of sugar (5.85). From it was made the oldest IE intoxicating drink, the 'mead' (5.91).

Most of the words for 'honey' belong to one of two inherited groups. In Gmc. one of these is represented in Gothic, the other in words for 'mead', otherwise 'honey' is expressed by a new word derived from its yellow color.

1. IE melit-* 'honey'. Walde-P. 2.296. Ernout-M. 602. Grk. μέλι; Lat. mel (> Romance words); Ir. mil, W., Br. mel; Goth. miliþ (cf. OE mil-dēaw 'honey-dew, nectar', milisc 'honeyed'); Arm. mełr, Alb. mjall.

2. IE medhu-* 'honey' and 'mead'. Walde-P. 2.261. Here as 'honey', Lith., Lett. medus, OPruss. meddo, ChSl. medŭ, etc., general Slavic; Skt. madhu-, Toch. mit. Elsewhere only as 'mead' or for some other intoxicating drink (5.91).

3. ON hunang, OE hunig, etc., general Gmc. (except Goth.) : Skt. kāñcana- 'golden', kanaka- 'gold', Grk. κνηκός 'pale yellow' etc. Walde-P. 1.400; Falk-Torp 417.

The home of sugar and its European names is India. The companions of Alexander the Great told of the Indian cane which produced 'honey without bees' (περὶ τῶν καλάμων, ὅτι ποιοῦσι μέλι μελισσῶν μὴ οὐσῶν, Strabo 15.694). The native Indian name appears in Greek and Latin transcriptions in the first century A.D. (μέλι τὸ καλάμινον τὸ λεγόμενον σάκχαρι, Peripl. 14; σάκχαρον εἶδος ὂν μέλιτος ἐν Ἰνδίᾳ καὶ τῇ εὐδαίμονι Ἀραβίᾳ πεπηγότος, εὑρισκόμενον ἐπὶ τῶν καλάμων, Diosc. 2.104; Saccharon et Arabia fert, sed laudatius India, est autem mel in harundibus collectum, Plin. 12.32), but the article was then only an exotic product used for medical purpose. The cultivation of the sugar cane was introduced in Sicily and Spain by the Arabs, and it was only after the crusades that sugar became the common sweetening in place of the older honey. The majority of European forms of the name come through Arabic via Spanish or Italian. Schrader, Reallex. 2.705 ff.

Skt. çarkarā- 'gravel, grit' (AV +) later 'sugar' : Grk. κρόκη, κροκάλη 'pebble'. Walde-P. 1.463.

These are put together here despite the dispute as to their relationship. Certainly some and prob. all : Grk. ἀμέλγω, Lat. mulgēre, Ir. melgim, OE melcan, etc., the general Eur. vb. for 'milk' (5.87). In the Gmc. group the second vowel of Goth. miluks, OHG miluh is puzzling, and some think that the relationship to the vb. is only secondary, due to the assimilation of an originally different word related to Grk. γάλα, Lat. lac (above, 1). The Slavic words were once regarded as Gmc. loanwords, but that is now generally given up. They are separated by many from the above group, but as a melk-* beside melĝ-* is attested by Lat. mulcēre, this is unnecessary, and the various substitute connections that have been suggested seem less probable. 5. Skt. duh-, NPers. duxtan, dušidan, the Indo-Iranian verb for 'milk' (though not quotable fr. Av.). Connection with Grk. τεύχω 'make, build', τυγχάνω 'hit the mark, meet, happen', Goth. daug, OE dēag, OHG toug 'is of advantage, avails', etc. is generally rejected on semantic grounds. Walde-P. 1.847. Feist 128. But in view of the perfect formal correspondence, one must consider the possibility of deriving the divergent meanings (which even in the Eur. group offer some problems) from some common source, even if the attempt involves speculation falling short of conviction. For example, the Indo-Iranian 'milk' may be from 'stroke', like the Eur. 'milk' (above, 1); 'stroke' and 'strike' may be from a common source (cf. NE strike : NE stroke, NHG streicheln); and 'strike' may lead to 'hit, hit the mark', the earliest use of Grk. τυγχάνω (whence also 'meet, happen, be fortunate', etc.), from which 'suit, be good for, avail', etc. in Gmc.

Butter was a common article of food from early times in India and Iran ('melted butter') and in northern Europe, but not among the ancient Greeks and Romans, who first heard of it as a Scythian product. It is first reported by Herodotus (4.2), who describes the process of churning, later by Hippocrates (4.20), who first introduces the word βούτῡρον. Pliny (28.133) tells of butyrum, barbararum gentium lautissimus cibus. Schrader, Reallex 1.175 ff.

Mead was the oldest IE intoxicating drink, made from honey, and remained a common drink among the Celtic, Germanic, and Balto-Slavic peoples, but not among the Greeks and Romans. It is regularly expressed by a word for 'honey' or a derivative of it.

1. IE medhu-* 'honey' and 'mead'. Walde-P. 2.261. Here, only for the drink, Ir. mid, etc., all the Celtic words; ON mjǫðr, OE medu, etc., all the Gmc. words (Goth. midus* not quotable, but inferred fr. a Grk. transcription μέδος, referring to a drink taking the place of wine at the Hunnish court; cf. NED s.v. mead). The Balto-Slavic words are partly the same as for 'honey' (hence also Rum. mied), partly derivs., as SCr., Boh. medovina; but Lith. midus is fr. Goth. midus*, and ChSl. medŭ is quotable only as 'honey' or late for 'wine'. Skt. madhu- was used for any sweet intoxicating drink, especially the soma juice. Av. maδu- was a kind of wine or beer (Barth. 1114. NPers. mai 'wine', Horn 1003). Grk. μέθυ occurs only as a poetical word for 'wine', but is the source of the common prose words μεθύω, μεθύσκω 'be drunk, make drunk', whence NG μεθυσμένος 'drunk'.

2. Grk. μελίτειον (Plut. Mor. 672b of the drink of the barbarians), deriv. of μέλι 'honey'.

3. Late Grk. ὑδρόμελι, cpd. of ὕδωρ 'water' and μέλι 'honey', whence Lat. hydromel(i), It. idromele, Fr. hydromel (> Rum. hidromel), Sp. hidromel (also aguamel, with substitution of agua 'water'). These words are those employed to denote the 'mead' of other peoples, though also used of an unfermented mixture of honey and water.

The intensive cultivation of the vine and the use of wine as the customary alcoholic drink had its home in the eastern Mediterranean region, whence it spread over Europe, mainly through the Romans. In ancient India and Iran wine was not one of the common alcoholic drinks. Schrader, Reallex. 2.642 ff.

1. Grk. οἶνος, early ϝοῖνος, Lat. vīnum (prob. fr. woinom*, like vīcus, vīdī : Grk. ϝοῖκος, ϝοῖδα; in which case Umbr. vinu must be a Lat. loanword), Alb. venë, Arm. gini, together with the Semitic words, Arab. wain, Hebr. yayin, all prob. loanwords fr. some prehistoric Mediterranean source. So Meillet, MSL 15.163, Ernout-M. 1111. But even so, the source could be some IE language of that region. For if we assume that the orig. sense was 'vine', it is attractively derived fr. the same root as Lat. vītis 'vine' (IE wei-* in words for 'twist, wind', see 8.67). Walde-P. 1.226. Schrader, Reallex. 2.643 f.

Lat. vīnum is the source of all the other Eur. words, except the Greek and Albanian.

2. NG κρασί, fr. dim. of Grk. κρᾶσις 'mixture', its use arising from the common Greek practice of mixing wine and water. The use of οἶνος for the wine of the sacrament may have been a factor in its disappearance from common speech.

3. Skt. drākṣarasa- (rare), cpd. of drākṣā- 'vine, grape' (5.76) and rasa- 'juice'.

Av. maδu- : Skt. madhu-, etc. See 5.91.

Av. xšudra-, 'liquid, semen' also an 'alcoholic drink' ('wine'? So Barth. 555) : xšusta- 'liquid', xšaoδah- 'stream, flood', Skt. kṣoda- 'swell' (of the waves). Walde-P. 1.502.

Among other Indo-Iranian words for alcoholic drinks are: Skt. soma-, Av. haoma- 'juice of the soma plant' : Skt. sū- 'press, extract' (Walde-P. 2.468); Skt. mada- 'intoxication' and Av. maδa- 'intoxicating drink' : Skt. mad- 'be glad, be drunk', Lat. madēre, 'be wet', etc. (Walde-P. 2.230 f.). CLOTHING; PERSONAL ADORNMENT AND CARE

6.11 CLOTHE, DRESS

Grk.	ἕννῡμι, ἐνδύω	Goth.	wasjan	Lith.	apvilkti, aprėdyti, aprengti, etc.
NG	ἐνδύω, ντύνω	ON	klæða	Lett.	apg'ērbt, g'ērbt

W.	gwisgo, dilladu	MHG	wæten, kleiden
Br.	gwiska	NHG	kleiden

Most of the verbs listed are used for the trans. 'dress, clothe' (a), with mid., pass., or refl. forms for the intr. 'dress', 'be clothed' (b), e.g. Grk. ἕννῡμι vs. ἕννυμαι, Fr. habiller vs. s'habiller, ChSl. oděti vs. oděti sę. Less commonly the same form is used in both ways, as NE dress (e.g. dresses well), Goth. wasjan, and occasionally others. Again, 'be clothed' may become 'be clothed in, wear', with the garment as direct object, as regularly OE werian, NE wear, now hardly felt as 'be clothed in' and answering to the use elsewhere of verbs for 'carry', as NHG kleider tragen, Fr. porter des vêtements, NG φορῶ ροῦχα.

Aside from the inherited group (IE wes-*, below, 1), many of the verbs are derived from the nouns for 'clothing' or some article of clothing. Others are from 'cover', 'arrange, put in order', or 'put (or draw) on (or about)'. These last, e.g. Grk. ἐνδύω, Lat. induere, ChSl. oděti, oblěšti, were naturally at first used with the garment as direct object, but as the literal sense weakened were construed also with the person clothed, first as the subject of pass. or refl. forms and finally as the object of trans. forms. Cf. the partial development in this direction of NHG anziehen 'draw on, pull on' used with especial reference to clothes, then sich anziehen 'be dressed, dress' (intr.), but not with another person as object or subject of passive (though Luther used such a construction; Paul, Deutsches Wtb. s.v.).

1. IE wes-, perh. an extension of eu- in Lat. ind-uere, etc. (below, 3). Walde-P. 1.309. Ernout-M. 1098. Feist 553.

Grk. ἕννῡμι (Ion. εἵνῡμι), fr. ϝέσ-νῡμι*; Lat. (fr. sb. ves-tis) vestīre (> It. vestire, Fr. vêtir, revêtir, Sp. vestir); W. gwisgo, Br. gwiska (fr. sbs. W. gwisg, Br. gwisk, formed with sk- suffix; Pedersen 2.18); Goth. (ga-)wasjan, ON verja (but mostly 'cover, wrap', etc., not the usual word for 'clothe'), OE werian (but reg. 'be clothed in, wear'), OHG werien; Skt. vas- (mid. b, caus. a), Av. vah- (act. and mid., both b); Arm. z-genum (b); Alb. vesh; Toch. was- (SSS 471); Hitt. wess-, wass- (Sturtevant, Hitt. Gloss. 182).

The Gmc. forms of this group, except Goth. wasjan, were homonyms of the vb. for 'prevent, ward off, protect' (Goth. warjan, OE werian, etc.), and this was prob. a factor in their early displacement in most of the Gmc. languages. For the modern vocabulary they survive only in Icelandic (and here only pple. varinn 'clad' in common use) and NE wear with its wide extension from the orig. sense.

2. Grk. ἐνδύω ('put on', mid. 'be clothed in' : cf. ἐκδύω 'take off'), NG pop. ντύνω, cpd. of δύω 'sink, plunge, enter' : Skt. upā-du- 'put on'. Walde-P. 1.777.

3. Lat. induere (that is, ind-uere, cf. Umbr. an-ouihimu 'induitor'), like exuere 'take off', fr. IE eu-* in Lith. auti, ChSl. ob-uti 'put on shoes', etc. Walde-P. 1.109. Ernout-M. 317. Walde-H. 1.434 f.

Fr. habiller, orig. sense 'prepare, arrange' (OFr. abiller, fr. bille 'log, block of wood', etc.), specialized under influence of habit 'dress' (6.12). REW 1104. Wartburg 1.366, 368.

Rum. îmbrăca, fr. Lat. braccae, brācae 'trousers' (6.48), REW 4281. Pușcariu 780.

NIr. cōirigim 'arrange, prepare' (fr. cōir 'suitable, right') now used like, and doubtless influenced by, NE dress (McKenna).

W. dilladu, fr. dillad 'clothes' (6.12).

5. ON klæða, OE clāþian, clæþan (both rare), ME, NE clothe, MHG, NHG kleiden, etc., all derivs. of the words for 'cloth' or 'clothes', ON klæði, OE clāþ (6.12). NED s.v. clothe.

The generic 'clothing, clothes' is expressed by collectives, or by plurals the singular of which denotes an article of clothing, a 'garment' (but sometimes also coll.) or in some cases 'cloth'.

Many of the words are derived from the verbs for 'clothe' and several from nouns for 'cloth'.

1. Derivs. of IE wes-* in ἕννῡμι 'clothe' (6.11).

Grk. ἐσθής, Dor. ἐσθάς, sg. coll., orig. a fem. abstract in -τητ-, -τᾱτ-, with θ fr. the neut. ἔσ-θος (formed like πλῆ-θος, etc.), Schwyzer, IF 30, 443, Buck, Cl.Ph. 12.178 f.; Grk. εἷμα, Aeol. ἔμμα, Cret. ϝῆμα, fr. ϝέσ-μα* (Cret. ϝῆμα coll. 'clothing', elsewhere mostly pl. as εἵματα); Grk. ἱμάτιον, Ion. εἱμάτιον, sg. 'garment', esp. 'cloak', pl. 'clothes'); W. gwisg 'garment, clothing', pl. 'clothes', Br. gwisk 'swaddling clothes', formerly 'clothes', in this sense now replaced by gwiskamant (coll.; formed after Fr. vêtement); Goth. wasti 'garment', pl. 'clothing'; Skt. vāsas-, vasana-, Av. vaŋhana- (cf. Hom. ἑανός 'robe, garment', fr. ϝέσανος*), Skt., Av. vastra-, all sg. 'garment', pl. 'clothes'; Toch. A wsäl (SSS 6, 471).

2. Grk. ἔνδῡμα 'garment', NG id., also sg. coll. or pl. 'clothes', fr. ἐνδύω 'clothe' (6.11).

NG ροῦχα 'clothes' (the pop. word), sg. 'garment', fr. Slavic (below, 7). G. Meyer, Neugr. Stud. 2.55.

NG φόρεμα 'garment', esp. 'woman's dress', pl. 'clothes', late form of Grk. φόρημα 'burden, what is worn', fr. Grk. φορέω 'carry' also 'wear' (as reg. NG φορῶ), frequent. of φέρω 'carry'.

It. abito, Fr. habit 'garment', pl. 'clothes', fr. Lat. habitus 'garment', earlier 'state, condition' fr. habēre 'have'. REW 3964.

Sp. ropa, fr. Gmc., cf. OE rēaf (below, 5). REW 7090.

Rum. îmbrăcăminte 'clothing' (pl. seldom used), fr. îmbrăca 'clothe' (6.11).

Words for 'tailor', as a general term for one who makes clothes, are partly derivatives or compounds of words for 'clothes' or 'cloth', but mostly words that originally were used more specifically of the 'cutter', 'sewer', or 'mender'.

1. Grk. ἱματιουργός*, lit. 'clothes-maker', not directly attested, but cf. ἱματιουργική (sc. τέχνη) the 'tailor's art'.

Late Grk. (5th cent. A.D.+) ῥάπτης, NG ῥάφτης, fr. ῥάπτω 'sew' (6.35).

2. Late Lat. vestītor, fr. vestīre 'clothe', vestis 'garment' (6.11).

Late Lat. sartor, (> It. sarto, Sp. sastre), fr. sarcīre 'mend' : Grk. ἕρκος 'inclosure'. Walde-P. 2.502. Ernout-M. 895. REW 7614.

Fr. tailleur, OFr. tailleor (> ME taillour, NE tailor), fr. tailler 'cut' (9.22). Through the English also NIr. tāilliūr, W. teiliwr. The latter was divided by pop. etym. teili-wr, as if from gwr 'man' (older pl. teili-wyr, cf. gwyr 'men').

Rum. croĭtor, fr. croi 'cut out', esp. 'cut out a garment', fr. Slavic (below, 6).

3. Br. kemener, i.e. kem-ben-er, lit. 'one who cuts and puts together' : MBr. quemenas (pret.) 'cut', cpd. of kom-* (= Lat. con-) and bena 'cut, hew' : Ir. benim 'strike' (9.21). Pedersen 2.463. Henry 60.

4. ON skraddari, Dan. skrædder, Sw. skräddare, fr. MLG schrāder, orig. 'cutter', fr. schrāden 'cut'. Falk-Torp 1033.

OE sēamere, fr. sēam, NE seam : ON sauma 'sew' (6.35).

Du. kleermaker, for kleeder-maker 'clothes-maker'.

MHG snīdære, NHG schneider (in MHG also 'mercer, plowman'), orig. 'cutter', fr. OHG snīdan 'cut' (9.22).

5. Lith. siuvėjas, : Lith. siūti 'sew' (6.35).

Lett. drēbnieks, fr. drēbe 'cloth, garment' (6.12).

Lett. skruoderis, fr. MLG schrāder (above, 4). Mühl.-Endz. 3.900.

6. SCr. krojač, Boh. krejči, Pol. krawiec : ChSl. krojiti, etc. 'cut' (9.22). Berneker 620.

SCr. šnajder, fr. NHG schneider (above, 4).

Russ. portnoj : porty 'clothes' (obs.), portki 'drawers', ChSl. prŭtŭ 'piece of cloth', Pol. part 'coarse hempen cloth', etc., root connection? Miklosich 243. Brückner 397.

7. Skt. sūcika-, sāucika-, lit. 'needle-worker', fr. sūci- 'needle' (6.36).

'Cloth' is considered here primarily as the generic term for fabrics like wool, cotton, linen, etc., but also as a piece of such fabric, 'a cloth', some of the words being used mainly or only in the latter sense.

Several of the words for 'cloth' reflect the process of 'weaving', 'spinning', and in one important group (NE cloth, etc.) probably 'felting'. Some result from specialization of words for 'material' or 'equipment'. A 'piece of cloth' may be something 'torn off, cut off' or the like.

Some of the words listed are less generic than NE cloth, with differentiation between woolen and linen or cotton cloth.

1. Grk. ὕφασμα : ὑφαίνω 'weave' (6.33).

Grk. ῥάκος (in Hom. 'ragged garment', pl. 'rags', then 'piece of cloth' as in NT), Aeol. βράκος 'garment' : ῥακόω 'tear in strips', Skt. vṛkṇa- 'torn', ChSl. vraska 'fold, wrinkle', etc. Walde-P. 1.286 f. Boisacq 833.

NG πανί, fr. Lat. pannus (below, 2).

2. Lat. textum, textīle fr. texere 'weave' (6.33), whence also (tex-lā-*) tēla (also 'warp, loom'; > It., Sp. tela, Fr. toile), and Fr. tisser whence sb. tissu. Ernout-M. 1038. REW 8620.

Lat. pannus ('piece of cloth', esp. 'rag'), Goth. fana (reg. for ῥάκος), OHG fano (NHG fahne like OE fana, ON fani specialized to 'banner') : Grk. πήνη 'thread on the bobbin, woof', pl. 'web', πῆνος· ὕφασμα (Hesych.). Walde-P. 2.5. Ernout-M. 729. Feist 142.

Hence It. panno, Sp. paño, NG πανί; Rum. pănură fr. the dim. Lat. pannula* (pannulus attested). REW 6204, 6203.

It. stoffa, Fr. étoffe (Sp. estofa), Rum. stofă, fr. the Gmc. word seen in NHG stoff, this fr. Lat. stuppa 'coarse linen, tow', fr. Grk. στύππη (perh. : Skt. stupa- 'tuft of hair', Walde-P. 2.620). This is preferable to the usual deriv. of Gmc. fr. Romance, though the ins and outs of borrowing are complicated. REW 8332.

Fr. drap (It. drappo 'silk cloth', Sp. trapo 'rag, sail'), fr. late Lat. drappus 'cloth', perh. a Gallic word : Lith. drapanos 'clothes', etc. (6.12). REW 2765. Wartburg 3.156.

Rum. postav (esp. 'woolen cloth'), fr. Slavic, cf. ChSl. postavŭ 'loom, products of the loom', Bulg. postavŭ 'lining', etc. (6.34).

3. Ir. brēit (NIr. brēid), W. brethyn : Ir. brat 'cloak', Br. broz 'skirt', perh. Grk. φᾶρος 'cloak'. G. S. Lane, Language 7.279 f.

NIr. ēadach 'clothing' (6.12), also 'cloth'.

Br. mezer, fr. māderia*, Lat. māteria 'material'. Loth, Mots lat. 187.

4. OE clāþ (> ME. NE cloth), rarely clǣþ (> ON klæði, Dan. klæde, Sw. kläde), more widespread in the secondary sense 'garment', pl. 'clothes' (6.12) :

OE æt-clīþende 'sticking to', clīþa 'plaster', etc., fr. IE glei-t-, extension of glei-, in Grk. γλία, Lat. glūs 'glue', OE clǣg, MLG klei 'clay', etc. As a name for 'cloth' it apparently referred orig. to the early process of felting. Walde-P. 1.620. Falk-Torp 540. NED s.v. cloth.

ON vāð : OE gewǣde, OHG giwāti 'clothes' (6.12), IE wedh-, extension of au- 'weave' (6.33). Falk-Torp 1340 f.

ON dūkr (Dan. dug, Sw. duk now mostly 'tablecloth') fr. MLG dōk, dūk (Du. doek) = OHG tuoh, MHG tuoch, NHG tuch, etym.? Falk-Torp 164.

Dan. tøi, Sw. tyg (also 'gear, tackle', late ON tȳgi 'equipment, implement'), apparently borrowed fr. MLG tūch 'implement, armor, article of clothing' : NHG zeug (OHG gi-ziuc 'equipment', etc.), MLG tūgen 'make', MHG ziugen 'prepare, produce'. The transfer from 'equipment' to 'clothes, cloth' was through the application in warfare to 'armor'. Falk-Torp 1314 f. Weigand-H. 2.1320 f.

Du. laken (> ME lake 'fine linen'), OS lacan = MHG lachen (OHG lahhan usually 'a cover of cloth') : MLG lak, Lat. laxus, Ir. lace 'loose', hence orig. 'something pliant' or 'loose hanging'(?). Walde-P. 2.712 f. Falk-Torp 619. Franck–v. W. 368.

5. Lith. milas, Lett. mila (both usually 'woolen homespun'; OPruss. milan 'gewant') perh. : Grk. μαλλός 'tuft of hair'. Walde-P. 2.294.

Lith. gelumbė, orig. 'blue cloth' now esp. 'manufactured cloth' : ChSl. goląbyjŭ, Russ. golubyj, OPruss. golimban 'blue' (15.67).

Lett. vadmala, of Scand. orig., cf. Icel. vaðmāl, Sw. vadmal 'homespun', ON vāð-māl, lit. 'a measure of cloth', a unit of legal tender at fairly late date in the north. The orthography indicates a direct borrowing rather than through LG wātmāl, wāmmāl, wātman, etc. as Mühl.-Endz. 4.430.

Lett. drēbe, in pl. 'clothes', see 6.12.

Lett. drāna, prob. fr. der-* in dirāt 'tear' (cf. Lith. drabužis 'clothes', etc., 6.12). Mühl.-Endz. 1.494.

6. ChSl. sukno (Supr. with or without vlasěno for τρίχινον ῥάκος 'hair-cloth'), etc., general Slavic for 'cloth', orig. 'what is spun' : ChSl. sukati, Boh. soukati, etc. 'turn, wind' and (like Lith. sukti) used also for 'spin' (as 'spin' often fr. 'turn', 6.31). Walde-P. 2.470. Miklosich 333. Brückner 525.

ChSl. platŭ (reg. for ῥάκος in Gospels, etc.), Pol. płat 'piece of cloth, rag'), Russ. platok 'handkerchief', plat'e 'dress', prob. : Lith. platus, Grk. πλατύς, Skt. pṛthu- 'broad', as orig. 'something spread out'. Miklosich 249. Brückner 420. Otherwise (: OHG spaltan 'split', etc.) Walde-P. 2.678.

Late ChSl. rąbŭ (Pol. rąb 'seam, hem', Boh. rub 'wrong side' of cloth, etc.; cf. SCr. rubača, Russ. rubaška 'shirt') : Pol. rąbać, Russ. rubit' etc. 'cut, hew' (cut-side root connections?), hence orig. 'piece cut off' like Grk. ῥάκος (above, 1). Brückner 455. Miklosich 281.

SCr. čoha fr. Turk. çuha 'cloth'. Berneker 159.

SCr. latak, Boh. látka : Boh., Pol. lata, Russ. latka 'patch, rag', outside connection? Berneker 693. Brückner 291.

Pol. chusta (mostly 'linen cloth'), etym.? Brückner 186 (: ChSl. skutŭ 'edge of a garment', etc., but??).

Russ. tkan', fr. tkat' 'weave' (6.33).

7. Skt. vasana-, vastra- 'clothing' (6.12) also 'cloth'.

Av. ubdaēna-, fr. IE webh-* 'weave' (6.33). Barth. 401.

Linen, considered here as a material for clothing parallel to wool, cotton, etc., was originally denoted by the same word as that for the raw material, flax. But 'linen' and 'flax' are now generally differentiated, partly by parallel forms of the old word, including the use of derivative adjectives, compounds, or phrases for 'linen', and partly by the restriction of the old word to one sense and the substitution of different words for the other. The situation is shown in the list by giving first the words for 'linen', or 'linen' and 'flax', and adding those for 'flax' alone if different.

1. Eur. līno-* 'flax, linen'. Walde-P. 2.440 f. Schrader, Reallex. 1.323 ff. Ernout-M. 555. Walde-H. 1.810.

Grk. λίνον 'flax, linen', NG λινὸ πανί 'linen cloth', λινάρι 'flax'.

Lat. līnum, whence It., Sp. lino 'flax, linen', Fr. lin, Rum. in 'flax'. For It. tela, Fr. toile 'cloth', see 6.21. Fr. linge 'linen' (clothes, etc.), fr. Lat. adj. lineus 'of linen'. REW 5060. Gamillscheg 563.

Ir. līn 'linen', NIr. līon 'flax, linen', W. llin, Br. lin 'flax', fr. Lat. līnum (Vendryes, De hib. voc. 151; Loth, Mots lat. 182), but W. lliain, Br. lïen 'linen' are perh. cognate, though the formation is obscure.

Goth. lein 'linen', ON līn 'flax, linen', Norw., Sw. lin, OE, OHG, MHG līn, ME lin, NHG lein 'flax'. Hence OE līnen, OHG līnīn, etc., orig. adjs. 'flaxen, linen'.

Br.	kotoñs

European names for cotton are mostly borrowed with the plant from oriental sources.

1. Arab. qutn, qutun (Sp.-Arab. qotun). Schrader, Reallex. 1.84. Lokotsch, 1272. REW 4796a.

It. cotone, Fr. coton (> Br. kotoñs), Sp. algodón, ME cotoun, coton (> W. cotwm), NE cotton, Du. katoen, MHG kattūn (NHG kattun 'calico').

2. An oriental word, perh. orig. Iranian, represented by Pahl. pambak, Osset. bambag, NPers. panba, Arm. bambak. Schrader, loc. cit. Berneker 100 f.

Hence late Lat. bombax 'linteorum aut aliae quaevis quisquiliae' (Du Cange), bombacium (> NE bombasine, bombast, Fr. bombasin, etc.), and apparently Grk. βόμβυξ (> Lat. bombyx) 'silkworm, silk'.

Here also NG μπαμπάκι, Rum. bumbac, SCr. pamuk, but by the mediation of different Turkish forms (cf. Berneker, loc. cit.).

MHG boumwolle, bounwolle, boumwol, etc., NHG baumwolle, LG bōmwolle, Du. boomwol, lit. 'tree wool'. Cf. Hdt. 3.106 (of Indian cotton) τὰ δὲ δένδρεα τὰ ἄγρια αὐτόθι φέρει καρπὸν εἴρια. But possibly the first part was orig. bamb or bomb fr. the same source as Lat. bombax, etc. (above) and transformed by popular connection with baum 'tree'. Falk-Torp 92.

Dan. bomuld, Sw. bomull, fr. LG bōmwolle with translation of the final member.

Lith. medvilnė, Lett. kuokvilna, lit. 'tree wool', semantic borrowings fr. NHG baumwolle.

Pol. bawełna (> Lith. bovelna), Boh. bavlna, fr. NHG baumwolle with ba- for baum- and translation of final (cf. Dan. bomuld, above). Brückner 18.

3. NIr. canach (also Gael.) : Ir. canach 'down, fuzz', etym.? Macbain 68.

NIr. cadās (given first by McKenna s.v. cotton), fr. ME cadas (NE caddis) a sort of coarse cotton or wool used in padding, fr. OFr. cadaz, cadas, further orig. unknown. NED s.v. caddis. Macbain 74.

4. Russ. chlopok : chlop'e 'flocks (of wool), flakes (of snow)', Boh. chlupatý 'hairy', Pol. dial. chłupy 'tufts', otherwise obscure. Berneker 390 f.

5. Skt. kārpāsa-, loanword fr. the same source as Grk. κάρπασος, Lat. carbasus 'fine cotton cloth', Arab. kerpas, etc. Walde-H. 1.165.

Br.	seiz	NHG	seide

Many of the words for 'silk', like the article, are of oriental origin.

1. An oriental word represented by Manchurian sirghe, Mongolian sirkek. The ultimate source is dub., the old identification with a Chinese word being unsubstantiated. Cf. Schrader, Reallex. 2.382; Laufer, Sino-Iranica 538 ff., who thinks the word of Iranian origin.

Grk. σηρικός adj., σηρικόν (σήρ 'silkworm', Σῆρες being later back-formations), Lat. sēricus adj., sēricum, whence Ir. sīric, OHG serih. The earliest Grk. reference to 'silk', but without the word, is supposed to be Aristot. HA 551b13. Miss Richter, AJA 1929, 27 ff., argues for much earlier use of silk.

ChSl. šelkŭ, Russ. šelk, Lith. šilkai, OPruss. silkas, borrowed independently from the Orient (rather than through σηρικόν, etc.) fr. same form with l for r. The Balto-Slavic form then passed, through the Baltic trade, into Gmc., ON silki, Dan., Sw. silke, OE sioloc, seoloc, ME selk, NE silk, OHG silecho, selecho.

2. An oriental word, prob. by metathesis fr. the Arab. name of Damascus (source of NE damask, etc.). Lokotsch, 476. Schrader, op. cit., 383. Hence late Grk. μέταξα, μάταξα, NG μέταξα, μετάξι, late Lat. metaxa, mataxa, Rum. mătase 'silk', Fr. matasse 'raw silk'.

3. Late Lat. sēta (fr. saeta 'coarse hair, bristles'), elliptical for sēta sērica. Hence It. seta, Fr. soie, Sp. seda; Ir. sīta, NIr. sīoda, W. sidan, Br. seiz; OHG sīda, MHG sīde, NHG seide, Du. zijde, MLG zīde (> Sw. siden, Lett. zīds). REW 7498. Vendryes, De hib. voc. 178.

4. Late ChSl., SCr., ORuss. svila, for sŭvila*, fr. sŭviti, cpd. of viti 'wind' (10.14). Orig. a participial formation meaning 'wound', perh. referring to the cocoon of the silkworm.

Russ.–ChSl. godovablĭ, Boh. hedvábí (> Pol. jedwab) fr. Gmc., cf. OHG gotawebbi 'any fine expensive cloth', gl. also sericum, ON guðvefr, OE godweb 'velvet, purple, fine cloth', perh. lit. 'God's cloth', i.e. 'fine cloth suitable for use in God's service', though the first member may be transformed fr. Arab. qutn 'cotton' (6.24). Berneker 316. Brückner 204.

5. Skt. kāuçeya-, fr. koça- 'cask, vessel', then applied to the 'cocoon' of the silkworm; cf. koça-kara- 'silkworm', lit. 'cocoon-maker'.

Lace as a well-known fabric dates from the 16th century A.D. (incipiently somewhat earlier; cf. Encycl. Brit. s.v. lace) so that words for 'lace' are confined to the modern languages.

They are mostly based on words for 'point, edge, tooth, peg, notch', with obvious relation to the appearance of the fabric. A few are from words for 'cord, thread' or 'bobbin', or verbs for 'fit' or 'turn around'.

1. It. trina, fr. Lat. trīnus 'triple', presumably first applied to lace with groups of three points. REW 8910.

It. merletto, dim. of merli 'pinnacles, battlements' of a wall, this prob. (like a row of blackbirds perched on a wall) pl. of merlo 'blackbird'. Hornung, Z. rom. Ph. 21, 456. REW 5534a.

Fr. dentelle, dim. of dent 'tooth'. Hence Rum. dantelă, NG δαντέλλα, Br. dantelez.

Sp. encaje, fr. encajar 'fit, join' (in woodwork), cpd. of caja 'sheath, case', Lat. capsa 'repository, box'. A semantic parallel is seen in NE insertion, usually used of lace set in the body of a garment in contrast to that put on the borders.

2. W. ysnoden 'band, lace' and 'lace' as fabric (like NE lace) : Ir. snāth, Br. neud 'thread', W. nyddu 'spin' (6.31).

3. Dan. kniplinger (pl.), fr. kniple 'make lace', fr. MLG knuppeln (with dissim.) = NHG klöppeln : LG knuppel, NHG klöppel 'bobbin'. Falk-Torp, 549.

NE lace (> NIr. lāsa) same word as lace in shoelace, etc. (fr. OFr. las, laz, Lat. laqueus 'noose'), which came to be used esp. for ornamental braid (cf. gold lace) and (first through the similar function of lace ruffles?) 'lace' as the fabric in general. NED s.v.

Du. kant, lit. 'edge', fr. OFr. cant 'corner'. Franck–v. W. 291.

NHG spitzen (> Sw. spets), pl. of spitze 'point' (12.352).

4. Lith. karbatkos (pl., NSB; karbatkai Lalis), fr. karbas 'notch, dent', karbuoti 'notch, indent', fr. Pol. karb 'notch', karbować 'notch, indent', fr. NHG kerbe, kerben id. Brückner, Sl. Fremdwörter 90.

Lett. spice, fr. LG or NHG spitze.

Lett. knipele (Dravneek; not in Mühl.-Endz.), fr. MLG knuppeln 'make lace' (above, 3).

5. SCr. čipka, Boh. čipky (pl.), fr. dim. of SCr., Boh. čep 'peg' (cf. Boh. čipek 'little peg').

Boh. krajky (pl.), dim. of kraj, ChSl. krajĭ 'edge' (12.353). Cf. NE edging sometimes 'lace' (NED s.v. 4).

Pol. koronka or pl. koronki, dim. of korona (fr. Lat. corōna) 'crown' with development through 'coronet, chaplet, rosary', etc. Brückner 257.

Russ. kruževo (cf. ChSl. krąživo 'suturae genus') : Russ. krug, ChSl. krągŭ 'circle' (12.82), Russ. kružiti 'turn around'. Miklosich 142. Berneker 626 (without kruževo).

NIr.	feilt, bēabhar	OHG	filz
W.	llawban	MHG	vilz
Br.	feltr	NHG	filz

Words for 'felt', made of pressed hair or wool, are mostly from words denoting the process of manufacture as 'press', 'pound', etc.

1. IE pil-so-* : Lat. pilus 'hair'. Walde-P. 2.71.

Grk. πῖλος, also 'anything made of felt, cap, shoe, etc.' (NG 'hat'), Lat. pilleus 'felt hat, cap', prob. also ChSl. plŭstĭ (on the formation cf. J. Schmidt, KZ 32, 387 f.), SCr. pust, Boh. plst', Pol. pilśń, pilść. Hence Rum. pîslă (through pîlsta, pîstla, cf. Tiktin, s.v.). But the Slavic forms may also be combined with the following group.

2. From peld-* (Gmc. felt-), prob. an extension of pel- in Lat. pellere (pel-d-* or pel-n-), perf. pepulī 'strike, drive'. Walde-P. 2.57. Falk-Torp 217. REW 3305.

OE–NE felt, (> NIr. feilt, McKenna), OHG, NHG filz, Du. vilt, etc.; Dan., Sw. filt fr. MLG vilt. Hence MLat. filtrum, It. feltro, Fr. feutre (OFr. feltre > Br. feltr), Sp. fieltro.

3. NG κετσές, like SCr. ćeča, etc. fr. Turk. keçe 'felt, coarse carpet'. Lokotsch 1148.

4. Lat. coācta ('felt' in Caesar BC 3.41; cf. also Plin. NH 8.73 lanae et per se coactae vestem faciunt), fr. pple. of cōgere 'compress'. Hence also late Lat. adj. coāctilis 'made of felt' (Edict. Diocl.), sb. coāctile 'felt', coāctiliārius 'felt-maker'.

5. NIr. bēabhar 'beaver, beaver hat' and 'felt' (Dinneen) fr. NE beaver, used also of a sort of felted cloth in 18th cent. (cf. NED s.v. 4).

W. llawban, back-formation to vb. llawbannu 'felt', lit. 'full by hand', cpd. of llaw 'hand' and pannu 'full (cloth)'.

6. ON þōfi : þœfa 'press', cf. þōf 'crowd, throng' : Skt. vi-, sam-tap- 'press'. Hence, or at least fr. some Gmc. form of this group, Lith., Lett. tūba, OPruss. tubo. Falk-Torp 1250. Mühl.-Endz. 4.277.

ON flōki (the usual word in NIcel.) : OE flōcan 'clap', Goth. flōkan 'lament', i.e. 'beat the breast', Lat. plangere 'beat, lament'. Walde-P. 2.92. Falk-Torp 239.

7. Russ. vojlok, cf. Pol. wojłok 'felt saddle-blanket', fr. Tartar ojlik 'covering'. Brückner 629.

Animals' skins provided man's earliest clothing and even after the use of woven cloth continued to play some part. Some of the words for 'skin, hide' (4.12) that are most frequently quotable as applied to clothing are repeated in the list, without further comment below. There are many other obscure terms for garments of skin among various people, as the Gmc. rēno, etc. Cf. Schrader, Reallex. 2.156 ff.

Considered here mainly are the words applied to the dressed skins with fine hair, the 'fur' of medieval and modern times. Some of these are derived from words for 'skin', but several are of quite different origin.

1. NG γοῦνα (esp. 'fur coat', with γουναρικός 'made of fur') = Byz. γοῦνα 'fur coat' (cf. Const. Porph., Cer. 381.11, as worn by the Goths inside out, Achmet ed. Drexl p. 118, 11.9–18), MLat. gunna id. (St. Boniface, 8th cent.; also Schol. Bern. ad Verg. Buc. et Georg., ed. Hagen, p. 946), whence OFr. gonne, goune 'long coat' (> ME goune, NE gown > W. gwn, 6.42). Here also (through Grk.) Bulg. guna 'cloak of goat's hair', etc. (Berneker 363), Alb. gunë 'woolen or fur cloak'. Ultimate orig. unknown (not Celtic), perh. non-IE. Pokorny, Z. sl. Ph. 4.103 f. NED s.v. gown.

2. From Lat. pellis (4.12) comes the late Lat. adj. pellīcius, -eus 'of skins', fem. sb. pellīcia > It. pelliccia (Fr. pelisse 'fur cloak'), Sp. pelliza (ON piliza, OE pylece 'fur cloak', NE obs. pilch), OHG pelliz, MHG belliz, NHG pelz, MLG pels (> Dan., Sw. pels). REW 6375. Weigand-H. 2.392.

Fr. fourrure (OFr. forreure 'fur lining'), fr. OFr. forrer 'line, line with fur', fr. OFr. fuerre 'sheath', fr. Gmc., cf. Goth. fōdr 'sheath' (NHG futter also 'lining'). But OFr. fuerre must itself have been used also for 'fur lining', though this is not attested. For it is the source of Br. feur both 'sheath' and 'fur' and ME furre, NE fur only in the secondary sense. REW 3405a. Wartburg 3.672 ff., NED s.v. fur.

Rum. blană, fr. Slavic, cf. Boh. blana 'membrane, fine fur', etc. (Berneker 69 f.). Tiktin 197 f.

3. Ir. crocenn 'skin' used of the 'golden fleece' (K. Meyer, Contr. 524).

NIr. fionnadh (used for the fine hair of the face and the fur of animals; but also for fur garments?) fr. MIr. findfad 'hair', cpd. of find 'hair' (4.14) and -bod 'be', with the sense of the composition entirely obscured. Pedersen 2.14.

W. ffwr, older ffwrri, etc., fr. ME furre, NE fur. Parry-Williams 157.

Br. feur ('sheath' and 'fur'), fr. OFr. fuerre (above, 2).

Br. foulinenn, orig. 'cured fur' (cf. Le Gonidec, s.v.), fr. MBr. fouliff (fr. Fr. fouler) 'full'.

4. In ON most of the words for articles of clothing made of fur are compounds of loð-, fr. loðinn 'hairy, shaggy' (actually a past pple. 'overgrown with', cf. Goth. liudan 'grow up', etc. 12.53), e.g. loðbrœkr 'fur breeches', loðkāpa 'fur cloak', etc., cf. NIcel. loðskinn 'fur'.

Du. bont, fr. MLG = MHG bunt 'multicolored fur' (in contrast to grā 'gray fur'), fr. adj. bunt 'with white and black stripes', this prob. fr. Lat. pūnctus 'dotted'. Weigand-H. 1.308. Kluge-G. 87. Franck–v. W. 82.

5. Lith. kailis, kailiniai (the latter usually 'fur garment'), etym. dub. (see 6.12, Skt. cela- 'clothes').

6. SCr.–ChSl. kožuchŭ, Boh. kožešina, fr. koža 'hide' (4.12). Hence Lett. kažuoks. Berneker 597.

SCr.–ChSl. krŭzno, SCr. krzno (Boh. krzno 'fur coat'), etym. disputed, perh. cognate with Ir. crocenn, etc. 'hide' (4.12). Hence MHG kursina, late OE crusne, MLat. crusna, crusina 'fur coat', borrowed through Slavic fur trade. Berneker 671.

Russ. mech (pl. mecha) : ChSl. měchŭ 'leather bottle', Russ. mech (pl. mechi) 'bellows', Boh. měch, Pol. miech 'sack', Lett. maiss 'sack', Skt. meṣa- 'ram, fleece' perh. orig. 'sheepskin'. Walde-P. 2.303. Berneker 2.46.

Pol. futro (also 'lining'), 16th cent. borrowing fr. NHG futter 'lining' (: Goth. fōdr, cf. Fr. fourrure, above, 2). Brückner 130.

Words for 'leather' originate mostly in words for 'hide, skin', etc. Some, many of them loanwords, show specialization from 'piece', 'cut', etc.

1. Grk. σκῦτος, orig. 'hide' (: OE hyd, etc., 4.12), but usually 'leather'. Cf. σκυτοτόμος 'leather-cutter' (Hom.), 'shoemaker', etc.

Grk. δέρμα 'skin, hide' (4.12) rarely used for 'leather', but often adj. δερμάτινος 'made of leather'.

NG πετσί, fr. It. pezza 'piece of cloth, piece' = Fr. pièce, NE piece, fr. a Gallic pettia* : Br. pez 'piece', W. peth 'part, thing'. Meyer, Neugr. Stud. 4.70. REW 6450.

Byz. τομάριον, NG τομάρι, dim. of τόμος 'slice' (: τέμνω 'cut'), thence 'scroll, tome'. Development through 'scroll' to the 'parchment' or 'skin' of the scroll and finally generalized to 'skin' and 'leather'.

2. Lat. corium (> It. cuoio, Fr. cuir, Sp. cuero), Skt. carman-, Av. čarəman-, all orig. 'hide' (4.12).

Rum. piele, fr. Lat. pellis 'hide' (4.12).

leder, etc., uncertain whether cognate groups (letro-) or orig. Celtic (letro- fr. pletro-* : Lat. pellis?) with early Gmc. borrowing. Pedersen 2.45. Or as orig. 'smoothed skin' (letro-* fr. lēitro-*) : Grk. λεῖος, Lat. lēvis 'smooth'? Kluge-G. 350.

4. Goth. skauda- in skaudaraip (acc. sg.) 'thong' : Grk. σκῦτος, etc. (above, 1). Feist 430.

Goth. filleins (adj. translating δερμάτινος 'leathern') : OHG fel, Lat. pellis 'hide' (4.12). Feist 152.

5. Lith. skūra, Lett. āda, orig. 'hide' (4.12).

6. ChSl., SCr., Russ. koža, Boh. kůže, orig. 'hide' (4.12).

Pol. skóra orig. 'hide' (4.12) or esp. skóra wyprawna, lit. 'tanned hide'.

The process of weaving is similar to that of the more primitive plaiting in basketwork, etc., and plaiting is in fact the ancestor of weaving. Beside the widespread inherited group of verbs for 'plait' (9.75), there is also a considerable group of cognates pointing to a probable IE verb for 'weave'. Schrader, Reallex. 2.632 ff.

1. IE au-, with extensions, a. webh-, b. audh-, wedh-, c. (a)weg-. Walde-P. 1.16 f., 247 f., 257.

Words for 'loom' are most frequently derived from IE stā-* 'stand', but with independent formations. Such derivation obviously confirms the priority of the upright loom. Otherwise the word is specialized from a general designation 'tool, instrument, equipment'. Some of the words are used also for the 'beam of the loom', as Grk. ἱστός, ME lome (NED s.v. loom, sb.[1] 3).

1. Grk. ἱστός, also 'mast', lit. 'anything which stands upright' : ἵστημι 'stand'.

NG ἐργαλειός, pop. ἀργαλειός, fr. Grk. ἐργαλεῖον 'tool' (9.422).

2. Lat. tēla ('web, warp' and 'loom') : texere 'weave' (6.33). Hence MLat. telārium, It. telaio, Sp. telar. Ernout-M. 1038. REW 8620.

Fr. métier, usually 'trade, craft', fr. Lat. ministerium 'service, occupation'. OFr. mestier was used also for various utensils, whence specialized to 'loom'. REW 5589. Bloch 2.61.

Rum. războiu, fr. Bulg., SCr. razboj (below, 6).

3. Ir. garmain (quotable only for 'weaver's beam', but perh. used also for the whole 'loom', like Grk. ἱστός, etc.) : ON karmr 'breastwork', Dan. karm 'frame'. Pedersen 1.494.

NIr. seol, identical with seol 'course, guidance', this = seol 'sail' (10.88), in sense back-formation fr. seolaim 'steer, guide'.

W. gwŷdd, orig. 'wooden frame', hence also 'plow', MW 'mast', and so not connected with gweu 'weave', but identical with gwŷdd 'trees, woods' (1.41).

Br. stern, orig. 'frame' : W. ystarn 'harness, packsaddle', lit. 'that which is spread out', prob. fr. Lat. sternere 'spread'. Loth, Mots lat. 217.

4. ON vefstaðr, or vefr, the older name for the loom, cpd. of vefa 'weave' and staðr 'that which is set up, stand' (IE stā-*).

ON vefstöll, Dan. vævestol, Sw. vävstol, MHG weberstuol, NHG webstuhl, lit. 'weaving support or equipment', Gmc. stōla-* (OE stōl 'chair', etc., 7.43) retaining its more primitive force. Falk-Torp 1172. Hellquist 1403.

ME lome, NE loom, fr. OE gelōma 'utensil, implement' (fr. the adv. gelōme = OHG gilōmo 'often', hence orig. 'a thing of frequent use'?) NED s.v.

5. Lith. staklės (pl.), cf. Lett. stakle 'post, fork', OPruss. stakle 'support', fr. IE stā-*. Walde-P. 2.606. Mühl.-Endz. 3.1040 f.

Lett. stāve : stāvs 'upright, standing', stāvēt 'stand', fr. IE stā-*. Mühl.-Endz. 3.1052 f.

Lett. stelles, fr. MLG stelle 'rack, frame, weaver's rack' : OS stellian, OHG stellen, etc. 'place'. Mühl.-Endz. 3.1060.

Lett. kangas, fr. Liv. kāṅgas 'tissue, web'. Mühl.-Endz. 2.154.

6. ChSl. postavŭ (also 'web, cloth'), Boh. stav, SCr. stan (spec. tkalački stan), Russ. stanok (spec. tkackij stanok), all derivs. of IE stā-*.

W.	gwnïo	MHG	siuwen, næjen
Br.	gwriat	NHG	nähen

The majority of the verbs for 'sew' belong to an inherited group.

1. IE *syū-, *sīw-, *sū-. Walde-P. 2.514 ff. Ernout-M. 1003. Feist 425.

Lat. suere; Goth. siujan, ON *sȳja (only in pl. pret. sēðu, and past pple. sǿðr), Dan., Sw. sy, OE sīwian, sēowian, ME sewe, sowe, NE sew, OHG siuwan, MHG siuwen; Lith. siūti, Lett. šūt; ChSl., SCr. šiti, Boh. šíti, Pol. szyć, Russ. šit'; Skt. sīv-, syū-.

ON sauma, Sw. sömma, denom. fr. ON saumr = OHG soum, OE sēam 'seam', fr. a Gmc. variant of the same root.

It. cucire, Fr. coudre, Sp. coser, Rum. coase, fr. the Lat. cpd. con-suere 'sew together'. REW 2174.

2. Grk. ῥάπτω, NG pop. ῥάβω (new pres. to aor. ἔρραψα, like κόβω 'cut', etc. : Lith. verpti 'spin' (6.31).

3. Ir. uagim, NIr. fuaghaim, of disputed etym., perh. : Lat. augēre, Grk. αὔξω, Goth. aukan 'increase', ON auka 'increase, add'. A similar semantic change fr. 'add to' to 'fasten together', hence 'sew', is partially effected in NIcel. auka saman 'piece together'. Pedersen 1.54 (rejected by Walde-P. 1.22).

W. gwnïo, Br. gwriat (for n > r in Br. cf. Pedersen 1.155), specialized fr. 'make' : Ir. do-gnīu 'do, make' (9.11). Pedersen 1.60.

4. OHG nājan, MHG næjen, NHG nähen, Du. naaien : Grk. νέω, Lat. nēre, etc. 'spin' (6.31). The use of this root in the sense of 'sew' (cf. also Goth. nēþla, etc. 'needle', 6.36) instead of 'spin' is peculiar to Gmc. Cf. Grk. ῥάπτω 'sew' : Lith. verpti 'spin'.

W.	nodwydd	MHG	nādele
Br.	nadoz	NHG	nadel

Words for 'needle' are mostly either derived from verbs for 'sew', or cognate with words denoting sharp pointed objects.

1. Grk. ῥαφίς, fr. ῥάπτω 'sew' (6.36).

Grk. βελόνη (replacing ῥαφίς in Att.), NG βελόνα, βελόνι : ὀβελός 'spit', Lith. gelti 'sting, ache', etc. Walde-P. 1.689 f. Boisacq 118.

2. Lat. acus (> It. ago, Rum. ac; Fr. aiguille, Sp. aguja fr. MLat. dim. acūcula) : ācer 'sharp', aciēs 'sharp edge or point', Grk. ἄκρος 'topmost', ἀκίς 'sharp object' ('needle' in Hipp.), Skt. açri- 'edge', etc. Walde-P. 1.28 ff. Ernout-M. 8. Walde-H. 1.11. REW 119, 130.

3. Ir. snāthat, NIr. snāthad, W. nodwydd, Br. nadoz, fr. IE *snō- as in words for 'thread' (Ir. snāthe, etc., 6.38) beside *snē- in words for 'spin' (6.31). Walde-P. 2.694 f. Pedersen 1.85.

4. Goth. nēþla, ON nāl, OE nǣdl, OHG nādela, etc., general Gmc., fr. *snē- in words for 'spin', but in Gmc. 'sew', as OHG nājan, etc. (6.35).

Lith., Lett. adata : Lith. adyti 'darn, mend', Lett. adīt 'knit', outside root connection dub. Mühl.-Endz. 1.11.

5. ChSl. *igŭla (adj. igŭlinŭ, Gospels), SCr., Russ. igla, Boh. jehla, Pol. igła, OPruss. ayculo, etym. dub. Berneker 423. Brückner 189, 208.

6. Skt. sūci- : Skt. çūka- 'beard of grain, sting', Av. sūkā- 'needle', with Skt. s for ç, perh. influenced by the init. of sīv-, syū- 'sew' (6.35). Barth. 1582. Wackernagel-Debrunner, KZ 67.174 f.

Many of the verbs listed mean simply 'color' and are used alike for 'dye' (cloth) and 'paint' (a board, house, etc.). But several are from the notion of 'dip', specifically applicable to the process of dyeing cloth.

1. Grk. βάπτω 'dip' (Hom.+), hence 'dye', cf. βαφή 'dipping, dye', βαφεύς 'dyer', NG βάφω (new pres. to aor. ἔβαψα) : ON k(v)efja 'submerge, overwhelm', OSw. kvaf 'depth of the sea', etc. Walde-P. 1.674. Boisacq 114. Falk-Torp 504.

2. Lat. tingere 'dip, soak', hence 'dye' > It. tingere, Fr. teindre, Sp. teñir 'dye, stain'), cf. tīnctus 'a dipping, dyeing', tīnctor 'dyer' : Grk. τέγγω 'wet, moisten', OHG thunkōn, dunkōn 'dip, soak'. Walde-P. 1.726. Ernout-M. 1041. REW 8750.

Lat. inficere, lit. 'put into', hence esp. 'put into a dyeing vat, dye, color' (cf. infector 'dyer'), cpd. of facere 'do, make'. Ernout-M. 324.

Lat. fūcāre, rarely 'dye' (wool), mostly 'paint the face', deriv. of fūcus name of a plant and the dye made from it, 'rouge', borrowed fr. Grk. φῦκος id. Ernout-M. 396.

Rum. boi (cf. boiangiu 'dyer') : boia 'dye' fr. Turk. boya 'dye, paint'. Lokotsch 328.

Rum. văpsi, reg. vb. for 'paint', but also and orig. 'dye', fr. Grk. aor. infin. βάψαι (above, 1), perh. through Slavic (late ChSl. vapĭsati 'stain', etc.). Tiktin 1713.

3. Ir. dathaigim (quotable?), NIr. dathuighim deriv. of Ir. dath 'color, dye' (15.61).

7. Skt. ra(ñ)jaya-, caus. of ra(ñ)j- 'be bright, colored, red' (cf. rāga- 'coloring, dyeing', rakta- 'colored, red') : Grk. ῥέζω 'dye', ῥεγεύς or ῥαγεύς 'dyer' (all rare). Walde-P. 2.366.

6.41–6.59. The attempt to set up even approximate synonyms meets with more than the usual difficulty in the case of articles of dress, owing to the radical differences in the costume of various peoples and periods. Thus there are so many kinds of cloaks and coats with their distinctive names that it is difficult to select the most important, and in the case of some words even the assignment to one or the other group is arbitrary. Conversely, there is nothing in early periods like the modern trousers, which evolved from the short breeches or the long stockings or leggings. The early Cretan figurines show a remarkably modern woman's costume with separate jacket and skirt, but there was nothing similar among the Greeks or Romans of the classical period. Their 'tunic', a jersey-like garment, might from the point of view of function be called a 'coat' (and is in fact generally rendered by words for 'coat' in modern versions of the NT, e.g. Lk. 6.29 ἱμάτιον–χιτών, 'cloak'–'coat'), or a 'shirt'. A long coat may become the modern man's 'coat' or the woman's 'skirt' (NHG rock). There is overlapping between 'shoes' and 'stockings' and between 'stockings' and 'trousers', so that words of the same cognate group may denote any one of the three (as derivs. of Lat. calceus 'shoe').

Loanwords are notably numerous, several of oriental origin, and often showing a radical change of application.

A mine of information on medieval and later European costume is Viollet-le-Duc, Dict. rais. du mobilier français, vols. 3, 4.

Under 'cloak' are grouped the more important words for a loose outer garment, without defining their more special form, even where this is known, and without attempting to include all the special varieties of cloaks, some of which are rather 'shawls' or 'capes'. For the great variety of Greek and Roman cloaks, cf. Daremberg et Saglio s.v. pallium.

1. Grk. ἱμάτιον 'garment' (6.12), esp. 'cloak'.

Grk. χλαῖνα (> Lat. laena 'rough woolen cloak', perh. through Etruscan), χλανίς, orig.? Boisacq 1062. Ernout-M. 518. Walde-H. 1.749.

Grk. φᾶρος φάρος, : φάραι· ὑφαίνειν, πλέκειν Hesych., φορμός 'woven basket', Lith. burva 'a sort of garment', burė 'sail' Walde-P. 2.164.

Grk. μανδύα (Aesch. of a Liburnian cloak), later μανδύας as Byz. and NG (lit.; but μαντύα 'military cloak or overcoat'), doubtless a loanword, but source?

2. Lat. toga : tegere 'cover' (12.26).

Lat. pallium (> OE pæll, ME, NE pall, cf. NED s.v. pall, sb.[1] 5), perh. fr. *par(u)lā- dim. of a borrowing fr. Grk. φᾶρος (above). Walde-P. 2.58. Ernout-M. 724.

Lat. paenula, fr. Grk. φαινόλα (Rhinthon) = late Grk. φαινόλης (by metathesis also φελόνης NT, pap., etc.), this perh. orig. 'a bright-colored or shining garment' : φαινόλις 'light-bringing, light-giving', φαίνω 'show forth, reveal'. Ernout-M. 722. E. Fraenkel, KZ 42, 115.

Lat. lacerna, perh. fr. lacer 'torn, mangled' : Grk. λακίς 'rag', λακίζω 'tear up', Pol. łach, Russ. lochma 'rag'. Walde-P. 2.419 f. Walde-H. 1.743. Ernout-M. 515 ("only pop. etym.").

Late Lat. mantellum, dim. of a Celto-Iberian mantum, whence Sp. manto. Hence It. mantello, OFr. mantel (> ME mantel, NE mantle), Fr. manteau (> Rum. manta); Ir. mattal, matal (fr. Br.	mantell

The modern 'overcoat', which has so largely displaced the 'cloak' in men's attire, is commonly expressed by words for 'over' or 'top', esp. in phrases with words for 'coat', etc. Thus Fr. pardessus (> Rum. pardesiu), sb. use of adv. pardessus 'above, over'; Boh. svrchník, fr. svrchní 'upper' (: vrch 'top', 12.33); Sp. sobretodo, NE overcoat, NHG überrock, Du. overjas, Dan. overfrakke, Sw. overrock; Lett. virssvārks (virsus 'top'); NG ἐπανωφόρι (-φόρι : φορέω 'wear', φόρεμα 'garment', 6.12); NHG überzieher fr. überziehen 'pull over'; SCr. ogrtač fr. ogrtati 'hang about' (Berneker 372).

Fr. paletot, fr. (instead of conversely, as formerly assumed) the earlier attested ME paltock a kind of short coat (NED s.v.), perh. fr. pall 'cloak' (Lat. pallium). Baist, Z. rom. Ph. 32.430 ff. REW 6178. Gamillscheg 661. Hence, in the very different modern use of the Fr. paletot as a loose outer coat or cloak, It. palto, NG παλτό, Sp. paletó, Rum. palton, Pol. palto, Russ. pal'to 'overcoat'.

Sp. gabán, orig. the peasant's heavy coat, but kept in part for the modern 'overcoat', fr. Pers., Arab. ḳabā a kind of cloak. REW 4648. Lokotsch 971.

Sp. abrigo 'protection, shelter' (REW 560), used also for 'overcoat'.

NIr. cōta mōr, casōg mhōr, W. cot fawr, all 'greatcoat', W. also cot uchaf (uchaf 'upper' fr. uch 'above, over').

Lith. apsiaustas, see 6.41.

6.42 WOMAN'S DRESS

This is most commonly expressed by more generic words for 'clothing, garment' (6.12), used (with or without 'woman's') in this special application, as NE dress (now the most common use), NHG kleid, Russ. plat'e, etc. A full list would be in large measure a repetition of words included in 6.12. But a few others that apply mainly to a woman's dress are given here.

1. Grk. πέπλος (sometimes 'covering', also man's 'cloak', but esp. the long robe worn by women), reduplicated form (πε-πλο-) of IE *pel- in Lat. pellis, OE fell, etc. 'hide', ON feldr 'cloak', etc. Less prob., since 'covering' seems to be the earlier sense, fr. *pel- in words for 'fold'. Walde-P. 2.56, 58. Boisacq 769.

NG pop. φουστάνι (beside φόρεμα 'garment', 6.12, esp. woman's 'costume, dress'), fr. It. fustagno 'fustian', fr. Arab.

Fustat name of a suburb of Cairo where the cloth was made. Lokotsch 621 (where φουστάνι is wrongly defined, as if = φουστανέλλα 'kilt').

2. Lat. stola (in earliest use not restricted to women), fr. Grk. στολή 'equipment', esp. 'clothing, garment' : στέλλω 'order, arrange'.

Fr. robe (= It. roba 'thing, stuff, wares', Sp. ropa 'clothes, dry goods', etc.) fr. Frank. *rauba = OHG roub, pl. rouba 'booty', OE rēaf 'booty, clothes' (6.12, 20.48). REW 7090. Gamillscheg 768.

Rum. rochie, through SCr. roklja fr. dim. form of NHG rock 'coat, skirt' (6.43). Tiktin 1333.

3. Br. sae = W. sae, Fr. saie 'say' (a kind of cloth), Ir. sāi (gl. tunica, lacerna), all fr. late Lat. saia for Gallo-Lat. sagum 'coarse blanket or cloak', Walde-P. 2.448. Ernout-M. 887. Pedersen 1.216. Loth, Mots lat. 203 (Br. fr. Fr.).

4. Dan. kjole, shortened form of kjortel = ON kyrtill 'kirtle, tunic', fr. ON *kortr, Dan. kort 'short' (12.59). Falk-Torp 518.

ME goune, NE gown (> W. gwn, cf. Loth, RC 20.353), in 18th cent. the usual word, later less common than dress, but revived in fashionable use (cf. NED s.v.; the statement that in U.S. "it has always been the current word" is not correct), fr. OFr. gonne, goune 'long coat', this fr. MLat. gunna 'fur coat', for which see 6.28 under NG γοῦνα 'fur'.

Du. japon, fr. Fr. jupon 'petticoat, skirt' (6.46).

Grk. χιτών, Lat. tunica, already given under 'coat', were the nearest equivalents of 'shirt' in the classical period. Grk. χιτωνίσκος and χιτώνιον were applied to a short χιτών or woman's shift. Grk. ὑπένδυμα, ὑπενδύτης 'undergarment', Lat. tunica interior and Lat. subūcula (fr. *sub-uere, parallel to ind-uere, exuere) would be a sort of undershirt. But the use of a linen shirt under a woollen tunic first appears in the 4th century A.D. Cf. Marquardt, Röm. Privatleben 470, 552.

In the older languages there are no words for 'collar' as part of a garment, but only as an article of adornment, 'necklace' (6.75). Most of the words are from those for 'neck', a few from words for other circular forms or for 'hem, border, flap'.

1. Derivs. of Lat. collum 'neck' (4.28), either directly or fr. Lat. collāre 'band or chain for the neck'. REW 2042, 2053.

a. It. collo, Fr. col, Sp. cuello, also 'neck' (obsolete as 'neck' in French, being replaced by cou), hence the dims. It. colletto, Fr. collet.

b. It. collare (> NG κολλάρο); Rum. guler, dim. guleraș, perh. through MHG goller, koller (variants of gollier, etc.) or Hung. galler (cf. Tiktin 707); ME coler, NE collar (> NIr. coilēar, W. coler); MHG gollier, kollier, etc., fr. The Cretan representations of the Minoan female dress show a distinct skirt, but there is nothing corresponding in classical Greek or Roman costume.

Several of the words entered are used for 'skirt' in general, including 'underskirt, petticoat', but those used only for the latter are not included.

1. NG φοῦστα (> Rum. fustă), a shortened form of NG φουστάνι 'dress' (6.42).

2. It. gonnella, in earliest use a long coat with skirts (cf. Encycl. Ital. s.v.) dim. of gonna, fr. MLat. gunna 'fur coat' (see under NG γοῦνα 'fur', 6.28). REW 3919.

In the evolution of costume, the short breeches were a development of the loincloth, and the long trousers a development of the short breeches, in part by a union with the long stockings or leggings (hence the relation of some of the words to those for 'stockings'). But in classical Greek and Roman costume there was neither loincloth (διάζωμα once worn by athletes at Olympia, Thuc. 1.6) nor any form of breeches.

The Greeks knew the trousers worn by oriental peoples, which they called ἀναξυρίδες, a foreign word, or θύλακοι 'sacks'; and the Romans became acquainted with the brācae worn by the peoples of north Europe, which they eventually, despite even legal opposition to this barbarian garment, adopted.

Although the early North European 'breeches' were in part long trousers (cf. figures in Schrader, Reallex. 1.510 f.), many of the modern words of this group are used mainly of short breeches (as in NE knee-breeches), but locally without such restriction. The 'stocking' was unknown to the classical peoples. In medieval times it is not yet clearly defined, being confused with 'shoe' or 'leggings, breeches', of one or the other of which it originally formed a part.

In some of the modern languages a distinction is made between the long 'stocking' as now worn by women (or men in sporting costume) and the short stocking, half-hose, 'sock' of the ordinary men's wear. So Fr. bas vs. chaussette, NE stocking vs. sock (such words for 'sock' being added in the list after a semicolon). But in many languages the old words for 'stocking' continued to be used comprehensively, either generally or locally, e.g. It. calza, NE stocking (in parts of New England at least; I still normally call what I wear stockings), NHG strumpf (cf. Paul, Deutsches Wtb. s.v.).

1. It. calza (> NG κάλτσα) = Fr. chausse 'short breeches', dim. chaussette 'sock', fr. MLat. *calcea fem. of calceus 'shoe' (6.51).

The present use arose fr. ellipsis of the first member of the cpd. hosenstrumpf 'trunk of the hose', occurring already in the 16th cent. Falk-Torp 1186 f. Weigand-H. 2.993.

Under 'shoe' are considered the words of most general application to footwear, with omission of many that denote special types of shoes. For the great variety of such special types among the Greeks and Romans, cf. Pauly-Wissowa s.v. Schuh, with references.

1. Grk. ὑπόδημα : ὑποδέω 'bind under', δέω 'bind' (9.16).

Grk. πέδῑλον (in Hom. 'sandal') : πούς, gen. ποδός 'foot'.

Grk. κρηπίς (> Lat. crepida), Lith. kurpė, Lett. kurpe : Ir. cairem, W. crydd, Br. kere 'cobbler', SCr. krplje 'snowshoe', prob. fr. a kerep-* beside *(s)ker- 'cut'. Walde-P. 1.425.

NG pop. παπούτσι, fr. Turk. pabuç (Pers. pāpūš, lit. 'foot-covering', cpd. of pā- 'foot' and pūš fr. pūšīdan 'cover'). Lokotsch 1625.

2. Lat. calceus, whence or fr. MLat. calcea* and other derivs., It. calzatura, Fr. chaussure, Sp. calzado, Rum. încalţaminte 'footwear' : Lat. calx, -cis 'heel'. Ernout-M. 138. REW 1496–98.

Lat. soccus, a sort of low shoe worn by Greeks and comic actors (important only for the borrowed Gmc. words for 'sock' 6.49), loanword, like σύκχος, συκχάς (Hesych.) 'a sort of shoe'. Ernout-M. 948.

It. scarpa, perh. as 'leather shoe' fr. OHG scharpe 'leather purse'. Brüch, Z. rom. Ph. 40.647. REW 7981c.

Fr. soulier, with change of suffix fr. OFr. souler, Prov. sotlar, fr. MLat. subtelāre*, fr. subtel 'hollow of foot'. REW 8397. Gamillscheg 812.

Sp. zapato (It. ciabatta, Fr. savate 'worn-out shoe'), fr. Pers. čabat 'bast shoe'. Hence also WhRuss. čebot 'boot', etc. REW 2448. Lokotsch 379.

Rum. gheată (pl. ghete), through It. ghetta fr. Fr. guêtre 'gaiter', fr. Gmc., cf. MHG, NHG rist 'instep', OE wryst 'wrist'. REW 9577.

3. Ir. accrann, prob. (with metathesis for arcc-) : W. archen 'clothing, shoe', OW archenatou 'shoes', Br. arc'hena 'put shoes on', arc'henad 'shoe', perh. through notion of 'covering, protection' : Lat. arcēre 'inclose, prevent'. Stokes KZ 41.381. Walde-P. 1.80.

Ir. cūarān : MW curan 'boot', perh. fr. the root *(s)keu- 'cover' as W. esgid, Goth. skōhs, etc. (below). Walde-P. 2.547. Otherwise Pedersen 1.176 (: ChSl. črěvĭjĭ, etc., below, 6).

Ir. as(s)a, ass (K. Meyer, Contrib. 138), etym.? Walde-P. 2.3. Walde-H. 1.99.

Ir. brōc, NIr. brōg, prob. fr. ON brōk, pl. brœkr 'breeches' (6.48), which were sometimes provided with feet, called specifically leistabrœkr (in contrast to leistalausar brœkr). Leather breeches of this sort are still used by Icelandic and Faroese fishermen. Zimmer, KZ 30.87 f.

Falk, Altwestnordische Kleiderkunde 118.

W. esgid, perh. fr. ped-skūto-, cpd. of IE pĕd- 'foot' and skeu-t-* fr. *(s)keu- 'cover' as in Grk. σκῦτος 'leather', etc. (6.29). Walde-P. 2.549. Osthoff, Z. celt. Ph. 6.398 ff.

Br. botez, fr. Fr. botte 'boot' (6.52).

4. Goth. skōhs, ON skōr, OE scōh, OHG scuoh, etc., general Gmc., prob. fr. skōu-ko-, IE skeu- 'cover'. Walde-P. 2.548. Falk-Torp 1016. Feist 434.

5. Lith. kurpė, Lett. kurpe : Grk. κρηπίς, etc. (above, 1).

6. ChSl. sapogŭ (usual word for ὑπόδημα in Gospels, etc.; Jagić, Entstehungsgesch. 393), Russ. sapog (esp. 'boot', but also used for 'shoe', instead of bašmak regarded as somewhat vulgar), etym.?

ChSl. črěvĭjĭ, Boh. střevíc, Pol. trzewik, SCr. dial. crevlja (cf. crevljar 'cobbler'), ORuss. čereviji (pl.), Bulg. crěve (pl.), perh. as orig. 'leather, hide', fr. IE *(s)ker- 'cut'. Berneker 151.

SCr. postola, fr. Turk. postol 'soldier's shoe'. Lokotsch 1667.

SCr. cipela (cf. Slov. cipele 'ladies' shoes'), fr. Hung. cipö, cipellö 'shoe'. Berneker 130.

Russ. bašmak, fr. Turk. başmak 'shoe, sandal' (cf. SCr. pašmag, Pol. arch. and dial. baszmag 'sort of shoe'). Berneker 45.

ChSl. obuvĭ (rare), SCr. obuća, Boh. obuv, Pol. obuwie, Russ. obuv' : ChSl. obuti, Lith. auti 'wear shoes', Av. aoθra- 'shoe', IE eu-*, in Lat. ind-uere 'dress' (6.11).

7. Skt. upānah-, fr. upa-nah- 'tie under' (cf. Grk. ὑπόδημα).

Skt. pādukā- (rarely pādū-) fr. pad- 'foot'.

Av. aoθra- : Lith. auti, ChSl. ob-uti 'wear shoes', etc. (above, 6). Barth. 42.

1. Grk. κόθορνος, whence Lat. cothurnus (esp. 'tragedian's boot'), a loanword, perh. of Lydian orig. J. S. Jongkees, JHS 55.80.

Grk. ἐνδρομίς : ἔνδρομος 'running'.

2. Lat. pērō (esp. 'soldiers' and waggoners' boot') : Grk. (Hom., etc.) πήρα 'leather bag, wallet' (whence late Lat. pēra 'wallet'), πηρῖν 'scrotum', root connection? Boisacq 781.

Lat. caliga, perh. (but difficulties), fr. cpd. calco-liga* : calx 'heel', calceus 'shoe', and ligāre 'bind'. Kent, BSL 26.110 ff. Ernout-M. 134. Walde-H. 1.138.

It. stivale, fr. Prov. estibal = OFr. estivel 'boot', fr. estive 'pipe', Lat. stīps 'stake'? So REW 8264.

But the objection to the old deriv. fr. MLat. aestīvālia, lit. 'belonging to the summer' (fr. Lat. aestīvus, fr. aestus 'summer'), but actually described as 'high boots', is invalid. Cf. esp. Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 487 f.

Hence NG στιβάλι, late ON styfill, Dan. støvle, Sw. stövel, late OHG stiful, MHG stival, NHG stiefel (cf. Falk-Torp 1201).

OFr. bote (> ME bote, NE boot), Fr. botte, Sp. bota, orig. much disputed, but prob. belongs with Fr. pied bot 'club-foot', fr. Gmc., LG butt 'stumpy', etc. Wartburg 1.667 f. Gamillscheg 123. REW 1239a.

For the 'slipper' intended for house wear only modern words are listed. For earlier periods the nearest approximation would be words for 'sandal', as Grk. σάνδαλον, Lat. solea (> Goth. sulja), or for a light 'shoe', some of which are included in 6.51.

1. MLat. pantofla (1482, Du Cange), It. pantofola (> NG παντόφλα), Fr. pantoufle (> NE pantofle now obs.), Sp. pantufla, prob. the creation of a 15th cent. humanist, based upon a fictitious Grk. *παντό-φελλος 'all-cork' (no such cpd. is quotable for any period). Hence also, through Fr. or It., NHG pantoffel (> Boh., Pol. pantofel, Lith. pantaplis, Rum. pantof), Du. pantoffel, and the shortened early Du., LG toffel, tuffel (> Dan. tøffel, Sw. toffel, Lett. tupele, Russ. tufel', tuflja). Sp. zapatilla, dim. of zapato 'shoe' (6.51).

Rum. papuc, SCr. papuča, fr. Turk. pabuç, source of NG παπούτσι 'shoe' (6.51).

2. NIr. slipēir, fr. NE slipper.

W. yslopan, evidently the same word as the archaic llopan, llop 'boot, buskin, shoe' (for preservation of initial s- by prothetic y- cf. ysnoden 'lace', 6.26), fr. ME sloppe, slop an unidentified form of footwear, the name of which seems identical with sloppe for other articles of clothing 'loose jacket, gown, wide breeches, etc.' (cf. NED s.v.).

Br. arc'henad-kambr (Vallée, who gives also pantouflenn), lit. 'chamber-shoe'.

3. ME slypper, NE slipper, fr. the OE vb. slip, cf. the rare OE slīpe-scōh 'slip-shoe', NE slip.

4. Lith. šliurė, fr. LG dial. schlorre, schlurre 'slipper', fr. schlorren, schlurren 'shuffle in walking' (Weigand-H. 2.740).

5. Pol. patynek, patynka, fr. It. pattino 'sort of shoe', now 'skate', fr. Fr. patin 'shoe with wooden sole, skate', fr. patte 'paw'. Brückner 399. REW 6301.

A distinction between 'shoemaker' and 'cobbler' as 'one who mends shoes' is rarely maintained and is ignored here. Most of the words are based on some of those for 'shoe' or 'boot', either derivs. or cpds. with agent-nouns of vbs. for 'make' or 'sew'. A few are words for 'leatherworker', or simply 'sewer' in specialized application.

1. Grk. ὑποδηματοποιός (IG 2².1559.48, etc., also lit. NG), cpd. of ὑπόδημα 'shoe' (6.51) and -ποιός 'maker'.

Grk. σκῡτοτόμος, cpd. of σκῦτος 'leather' (6.29) and -τομος 'cutter' (: τέμνω 'cut'), used for 'leatherworker' in general (cf. Hom. Il. 7.221), but esp. 'shoemaker', as also the deriv. σκῡτεύς.

Grk. νευρορράφος, lit. 'cord-sewer', cpd. of νεῦρον 'nerve, fibre, cord' and -ραφος fr. ῥάπτω 'sew' (6.36).

Late Grk. τζαγγάριος (6th cent. pap., Byz.; σαγγάριος Hesych.), NG τσαγγάρης, fr. late τζάγγα (also τζαγγίον, freq. Byz.) a kind of 'shoe', through Syrian fr. a Persian word = Av. zanga- 'ankle' : Skt. jaṅghā- 'leg from ankle to knee'. G. Meyer, Z. rom. Ph. 16.525 f.

NG παπουτσῆς, fr. παπούτσι 'shoe' (6.51).

2. Lat. sūtor, fr. suere 'sew' (6.36). Hence OFr. sueur, OE sūtere, OHG sūtāri, MHG cpd. schuoch-sūtære, whence NHG schuster.

Lat. calceolārius (> It. calzolaio), fr. calceolus, dim. of calceus 'shoe' (6.51).

It. ciabattino, Fr. savetier, Sp. zapatero, fr. It. ciabatta, Fr. savate 'worn-out shoe', Sp. zapato 'shoe' (6.51).

Fr. cordonnier, OFr. cordouanier, fr. cordouan 'leather from Cordova'. REW 2230. Gamillscheg 255.

Rum. cizmar, fr. cizmă 'boot' (6.52).

3. Ir. cairem, NIr. (obs.) caiream, W. crydd, Br. kere, kereour : Grk. κρηπίς, Lith. kurpė 'shoe' (6.51).

NIr. grēasaidhe (Dinneen, etc.; McKenna gives only the borrowed coiblēir), also in general 'artisan, skilled worker', fr. grēas 'design, art, craft', esp. 'needlework', Ir. grēss 'art', of dub. etym. (cf. Macbain 205).

4. ON skōari, OE scōhere (both rare), fr. ON skōr, OE scōh 'shoe' (6.51).

Dan. skomager, Sw. skomakare, ME scomakere, NE shoemaker, Du. schoenmaker, NHG schuhmacher, all obvious cpds. of words for 'shoe' and 'maker'.

OE scōhwyrhta, MHG schuochwürhte, cpds. of words for 'shoe' and agent-nouns of OE wyrcan, OHG wurchen 'make' (9.11).

ME cobelere, NE cobbler, etym.? NED s.v.

OHG scuohbuozo, scuohbuzare, cpds. of word for 'shoe' and agent-nouns fr. buozen 'make better' = Goth. bōtjan 'avail, profit' (cf. OE bōt 'help, remedy').

5. Lith. kurpius, kurpininkas, Lett. kurpnieks, fr. Lith. kurpė, Lett. kurpe 'shoe' (6.51).

6. ChSl. sapogošĭvĭcĭ (late), cpd. of sapogŭ 'shoe' and šĭvĭcĭ 'sewer' = Boh. švec, Pol. szewc 'shoemaker', agent-nouns of ChSl. šiti 'sew', etc. (6.36).

ChSl. sapožĭnikŭ (late), Russ. sapožnik, fr. ChSl. sapogŭ, Russ. sapog 'shoe', 'boot' (6.51).

SCr. postolar, fr. postola 'shoe' (6.51).

SCr. obućar, Boh. obuvník, fr. SCr. obuća, Boh. obuv 'footwear, shoe' (6.51).

SCr. čizmar, fr. čizma 'boot' (6.52).

Russ. bašmačnik, fr. bašmak 'shoe' (6.51).

7. Skt. pādūkṛt-, pādūkāra-, cpds. of pādū- = pādukā- 'shoe' (6.51) and agent-nouns of kṛ- 'do, make'.

Skt. carmakāra-, also 'leatherworker' (in general), fr. carman- 'hide, leather' (6.29) and kāra- (as above).

'Hat' and 'cap' are given in this order in the list, where a clear distinction can be made. In most cases 'cap' or 'hood', according to the modern notion, would better describe the types of headgear worn in ancient and medieval times.

1. Derivs. of MLat. cappa 'a sort of headgear' (cf. It. cappa, Sp. capa 'cloak', 6.41).

It. cappello (> NG καπέλλο), Fr. chapeau, fr. dim. MLat. cappellus; OE cæppe, ME cappe, NE cap (> W. cap, NIr. caipīn with dim. suffix); SCr. kapa, kapice, SCr., Russ. šapka, Boh. čapka, Pol. czapka (czapa), the Slavic forms with š- and č- perh. through Fr. chape 'cope' (cf. Berneker 483 f.); Pol. kapelusz fr. It. cappellucio deriv. (now depreciatory, 'old worn-out hat') of cappello; Rum. şapcă fr. Slavic.

2. Grk. πέτασος (> Lat. petasus) fr. πετα- of πετάννῡμι 'spread out'. Walde-P. 2.18.

Grk. πῖλος, Lat. pilleus, orig. words for 'felt' (6.27).

Grk. κυνῆ, orig. 'cap of dog's skin', fem. of adj. κύνεος, fr. κύων, gen. κυνός 'dog'.

NG σκοῦφος, σκούφια, fr. It. scuffia, cuffia 'sort of headdress', MLat. cofea 'hood' (Fr. coiffe), prob. fr. Gmc., cf. OHG chuppha 'head-covering used under helmet', also 'woman's headgear'. REW 2024. Brüch, Z. rom. Ph. 38.676. Wartburg 2.838.

3. It. berretto (Fr. béret), fr. OProv. beret, OFr. barrete, derivs. of Lat. birrus 'cloak with cowl', perh. of Gall. orig. (Ir. berr 'short', etc.). REW 1117a. Ernout-M. 110. Walde-H. 1.107.

Sp. sombrero, fr. sombra 'shade' (1.63).

Sp. gorra, fr. Basque gorri 'red'. REW 3822.

Rum. pălărie, of dub. orig., perh. by dissim. for părărie* fr. păr 'hair' (Lat. pilus). Tiktin 1110.

4. Ir. culpait (NIr. culpaid) 'hood', most common sort of head-covering, fr. Lat. culcita 'sack of feathers, cushion'. Vendryes, De hib. voc. 134.

Br. tok, tog fr. Fr. toque a kind of 'cap', fr. Sp. toca (orig. Basque?). Henry 265. REW 8601a. Gamillscheg 849.

Br. kalabousenn, also kara- (cf. Ernault, Vallée), apparently, as named for its shape, fr. early Fr. calabasse, Cat. carabassa, etc. (REW 1623, Gamillscheg 172) 'calabash'.

5. ON hǫttr, Dan. hat, Sw. hatt, OE hætt, ME, NE hat, and, with different vowel grade, OHG, MHG huot, NHG hut, Du. hoed (= OE hōd, NE hood), fr. IE kădh-* 'cover, protect' in Lat. cassis 'helmet', OHG huoten 'protect', etc. Walde-P. 1.341 f. Falk-Torp 384. Walde-H. 1.177.

Br.	maneg

Most of the words for 'glove' are derived from those for 'hand' (4.33) or 'finger' (4.34).

1. Grk. χειρίς, covering for the hand, 'glove' (Hom., etc.), or for the arm, 'sleeve', fr. χείρ 'hand'.

NG χειρόχτι (also χερ-), fr. Byz. χερόρτι (Chron. Mor.), χειρόρτιον (Du Cange), this, with haplology and vowel change, fr. *χειραρτάρια (cf. ἀρτάρια 'felt shoes' Suid.), cpd., second part fr. root of ἀραρίσκω 'fit'. Koraes, Ἄτακτα 2.429. Hatzidakis, Ἀθηνᾶ 22.205 f.

2. Lat. manica, 'long sleeve of a tunic covering arm and hand', fr. manus 'hand'. Hence (Romance words for 'sleeve', but) W., Br. maneg 'glove'. Pedersen 1.193. Loth, Mots lat. 184.

Fr. gant (> It. guanto, Sp. guante, NG γάντι), fr. Frank. want*, cf. EFris. want, wante, ON vǫttr 'mitten', fr. the root of OHG wintan, OE windan, etc. 'turn around, wind'. The name must orig. have applied to a strip of cloth wrapped about the hand to protect it from sword-blows, a frequent practice in the Icelandic sagas. This is further indicated by the compound ON band-vettlingar, lit. 'band-mittens'. REW 9500. Falk-Torp 1351 f.

Rum. mănuşă (also 'handle'), deriv. of Lat. manus (Rum. mîna) 'hand'.

3. Ir. lāmind, lāmann, NIr. lāmhainn, fr. Ir. lām 'hand'.

4. ON glōfi, OE glōf, ME, NE glove, fr. ga-lōfi*, ga-lōf* : ON lōfi, ME love, Goth. lōfa 'flat of the hand'. Falk-Torp 657.

OHG hantscuoh, NHG handschuh (OE handsciō only a proper name; see now Bosworth-Toller, Suppl. s.v.), Du. handschoen, MLG hantsche (> late ON hanzki, Dan., Sw. handske), cpd. of words for 'hand' and 'shoe'. Falk-Torp 380.

5. Lith. pirštinė, Lett. pirkstaine, fr. Lith. pirštas, Lett. pirksts 'finger'.

Lett. cimds, etym. dub., perh. fr. IE kem-* in words for 'covering', etc., like OHG hemidi 'shirt', etc. (6.44). Mühl.-Endz. 1.383.

6. ChSl. rąkavica, SCr., Russ. rukavica (in Russ. 'mitten'), Boh. rukavice, Pol. rękawica, fr. ChSl. rąka, etc. 'hand'.

Russ. perčatka (perstjatka, perščatka), fr. perst 'finger'.

Ornamental buttons have been found dating back even to prehistoric times (e.g. perforated tin buttons from Italy). But it was apparently not till the 14th or 15th cent. A.D. that they came into use as fastenings for garments, eventually replacing in large measure the pins or lacings of earlier dress.

The words for 'button' originate mostly in those meaning originally 'knob, knot' or the like.

1. NG κουμπί, fr. κομβίον, dim. of Byz. κόμβος 'knot, roll, band', prob. : σκαμβός, Ir. camm 'crooked', etc. (12.74). Walde-P. 2.539 f.

The 'pin' for fastening clothing, though in ultimate origin a simple pointed object like a thorn or pointed piece of bone, was in ancient (even prehistoric) Greece, Italy, and other parts of Europe mostly of the 'safety-pin, clasp-pin' form, ornamental as well as practical (cf. Ebert, Reallex. s.v. Fibel; J. L. Myres, Who Were the Greeks? 405 ff.). This is now often distinguished by the use of the Lat. fibula (so archeologists) or terms like Fr. broche, NE brooch, etc. (fr. Lat. adj. broccus used of 'projecting' teeth), NHG spange (OE spang 'clasp'), etc. But the modern words listed are those which are used for the common straight pin (though many are also used more comprehensively, like NE pin for breastpin, etc.).

A few of the words are from verbs for 'pierce', 'fasten', or 'set in'. But more are cognate with words for other pointed objects such as 'needle', 'thorn', 'awl', 'spit'.

1. Grk. περόνη, περονίς, πόρπη, fr. the root of πείρω 'pierce'. Walde-P. 2.39. Boisacq 757 f.

Collective terms for articles of 'adornment' are mostly based on still more comprehensive notions, like 'arrangement', 'equipment', 'preparation', or what is 'suitable', 'beautiful', 'clean'.

1. Grk. κόσμος, orig. 'orderly arrangement', then specialized in two directions, 'adornment' and 'world'. See 1.1.

NG στολίδι, στόλισμα, fr. class. Grk. στολίς (gen. - ίδος), στόλισμα 'garment' : στόλος 'equipment', στέλλω 'make ready, equip'. Walde-P. 2.643. Boisacq 907 f.

2. Lat. mundus (usually in this sense only 'woman's adornment'; the sense 'world' borrowed fr. Grk. κόσμος, see 1.1) : adj. mundus 'clean, elegant' (15.87).

Lat. ōrnātus, ōrnāmentum (both words are used in the sense of 'personal adornment, embellishment' as well as 'furnishings, equipment'), fr. ōrnāre 'put in order, equip, adorn', for ōrdināre* : ōrdō (-inis) 'order, row', this perh. fr. the root ar-* 'fit' in Grk. ἀραρίσκω, Lat. artus, etc., but details dub. Hence, directly or new formations fr. vbs. derived fr. Lat. ōrnāre, It. ornamento, Sp. adorno, Ir. ōrnaid, NIr. ōrnaidheacht, W. addurnaid, ME ornement (fr. OFr. ornement), NE adornment (fr. OFr. aournement, with spelling-pronunciation by approximation to Latin). Walde-P. 1.76. Ernout-M. 711 f.

Fr. parure, fr. OFr. parer 'adorn, deck out' (It. parare), fr. Lat. parāre 'prepare'. REW 6229. Gamillscheg 673.

Rum. podoabă, fr. Slavic, cf. ChSl. podoba and Pol. ozdoba (below, 6).

3. Ir. cumtach, lit. 'building, construction', vbl. n. of conutgim 'build, erect'. Pedersen 2.506.

NIr. sciamhacht (also 'beauty'), fr. sciamh 'form, appearance', Ir. sciam, fr. Lat. schēma, fr. Grk. σχῆμα 'shape, form'. Pedersen 1.208.

W. trwsiad (also 'dress, apparel'), fr. trwsio 'dress, deck out, trim, adorn' beside early trws 'ornament, dress', trwsa 'pack, bundle', fr. ME trusse 'pack, bundle' (fr. Fr. trousse). Cf. the specialization in Fr., NE trousseau, orig. 'bundle' fr. the same source. Parry-Williams 95, 161.

Br. kinklou (pl.), kinkladur, with vb. kinkla 'adorn', fr. some deriv. of OFr. cliquer, clinquer 'ring, clink' (fr. Du. klinken) like clinquant 'gold leaf'. Henry 67. NED s.v. clinquant.

Br. bragerezou (pl., sg. bragerez), fr. bragal 'parade, show off one's clothes', orig. 'put on breeches', fr. bragou 'breeches' (6.48). Henry 42.

4. ON skraut with vb. skreyta 'adorn', perh. : Sw. skyrta 'boast', Dan. skryde 'bray, boast'. Falk-Torp 1033.

ON prȳði, Dan. (pryd arch.) prydelse, Sw. prydnad, with vbs. ON prȳða, Dan. pryde, Sw. pryda 'adorn', fr. adj. ON prūðr 'valiant, magnificent in appearance' (= OE prūd 'proud', whence prȳde 'pride'), fr. OFr. prud, prod (nom. prouz, Fr. preux), 'capable, valiant', fr. late Lat. prōde abstracted fr. prōd-esse 'be of use'. Falk-Torp 851 (but wrong Lat. source). Hellquist 791. REW 6766.

OE gearwe (pl.), OHG garawī, MHG gerwe 'gear, equipment', hence also 'armor', 'clothing', and 'adornment' : OE gierwan, OHG garawen 'prepare', ON gǫrva, Dan. gøre, Sw. göra 'do'. Falk-Torp 323. NED s.v. gear, s.b.

Du. versiering, deriv. of (ver)sieren 'adorn', fr. MHG zieren, OHG zierōn id. : OHG ziari 'precious, beautiful', ON, OE, OS tīr 'honor, fame', etc. Falk-Torp 970. Franck–v. W. 608.

MHG gesmuc, NHG schmuck in this sense a back-formation fr. vb. MHG smucken, smücken orig. 'press closely, draw together' (: MHG smiegen id.), hence 'put on clothing, ornaments', 'adorn'. MLG smucken > Dan. smykke, Sw. smycka 'adorn', whence sb. Dan. smykke, Sw. smycke influenced by NHG schmuck. Weigand-H. 2.754. Kluge-G. 532. Falk-Torp 1085.

5. Lith. papuošalas, fr. pa-puošti 'adorn' = Lett. puosti 'clean, adorn' : ON fāga 'clean, polish', etc. Walde-P. 2.16. Mühl.-Endz. 3.458.

Lett. ruota, perh. orig. 'something notched', i.e. 'a trinket' : ruotīt 'cut on bias, notch, indent', Lith. rentas, rintys 'notch'. Mühl.-Endz. 3.583 f.

Lett. greznums (also 'trinket, beauty') fr. grezns 'beautiful' (16.81). Mühl.-Endz. 1.651.

A 'jewel' (mostly 'precious stone', now esp. with its setting, but in part including gold and silver ornaments) may be expressed simply as '(precious) stone', but more commonly by specialization of something 'valuable, costly', 'beautiful', 'giving pleasure', an 'ornament' or a 'plaything'. In a few cases the name of a specific ornament or gem has been generalized (cf. Fr. bijou, NG διαμαντικό, below).

1. Grk. λίθος 'stone' (1.44), used also for 'precious stone', likewise NG πέτρα.

Grk. κόσμημα 'ornament', NG id. and also in pl. 'jewels', fr. κοσμέω 'adorn', fr. κόσμος 'adornment' (6.71).

NG διαμαντικό, fr. διαμάντι 'diamond'.

NG τζοβαΐρι, τζοβαερικό, Rum. giuvaer, fr. Turk. cevahir 'jewel' (orig. Pers.). Lokotsch 694.

2. Lat. gemma, also and orig. 'bud' on vines and trees, etym. dub., perh. fr. gembh-nā-* : Lith. žembėte 'sprout', Skt. jambha-, ChSl. ząbŭ, etc. 'tooth'. Hence W. gem, OE gim, ME gemme, NE gem, OHG gimma, MHG gimme, also, with 'stone', ON gimsteinnr, OE gimstān. Ernout-M. 413 f. Walde-H. 1.587 f.

Fr. joyau (OFr. joel > It. gioiello, ME iuel, NE jewel, Du. juweel, NHG juwel > Dan., Sw. juvel), deriv. (cf. MLat. pl. iocālia) of Lat. iocus 'jest, sport', Fr. jeu 'play'. REW 4588. Gamillscheg 543.

Fr. bijou, fr. Br. bizou 'finger-ring' (biz 'finger'). REW 1142. Wartburg 1.389.

Sp. alhaya, fr. Arab. hāja 'necessaries, clothing, furniture, etc.'. Lokotsch 775.

Sp. joya, through OFr. joi(e), fr. Lat. gaudium 'joy'. REW 3705.

3. NIr. seod fr. Ir. sēt 'a valuable' covering a wide range of objects (cf. Laws, Gloss. s.v.), but including 'pin, brooch', its earliest attested sense (cf. sēt argait 'silver brooch' Thes. 2.345) = Lat. (orig. Gall.?) sentis 'thornbush', MLat. 'brooch', etym.? Schrader, Reallex. 2.335. Walde-P. 1.450.

W. tlws : Ir. tlus 'cattle', but further connections? Loth, RC. 34.150.

Br. braoig, deriv. of brao 'beautiful' (16.81).

4. ON gørsemi, apparently fr. an adj. gørsamr 'precious' : gørr 'ready, skilled', gørva 'do, make', etc. Cf. OE gearwe 'adornment' (6.71). Falk-Torp 323.

Du. kleinood, MHG kleinōt, NHG kleinod, older 'a valuable' (in general), esp. (MHG) 'a gift', cpd. of klein in earlier meaning 'pure, elegant, fine' (OHG kleini, OE clǣne, NE clean) and OHG -ōd, in al-ōd 'free possession' (MLat. allōdium), OS ōd 'possession', OE ēad, ON auðr 'riches'. Hence Lith. kleinotas (Kurschat, but not in NSB), Boh. klenot, Pol. klejnot.

5. Lith. brangenybė 'a valuable' and 'jewel' (cf. NSB s.v.), deriv. of brangus 'dear, costly' (11.88). Also brangus akmuo 'costly stone'.

Lett. dārgums, fr. dārgs 'dear, costly' (11.88).

6. SCr. dragulj, Boh. drahokam (cf. kámen 'stone'), Russ. dragocennost', fr. ChSl. dragŭ, etc. 'dear, costly' (11.88).

7. Skt. ratna- (also 'treasure, goods'), perh. fr. ṛtno-* : Ir. rēt 'thing' (rentu*). Walde-P. 2.374. Uhlenbeck 243.

Skt. maṇi-, esp. 'pearl', etym.? Walde-P. 2.295.

6.73 RING
(For Finger)

Grk.	δακτύλιος	Goth.	figgragulþ	Lith.	žiedas
NG	δαχτυλίδι	ON	hringr	Lett.	gredzens
Lat.	ānulus	Dan.	ring	ChSl.	prŭstenĭ
It.	anello	Sw.	ring	SCr.	prsten
Fr.	bague	OE	hring	Boh.	prsten

NIr.	fāinne	OHG	ring
W.	modrwy	MHG	ring
Br.	bizou	NHG	ring

Most of the words for 'ring' (for the finger) are based on either words for 'ring' in the wider sense of circular form, or those for 'finger' (4.34). A few are from words for 'berry, bud' or the like and must have applied first to a ring with setting. One was in origin a magic ring.

1. Grk. δακτύλιος, NG δαχτυλίδι, fr. δάκτυλος 'finger'.

2. Lat. ānulus, fr. ānus 'ring, anus', root connection? Here also (loanwords or cognate?) Ir. āinne, ānne, NIr. fāinne (f- by sentence phonetics). Walde-H. 1.55.

It. anello, Rum. inel (Fr. anneau now 'ring' in wider sense or 'wedding ring'), fr. Lat. ānellus, dim. of ānulus (above). REW 452.

Fr. bague, fr. Prov. baga, Lat. bāca, bacca 'any small round fruit, berry, a pearl' (Fr. baie 'berry'). REW 859. Wartburg 1.196.

Sp. sortija (cf. MLat. sortelia, Du Cange s.v.), fr. Lat. sortīcula 'a little lot, a small tablet or ticket' (apparently for casting lots etc.), dim. of sors, sortis 'lot'. Evidently therefore first applied to a magic ring, then generalized. REW 8108.

3. Ir. ordnasc 'thumb-ring', cpd. of ordu 'thumb' and nasc 'ring, band' (: nascim 'tie', Lat. nōdus 'knot', etc., Walde-P. 2.328).

W. modrwy, cpd. of OW maut (W. bawd with b- by sentence phonetics) 'thumb' and an obscured deriv. of the root in rhwyme 'bind' (Ir. con-riug 'bind together', Lat. corrigia 'strap', etc.). Morris Jones 136, 163.

Br. bizou, fr. biz 'finger'.

4. Goth. figgragulþ, lit. 'finger-gold'.

ON hringr, OE hring, OHG ring, etc., general Gmc. (except Goth.) : ChSl. krągŭ 'circle', Umbr. cringatrō 'shoulder band', etc. Walde-P. 2.570.

5. Lith. žiedas, also 'bloom, blossom', pl. 'menses'. Orig. perh. 'bud', as the semantic source for all the meanings, and therefore first applied to a ring with a setting (cf. Lat. gemma 'bud, gem', Fr. bague fr. Prov. baga 'berry') : Lith. žydėti 'bloom', žysti 'open (of flowers)'. Walde-P. 1.544.

Lett. gredzens, perh. : ON krākr, krōkr 'hook, bend', kraki 'pole with hook on end, anchor'. Walde-P. 1.593 ff. Mühl-Endz. 1.646.

6. ChSl. prŭstenĭ, SCr. prsten, Boh. prsten, Pol. pierścień (Russ. persteń now replaced by kol'co), fr. ChSl. prŭstŭ, etc. 'finger'.

Russ. kol'co, dim. of kolo 'circle, wheel' (obs. or dial.) = ChSl. kolo 'wheel' (10.76). Berneker 548.

7. Skt. añgulīya-, añgulīyaka-, fr. añguli- 'finger, toe'.

NIr.	brāislēad	MHG	bouc
W.	breichled	NHG	armband
Br.	trovrec'h

Words for 'bracelet' are mostly derived from those for 'arm' (4.31), a few from verbs for 'turn, wind around', or 'bend'.

1. Grk. ψέλιον orig.? Boisacq 1075.

Grk. ἕλιξ used for various objects of spiral shape, prob. 'armlet' in Hom. Il. 18.401, fr. the root of ἑλίσσω, Lat. volvere, etc. 'turn around' (10.13).

Late Grk., Byz. βραχιόνιον, fr. βραχίων 'arm'. Hence also (but through Lat. brachiāle) late Grk. βραχιάλιον and βραχιόλιον, the latter Byz. and NG (βραχιόλι).

2. Lat. brachiāle, fr. brachium 'forearm' (fr. Grk. βραχίων). Hence Rum. brățară and the dims. It. braccialetto, Fr. bracelet (> NE bracelet, Russ. braslet'; also Pol. bransoletka, Brückner 38), Sp. brazalete. Ernout-M. 116. REW 1254.

Lat. armillae (pl.; sg. late), fr. armus 'upper arm, shoulder'. Ernout-M. 74.

Sp. pulsera, fr. pulse 'pulse' and 'wrist' (where pulse is felt), Lat. pulsus 'blow, push'.

3. Ir. foil, fail : Grk. ἕλιξ (above, 1). Windisch, IF 3.76.

NIr. brāislēad, fr. NE bracelet, whence also W. breichled but prob. influenced by breichiau pl. of braich 'arm'.

Br. trovrec'h, cpd. of tro 'turn' and brec'h 'arm'.

4. ON baugr, OE bēag (also 'ring, collar'), ME beg, OHG boug, MHG bouc : OE būgan, Goth. biugan 'bend' (9.14).

NHG, Du. armband (Dan. armbaand, Sw. armband, by semantic borrowing), lit. 'arm-band'.

5. Lith. apyrankė, Lett. apruoce (also 'cuff, ruffle at wrist') fr. api-, ap- 'about' and ranka, ruoka 'hand, arm'.

6. SCr., Bulg. grivna = ChSl. grivĭna 'necklace' (6.75).

SCr. narukvica, Boh. náramek, Pol. naramiennik, all dim. cpds. of na- 'on' and the words for 'arm', SCr. ruka, Boh. rámě, Pol. ramię.

7. Skt. kañkaṇa-, perh. orig. as 'the clinking ornament' (cf. kānkanī- 'adornment with little bells') fr. IE kan-*, in Lat. canere 'sing', etc. Walde-P. 1.351. Uhlenbeck 38.

Skt. karabhūṣaṇa-, lit. 'hand-adornment', cpd. of kara- 'hand' and bhūṣaṇa- 'adornment' (6.71).

Most of the words for 'necklace' are derivs. or cpds. of those for 'neck' or 'throat' (4.28, 4.29) and so often parallel to those for 'collar' or 'necktie'. A few are from verbs for 'string together', 'turn around'.

1. Grk. ὅρμος, fr. the root of εἴρω 'string together', Lat. serere 'bind together, entwine', etc. Cf. ON sørvi 'necklace of stones, pearls, or the like'. Walde-P. 2.499 f.

Grk. στρεπτός and στρεπτόν, sb. use of vbl. adj. of στρέφω 'turn, roll, twist'. Walde-P. 2.632.

NIr.	ciarsūr			Russ.	platok
W.	cadach (poced), hances
Br.	mouchouer, mouched

Words for 'handkerchief' are listed only for the modern languages. For such words as Grk. χειρόμακτρον, Lat. mantēle, etc., which might have served also as handkerchiefs, see 'towel' (6.82).

But Lat. sūdārium, lit. 'sweat-cloth' (: sūdor 'sweat'), used esp. for wiping the face, was in fact much like a 'handkerchief'. Cf. Daremberg et Saglio s.v. orarium. Hence Grk. σουδάριον (NT, etc.) rendered lit. as 'sweat-cloth' in OE swāt-lin, OHG sueiz-lahhan, -tuoh, but Goth. dat. sg. auralja (: OE orel 'garment, veil', etc. fr. Lat. ōrārium 'a kind of handkerchief', deriv. of ōs, ōris 'mouth'; Feist 68), ChSl. ubrusŭ (: SCr. brusiti 'whet', ubrisati 'wipe off', etc.; Berneker 89 f.). The rendering napkin in Tyndale and King James version represents a now unfamiliar use of this word (see below).

1. NG μαντήλι, μαντίλι (Byz. μαντήλιον, -ίλιον mostly 'towel') fr. Lat. mantēle, mantīle 'towel' (6.82).

2. It. fazzoletto, fr. late Lat. faciāle 'face-cloth, towel' (gl. to προσόψιον, etc., cf. NG προσόψι, 6.82), deriv. of faciēs 'face'. REW 3128a.

It. pezzuola, dim. of pezza 'piece of cloth'.

Fr. mouchoir, fr. moucher 'blow the nose', MLat. mūccāre, fr. Lat. mūcus 'snot'. REW 5706.

Sp. pañuelo, dim. of pano 'cloth' (6.21).

Rum. batistă, also 'cambric (cloth)', fr. Fr. batiste 'cambric' (named for a certain Bâtiste de Cambrai, who developed a famous linen factory in the 13th cent.).

Rum. basma (also 'kerchief'), fr. Turk. basma 'printed cloth'. Lokotsch 264.

3. NIr. ciarsūr (also 'kerchief'), borrowed fr. NE kerchief in some dial. pronunciation.

W. cadach (poced), lit. 'pocket-cloth', cf. cadach 'cloth, rag, kerchief' (= NIr. cadach 'calico', prob. : W. cadas, NIr. cadās, fr. ME cadas (NE caddis), with suffix after NIr. canach 'cotton' (?). See under 'cotton' (6.24).

W. hances, fr. a vulgar form of NE handkerchief (cf. hanky).

Br. mouchouer, mouched, borrowed (and the latter adapted) fr. Fr. mouchoir.

4. Dan. lemmetørklæde, cpd. of lomme 'pocket' and tørklæde 'kerchief, neck-cloth' (cpd. of tør 'dry' and klæde 'cloth').

Sw. näsduk, lit. 'nose-cloth'.

NE napkin (6.83), formerly used also, and still Sc., for 'handkerchief,' NED s.v. 2.

NE handkerchief, cpd. of kerchief, ME curchef, fr. OFr. couvre-chief, lit. 'cover-head', a cloth for covering the head, a sort of woman's headgear. NED s.v.

Du. zakdoek, NHG taschentuch, lit. 'pocket-cloth'.

NHG schnupftuch, fr. schnupfen 'snuff', MHG snupfen 'puff, blow, snort'.

5. Lith. nosinė, fem. of adj. nosinis 'of the nose'.

Lett. slaucis : slaucīt 'wipe off'.

6. SCr. maramica, dim. of marama, mahrama 'rag, cloth', orig. 'veil (of a married woman)', through Turk. fr. Arab. maḥrama 'holy, forbidden, wife' : Arab. ḥarām 'forbidden'. Lokotsch 1361.

Boh. kapesník, fr. kapsa 'pocket'.

Pol. chustka, dim. of chusta '(linen) cloth' (6.21).

Russ. platok : ChSl. platŭ 'cloth, rag', etc. (6.21).

Words listed under 'towel' (6.82) would in earlier periods cover the 'napkin' wherever such an article was in use, and so definitely Grk. χειρόμακτρον and Lat. mantēle. Cf. Daremberg et Saglio s.v. mantēle and mappa.

The majority of the mod. Eur. words are borrowed from the Fr. serviette, orig. 'service-cloth'.

1. For Grk. χειρόμακτρον, Lat. mantēle, and NG πετσέτα see 6.82.

2. Lat. mappa, according to Quintilian a Punic word. Ernout-M. 592. Walde-H. 2.36.

It. tovagliuolo, dim. of tovaglia 'tablecloth', fr. Prov. toalha 'towel' (6.82).

Fr. serviette, fr. servir 'serve' in its special sense of 'serve the table', hence 'service-cloth', prob. first applied to the cloth under the dish served. Cf. NHG tellertuch lit. 'plate-cloth', used for 'napkin' (Grimm s.v., now obs.?). Hence It. salvietta (> NHG dial. salvet, Russ. salfetka), Rum. șervet, Br. servietenn, Dan. serviet, Sw., Du. servet, NHG serviette (> Lett. servjete, Pol. serweta > Lith. serveta). NIr.	bruis	NHG	bürste
W.	brws
Br.	barr-skuber, palouer

Most of the words for 'brush' are based on words denoting some material which was used for the utensil, such as 'brushwood, bristles, tails of animals, feathers'. A few are from verbs for 'sweep' or 'rub'.

1. Grk. κόρημα 'broom', see 9.38.

NG βοῦρτσα, through βροῦτσα fr. some Romance form of the group Fr. brosse, etc. (below, 2). G. Meyer, Neugr. Stud. 4.20.

2. Lat. pēniculus, dim. of pēnis 'penis' (4.492) and 'tail', here in latter sense, reflecting the use of animals' tail for a brush.

It. spazzola, fr. spazzare 'sweep' (9.37).

Fr. brosse (OFr. > ME brusshe, NE brush > NIr. bruis, W. brws), Sp. bruza, same word as OFr. brosse, broce, MLat. bruscia, brossa, etc. (cf. Du Cange) 'brush' = 'brushwood', with secondary application to the utensil made therefrom—orig. dub.; borrowing fr. a word of the Gmc. group (ON bursti, etc., below, 4) now generally rejected. REW 1340a (but Sp. bruza fr. Goth., 1417). Wartburg 1.572 ff.

Sp. cepillo (also 'carpenter's plane'), dim. of cepo 'bough of a tree', etc., fr. Lat. cippus 'post, stake, pillar'. REW 1935.

Rum. perie, fr. ChSl. perĭje 'feathers'. Tiktin 1146.

3. NIr. bruis, W. brws, fr. NE brush (above, 2).

NIr. scūab, see under 'broom' (9.38).

Br. barr-skuber, fr. barr 'branch' and skuba 'sweep' (9.37).

Br. palouer, orig. dub., perh. by dissim. fr. a deriv. of OFr. parer 'adorn'. Henry 216.

4. ON bursti, Dan. børste, Sw. borste, Du. borstel dim., MHG, NHG bürste : ON burst, OE byrst, borst 'bristle', Skt. bhṛṣṭi- 'point, edge', etc. Walde-P. 2.131 f. Falk-Torp 129.

5. Lith. šepetys (usually of bristles tied together at one end), etym.? (suffix in -eti-s, Leskien, Bildung d. Nom. 571, but root connection?).

Lett. suka, doubtless orig. 'comb' : Lith. šukos 'comb' (6.91). Hence perh. as a dim. Lett. suseklis by assim. fr. suceklis*. Mühl.-Endz. 3.1125.

6. SCr. četka, Pol. szczotka, Russ. ščetka : Russ. ščet', Polab. sacĕt 'bristle', Pol. szczeć 'bristle, teasel', etc. Outside connections dub. See refs. under Lith. šukos 'comb' (6.91).

SCr. kefa, fr. Hung. kefe id. (this fr. Turk.). Berneker 499.

Boh. kartáč, fr. NHG kardätsche 'currycomb, wool-comb with steel bristles', fr. Fr. cardasse 'carding-comb' (through It. fr. Lat. carduus 'thistle'). Berneker 489 f.

7. Skt. āgharṣaṇī- (rare), fr. ghṛṣ- 'rub, polish, brush' (9.31).

Soap was unknown to the Greeks and Romans of the classical period, its place being taken by ointment or special kinds of earth as agents, for any of which in Greek might be used ῥύμμα fr. ῥύπτω 'cleanse, wash' or σμῆμα, σμῆγμα fr. σμάω 'wipe, wash'. Cf. Pauly-Wissowa s.v. Seife.

Pliny mentions sāpō as a Gallic invention for coloring the hair red, used also by the Germans (HN 28.191, prodest et sapo; Gallorum hoc inventum rutilandis capillis; fit ex sebo et cinere . . . . duobus modis, spissus et liquidus, uterque apud Germanos maiore in usu viris quam feminis), but the word is of Germanic origin; whence it was widely borrowed. The few other words for 'soap' are mostly derived from verbs for 'wash'.

1. OE sāpe (> Icel. sāpa, Norw. saapa, Sw. såpa), OHG seipfa, seifa, MHG, NHG seife, Du. zeep, MLG sēpe (> Dan. sæbe, Lett. ziepes), fr. Gmc. saip(i)ōn* (cf. Hence late Lat. sāpō, -ōnis, It. sapone (> NG σαπούνι > Turk. sabun > SCr. sapun), Fr. savon (> Br. soavon), Sp. jabon, Rum. săpun, W. sebon (learned borrowing).

2. NIr. galluanach, gallūnach, apparently fr. gall 'stone' and uanach 'foaming, frothing'.

3. ON þvāl, Sw. tvål = OE þwēal, OHG dwahal, Goth. þwahl 'washing, purification' : Goth. þwahan, OE þwēan, ON þvā, etc. 'wash' (9.36). Hellquist 1253.

Words for 'mirror' are mostly from verbs for 'look', with a few from words for 'shadow' or other sources. The common use of the word for the material 'glass' in the sense of 'mirror' seems to be peculiar to English.

1. Grk. κάτοπτρον beside κατόπτης 'spy', etc., deriv. of κατά and the root of ὄψομαι, ὄπωπα fut. and aor. to ὁράω 'see'. Hence also, with transposition, Att. κάτροπτον, NG καθρέφτης (for θ cf. καθοράω).

2. Lat. speculum, fr. spec-* 'look' in cpds. -spicere, etc. (15.52). Hence It. specchio, Sp. espejo, OHG spiegal, MHG, NHG, Du. spiegel, MLG spēgel (> ON spegill, Dan. spejl, Sw. spegel, Lett. spiegelis). Ernout-M. 961. REW 8133. Falk-Torp 1115.

Words for 'dwell' (really live in present spoken English, but 'dwell' is used here to avoid ambiguity) are from such notions as 'be, exist', and especially 'live' = 'be alive', this of various sources (cf. 4.74); through 'remain, abide' from 'sit', 'delay, linger, go slowly', etc.; 'possess, be busy with, cultivate'. Some are denominatives from words for 'house' or 'place'.

1. Grk. οἰκέω, fr. οἶκος 'house' (7.12). Hence also κατοικέω.

Grk. κάθημαι 'sit' (cpd. of ἧμαι 'sit', 12.13), in LXX and NT also 'dwell'. Hence, with shift to the common thematic type, NG pop. κάθομαι (ποῦ κάθεται; 'where does he live?').

2. Lat. habitāre (> It. abitare, Fr. habiter, Sp. habitar) frequent. of habēre 'have, possess', which is itself sometimes used for 'occupy, dwell in' and simply 'dwell'.

Lat. incolere 'dwell in, inhabit', and 'dwell', but with reference to country or town rather than to one's house, fr. colere 'cultivate' and 'dwell in' : Grk.

πέλομαι 'be in motion, be', Skt. car- 'move, perform', etc., IE k^{w}el-. Development fr. 'turn, move' through 'be busy with'. Cf. Lat. versārī 'remain, dwell', fr. vertere 'turn'. Walde-P. 1.514 f. Ernout-M. 204 ff. Walde-H. 1.246.

Lat. sedēre 'sit, remain', whence Rum. ședea 'sit' and also 'dwell'; cpd. residēre 'remain, abide', rarely 'dwell', whence Fr. résider (> NE reside), Sp. resider 'reside'.

Lat. morārī, dēmorārī 'delay' (14.24), in VLat. also 'dwell' (so morārī and commorārī in Peregrinatio), whence Sp. morar 'dwell', It. dimorare, Fr. demeurer 'remain' and 'dwell'. Wartburg 3.38 f.

Lat. vīvere 'live' is occasionally used for 'dwell' (e.g. extra urbem Cic.). So sometimes It. vivere, Fr. vivre; and Sp. vivir is the usual spoken form, like NE live. See below, 5.

It. stare di casa, lit. 'be at home', as in dove sta di casa? 'where do you live?'

Rum. locui, the reg. word for 'dwell', formerly lăcui, fr. Hung. lak 'dwell', but with present spelling as if derived fr. loc, Lat. locus. Tiktin 921. Densusianu 1.375.

Rum. trăi 'live' (4.74), also used for 'dwell'.

3. Ir. 3 sg. atreba 'habitat', NIr. aitreabhaim, cpd. of ad- and trebaim 'inhabit, cultivate', NIr. treabhaim 'cultivate, plow' : Ir., OW, OBr. treb 'dwelling', Osc. trííbum (trēbo-*) 'building', Umbr. trebeit 'versatur', Lat. trabs 'beam', Lith. troba 'building', OE þorp, OHG dorf 'village'. Walde-P. 1.757.

NIr. comhnuighim, fr. comhnaidhe 'dwelling, abiding', Ir. comnaide, beside irnaide, NIr. urnaidhe 'waiting, watching', vbl. n. of Ir. ar-neut 'I expect', this a cpd. of ni* 'down' and sed-* 'sit'. Thurneysen, Gram. 523. Lewis-Pedersen 385 (vs. Pedersen 2.584).

NIr. āitighim, fr. āit 'place' (12.11).

W. trigiannu, older also trigo, Corn. trega, trige (with sbs. W. trig, MCorn. trig-se 'abode'), prob. orig. 'delay', fr. VLat. trīcāre, Lat. trīcārī 'trifle, dally, play tricks'. Loth, Mots lat. 212.

W. preswylio, fr. preswyl 'dwelling' : adj. preswyl 'constant, ready', OW presuir gl. adfixa, prob. fr. a deriv. of Lat. pressus 'pressed, firm, fixed' (pple. of premere 'press'). Loth, Mots lat. 198 f.

W. byw 'live' and also commonly 'dwell', due in part to the corresponding use of NE live.

Br. chom 'remain' and 'dwell', fr. Fr. chômer 'rest during heat, lay off work, be idle' (this fr. Grk. καῦμα 'burning heat'. REW 1779). Henry 168.

4. Goth. bauan, ON būa, Dan., Sw. bo, OE, OHG būan (NHG bauen 'build'), fr. forms of IE bheu-* 'be'. Walde-P. 2.142. Feist 83 f. Cf. Boh. obývati 'dwell', etc. fr. the same root, below, 5.

OE wunian, ME wone (NE dial. won), Du. wonen, OHG wonēn, MHG wonen, NHG wohnen, fr. IE wen-* 'strive for, desire, gain', etc. (NE win, wish, etc.). Walde-P. 1.258 ff. But the precise semantic development is uncertain. Prob. through 'be satisfied with, accustomed to', which is also a widespread meaning in Gmc. (ON una 'be satisfied with', vanr 'accustomed', OE gewun 'accustomed', OE wunian, OHG wonēn also sometimes 'be wont', NE wont, etc.), whence 'be at home in, dwell'. But possibly independently of this, directly fr. 'gain, win' to 'occupy, dwell in, dwell' (cf. Lat. habitāre). Still otherwise Meringer IF 16. 179, KZ 40. 232, but with no evidence that wen-* meant orig. 'plow'.

OE eardian, fr. eard 'native land, country, home', this prob. like OHG art

'plowed land' : OE erian, Lat. arāre 'plow', etc. Walde-P. 1.78.

OE sittan 'sit' is also frequently 'dwell'. Cf. Grk. κάθημαι, Lat. sedēre, residēre, above, 1, 2.

ME dwelle, NE dwell, fr. OE dwellan 'lead astray, stupefy, hinder, delay' : ON dvelja 'delay, put off', refl. dveljask 'stay', Sw. dväljas 'dwell', OHG twellan 'delay', all caus. forms of Gmc. dwel-* in OHG twelan 'be benumbed, torpid', OE gedwolen 'gone astray', Goth. dwals 'foolish', IE dhwel-* in Grk. θολός 'dirt', Ir. dall 'blind', etc. The development is fr. Pol. mieszkać, now the usual word for 'dwell', formerly 'delay, linger, tarry' (so Boh. meškati, Russ. meškat'), fr. mieszka* (Mieszka as a name) a pop. abbr. of the Slavic word for 'bear' (3.73). Development fr. 'move clumsily like a bear' (so the borrowed Lith. dial. meškiuoti) to 'move slowly, linger', etc. Berneker 2.30. Brückner 335.

'House' is understood here as 'dwelling house'. There is overlapping, on the one hand, with 'building' in general, on the other, with 'dwelling', 'home'. The former notion is more dominant etymologically, the majority of the words reflecting the notion of 'build', 'cover', or some other feature of the construction. But some come from 'remain, rest, stand, dwell', etc. Regardless of their etymology, words for 'house' may also be used for 'building', but still more generally for 'home' and for 'household, family'. They commonly supply the phrases answering to NE at home, as Gr. οἴκοι, NGr. στὸ σπίτι, It. a casa, Fr. chez moi, etc. (chez fr. Lat. casa), NHG zu hause, Lith. namie, Russ. doma, etc. Hence the common dictionary definition 'house, home' for most of the words listed here. But they do not correspond to NE home in its widest sense. Cf. below 7.122. Words for 'dwelling', derived from the verbs for 'dwell' (7.11), though they cover 'dwelling house', like Lat. habitātiō, Rum. locuință, NHG wohnung, NE dwelling, Skt. veçman-, etc. are not included in the list, unless they are the common words for 'house', as Grk. οἶκος.

1. IE domo-, domu- 'house', fr. dem-* 'build' in Gr. δέμω, etc. (9.44). Walde-P. 1.786 ff. Ernout-M. 281 ff. Gr. δόμος (mostly poet.); Lat. domus; ChSl. domŭ, etc., general Slavic; Skt. dama- (Vedic), Av. dəmāna-, nmāna-.

2. IE weiḱ-, wiḱ-, woiḱo-*. Walde-P. 1.231. Ernout-M. 1103.

Grk. οἶκος, οἰκία 'house', Lat. vīcus 'group of houses, village', Goth. weihs 'village', ChSl. vĭsĭ 'village', Skt. viç- 'settlement, house, clan, people', Av. vis- 'dwelling, village', OPers. viθ- 'royal court, palace, family', Skt. veçman-, Av. vaēsma 'dwelling'. In this group the notion of 'house' as a building is subordinate to that of 'home, settlement, family'. But whether the latter is also more original or a secondary development from 'house', the ultimate root connection is too doubtful to determine.

3. NG σπίτι, the reg. word for 'house' in the spoken language, fr. Lat. hospitium 'lodging, inn', VLat. 'house'. Cf. Arch. lat. Lex. 8.194; Peregrinatio 25.7 vadent se unusquisque ad ospitium suum.

4. It., Sp. casa, Rum. casă (cf. Fr. chez moi, etc. 'at home'), fr. Lat. casa 'cottage, hut', (7.13).

Fr. maison, fr. Lat. mansiō 'staying' later 'stopping place, station, lodging', fr. manēre 'remain' (12.16).

5. Ir. tech, NIr. teach, W. ty, Br. ti : Grk. στέγος, τέγος 'roof', στέγω, Lat. tegere 'cover', NHG dach 'roof', etc. (7.15). Walde-P. 1.620 ff. Pedersen 1.98 f. Cf. Cret. στέγα 'house' (so in Law Code, where οἰκία is 'household'), Lat. tectum 'roof' and frequently 'house'. Cf. also Grk. ὄροφος 'roof', at Cyrene 'house'.

6. Walde-P. 2.546 ff., 551. Falk-Torp 433. Feist 223.

Goth. gards ('house', rarely 'court') : ON garðr 'yard, court', OE geard, NE yard, etc. (7.15).

Goth. razn, ON rann (poet.), OE ærn (esp. 'place' in cpds., but also 'house') : Goth. rasta 'mile', OHG rasta, OE ræst 'rest', NE rest, etc. Walde-P. 1.144. Falk-Torp 878, 882.

7. Lith. namai (pl.), less frequently sg. namas, the usual word for 'house' as 'home' (cf. namie 'at home', namo eiti 'go home'), Lett. nams 'kitchen', etc., also 'house' (but less usual than māja), etym. dub. Possibly : Grk. δόμος, etc.

(above, 1), with partial assimilation of the initial d to the following nasal (cf. Grk. dial. νύναμαι = δύναμαι), or influenced by a form with nm- from dm- like Av. nmāna- (so J. Schmidt, Pluralbildung 222). Walde-P. 1.788 with refs.

Skt. çālā- 'house, stall, hut' (cf. also çālam 'at home'), see 7.13.

7.122. 'Home' in the full range and feeling of NE home is a conception that belongs distinctively to the word home and some of its Gmc. cognates and is not covered by any single word in most of the IE languages. In the prevailing sense of one's own dwelling house it is commonly expressed by the words for 'house' (7.12), or sometimes by various words for 'dwelling, abode', mostly connected with the verb 'dwell'. As applied to one's home town or country it is mostly expressed by quite distinct words or phrases involving 'town' or 'country' (for 'native country', see 19.12).

The Gmc. group is as follows: Goth. haims 'village', ON heimr 'abode, world', Dan. hjem, Sw. hem, both 'home' in wide sense, OE hām 'home', mostly as 'dwelling house', ME, NE home, OS hēm (Du. heem is a loanword fr. LG and of restricted use), OHG, MHG heim (NHG mostly adverbial), OHG heimuoti, MHG heimuote, NHG heimat 'home' as native town or country : Lett. saime 'household, family', Lith. šeimyna 'family', Lat. cīvis 'citizen', etc., fr. IE ḱei- 'lie' in Grk. κεῖμαι etc. 'Place of abode' specialized in different directions to 'dwelling house', 'household', 'village', etc. Walde-P. 1.358 ff. Falk-Torp 409. Feist 233 f.

From other languages the following may be mentioned as approximating 'home' and not listed under 'house'.

Words for 'fireplace, hearth' (7.31) as symbolic of the 'home' (cf. NE fight for their firesides). So often Grk. ἑστία, Rum. cămin, etc.

NIr. baile 'town, village' (19.16), also 'home', as in ag baile 'at home'.

W. cartref 'home', gartref 'at home', cpd. of MW gar beside ger, ker 'at' and tref 'home, town' (: Ir. trebaim 'inhabit, cultivate', 7.11).

The words listed here, while not altogether synonymous in their range, are intended to cover those commonly applied to the enclosed area attached to a house, whether outside or an inner court. Many of the words for 'court' have developed secondary meanings such as 'hall, palace, estate' and, with Fr. cour leading the way, 'royal retinue', 'assembly of judges', etc. Some are now used only in such secondary senses and no longer applied to a 'courtyard', and so are omitted from the list.

Some that originally belonged to this group have come to denote the cultivated 'garden' (as Lat. hortus, NE gar- den cognate with NE yard, etc.), and so are entered under that head (8.13).

1. Grk. αὐλή (> Lat. aula; NG > Turk. avlu > SCr. avlija), prob. at first an enclosed space near the house where the cattle slept, a 'cattleyard' : αὖλις 'place for sleeping', αὔλιον 'cottage, fold, stable', fr. the root of ἰαύω 'sleep'. Walde-P. 1.19 ff. Boisacq 100.

2. Lat. cohors, cohortis (later cōrs, cōrtis, also curs or curtis) : Lat. hortus 'garden', Grk. χόρτος 'farmyard', Ir. gort 'field of grain', W. garth 'enclosure, garden', Br. garz 'hedge', Skt. hṛ- 'take, hold, carry', Osc. heriiad 'capiat', etc. Hence OFr. cort, curt, court (> ME curt, court, NE court), Fr. cour, Rum. curte (It., Sp. corte in secondary senses), deriv. Words for 'a room' come in part by specialization from those denoting 'dwelling, abode', 'building', 'covering', 'space', etc.; in part by extension from those denoting originally a special room, as a 'bathroom, heated room', 'restroom', 'light-room'.

1. In Greek 'a room' is generally expressed by words that are also used for 'house, dwelling' (7.12), as οἶκος, οἴκημα δόμος, δῶμα, δωμάτιον, τέγος (properly 'roof' 7.62), or words denoting a special room, as ἀνδρών 'man's room, γυναικών 'woman's room', θάλαμος mostly 'bedroom' (: θόλος 'vaulted building', etc. Walde-P. 1.864), μέγαρον 'large hall' (etym.? Walde-P. 1.590), etc. Of these, δωμάτιον, the NG lit. word for 'room', has been taken over in the pop. language (hence δωμάτιο not δωμάτι) and is now more common than κάμαρα (below, 2) for 'room' in general (as πόσα δωμάτια; 'how many rooms?').

2. Lat. conclāve, cpd. of clāvis 'key' (7.24), hence a place that can be locked up. Otherwise only words for special rooms, as cubiculum mostly 'bedroom', fr. cubāre 'recline'; triclinium 'dining-room', orig. the couch on three sides of the table, fr. Grk. τρικλίνιον.

Lat. camera (also camara) 'vaulted roof', fr. Grk. καμάρα, was used in VLat. for 'room'. Hence Byz., NG κάμαρα, κάμερα, It. camera, Fr. chambre (> ME chambre, NE chamber now esp. 'bedroom', etc.; ME > NIr. seomra; Fr. > Br. kambr), Rum. cameră; Ir. camra; OHG camara, MHG, Du. kamer (MLG > Lith. kambarys, Lett. kambaris), NHG kammer, Dan. kammer, Sw. kammare; SCr., Boh., Pol. komora, etc. Many of these are no longer common words for 'room', but are used for 'bedroom', 'storeroom', 'pantry', 'small room', 'official chamber', etc. REW 1545. Falk-Torp 489. Berneker 555 ff.

It. stanza, fr. stantia,* like substantia, etc., fr. Lat. pple. stāns, stantis, hence lit. a 'standing place'. REW 8231.

Sp. pieza 'piece' also frequently used for 'room', of Celtic orig. REW 6450.

Sp. cuarto, 'a fourth' and commonly 'room', fr. Lat. quartum 'fourth'. Development through 'region, district, dwelling place', as in NE quarter in local sense and quarters, headquarters, etc. (NED s.v. III).

Rum. odaie through Slavic fr. Turk. oda 'room' (see below, 6).

3. Ir. camra, NIr. seomra, Br. kambr, above, 2.

W. ystafell, fr. Lat. stabulum 'standing-place, stall'. Pedersen 1.219.

4. ON stofa 'sitting-room, main room', OE stofa 'bathroom' (gl. Lat. balneum), OHG stuba 'bathroom, heated room', MLG stove 'bathroom, heated room' (> ME stove, 7.32), MHG stube 'bathroom, dining-room, etc., NHG stube 'room', Dan. stue 'room'. Generalization fr. 'bathroom' to any 'heated room', then any 'room'. Prob. an old loanword fr. the group It. stufa, Fr. étuve 'hothouse, stove' (7.32), though some regard it as a native Gmc. word related to OHG stioban, NHG stieben 'be dusty' as if used of steam. The 'door' of a house and the 'gate' of a wall or fence are often expressed by the same word, and even where commonly expressed by different words, separated by a semicolon in the list, the applications overlap. In the primitive method of fastening a door, still familiar in a farmer's barn or a rude cabin, the wooden bar and catch represent the 'lock', while the 'key' is the wooden peg which serves to release the bar. Or the bar may be secured by a peg driven through it, and in this case the 'key' is a kind of hook used for pulling out the peg (Grk. βαλανάγρα). Cf. Schrader 2.325 f. and, for the Greek and Roman mechanism, Diels, Antike-Technik[2] 45 ff. Several of the words listed under 'lock' mean simply 'bar', and the most widespread group listed under 'key' has cognates meaning 'peg', 'nail', or 'hook' and originally applied to such a primitive type of 'key'. Some forms of this latter group are used for 'lock'.

1. Grk. μοχλός 'bar', etym. dub., is used especially of the bar used to fasten gates. It was held in place by a βάλανος or wooden peg. The βαλανάγρα was a hook for pulling out the peg, so that the bar was released. But the Hom. term for the 'bar' is ὀχεύς : ἔχω 'hold'.

Ion. κληΐθρον (not in Hom.), Att. κλῇθρον, κλεῖθρον, deriv. of κλήιω, κλείω 'shut', this belonging with Grk. κλείς 'key', etc. (7.24).

NG κλειδαριά, new deriv. of κλειδί 'key'. Also κλειδωνιά fr. κλειδώνω 'lock'.

2. Lat. claustrum, most general term covering 'bar, bolt' etc., fr. claudere 'shut', this belonging with clāvis 'key' (7.24).

Lat. pessulus, 'bolt' for fastening doors, fr. Grk. πάσσαλος 'peg'. Ernout-M. 762.

Lat. sera, 'bar' for fastening doors : Lat. serere 'join', etc., or : Skt. svaru- 'post, stake', OE swer 'pillar', etc.? Hence VLat. serra (explanation of rr dub., influence of serra 'saw'?), whence serrāre 'shut, fasten' (Fr. serrer, etc.), and fr. this the words for 'lock', It. serratura, Fr. serrure, Sp. cerradura, cerraja.

It. toppa, 'patch' and 'lock', beside toppo 'block', loanword fr. Gmc., MLG, NE top, etc. Cf. NE top in sense of 'cover' of a utensil, as top of a kettle.

Rum. broască 'frog' (etym.? REW 1329. Tiktin 227), applied first to a kind of hasp (from resemblance in shape; cf. NE frog on a garment), then to any lock.

3. Ir. glass, NIr. glas : (or fr.?) ME clasp 'fastening'. Pedersen 1.75.

In contrast to the door, which belongs to the most primitive house, the window is a later development, a very early one in the Mediterranean region, even with panes of glass or similar transparent material, but long unknown in northern Europe, and in parts of Scandinavia not earlier than the 16th century. Cf. Ebert, Reallex. and Schrader, Reallex. s.v. Fenster. With the spread of the Roman type of window, the Lat. fenestra was widely adopted, while in other cases the native word persisted. Cf., for example, Dan. vindue, but Sw. fönster (dial. vindoga used of the small window for throwing out dung), or ME fenestre beside windowe, with eventual victory of the latter, itself a loanword from Norse.

Words for 'window' are connected with those for 'door', 'light', 'wind', and 'eye'.

Words for 'floor' are mostly from general notions like 'bottom, ground', 'flat surface', but some reflect a particular material, especially 'board', or form of construction.

1. Grk. ἔδαφος 'bottom, ground', and 'floor' (Hdt.+, Att. and Delian inscriptions), also poet. οὖδας 'surface of the earth', 'ground', and 'floor' (as Hom. Od. 23.46), both words prob. cognate, but root connection dub. Walde-P. 1.254. Boisacq 215, 726.

Grk. δάπεδον 'ground, plain' and 'floor' (prose use for 'floor' attested in IG 4.823, 43, 45 and 952.44), cpd. of δα-, fr. dm̥-* : δόμος 'house', etc. and πέδον 'ground'. Walde-P. 1.787.

Grk. πάτος 'path', Byz. (with new meaning fr. πατῶ 'tread') 'floor' (> SCr. patos 'floor'), NG 'bottom'. Hence also, or better fr. the verb πατῶ 'tread', after the analogy of other derivs. in -ωμα, Byz., NG πάτωμα 'floor'.

2. Lat. pavīmentum, the normal technical word for the Roman 'floor', fr. pavīre 'beat, tread down' : Lith. piauti 'cut', etc. Hence It. pavimento 'floor', while other Romance derivs. mean 'pavement' or Rum. pămînt 'earth' (1.21). Walde-P. 2.12. Ernout-M. 743. REW 6312.

Lat. solum 'bottom, ground, soil' (1.212), also 'floor'. Hence Sp. suelo, reg. word for 'floor'. REW 8079.

Fr. plancher, fr. planche 'board, plank'. REW 6455.

Rum. pardoseală, deriv. of (?Byz. πάτος 'floor', influenced by) pardos 'leopard', orig. a 'mosaic floor' fr. its resemblance to a leopard's skin. Tiktin 1122.

Rum. duşumea, fr. Turk. döşeme 'floor' and 'furniture'. Tiktin 590. Lokotsch 534.

3. Ir. lār, NIr. urlār, W. llawr, Br. leur; OE flōr, ME flore, NE floor, Du. vloer (ON flōrr only 'floor' of a stall; MHG vluor, NHG flur 'field, plain' and 'vestibule'); all orig. 'flat surface', fr. the same root as Lat. plānus 'flat', etc. Walde-P. 2.61 f.

4. ON golf, Dan. gulv, Sw. golv, in ON also 'an apartment', etym.? Falk-Torp 361. Hellquist 293.

OE flōr, etc., above, 3.

OHG dil, dilla, MHG dil, dille, NHG diele 'board' and 'wooden floor' : OPruss. talus 'floor', ChSl. tĭlo 'bottom, ground', Skt. tala- 'surface', etc. Walde-P. 1.740. Weigand-H. 1.354.

OHG astrīh, MHG esterīch, NHG estrich 'stone floor' or 'cement floor', fr. MLat. astracum 'floor', this fr. Grk. ὄστρακον 'potsherd'. Kluge-G. 140. REW 6118.

NHG boden 'bottom, ground' (12.34), commonly used for 'floor' where the context or situation makes this sense clear, or more specifically fussboden.

OHG arin, MHG ern, fr. Lat. arēna. Walde-P. 1.79.

For the distribution of NHG (fuss)boden and diele, cf. Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 174 f.

5. Lith. asla, etym.? (connection with L. ārea or OHG astrīh, BB 16.207, unlikely).

Lett. grīda : Lith. grinda 'board', pl. grindos 'flooring, wooden floor', SCr. greda 'beam', ON grind 'lattice work', etc. Walde-P. 1.657. Berneker 348 f.

6. SCr. pod : ChSl. podŭ 'bottom, floor' (rare), Russ. pod 'bottom', Lith. podas 'sole of the foot', Grk. πέδον 'ground', etc. Walde-P. 2.24.

SCr. patos, fr. Byz. πάτος 'floor' (above, 1).

Boh. podlaha, Pol. podloga, cpd. of po- and dolga* in Boh. dlaha 'splint, board', dlažiti 'pave', Pol. dłažić 'press, trample' : OE telga 'branch', Ir. dluigim 'split', etc. fr. an extension of IE del-* 'split'. Berneker 207.

Russ. pol : ChSl. polica 'board, shelf', Boh. police, Russ. polka 'shelf', etc. (widespread Slavic group), Skt. phalaka- 'board, plank', ON fjǫl 'thin board', Grk. σφέλας 'footstool, pedestal', Skt. phal- 'burst, split', OHG spaltan 'split', etc. Walde-P. 2.677 ff. Brückner 429.

7. Skt. bhūmi- 'earth, ground' (1.21), also used for 'floor'. Other more specific words?

While the notion of the outer 'wall' of a town, fortress, etc. does not properly belong in this chapter, it must be considered in connection with the partition 'wall' of a house, which may be expressed by the same word, as in NE wall.

Where there is a distinctive word for the partition 'wall', like NHG wand, this is separated in the table by a preceding semicolon. But even in several of these cases, the distinction is not rigorous, and the word preceding the semicolon may also be used for the partition wall, e.g. OE weall, which glosses both Lat. mūrus and Lat. pariēs. For the outside wall of a house there is the greatest fluctuation, e.g. Lat. pariēs, less commonly mūrus, but It. muro, not parete.

Most of the words for 'wall' reflect in their origin some special type of construction.

1. Grk. τεῖχος (σ- stem), τοῖχος (ο- stem; both forms and uses merged in NG τοῖχος) : Osc. acc. pl. feíhúss 'walls', Skt. (Ved.) dehī- 'wall, mound', OPers. didā- 'fortress', Av. uzdaēzi- 'wall', Toch. A tseke 'piece of sculpture', fr. IE dheiĝh-* in Skt. dih- 'smear', Lat. fingere 'mold', etc. (9.72). Here also prob., with metathesis, ChSl. zĭdati 'build', zidŭ, zĭdŭ 'wall', SCr. zid (> Rum. zid), Boh. zed', etc. (also OPruss. seydis 'wall'). Walde-P. 1.833 ff. Walde-H. 1.501 f.

2. Lat. mūrus (early moerus) and moenia (pl.) : Skt. mi- 'fix, build', etc. Walde-P. 2.239 f. Ernout-M. 624 f., 645 (without etym.).

From Lat. mūrus come It., Sp. muro, Fr. mur, muraille; Ir. mūr, W. mur; ON mūrr, Dan., Sw. mur; OE mūr (rare), MLG mūre (> Lith. mūras, Lett. mūris, Pol. mur), Du. muur, OHG mūra, MHG mūr(e), NHG mauer.

Lat. pariēs, etym. dub., perh. : Lith. tvora 'fence', vb. tverti 'grasp, form', etc.; or : ChSl. podŭ-pora 'a prop', za-prěti 'shut', OHG sparro 'beam', etc., and so orig. the supporting struts of a wall. Walde-P. 1.750 f., 2.655 f. Ernout-M. 734.

Hence It. parete (Fr. paroi not common; generally mur), Sp. pared, Rum. părete, W. pared.

3. Ir. fraig (NIr. fraigh 'panel, side wall', etc.) : Skt. vṛjana- 'enclosure', Grk. ἔργω, Att. εἴργω 'shut in or out', etc. Walde-P. 1.290. Pedersen 1.97.

Most of the words for 'roof' are from verbs meaning 'cover' (12.26). But a few reflect a special material or type of structure, and conversely a general word for 'roof' may become restricted to a special type, as NE thatch.

1. From IE *(s)teg- 'cover', in Skt. sthag-, Grk. στέγω, Lat. tegere, etc. Walde-P. 2.620 f. Ernout-M. 1020. Pedersen 1.97.

Grk. στέγος, τέγος, στέγη; Lat. tēctum (> It. tetto, Fr. toit, Sp. techo, techado); Ir. tuige 'straw, thatch' and prob. used for the 'thatched roof', W. to, Br. to; ON þak, Dan. tag, Sw. tak, OE þæc (NE thatch), Du. dak, OHG dah, MHG, NHG dach (> Pol. dach); Lith. stogas, OPruss. stogis.

2. Grk. ὀροφή (so, not στέγη, in Hom. and early Att. inscriptions IG 1[2].373 and 374; cf. also at Epidaurus ὀροφά IG 4[2].1.106.46, 106. II. 136 f., vs. στέγα ib. 102.293) : ἐρέφω, ἐρέπτω 'cover with a roof', OHG hirni-reba 'skull', OHG rippa, OE ribb 'rib', etc. Walde-P. 2.371.

NG σκεπή (or σκέπη) 'cover, shelter', also used for 'roof'.

3. Rum. acoperiş, fr. acoperi 'cover', Lat. cooperīre 'cover'.

4. NIr. ceann 'head' (4.20), 'top' and 'roof'.

5. Goth. hrōt, ON poet. hrōt : OE, OS hrōst 'framework of the roof', NE roost (in Sc. 'inner roof of a cottage', cf. NED s.v., 3), MHG rāz 'funeral pile', ChSl. krada 'funeral pile', root connection? Walde-P. 1.485 f. Feist 270 f.

OE hrōf, ME rofe, NE roof : ON hrōf 'boat-shed', MLG rōf, Du. roef 'deck-house', further connections (MIr. crō 'stall, hovel', etc., Pedersen 1.92) dub. Walde-P. 1.477. Falk-Torp 917.

Br.	oaled

Words of this group are traditionally rendered by 'hearth', but mostly cover what in present NE usage is the fireplace, of which the hearth is only the floor with its extension in front.

The majority are from notions like 'fire', 'burn', 'shine', 'heat'; a few from 'corner', 'pavement', etc.

Many of them are also used symbolically for the family dwelling house, the 'home' (cf. NE fight for their firesides), as very commonly Grk. ἑστία (cf. ὁμέστιος 'of the same household'), Rum. cămin, NHG herd, etc.

1. Grk. ἑστία, dial. ἱστία : Lat. Vesta, both prob. fr. IE wes-* in Skt. vas- 'shine', uṣas- 'dawn', etc. rather than fr. IE wes-* in Skt. vas- 'dwell', etc. Walde-P. 1.307. Buck, IF 25.259. Boisacq 289 f., 1110.

Grk. ἐσχάρα, in Homer 'fireplace', later 'brazier, grate, altar', etym. dub. Boisacq 290.

NG γωνιά 'corner' (12.76) also common for 'fireplace'. But also τζάκι, fr. Turk. ocak.

2. Lat. focus : Arm. boç 'flame'? Walde-P. 2.186 ff. Ernout-M. 373. Walde-H. 1.521. VLat. focus was 'fire' replacing ignis (1.81), and 'fireplace' was expressed by derivs., whence It. focolare, Fr. foyer, Sp. hogar. REW 3398, 3400.

Lat. camīnus, covering the whole apparatus, consisting of fireplace and chimney, used in smelting, baking, and also for heating a room (cf. Daremberg et Saglio, s.v.), fr. Grk. κάμῑνος 'furnace, kiln', this prob. fr. the same root as Grk. καμάρα 'vault', etc. Walde-P. 1.349. Walde-H. 1.147, 149.

Hence, besides words for 'stove' (7.32) and 'chimney' (7.33), for 'fireplace' Rum. cămin, MHG, NHG kamin (also 'fireplace mantle' and 'chimney', with local-variation in use), Russ. kamin; and, through a deriv. VLat. camīnāta, OFr. cheminée (> ME chimney also 'fireplace', cf. NED), Sp. chimenea. REW 1548–49. Falk-Torp 489. Berneker 553.

Rum. vatră, loanword fr. Slavic vatra 'fireplace, fire' (1.81).

3. Ir. tenlach, tellach, NIr. teallach, deriv. of Ir. tene 'fire' (1.81), with suffix -lach 'place of' (fr. IE legh-* 'lie'). Loth, MSL 18.352.

W. aelwyd, OCorn. oilet, Br. oaled, fr. OE ǣled 'fire' (1.81). Walde-P. 1.5. Parry-Williams 34.

Dan. ildsted, Sw. eldstad, lit. 'fireplace', cpds. of ild, eld 'fire' (1.81).

OE heorþ, ME herth, NE hearth, Du. haard, OHG herd (also 'floor, ground'), MHG hert, NHG herd : Goth. hauri 'coal', ON hyrr 'fire', Lith. kurti 'heat', etc., IE ker-*. Walde-P. 1.418. Feist 250.

NE fireplace (1702+, NED), now the common term, hearth being used only in a more restricted sense (above).

MHG viurstat, NHG feuerstätte, in origin and use like NE fireplace.

5. Lith. ugniavietė, cpd. of ugnis 'fire' and vieta 'place' (12.12).

Lith. ugniakuras (Lalis), Lett. uguns-kurs, cpds. of Lith. ugnis, Lett. uguns 'fire' and the root of Lith. kurti, Lett. kurt 'heat', OE heorþ, etc. (above, 4).

Lith. židinys, fr. the root of žiesti 'construct, build', ChSl. zĭdati 'build', etc. (9.44).

Lett. pavards, etym.?

6. ChSl. ognište, etc., general Slavic, fr. ognĭ 'fire' (1.81). But Russ. ognišče now obs. and replaced by kamin (above, 2). Russ. očag 'hearth' in symbolic sense, fr. Turk. ocak 'fireplace'.

7. Skt. agnikuṇḍa-, cpd. of agni- 'fire' and kuṇḍa- 'pot, vessel for coals', is used of a receptacle for the sacred fire, but there is no word for a household fireplace.

Much later than the 'fireplace, hearth' (7.31), which, succeeding the fire in the open, dates from the primitive house, and the 'oven' for cooking (5.25), is the heating by a 'brazier' of live coals or by a closed apparatus which became the modern 'stove'. This developed in southern Europe primarily for heating the bath. The Greek and Latin words and others listed from an early period (as the Ir., ON, OE, and OHG words) are generally rendered by 'furnace'. Most of these and many of the modern words for 'stove' are the same as those for 'oven'.

1. Words already discussed under 'oven' (5.25). Grk. ἰπνός, Lat. furnus (> Ir. sornn, NIr. sorn; dim. Sp. hornillo, Fr. fourneau, Br. fornigell), ON ofn, Sw. ugn, OE ofen, OHG ovan, NHG ofen, SCr. peć, Pol. piec, Russ. peč' (> Lith. pečius).

2. MLat. stufa (stuba, stupa), It. stufa, Fr. étuve, Sp. estufa, used for 'hot bath, hothouse', etc. and finally (It., Sp.) for 'stove', OE stofa 'hot bath', OHG stuba 'bathroom, heated room', MLG stove (> ME stove 'hot-air bath, sweating-room', also 'heated sitting-room or bedroom'; NE stove in present sense since about 1600; > NIr. stōv, W. stof, etc.) The continental Gmc. forms developed in the direction of 'room' and spread to Balto-Slavic mostly in this sense (cf. 7.21). But the development to 'stove', as in NE and Romance, shows itself in some of the Balkan derivs., namely (in form through Hung. szoba, now only 'room') Turk., Bulg. soba, Rum. sobă, NG σόμπα (soba). Stender-Petersen 249.

The ultimate origin of this group (and even its unity, though this seems obvious) is much disputed, but it prob. rests on a back-formation fr. VLat. extūfāre* (It. stufare, OFr. estuver, NE stew, etc.), this fr. tūfus*, Grk. τῦφος 'vapor'. Cf. REW 3108 (with separation of the Gmc. words), and other references given in 7.21.

3. Grk. θερμάστρα 'furnace' (Callim., Euphor.), lit. 'heater', fr. θερμαίνω 'heat' fr. θερμός 'hot' (15.85). Hence NG θερμάστρα 'stove', mostly in the literary language, the common word being σόμπα (above, 2).

4. Lat. camīnus 'forge', etc., also used for heating a room (7.31). Hence, besides words for 'fireplace' (7.31) or 'chimney' (7.33), also some for 'stove', as It. camino mostly 'cookstove', Sw. kamin 'iron stove', Boh. kamna 'stove'.

Fr. poêle, formerly 'heated room', fr. Lat. (balneae) pēnsilēs, lit. 'hanging-bath', used of a bathroom with the floor heated from underneath. REW 6392. Gamillscheg 704.

5. Dan. kakkelovn, now any 'stove', orig. 'stove of tile', like Sw. kakelugn, MLG, MHG kacheloven, NHG kachelofen, cpd. of Dan. kakkel, Sw. kakel, MLG kachel 'glazed tile' (> Du. kachel 'stove', Lith. kakalys 'stove'), fr. OHG kachala 'earthen pot', further orig. dub. Falk-Torp 484. Meringer, Wört. u. Sach. 3.156 ff.

6. Lith. krosnis, Lett. krāsns, orig. 'stove made of stones', 'heap of stones', prob. : Lett. krāt 'collect'. Buga, Kalba ir Senovė 178. Mühl.-Endz. 2.268.

7. Skt. açmanta-, fr. açman- 'stone', and Skt. culli-, etym. unknown, are both rare, but rendered by 'ofen' in BR.

The 'chimney' is no part of the primitive house, from which the smoke escaped by the door or an opening in the roof, and is relatively late in northern Europe. But it was known in ancient Greece and Rome, as attested by literary references, vase paintings, and actual remains. Cf. Daremberg et Saglio 1.860 ff.

The words are partly compounds or derivatives of those for 'smoke' (1.83), but come also from words for 'fireplace with chimney', or for 'pipe', 'basket', 'prop-stone'.

1. Grk. καπνοδόκη (later -δόχη), lit. 'smoke-receptacle', cpd. of καπνός 'smoke' and δέκομαι (δέχομαι) 'receive'. Hence the abbreviated κάπνη in the comic poets.

NG φουγάρο, fr. It. dial. fogaro, fugaro, deriv. of fogo = fuoco 'fire'. G. Meyer, Neugr. Stud. 4.97.

NG καμινάδα, see below, 2.

2. Lat. camīnus (7.31) included the 'chimney', but is not quotable as applied to the 'chimney' only. Its derivs. are used for 'fireplace' (7.31), 'stove' (7.32), and 'chimney'. So as 'chimney' It. camino, MHG, NHG kamin (> Boh., Pol. komin > Lith. kaminas); through VLat. camīnāta 'room with heating apparatus', NG καμινάδα, Fr. cheminée (> ME, NE chimney > NIr. simnē, W. simdde, simnai; Br. siminal fr. Fr.), Sp. chimenea. REW 1548. Gamillscheg 215.

Rum. coş, orig. 'basket', loanword fr. Slavic, ChSl. koší 'basket', etc. Berneker 586. Tiktin s.v.

3. ON reykberi, reykhāfr, cpds. of reykr 'smoke' and bera 'carry', hafa 'hold'. Cf. NHG rauchfang. Both words rare, usually ljōri 'opening in the roof' : ljōs 'light' (Falk-Torp 650).

MLG scor(en)stein, scorstēn (> late ON skorsteinn, Dan., Sw. skorsten, Lett. skurstenis), Du. schoorsteen, MHG schor(n)stein, NHG schornstein (> Lith. šiurkštainis in Pruss. Lith.), orig. the 'propstone' upon which the chimney rested, first part of the cpd. : ON skorða, MLG, ME schore 'prop' (NE shore in a shipyard). Falk-Torp 1019. Weigand-H. 2.781.

NHG rauchfang, lit. 'smoke-catcher', is the usual word for 'chimney' in Austria. For the local distribution of NHG schornstein, kamin, rauchfang (also esse, schlot), cf. Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 436 ff.

4. Lith. kaminas, Boh., Pol. komin, above, 2.

Lith. dūmalaidė, dūmatakis (NSB, but book words only?), cpds. of dūmas 'smoke' with -laidė : leidžu, leisti 'let' and -takis : teku, tekėti 'run'.

SCr. dimnjak, deriv. of dim 'smoke'.

SCr. odžak, common in eastern area, from Turk. ocak 'fireplace, chimney'. Lokotsch 1587.

Russ. dymovaja truba 'smoke-pipe' or commonly truba 'pipe, trumpet' used alone for 'chimney' : ChSl. trǫba 'pipe, trumpet', loanword fr. OHG trumba 'trumpet' (It. tromba, etc., REW 8952).

5. Skt. dhūmanirgama- (rare and no evidence of an actual chimney) lit. 'smoke-outlet', cpd. of dhūma- 'smoke' and nirgama- 'outgoing'.

'Furniture' is understood here in the now prevailing sense of NE furniture (NED s.v., 7), that is as 'house furniture'. Some of the words are connected with those for 'house, dwelling'. But the majority had originally, and some still have, a wider scope, covering all sorts of movable property, equipment, utensils, etc.

The words are partly plural, partly singular forms used collectively.

1. Grk. ἔπιπλα (also 'utensils, fittings', but usually not so general as σκεύη) : ἐπιπολή 'surface', ἐπιπόλαιος 'on the surface' (cf. Cret. ἐπιπόλαια χρήματα = ἔπιπλα), ἐπιπέλομαι 'come upon', etc., IE *k^wel-. Walde-P. 1.514 f.

2. Lat. supellex, gen. -lectilis (> It. supellettile), prob. fr. super-lecti-(li-)* 'what lies or is laid over' : lectus 'bed', Goth. ligan 'lie', etc. Ernout-M. 1004 (with doubt).

It. mobili, Fr. meubles (sg. meuble > Dan. møbel, Sw. möbel, Du. meubel 'piece of furniture', pl. OE andlōman and gelōma sometimes gloss. supellex, but here in their usual sense of 'utensil(s), tool(s)', whence NE loom (6.34).

ME houshold was sometimes used for 'household furniture' (NED s.v., 2).

ME mobles (fr. OFr. mobles) 'movable property' covered 'furniture' but never became specialized like the Fr. word.

NE furniture, formerly of more general scope, 'furnishing, furnishings, implements', etc., fr. Fr. fourniture 'furnishing, provision', deriv. of fournir 'supply, provide', this fr. OHG frummen 'perform, accomplish', deriv. of fram 'further'. Wartburg 3.829 ff. NED s.v.

Walde-P. 1.779. But whether these OHG words were used for 'house furniture' is doubtful.

MHG hūsrāt, hūsgeræte, MLG husgerāt (> Dan. husgeraad, Sw. husgeråd), NHG hausrat, hausgerat, cpds. of hūs 'house' and rāt 'provision', coll. geræte 'utensils', fr. OHG rātan 'prepare, counsel' : OE rǣdan 'counsel', etc. Falk-Torp 433, 865.

5. Lith. baldai, etym.? There is no apparent semantic connection with OLith. baldas 'pestle', baldyti, bildėti 'knock, make a noise' (Leskien, Ablaut 320). But cf. the curious history of NE knickknacks used of small ornaments, connected with knack 'trick' and this with the verb knack 'strike, knock', etc.

Lith. rakandai, orig. 'utensils', pl. of rakandas a kind of 'vessel' or 'utensil' beside rakanda a kind of 'basket', root connection? Leskien, Bildung d. Nom. 588 f.

Lett. istabas lietas, lit. 'things, implements' (lietas) of the room (istaba).

Lett. mebele (given by Drawneek, but not in Mühl.-Endz. or Ulmann), fr. NHG möbel (above, 2).

Under 'chair' are listed the common words for the individual seat, as an article of furniture, whether one with or without back or arms, that is, without regard to the present differentiation of NE chair and stool. Not included are words which may denote any kind of 'seat', or those denoting some special form of chair.

But of the latter there may be noted here certain interesting words applied to a ceremonial chair or the modern 'armchair'.

Grk. θρόνος, in Hom. a high ornate chair, in part (but by no means restricted to) the 'seat, throne' of gods and princes (hence the Eur. words for 'throne'), with θρᾶνος 'bench, beam' and Hom. θρῆνυς 'footstool', fr. the root dher-* in Skt. dhṛ- 'hold, support', etc. (11.15). Walde-P. 1.857. Boisacq 349.

It. poltrona (beside OIt. poltro 'bed', Fr. poutre 'beam') fr. a deriv. of Lat. pullus 'colt, foal' (3.45), applied with reference to the horse-head decorations, in this case of the arms. REW 6825. Hence NG πολτρόνα, now by pop. etym. πολυθρόνα, as if fr. θρόνος (above). G. Meyer, Neugr. Stud. 4.72.

Fr. fauteuil, OFr. faudestuel, fr. Frank. faldistōl* = OHG faltstuol, OE fyldestōl, lit. 'folding chair' and so in fact, but an ornate one (cf. Chanson de Roland 115 'of pure gold, there sits the king of France'). The early forms and the transition to an armchair are illustrated in Viollet le Duc 1.109 ff. REW 3161. Wartburg 3.385.

With a few exceptions, the general words for 'chair' are from roots meaning either 'sit' or 'place, set'.

1. From IE sed-* 'sit' in Lat. sedēre, Goth. sitan, Skt. sad-, etc. (12.13). Here besides numerous words for 'seat', as Grk. ἕδος, Skt. sadas-, belong Grk. ἕδρα, καθέδρα; Lat. sella (> Sp. silla), It. sedia (OIt. seggia), seggiola (new formations fr. the vb., as also Fr. siège 'seat', REW 7780, 7782); Goth. sitls; ChSl. sědalište, sědalo, sědanĭje, Boh. sedadlo.

Grk. καθέδρα is the source of Lat. cathedra, whence OFr. chaire (> ME chaire, NE chair), Fr. chaise, Ir. cathair, NIr. cathaoir, W. cadair, Br. kador; also (through the medium of OVenetian charegla) NG καρέγλα, καρέκλα (both forms heard; also καθέκλα, a blend with καθέδρα). REW 1768. Pedersen 1.191.

2. From IE stel-* 'place, set up' beside stā-* 'stand', hence orig. 'something set up, support'. The alternative deriv. fr. stā*, stə- with l-suffix amounts to the same thing semantically. Walde-P. 2.607, 643. Falk-Torp 1172. Feist 455 f.

Goth. stōls (only for θρόνος), OE stōl, etc. general Gmc. (NE stool with restricted application); ChSl. stolŭ, prěstolŭ (mostly 'throne'), SCr. stolica, Boh. stolice. Russ. stul fr. NHG stuhl. Other Slavic cognates mean 'table' (7.44).

3. Rum. scaun, fr. Lat. scamnum 'bench, stool' (> NG σκαμνί 'stool') : Skt. skabh- 'prop, support', sb. skambha- 'post, prop'. Walde-P. 2.539. Ernout-M. 901.

4. Lith. krėslas, Lett. krēsls, OPruss. creslan, Boh. křeslo, Pol. krzesło, Russ. kreslo, all esp. and orig. 'armchair', but in part the most nearly generic words, prob. : SCr. krosna 'loom', etc. (6.34), fr. a common notion of 'frame'. Walde-P. 1.485. Berneker 614 f. Mühl.-Endz. 2.276.

Lith. kėdė, kedė, prob. as orig. 'spinning stool', with Lett. k'eda 'spindle' fr. Esth. kedr 'spindle'. Leskien, Bildung der Nom. 265. On this and krėslas, cf. esp. Buga, Kalba ir Senovė 136 ff. Both words are now used for the common 'chair' (Senn).

5. Skt. pīṭha-, etym.?

Av. gātu-, OPers. gāθu- 'place' and 'seat, throne' : Skt. gā- 'go'. Walde-P. 1.677.

7.44 TABLE

W.	bwrdd, bord	MHG	tisch
Br.	taol	NHG	tisch (tafel)

A regular 'table' for serving meals and for other purposes (Grk. τράπεζα also 'bank'), was a common article of furniture in Greece and Rome. Previous to its introduction into northern Europe, food was served on small individual tables (as also in Homer), such a table being properly a serving tray and in part consisting only of a piece of board. Cf. Schrader Reallex. 2.536.

This situation has an important bearing on the history of the words.

1. Grk. τράπεζα (> ChSl. trapeza, SCr. trpeza), fr. *πτρα-πεδια 'four-footed', cpd. of forms of τέσσαρες, τετρα- 'four' and πούς, ποδός 'foot'. Also Boeot. τρίπεζα (τρέπεδδα), lit. 'three-footed'.

2. Lat. mēnsa, fem. of mēnsus, pple. of mētīrī 'measure', fr. IE mē-* 'measure'. Orig. 'portion' applied to the antecedent small individual table (cf. above) and to the 'meal, course, food', the latter use also surviving in Latin beside 'table'. Walde-P. 2.237. Ernout-M. 607. Walde-H. 2.70.

Hence (through VLat. mēsa) Sp. mesa, Rum. masă, Ir. mias ('table' and 'dish'), Goth. mēs ('table' and 'platter'), OHG mias, meas, OE mēsa, myse. Hence also, as applied to the small individual table or serving tray of the Celts, Germans, and Slavs, numerous words for 'platter' or 'dish' (5.31, 5.32).

It. tavola, Fr. table (> ME, NE table), Br. taol, Du. tafel, fr. Lat. tabula 'board, tablet' (9.52). As suggested by Meyer-Lübke, this was first used for 'table' by the Franks, as equivalent to the Gmc. terms for their small table (below, 4). That is, semantic borrowing in Fr. fr. Gmc., then fr. Fr. in It., etc., and in NHG tafel (> Dan., Sw. taffel) when used for 'dining-table'.

3. Ir. bordd, NIr. bōrd, W. bwrdd, bord, fr. Gmc., OE or Norse, below, 4.

4. Goth. biuþs, ON bjōð (rare), OE bēod, OHG beot, biet, fr. the root of Goth. -biudan, OE bēodan, OHG biotan 'offer'. Orig. 'offering, portion' (cf. Lat. mēnsa, above, 2), applied to the 'serving tray, platter' (whence Balto-Slavic words for 'platter, dish, bowl', 5.31–5.33), which was the old Gmc. 'table'. Walde-P. 2.147. Feist 97.

ON borð, Dan., Sw., OE bord, ME borde, all meaning also and orig. 'board' (cf. Goth. fōtu-baurd 'footstool', MHG bort 'board', etc.), fr. an extension of an IE bher-* 'cut'(?). Walde-P. 2.174, 159. Falk-Torp 94.

Oil lamps made of stone date from prehistoric times in Greece, followed by the common earthenware and the ornamental bronze lamps. From Greece they were introduced into Rome, where candles, unknown in ancient Greece, were in earlier use. From Greece and Rome they spread to the rest of Europe, where the earlier illumination had been from the light of the fire on the hearth or from pine torches. Cf. Daremberg et Saglio and Pauly-Wissowa s.v. lucerna, Schrader, Reallex. 2.6 ff.

Like the article itself, the Greek and Latin words were largely adopted. But there are some early Gmc. and Slavic terms, derived from words for 'light'.

1. Grk. λύχνος (> early Lat. lucnus, lucinus; NG λυχνάρι), Lat. lucerna (> It. lucerna, Ir. lōcharnn, NIr. lōchrann, W. llusern, Goth. lukarn), fr. the root of Grk. λευκός 'bright', Lat. lūx 'light', lūcēre 'be light', OE lēoht 'light', etc. (1.61). Walde-P. 2.408 ff. Ernout-M. 573.

2. Grk. λαμπάς, -άδος 'torch', fr. λάμπω 'give light, shine' : OPruss. lopis 'flame', etc. Walde-P. 2.383. Only 'torch' in class. Grk., but later 'lamp' (so, beside λύχνος, in NT, as Mt. 25.1 ff.). Hence Lat. lampas, -adis 'torch', later 'lamp', the source of the present almost universal mod. Eur. word for 'lamp', in large part through Fr. lampe.

3. Br. kreuzeul fr. OFr. croisel 'night-lamp', this ultimately fr. a Celt.-Gmc. word for 'earthenware pot' (OE crocca, MIr. crocan, etc., 5.26). Henry 81. Gamillscheg 277.

4. ON ljōsker, OE lēohtfæt, OHG liohtfaz, MHG liehtvaz, all cpds. of words for 'light' (1.61) and 'vessel' (ON ker, OE fæt, etc.).

5. ChSl. světilĭnikŭ, fr. světiti 'give light', denom. of světŭ 'light' (1.61). Similarly SCr. svjetiljka.

6. Skt. dīpa-, fr. dīp- 'shine', an extension of dī- 'shine'. Walde-P. 1.772 ff.

Candles were unknown in ancient Greece (besides lamps there were various kinds of torches) but were common from very early times among the Romans and the Etruscans. Cf. Daremberg et Saglio, s.v. candēla.

Most of the words are derived from those for 'light' or 'shine', with specialization to 'candle'. Some are from other sources, as 'vigil, watch', name of a town, some material used, as wax. But several words for 'wax candles' are used only for those in ceremonial, not in domestic, use.

1. NG κερί, fr. Grk. κηρίον, dim. of κηρός 'wax' (κηροί 'wax candles' from 3d cent. A.D.), whence Lat. cēra 'wax', cēreus 'wax-candle' (> It. cero, Sp. cirio, OFr. cirge > ME cerge). Ernout-M. 176. Walde-H. 1.202. REW 1829.

2. Lat. candēla, the common tallow candle, fr. candēre 'be bright, shine' : Skt. cand- 'shine', etc. Walde-P. 1.352. Hence It., Sp. candela, Fr. chandelle, Ir. caindel, NIr. coinneal, W. cannwyl, Br. kantol, OE, ME candel, NE candle; NG καντήλι a kind of small lamp with disk floating in oil. Late Lat. candēla also 'chandelier' (candelae vitreae ingentes pendent, Peregrinatio 247). REW 1578. Vendryes, De hib. voc. 120.

Port. lume de Bugia, Sp. bujia, OFr. chandelle de Bougie, Fr. bougie (It. bugia 'candlestick'), fr. the name of the Algerian town Bugia, and referring orig. to the 'wax', of which much was imported from Algeria. REW 1375. Wartburg 1.600.

Sp. vela 'vigil, watch' and 'candle' (vela de sebo, de cera) : It. veglia 'watch', etc., denom. of Lat. vigilāre 'keep awake, watch'. REW 9326.

Rum. lumînare, fr. Lat. lūmināre used in late Latin of a small lamp, deriv. of lūmen 'light'.

3. Br. goulou 'light' (1.61) and 'candle', also with koar 'wax' or soav 'tallow'.

4. ON ljōs, OE lēoht, OHG lioht, etc. 'light' (1.61) were also applied to any form of artificial light, as still NE light (put out the light), NHG licht, etc., but especially the 'candle', for which Dan. lys, Sw. ljus are the current words. For this use in OE and ME cf. NED s.v. light, sb. 5.b and for NHG, cf. Kretschmer, Wortgeogr. 326 f.

MLG kerte (> late ON kerti, Dan. kjerte), Du. kaars, OHG kerza, MHG, NHG kerze, beside OHG charz 'wick', prob. fr. Lat. charta 'papyrus', the pith of the papyrus being used for the wick of a candle, though charta is not quotable in such connection, as is papyrus. The latter is glossed by weoce and taper in OE vocabularies (Wright 126.29, 267.12), and is the source of Sp. pabilo, etc., 'wick' (REW 6218.3), and prob. of OE tapor, ME taper. Falk-Torp 517. Kluge-G. 296. NED s.v. taper, sb.[1].

5. Lith. žvakė : Lat. fax, facula 'torch'. Walde-P. 1.645.

6. SCr. sveča, Boh. svíce, Pol. swieca, Russ. sveča (ChSl. svěšta 'light, lamp, torch'), fr. světiti 'give light', denom. of světŭ 'light' (1.61). Hence Lett. svece, but perh. blended with a native word. Mühl.-Endz. 3.1145.

[1] Names of various vegetables and fruits under Food, Chap. 5, pp. 370 ff.

'Farmer' is understood in the present common use of NE farmer (NED s.v. 5), that of Lat. agricola. Dictionaries of other languages are apt to take this in an older sense and render it by Fr. fermier, métayer, NHG pächter, etc. Such words for special classes of farmers, according to form of tenure, are not included. On the other hand, words for 'peasant', lit. 'countryman', since the peasant and farming class coincide in large measure, may be those in common use for 'farmer', while the stricter equivalents are more or less learned or archaic (cf. Fr. paysan vs. agriculteur, NHG bauer vs. ackermann, etc.). Hence several words for 'peasant' which are commonly so used are included in the list. Many of these have also a derogatory use, which does not concern us here.

1. Grk. γεωργός, fr. *γηοργός, beside Boeot. γᾱϝεργός, Lac. γᾱβεργόρ, cpd. of γῆ 'earth, land' (1.21) and the root of ἔργον 'work' (9.12).

NG (beside γεωργός) χωρικός, χωριάτης, prop. 'peasant', derivs. of χώρα 'country', χωρίον 'village'.

2. Lat. agricola, cpd. of ager 'field' (8.12) and the root of colere 'cultivate, inhabit'. Ernout-M. 22.205. Walde-H. 1.247.

It. agricoltore, Fr. agriculteur, Sp., Rum. agricultor, learned borrowing fr. Lat. agricultor (late), agrī cultor, with the same elements as the old agricola.

It. coltivatore, Fr. cultivateur, deriv. of It. coltivare, Fr. cultiver, MLat. cultivāre, this through late cultīvus fr. Lat. cultus, pple. of colere.

It. contadino 'peasant', deriv. of contado 'country region', once 'county' : Fr. comté etc., deriv. of Lat. comes, -itis in its later sense of 'count'. REW 2078.

Fr. paysan 'peasant' (OFr. paisant > ME peysant, NE peasant), deriv. of pays 'country' (19.11). REW 6145.

Sp. labrador, fr. labrar 'work, make', esp. 'cultivate, till' (8.15).

Rum. țăran 'peasant', deriv. of țara 'land, country' (1.21).

3. Ir. briugu, brugaid 'landowner, farmer, yeoman' (K. Meyer, Contrib. 263, 275. Laws, Gloss. 109) fr. bruig 'inhabited land, country, district' (19.14).

NIr. feirmeoir, W. ffermwr, farmwr, fr. NE farmer (below).

W. amaethwr, older amaeth (Laws 'plowman') : Gallo-Lat. ambactus 'servant, dependent' (orig. perh. this sense in Welsh, whence 'farm-laborer', 'plowman', 'farmer') : Ir. imm-agim 'drive, go about', Lat. agere, etc. Walde-P. 1.35.

Br. gounideg fr. gounid 'profit', vb. gounit 'gain, earn' and 'cultivate' (8.15).

Br. kouer 'peasant', perh. fr. OFr. coillier 'gatherer', in sense of 'harvester'. Henry 77.

4. Goth. waurstwja deriv. of waurstw 'work' (9.12), renders ἐργάτης 'workman' and also reg. γεωργός (once with airþōs 'of the earth').

ON bōndi (older būandi) 'settled landowner, head of a household', Dan., Sw. bonde 'peasant', fr. ON būa 'dwell, inhabit' (7.11).

ON akrmaðr, Sw. åkerman, OE æcerceorl, æcerman, ME acreman, OHG accharman, MHG ackerman, NHG ackermann, (also Du. akkerman) cpds. of akr, etc. 'field' and words for 'man'.

ON akrgerðarmaðr, akrverksmaðr lit. 'field-work's man'.

Dan. dyrker fr. dyrke 'cultivate, till' (8.15).

Dan. landmand, Sw. landtman, Du. landman, MHG lantman, NHG landmann, cpd. of land 'country' and 'man'.

Sw. jordbrukare, cpd. of jord 'earth, land' and brukare fr. bruka 'use'.

OE tilia (also eorð-tilia Gospels, Jn. 15.1; Lindisf. lond-buend) : tilian 'labor, strive for, attend to', late also 'cultivate, till' (see 8.15).

OE gebūr, MDu. ghebuur, Du. boer, OHG gibūr(o), MHG būr, gebūr(e), NHG bauer, cpd. of ge-, gi- here 'with' and OE būr, OHG būr, etc. 'house', fr. OE, OHG būan 'dwell, inhabit' (7.11). Weigand-H. 1.168, 169. Franck-v. W. 77.101.

ME husbonde, husbondman, NE husbandman (so reg. in our Bible, but now arch.), fr. late OE husbonda 'master of a house', this fr. ON hūsbōndi 'master of a house, husband' (in the latter sense also ME husbonde, NE husband, 2.33), cpd. of hūs 'house' and bōndi (above).

NE farmer, earlier 'one who rents land for the purpose of cultivation', fr. ME fermour 'one who undertakes the collection of taxes or revenues, etc. by payment of a fixed sum for the proceeds', Anglo-Fr. fermer (Fr. fermier), fr. MLat. firmārius lit. 'one who fixes, makes fast', fr. firmus 'fast, firm'. However, the word is felt in modern speech to be the agent noun of the vb. farm. NED s.v.

Du. landbouwer, cpd. of land 'land' and bouwer fr. bouwen 'dwell, cultivate'.

OHG accarbigango, accarbigengiri ('agricola' reg. in Tatian), fr. acchur 'field' and bigango 'cultor' : bigangan 'go over, frequent, till'.

5. Lith. ūkininkas (the preferred word in Lalis, Senn, Lit. Sprachl., and Hermann, Lit.-deutsches Gesprächs. 120 f.) fr. ūkis 'farm, farming' (: junkti 'be accustomed'. Walde-P. 1.111).

Lith. laukininkas, Lett. laucinieks, fr. Lith. laukas, Lett. lauks 'field' (1.23).

Lith. žemdirbis, cpd. of žemė 'earth' and root of dirbti 'work' (9.13).

Lith. būras, fr. MLG būr (= NHG bauer, etc., above, 4).

Lett. zemnieks, fr. zeme 'land, earth'.

6. ChSl. dělatelĭ (freq. in Gospels for ἐργάτης and γεωργός), fr. dělati 'work' (9.13).

ChSl. tężatelĭ, tężarĭ, SCr. težak (Boh. těžař 'cultivator, miner'), fr. ChSl. tężati 'work', etc. : ChSl. tęgnąti 'pull, draw' (9.33). Semantic development through 'stretch, strain' to 'work, work in the field'. Miklosich 350. For ChSl. distribution, cf. Jagić, Entstehungsgesch. 342.

Late ChSl. ratajĭ, SCr. ratar, rataj, lit. 'plow-man' : ChSl. orati 'plow', etc. (8.21).

SCr. seljak, fr. selo 'village, country' : ChSl. selo 'field', etc. Similarly also Boh. sedlák, orig. fr. selo 'village, field', but in form as if from sedlo 'saddle', orig. 'seat' (see under selo, 8.12).

Boh. rolník, Pol. rolnik, fr. Boh. role, Pol. rola 'field' (8.12).

Pol. chłop : Russ. cholop 'serf', Boh. chlap 'churl, fellow', ChSl. chlapŭ 'serving man, servant', etc., ultimate origin obscure. Berneker 394.

Russ. zemledelec, fr. zemlja 'earth' and -delec fr. delat' 'do, work'.

Russ. krest'janin, earlier 'Christian', then 'man (in general)', whence 'peasant', ChSl. krĭstĭjanŭ, krĭstĭjaninŭ 'Christian', through OHG christjāni fr. Grk. χριστιανός. Berneker 635.

Russ. mužik 'peasant', deriv. of muž 'man'.

7. Skt. kṣetrakarṣaka-, kṣetrapati- fr. kṣetra- 'field' with karṣaka- 'plowing, cultivating' (fr. kṛṣ- 'plow') and pati- 'owner, master'.

'Field' is understood here as a tract of land for cultivation, in distinction from 'field' in a broader sense, without special reference to agriculture, which has been considered with 'plain' (1.23). But several of the words entered here cover both notions, and in such cases reference is made to the previous discussion. Even some of those in which the agricultural sense is dominant are sometimes used also in a wider sense, as Grk. ἀγρός, Lat. ager for 'open country' vs. 'town' (19.13).

1. IE aĝro-, prob. fr. aĝ- 'drive' in Lat. agere, etc., and so orig. 'place where the cattle were driven, pasture' (cf. OHG trift 'pasture' : trīben 'drive'), whence, with the advance of the agricultural stage, the common Eur. use. Walde-P. 1.37. Ernout-M. 22 f. Walde-H. 1.22. Feist 33. Specht, KZ 66.17.

Grk. ἀγρός; Lat. ager; Goth. akrs, ON akr, OE æcer, etc., general Gmc.; but Skt. ajra- (RV) 'open field' without reference to cultivation.

2. Grk. ἄρουρα, Lat. arvum 'arable land' prob. : Skt., Av. urvarā- (below, 8), and both : Grk. εὐρύς 'wide', Skt. varas- 'width'. Specht, KZ 66.246 f.

Skt. dūrvā- 'panic-grass', Du. tarwe 'wheat', all perh. fr. an extension of IE der-* in Lith. dirti, Lett. dirāt, OE teran 'tear', etc. Walde-P. 1.800, 803. Berneker 186. Specht, KZ 66.18.

Lith. laukas 'field' but chiefly in broad sense (1.23).

Lett. tīrums, orig. 'a cleared field (for cultivation)' : tīrs 'clean, pure' (cf. tīri lauki, Lith. tyrai laukai 'cleared land'). Mühl.-Endz. 204.

7. ChSl. selo (in Gospels reg. for ἀγρός, later sometimes 'village' as SCr., Russ. selo, Pol. sioło), prob. : OHG sal 'dwelling, hall', ON salr 'hall, room', Lat. solum 'bottom, soil', etc. (but in Slavic partly mixed with the deriv. of IE sed-* 'sit', Slov. sedlo 'seat', etc.). 'Garden' is often a specialization of 'yard', and several of the words entered here belong to groups already discussed under that head (7.15). Most of the others are from a similar notion of 'enclosure'. There may be specialization of 'garden' to 'flower garden', 'vegetable garden', or 'tree garden, orchard'. A converse generalization is seen in Sw. trädgård, lit. 'tree-garden'.

Words for 'barn', as a storehouse for grain or other farm produce, are partly specializations of 'storehouse' and partly from words for 'grain' (or some particular kind of grain, as 'barley' in the case of NE barn). But since the farmer's barn may also be the place where the farm animals are kept, there is sometimes confusion with the notion of 'stable'. So a few of the words for 'barn' probably rest on this latter notion (Goth. bansts, Ir. saball). Conversely in NE barn in U.S. usage the secondary association with the place where the cattle and horses are kept is so strong that in the country it is the common word covering 'stable', and it is by this analogy (rather than the notion of 'storehouse') that one uses car barn of the place where street cars stand when not on their run.

Some of the words included in the list denote any storage place for grain, with no resemblance to our barn, for which there may be no good equivalent.

1. Grk. ἀποθήκη 'storehouse' in general, including one for grain (as reg. in NT, Mt. 6.26, etc.), fr. ἀποτίθημι 'put away, store up', cpd. of τίθημι 'put, place'. NG σιταποθήκη, cpd. with σῖτος 'grain' (8.42).

Grk. σιτοβολών (so NG), also -βολεῖον, -βόλιον, -βολον, cpds. of σῖτος 'grain', with derivs. of βάλλω 'throw'.

Grk. καλιά 'hut' (7.13), also 'barn' (Hes.).

2. Lat. horreum, etym.? Ernout-M. 461. Walde-H. 1.659 f.

Lat. grānārium (> It. granaio, Sp. granero, Fr. grenier), usually in pl. grānāria, fr. grānum 'grain' (8.42), whence also Fr. grange (> Br. granch) fr. VLat. grānica, fem. of an adj. grānicus* 'pertaining to grain'. REW 3839, 3845. Gamillscheg 482.

Verbs for 'work' (9.13) may be used transitively with objects like 'land, soil' in the special sense of 'cultivate', like NE work the land. Several of these, or their compounds, are the usual, or at least very common, expressions for this notion. Some verbs for 'plow' (8.21) are also used in the broader sense 'cultivate', partly by extension from 'plow', partly from a common source. Two important groups, formally unrelated, have the twofold sense of 'dwell, inhabit' and 'cultivate', through a common notion of 'be busy with, be accustomed', or the like. Among other semantic sources are 'strive, gain, attain', 'make use of', 'make unwild', 'make valuable'.

1. Grk. γεωργέω, deriv. of γεωργός 'farmer' (8.11).

NG καλλιεργῶ (late Grk. 'make beautiful', in pass. 'be well cultivated', fr. καλλί-εργος, cpd. of κάλλος 'beauty' and the root of ἔργον 'work'.

2. Lat. colere 'inhabit' and 'cultivate' : Skt. car- 'move, go, be busy with', Grk. πέλομαι, τέλλομαι 'become', ἀνατέλλω 'rise', πόλος 'axis, pole', κύκλος 'circle', etc., IE kʷel-*, orig. sense 'turn', with development through 'be busy with' (cf. Lat. versārī 'be busy with' : vertere turn). Walde-P. 1.514 ff. Ernout-M. 204 ff. Walde-H. 1.245 ff. The verbs and nouns for 'plow' ('plough') go together in large measure, but not always. In the inherited group the verbs have, on the whole, been the more persistent. In the evolution of the implement, from the primitive crooked stick to the modern plow, the old name may persist, or new words may arise (hence again, in part, new verbs) and spread as loanwords. In several languages there are different words for the modern plow and a more primitive wooden plow still used by peasants.

Words for 'furrow' (here, of course, that made by the plow) are in part derived from verbs for 'draw', 'dig', or 'sow'(?). But in the case of Fr. sillon and probably some of the others the development was through the ridge of the furrow.

1. Grk. αὖλαξ, fr. ἀϝλακ-* (beside ἀϝολκ-, ἀϝλοκ- in Hom. ὦλξ, Att. ἄλοξ) : Lith. vilkti, velku, ChSl. vlěšti, vlěką 'draw' (9.33). Hence NG αὐλάκι. Walde-P. 1.306.

2. Lat. sulcus (> It. solco, Sp. surco) : Grk. ἕλκω 'draw' (9.33), ὁλκός 'track, trace', etc. (but not 'furrow' made by the plow), OE sulh 'plow'. Walde-P. 2.507. Ernout-M. 999.

Fr. sillon, in its earlier use 'heaped-up earth', fr. a vb. meaning 'heap up earth', prob. of Gallic orig. Hence used for the ridge of earth between furrows, then for the furrow itself. REW 7797a. Gamillscheg 801.

Fr. raie, 'furrow' in OFr. and still in local use more widespread than sillon (cf. Atlas linguistique, Carte 1234), fr. a Gallic word represented by W. rhych, etc. (below, 3). REW 7299. Gamillscheg 736. Bloch 2.204.

For some of the ancient names of digging implements, especially the Greek, it is impossible to distinguish certainly between the 'spade' and some form of 'hoe'. On the other hand, 'spade' and 'shovel', though the latter is not a digging implement, are from their similar shape sometimes expressed by the same word.

1. Grk. ἄμη (that this was properly a 'spade' rather than a 'shovel' is indicated by the definition τὸ ἐργαλεῖον ἐν ᾧ ὀρύττουσι τὴν γῆν, and by ἀμάρα 'trench', ἐξαμάω 'dig out'), prob. : ChSl. jama 'pit', etc. Walde-P. 1.198. Solmsen, Beiträge 194 f.

Grk. σκαφεῖον, fr. the root of σκάπτω, aor. ἐσκάφην 'dig' (8.22), is the commonest word for a digging tool, but whether 'spade', 'hoe', or 'mattock' is not clear.

In modern Greece the common digging tool has been the τσάπα, a kind of heavy hoe (8.25). For the true spade, only recently introduced, φτυάρι, also and orig. 'shovel' (8.24), is commonly used. But a more distinctive term has also been coined, namely πατόφτυαρο, cpd. with first part : πατῶ 'step on, tread', hence 'shovel that one pushes with the foot', an excellent description. Cf. Russ. zastup (below, 6).

Grk. λίστρον is often translated 'spade' or 'hoe', but was some kind of a smoothing tool, a 'scraper' (cf. esp. Hom. Od. 22.455 and λείστριον Ditt. Syll. 972.119 with note), the source of NG γλιστρῶ 'slip, slide' (10.42). Prob. : Lett. līst 'grub up, level off'. Walde-P. 2.879. Boisacq 584. Mühl.-Endz. 2.490.

2. Lat. pāla, also and more persistent as 'shovel' (8.24), fr. pāg-slā-* : pangere 'fix, drive in, sink in', Grk. πήγνῡμι 'fix', etc. Ernout-M. 723.

It. vanga, fr. late Lat. vanga 'spade with crossbar', a loanword but source uncertain (Gmc.?). Ernout-M. 1072. REW 9137.

Fr. bêche, OFr. besche, back-formation fr. OFr. beschier 'dig up', deriv. of a bessos 'hoe', Fr. dial. besse, this fr. a VLat. bissus* 'double'(?). Wartburg 1.381, 382 f. Gamillscheg 93.

The numerous types of 'hoe' have this in common, that with them one hacks the soil and pulls toward one (in contrast to the spade, which one pushes). A crude hoe was man's earliest agricultural implement. Some of the words listed cover the combination tool, with transverse hoe-like blade at one end, at the other either a pick or a narrow ax-like blade, the 'mattock' (but to me a pickax, mattock being only a book word).

1. Grk. σκαπάνη, prob. 'hoe' or 'mattock' (NG lit. σκαπάνη is 'mattock'), fr. σκάπτω 'dig' (9.22).

Words for 'mow' or 'reap' (in the old specific sense, now uncommon, of NE reap) are mostly from 'cut', or in some cases 'strike', with partial or complete specialization to 'cut grain' (and besides the words listed here the common words for 'cut' may be freely used in equivalent expressions, as NE cut, NHG schneiden, etc.). In one group the specific 'mow' is common to Greek, Latin, Celtic, and Germanic. Owing to the natural association, words for 'mow, reap' may be used for 'gather the crop, harvest', and this may become the dominant sense (as in NE reap). Conversely, words in which the latter sense is the more original may serve also for the specific 'mow, reap', and so are included here (but not those which are used only in the broad sense 'reap' = 'harvest', as OHG arōn, NHG ernten, for which see under 'harvest', 8.41).

'Sickle' (the older implement) and 'scythe' are sometimes expressed by the same word, notably Lat. falx, covering 'sickle' (falx messōria), 'scythe' (falx faenāria), and also 'pruning hook' (Grk. δρέπανον is 'sickle' but is also used of the 'scythes' on the Persian chariots). But in general they are denoted by different words, of distinct formal, though similar semantic, origin, namely, the notion of 'cut' or the like. Cf. Niedermann, Essais d'étym. 17 ff.

Words for 'thresh' are (apart from the Grk. derivs. of 'threshing-floor') from the notions of 'rub', 'beat', or (rarely) 'drag', orig. applied to different methods, namely, (1) the rubbing with the hands (most primitive of all methods), extended to the treading by oxen, etc., (2) the beating with a flail, and (3) the use of a dragging implement, a kind of threshing-sled, such as is still used by peasants in various parts of Europe. Cf. Meyer-Lübke, Wört. u. Sach. 1.211 ff. (with details of word distribution in Romance). Schrader, Reallex. 1.204 ff. Pauly-Wissowa s.v. dreschen.

1. Grk. ἀλοάω, NG ἀλωνίζω, derivs. of words for 'threshing-floor' (8.35).

Grk. τρί̄βω 'rub' (9.31), used for 'thresh' (by oxen) in Hom. Il. 20.496.

2. Lat. terere 'rub' (9.31) is the usual expression. But also, for certain processes, tundere 'beat' and excutere 'shake out'.

It. tribbiare, Sp. trillar, Rum. treera (triera), fr. Lat. trībulāre 'press, oppress', deriv. of trībulum 'threshing-sled' (in form like a harrow), fr. root of terere (above). Ernout-M. 1033. REW 8885.

Many of the words listed originally denoted 'harvest' as the act or season of harvesting and only secondarily (some only occasionally, others commonly) were extended to cover the resulting 'crop, harvest'. These are mostly derivs. of vbs. for 'mow, reap' (8.32). But association between the harvest and its season also accounts for several. The words that are used only for 'harvest' as 'crop' are from the general notions of 'fruit, product, growth, gathering', applied esp. to 'fruits of the field'.

1. Grk. καρπός 'fruit' in general, also 'crop, harvest' : OE hærfest, OHG herbist 'harvest time', etc. (below, 4), Lat. carpere 'pluck'. Walde-P. 2.581. Ernout-M. 157. Walde-H. 1.179. Falk-Torp 454 f.

Grk. θέρος 'summer' and also 'crop, harvest' (NG pop. ὁ θέρος), whence, through θερίζω (8.32), θερισμός 'harvest' in both senses, all through identification of 'hot season' with 'harvest-season' : θερμός 'hot', etc. (15.85). Walde-P. 1.687 f. Boisacq 341.

The words for 'grain, corn' (in the older and still British use of corn), as the generic name for the cereal products, include a few that reflect an IE word denoting 'grain', or more probably some particular kind of 'grain', the one best known in the IE period. Many more reflect an IE word denoting 'a grain, kernel', which as esp. characteristic of the cereals, led to the generic 'grain'. Similarly some other words orig. denoted 'a grain' or 'seed'. Several come from such notions as 'food, means of life, bread, fruit of the soil, good', with specialized application to the cereals from their prime importance as food products.

The widespread literary words coming from Lat. cereālis 'pertaining to Ceres', as Fr. céréales, NE cereals, etc., are omitted from the list.

The generic words are often specialized to denote a particular kind of grain, the one that is the chief product of a given region, as to 'wheat' (NG σῖτος, Fr. froment, in part It. frumento, grano, Fr. blé, SCr. žito), to 'rye' (Boh. žito, Pol. żyto, NHG korn in many parts of Germany), to 'barley' (later Skt. yava-, Sw. korn in part), to 'maize' (NE corn in U.S.).

Of the several grains the names of which are discussed in 8.43–8.48, wheat and barley were those prized for human food in Greek and Roman antiquity, and in this order of preference (in Greece the bread par excellence, ἄρτος, was made of wheat, while the μᾶζα 'barley-cake' was the inferior diet of the common people), while in India rice and barley held the corresponding rank. The earliest food of the Romans was the far 'spelt', and its former importance is reflected in the use of pl. farra for 'grain' and esp. farīna 'meal'. Rye and oats were North European products, the former unknown in classical antiquity, the latter only as wild oats in Greece, in Italy as weeds or used for fodder. Rice, of first importance in India as in the whole Orient, was in Europe an importation little used until late times. Maize is a native American product, introduced into Europe by the Spaniards. Schrader, Reallex. under Weizen, Gerste, etc. Jardé, Les céréales dans l'antiquité grecque.

Skt. yava- 'grain' in RV, later 'barley'; Av. yava- 'grain', NPers. jav 'barley'; Lith. javai (pl.) 'grain'; Grk. ζειαί (pl.) 'spelt'.

2. IE *ĝṝno- in Eur. (except Grk.) words for 'a grain, kernel', with widespread development to generic 'grain'. These agree phonetically with Skt. jīrṇa- 'old, worn out', fr. the root seen in Skt. jṛ- 'grow old, wear out', Grk. γέρων 'old man', and ultimate relationship, perh. fr. a notion of 'rub' (whence 'rub down, wear out' in Skt. and Grk.; elsewhere 'something rubbed fine, grain'), though disputed, is probable. Walde-P. 1.599 f. Ernout-M. 432. Feist 309 f.

Lat. grānum 'a grain', but generic 'grain' reflected in grānārium 'granary', and common to the derivs., It., Sp. grano, Fr. grain (> ME greyn, grayn, NE grain), Rum. grîne (pl.; sg. grîu 'wheat'), also Du. graan; Goth. kaurn, OE corn, etc., general Gmc. (but NE corn specialized to 'maize' in U.S.; NHG korn mostly 'rye', Sw. korn esp. 'barley'); but Ir. grān, W. grawn only in older sense, likewise ChSl. zrŭno, SCr. zrno, while Lith. žirnas, Lett. zirnis are specialized to 'pea'.

3. Grk. σῖτος 'grain' (also 'bread, food'), but already 'wheat' in Hellenistic times (NT, pap.) as in NG (pop. σιτάρι), orig.? Walde-P. 1.470. Boisacq 866 ff. Hence adj. σῑτηρός, whence σιτηρά 'cereal products' (also lit. NG).

Grk. γέννημα 'product' (fr. γεννάω 'beget, bear', 4.71), hence pl. γεννήματα 'fruits of the field' (Polyb., NT, etc.), NG esp. 'cereals, grain'.

4. Lat. frūmentum (> It. frumento, generic esp. in pl., sg. mostly 'wheat', Fr. froment 'wheat'), fr. the same root as frūgēs 'fruits of the field' (8.41), frūctus 'fruit', fruī 'enjoy', etc. Walde-P. 2.208. Ernout-M. 393.

Fr. blé (both generic, esp. pl. les blés, and 'wheat'; cf. ce mot de bled .... est prins généralement pour tous les grains, jusques aux légumes bons à manger. En plusieurs endroits de ce roiaume, par le bled est entendu le pur froment, quoted from early 17th cent.), It. biada ('fodder', esp. Several of the words for 'wheat' are from those for 'grain' with specialization to the most important of the cereals. Some are from '(grain) for threshing, grinding or winnowing'. Some originally applied to particular species, reflecting some characteristic of form or color.

1. Grk. πῡρός, Lith. pūrai, Lett. pūr'i (in Baltic esp. 'winter wheat') : ChSl. pyro 'spelt', Boh. pýr, Russ. pyrej 'spear-grass', OE fyrs 'furze', root-connection? Walde-P. 2.83.

NG σῖτος, pop. σιτάρι, see 8.42.

2. Lat. trīticum (> Sp. trigo) : terere (trīvī, trītum) 'rub, thresh' (8.34), so orig. 'grain for threshing'. Cf. ChSl. pĭšenica, below, 6. Ernout-M. 1033.

It. frumento, Fr. froment, fr. Lat. frūmentum 'grain' (8.42).

Fr. blé, formerly and still in part 'grain' (8.42).

It. grano, Rum. grîu (in pl. 'grain'), fr. Lat. grānum (8.42).

3. Ir. cruitnecht, NIr. cruithneacht, W. gwenith, Br. gwiniz, cpds. with final member Ir. -necht, W. -nith, Br. -niz : W. nithio, Br. niza 'winnow' (this : Lith. n(i)ekoti 'winnow in a trough', etc. Walde-P. 2.321), hence 'wheat' as 'grain for winnowing', like Lat. trīticum as 'grain for threshing'. First part of Ir. cruitnecht : Ir. cruth 'red', with reference to the old red wheat of Ireland. First part of W. gwenith, Br. gwiniz prob. (despite the n for nn) : gwynn, Br. gwenn 'white' (cf. Goth. hwaiteis : hweits, below, 4). For full discussion, cf. Loth, RC 41.193 ff.

Ir. tuirend, etym. dub., perh. a cpd. of rind 'point' and first used of a special kind of wheat. Loth, RC 41.199 ff.

4. Goth. hwaiteis, OE hwǣte, etc., general Gmc., so called from the white meal therefrom : Goth. hweits, etc. 'white' (15.64). Walde-P. 1.469 f. Feist 280.

Du. tarwe (more popular than weit), MDu. tarewe, prob. (as first applied to some rank species of wheat?) : ME, NE tare 'vetch, weed', Skt. dūrva- 'panic-grass', also prob. Lith. dirva 'field' (8.12). Walde-P. 1.803. Franck-v. W. 689.

5. Lith. kviečiei, Lett. kvieši, fr. Gmc. (Goth. hwaiteis, etc., above, 4).

Lith. pūrai, Lett. pūr'i, above, 1.

6. ChSl. pĭšenica, SCr., Russ. pšenica, Boh. pšenice, Pol. pszenica, orig. 'grain destined for grinding' : ChSl. pĭchati 'strike', pĭšeno 'meal', Lat. pinsere 'crush', etc. Walde-P. 2.1.

7. Skt. godhūma-, by pop. etym. (as cpd. of go- 'cow' and dhūma- 'smoke') for gandhuma-* = Av. gantuma-, NPers. gandum 'wheat', root connection? Barth. 493. Hübschmann, Pers. Stud. 95.

Br.	heiz	NHG	gerste

Apart from the inherited group, and some with specialization from 'grain' or 'fodder, crop', several words for 'barley' are from sources reflecting its sharp, prickly form.

1. IE ĝherzd(h)-, ĝhr̥zd(h)-, root connection uncertain and phonetic development in part obscure. Walde-P. 1.611. Ernout-M. 459. Walde-H. 1.657.

Grk. κριθή, NG κριθάρι; Lat. hordeum (> It. orzo, Fr. orge, Rum. orz); Du. gerst, OHG gersta, MHG, NHG gerste; (Alb. dridhë 'grain').

2. Sp. cebada, orig. 'fodder', fr. cebar 'feed, fatten animals', Lat. cibāre id., fr. cibus 'food'. REW 1894.

3. Ir. eorna, etym. dub. Pokorny, Z. celt. Ph. 17.304 ff. takes as es-orniā* : Goth. asans 'harvest' (8.41). (Connection with Skt. yava-, etc., as Pedersen 1.65, Stokes 223, now rejected.)

W. haidd, Br. heiz : Skt. sasya-, Av. hahya- 'grain' (8.42). Walde-P. 2.454. Pedersen 1.69.

4. Goth. barizeins adj. 'κρίθινος', ON barr (also 'pine needles'), OE bere, bærlic, ME bere, barli, NE barley, dial. bear : Lat. far, farris, 'spelt', prob. so-called fr. the spikes of the grain, and fr. the root in Skt. bhr̥ṣṭi- 'point, tip', ON burst, OE byrst, etc. 'bristle'. Walde-P. 2.134. Walde-H. 1.455 f. Feist 81.

ON bygg, Dan. byg, Sw. bjugg, OE bēow (rare) = OS beo 'crop, produce', fr. the root of ON būa 'till, dwell', Goth. bauan 'dwell', etc. Hence orig. 'the cultivated crop' and then specialized to 'barley'. Falk-Torp 121. Hellquist 74.

Sw. korn, also and orig. 'grain' (8.42).

5. Lith. miežiai, Lett. mieži (pl.), OPruss. moasis, beside Lett. maize 'bread', etym.? Mühl.-Endz. 2.553, 657.

6. ChSl. jęčĭněnŭ, jęčĭnŭ adj. 'κρίθινος', SCr. ječam, etc., general Slavic, prob. (as 'prickly, bearded') : ChSl. ąkotŭ 'hook', Lat. uncus 'bent, hook', etc. Berneker 268. Walde-P. 1.61.

7. Skt. yava-, earlier 'grain' (8.42).

1. Rye was unknown in ancient Greece. βρίζα, quoted by Galen as the native name of 'rye' raised in Thrace and Macedonia, is a Thracian word. Connection with ON rugr, etc. (below, 4) is assumed by Hirt, Idg. Gram. 2.94, but doubtful.

Byz. σήκαλις, NG σήκαλη fr. Lat. (below, 2).

2. Rye was likewise unknown in ancient Italy, and secale (Pliny), sicale (Edict. Diocl.) is doubtless a loanword, of unknown source. Hence It. segale, Fr. seigle, Rum. secară, also Ir. secul, NIr. seagal, Br. segal, NG σήκαλη, Alb. thekërë. REW 7763.

Sp. centeno, Port. centeio, fr. late Lat. centēnum 'rye' (Edict. Diocl.), fr. centēnī 'hundred each', because of the alleged 'hundred-fold yield' (Pliny, NH 18.16, 40 nascitur (secale) qualicumque solo cum centesimo grano). Ernout-M. 1746. REW 1811.

3. Ir. secul, etc., fr. Lat. secale (above, 2).

W. rhyg, fr. OE ryge (below, 4).

4. ON rugr, OE ryge, OHG rocko, etc. general Gmc., Lith. rugiai, Lett. rudzi (pl., sg. 'grain of rye'), late ChSl. rŭžĭ, SCr. raž, etc., general Slavic, all plainly connected, but perh. loanwords fr. some unknown source. Walde-P. 2.374 f. Weigand-H. 1.599. Kluge-G. 484 f.

NIr.	arbhar Indiach			Russ.	kukuruza
W.	indrawn
Br.	ed Turki

Maize (in U.S. corn) is an American product. Its first European cultivation was in Spain, whence it spread first to northern Africa and the other Mediterranean lands and thence to central and northern Europe. Cf. J. W. Harshberger, The Maize (Philadelphia, 1892), and Leo Spitzer, Wört. u. Sach. 4. 122 ff. (with discussion of the numerous Romance dialect terms).

1. A West Indian form of the native name was adopted by the Spanish as mahiz, mayz, now maíz, whence it spread to other Eur. languages, Fr. maïs, NE maize, NHG mais, etc.

2. In North America it was known by the French as bleds d'Inde (quoted from Champlain; also as mil gros 'large millet', Cartier), by the English as Indian corn, and so in England, whence NIr. arbhar Indiach (arbhar, 8.42), W. (Spurrell, old. ed.) gwenith India (gwenith 'wheat', 8.43) or now (Spurrell-Anwyl) indrawn (abbr. ind- + grawn 'grain'); later in U.S. simply corn at the expense of its old generic use.

3. Owing to the early cultivation of maize in Mediterranean lands and its reputed oriental origin, coupled with the vague use of Turkey in connection with things exotic (cf. NE turkey, the bird), arose such names as It. granturco, Fr. blé de Turquie, Br. ed Turki, NE Turkey wheat (cf. NED), NHG türkischer weizen. Similarly NG ἀραβόσιτος, ἀραβοσίτι, lit. 'Arabian corn', with which one may compare Fr. blé sarrasin 'buckwheat' and Turk. mısır (buğday) 'maize', lit. 'Egyptian (wheat)'. For many other terms based on fanciful geographic origin, cf. Spitzer, op. cit. 133 ff.

4. Rum. porumb, also and orig. 'dove' (Lat. palumbēs, VLat. palumbus*). Cf. Montenegrin kolomboć 'maize', deriv. of Lat. columba 'dove', and Bulg. gŭlŭbĭ 'maize' fr. gŭlŭb 'dove'. Here also NG καλαμπόκι, a blend with κάλαμος 'reed' (cf. also καλαμο-σίταρο 'maize'). Due to the dove-like appearance of the ear of corn with its folded sheath (so Tiktin 1207; cf. also Mold. păpuşoiŭ fr. păpuşă 'doll'), or to a resemblance in color (so Meyer-Lübke, Arch. sl. Ph. 36.591, after Weigand). In It. dial. columbine, used of the white popping corn, the association with doves is more obvious.

5. SCr. kukuruz, etc., general Slavic, whence also the Lith. and Lett. terms, prob. not loanword fr. Turkish (as in Miklosich, Türk. Elem. 1.334, Lokotsch 1230), perh. related to certain Slavic plant names, but uncertain. Berneker 640. Brückner 280.

Words for 'grass' are from such notions as 'green, growing, fat, blade', but in part also from 'fodder', since the fodder was usually grass.

1. Grk. πόα, Ion. ποίη, Dor. ποία, fr. ποίϝα* : πῖων 'fat', Lith. pėva 'meadow', Skt. pīvas-, Av. pīvah- 'fat', etc. Walde-P. 2.74.

Grk. χόρτος, orig. 'enclosure', esp. 'feeding place for cattle', whence 'fodder, grass, hay' : Lat. hortus 'garden' (8.13), Ir. gort 'field' (8.12), etc. Walde-P. 1.603. Hence NG χορτάρι.

2. Lat. herba (> It. erba, Fr. herbe, Sp. hierba, yerba, Rum. iarbă), etym. dub. Walde-P. 1.646. Ernout-M. 448. Walde-H. 1.639 f.

Lat. grāmen, prob. as orig. 'fodder', fr. grasmen-* : Grk. γράω 'gnaw', Skt. gras- 'devour', etc. Ernout-M. 430 f. Otherwise (: Goth. gras, etc.) Walde-P. 1.645, Walde-H. 1.616.

3. Ir. fēr, NIr. fēar = W. gwair 'hay' (OW gweir), prob. fr. wegro-* : Lat. vigēre 'be fresh and strong', vegetus 'lively, vigorous', Skt. vāja- 'strength', etc. Walde-P. 1.247. Pedersen 1.103.

W. gwellt, Br. geot (older guelt), prob. : W. gwallt, Ir. folt 'hair', OPruss. wolti, SCr. vlat 'ear (of corn)', etc. Walde-P. 1.297. Otherwise (as orig. 'fodder' : Ir. gelim 'graze', etc.) Pedersen 1.96.

W. glaswellt, lit. 'green grass', cpd. of glas 'green' and gwellt.

4. Goth. hawi, reg. for 'grass', see under 'hay' (8.52).

Goth. gras (but only for χόρτος as 'fruit of the field' or mostly λάχανον 'herb, vegetable'), OE græs, etc., general Gmc. (and OE gærs, Flem. gers with metathesis) : MHG gruose 'young plant, shoot', ON grōa, OE grōwan 'grow', etc. Walde-P. 1.646. Feist 220. Otherwise (: Skt. ghr̥ṣ- 'rub') Falk-Torp 355.

5. Lith. žolė, Lett. zāle : Lith. žalias, Lett. zal'š, ChSl. zelenŭ 'green', Grk. χόλος 'gall', χλόη 'young green plant or grass', χλωρός 'green', etc. Walde-P. 1.625.

6. ChSl. trava, etc., general Slavic, orig. 'fodder', fr. the root of ChSl. truti 'use up', natruti 'feed', etc. : tryti 'rub', etc. (9.31). Walde-P. 1.731. Trautmann 327. Brückner 575.

7. Skt. tr̥ṇa- : Goth. þaurnus, ON, OE þorn, ChSl. trŭnŭ 'thorn', ChSl. strŭnĭ 'stalk, blade', perh. fr. the root ster-* seen in Grk. στερεός 'stiff, firm', NHG starr 'rigid, stiff', etc. Walde-P. 2.641.

Av. vāstra- 'pasture' (3.17), hence also 'fodder, grass'.

'Hay' is sometimes undistinguished from 'grass', as in the case of Grk. χόρτος 'fodder, grass, hay', or is from 'grass' with secondary differentiation, as Welsh gwair. But usually there are distinctive words.

1. Grk. χόρτος, NG χορτάρι, the same as for 'grass' (8.51).

NG σανός, fr. Slavic (below, 5).

2. Lat. fēnum (> Romance words), etym. dub., perh. as fend-snom* : defendere 'defend', offendere 'repulse', Grk. θείνω, Skt. han- 'strike', etc. ('hay' as grass cut down, cf. the Gmc. group, below, 4); or with specialization fr. 'product' like fēnus 'interest on capital' fr. the same root as fēcundus, fēlix 'fruitful'. Walde-P. 1.680. Ernout-M. 345. Walde-H. 1.479.

3. Ir. fēr also 'grass', NIr. fēar tirim lit. 'dry grass', W. gwair 'hay', see under 'grass' (8.51).

Br. foenn, fr. Fr. foin.

4. Goth. hawi, ON hey, OE hēg, etc., general Gmc., in earlier period also 'grass' (so in Gospels Goth. hawi Jn. 6.10, OE ofer grēne hīg Mt. 6.39), prob. as orig. 'mown' or 'to be mown' : OE hēawan, OHG houwan 'hew' (9.22). Walde-P. 1.330, 381. Feist 252.

5. Lith. šienas, Lett. siens, ChSl. sěno, etc., general Balto-Slavic : Grk. κοινά. χόρτος (Hesych.), root connection? Walde-P. 1.455.

6. Skt. tr̥ṇa- 'grass' (8.51), also used for 'hay'?

Although words like NE plant are used by botanists to cover the whole vegetable vs. animal kingdom, in common use they are applied to the smaller varieties, to the exclusion of trees and shrubs. Many of the words listed in second place have an even more restricted scope, being applied only to certain types of plants, like NE herb (see NED s.v.), etc.

Several of the words are from the notion of 'grow', as, conversely, some of the words for 'grow' were primarily applied to plant life (cf. 12.53). Some show extension from 'cutting, shoot' or connection with words for 'root'.

1. Grk. φυτόν : φύω 'grow, produce', Skt. bhū- 'become, be', etc. Walde-P. 2.140 ff. Hence φυτεία 'planting', late also a 'plant' (NT, etc.).

Grk. βοτάνη 'pasture, fodder' (: βόσκω 'feed'), also 'plant, herb, weed'.

2. Lat. herba, same as for 'grass' (8.51), but general for 'growing vegetation, plant'. Hence the Romance words for 'grass' and 'herb', and ME erbe, NE herb. These have a less broad scope than the descendants of Lat. planta (below), but differ considerably in their particular applications.

Lat. planta 'cutting, shoot, slip' (in this sense always Varro, RR), never 'plant', but the source of the modern Romance, Celtic, and Gmc. words in the latter sense (but OE, ME plante in sense of Lat. planta), same word as planta 'sole of the foot'? Some suggest a back-formation fr. the vb. plantāre 'plant' taken as fr. planta 'sole of the foot'. But, beside the fact that the vb. is late, this would suit the later better than the early sense. Ernout-M. 775.

3. Ir. luib, NIr. luibh (cf. Ir. lubgort 'garden', 8.13) : Goth. lubja-leis 'skilled in poison', ON lyf 'herb', OE lybb, OHG luppi 'poison, witchcraft', these prob. also : Goth. laufs 'leaf', etc. (8.56). Walde-P. 2.418. Pedersen 1.116.

Ir. luss, NIr. lus, W. llysieuyn, Br. louzaouenn (sg. fr. pl. llysiau, louzaou, old sg. W.-lys in plant-names = '-wort'), OCorn. les 'herba', perh. (as lud-su-*) : Skt. rudh-, Goth. liudan 'grow'. Walde-P. 2.417. Otherwise (lubh-stu-* : luib) Pedersen 1.378, 2.19.

4. ON, Dan. urt, Sw. ört, OE wyrt, ME wort, MLG wurt, OHG, MHG wurz, all : Goth. waurts 'root', etc. (8.54).

Du. kruid, OHG, MHG krūt, NHG kraut, used for 'plant, herb' or with specialization (esp. 'cabbage'), prob. : Grk. βρύω 'well, teem' (cf. γῆ φυτοῖς βρύουσα 'earth teeming with plants', Aristot.). Walde-P. 1.689. Weigand-H. 1.1142. Franck-v. W. 353.

Lith. žolė, Lett. zāle 'grass' (8.51), also 'plant, herb' (cf. esp. Mühl-Endz. 4.696 ff.).

6. ChSl. sadŭ (Gospels Mt. 15.13, Supr.) = Russ. sad 'garden' (8.13), fr. saditi 'set' = 'plant', caus. of sędą, sěsti 'sit' (cf. also Lith. sodįti 'set, plant'), IE sed-* 'sit'. Walde-P. 2.483.

ChSl. bylĭje (Supr. for βοτάνη and φάρμακον 'drug'), SCr. biljka, Boh. bylina, derivs. of bylŭ pple. of byti 'be' (cf. Grk. φυτόν, above, 1). Berneker 112.

Boh. rostlina, Pol. roślina, Russ. rastenie : ChSl. rasti 'grow', etc. (12.53).

SCr., Russ. trava 'grass' (8.51), also 'herb'.

Boh. zelina, Pol. ziele : ChSl. zelenŭ 'green' (15.68), zelĭje 'vegetables' (5.65), Lith. žolė 'grass' and 'herb', etc.

7. Skt. vīrudh-, fr. vi-rudh- 'sprout, grow' (vī- as in other cpds., like ānu- beside anu-).

Skt. oṣadhi-, esp. 'healing herb' (in contrast to more generic vīrudh-; cf. Macdonell - Keith 1.125), apparently a cpd., second part : dhā- 'place, put', but first part obscure. Uhlenbeck 37.

Av. urvarā- (usually pl.) : Skt. urvarā- 'field' (8.12). Barth. 401 ff.

Some words for 'branch' are cognate with words for 'root' (8.54). Others are from diverse sources, but esp. from the notion of 'split, fork, divide', or with transferred application from words for animal parts, as 'paw, arm, leg'. Words for 'twig' are not included, except as they are also used for 'branch'. Where two words are listed as current in the same modern language, aside from other differences in scope or feeling, one of these is definitely preferred for the widespread figurative uses, as NE branch vs. bough, NHG zweig vs. ast, Russ. vetv' vs. suk.

1. IE ozdos*, that is, o-zd-o-s* with weak grade of sed-* 'sit', like ni-zd-o-s* 'nest', and likewise used orig. with reference to birds, namely, as 'place to sit on, perch'. M. Bloomfield, Language 3.213 ff. Walde-P. 1.186, 95 (with different semantic view). Feist 60.

Grk. ὄζος, Goth. asts, OHG–NHG ast, Arm. ost.

2. Grk. κλάδος, orig. the 'broken-off' branch : κλαδαρός 'frail, easily broken', Lat. percellere 'strike down', clādēs 'destruction', Lith. kalti 'strike', also OE holt, OHG holz 'wood, woods', ChSl. klada 'beam, block', etc. Walde-P. 1.438 f. Walde-H. 1.225 f.

Words for 'leaf' are connected with words for 'bloom, flower' (orig. 'swell'?), for 'peel, strip off', and for 'wing, feather', the last reflecting the notion of lightness, fluttering.

1. From a root bhel-*, seen also in words for 'flower' (5.57), and perh. ultimately the same as that in words resting on the notion of 'swell' (Lat. follis 'leather bag', Grk. φαλλός 'phallic emblem', NE ball, etc.). Walde-P. 2.176 f. Ernout-M. 374. Walde-H. 1.523 f. Falk-Torp 79.

Words for 'flower' are mostly connected with others for 'bloom, sprout thrive', these latter notions being of diverse origin, as 'swell, shine', etc. One or two are probable examples of extension from the name of a particular flower. Most of the words in the older period, and some still, cover both 'flower' and 'blossom'.

1. From bhlō-, bhlē-, extension of bhel-* in words for leaf (8.56) and perh. orig. 'swell'. Walde-P. 2.176 ff. Ernout-M. 370. Walde-H. 1.518. Falk-Torp 85.

'Rose' is chosen as a conspicuous example of specific flower names. The agreement does not rest upon inheritance from an IE form, but upon borrowing, the name spreading with the cultivation of the flower.

1. Lat. rosa, the source of most of the other European forms, is itself a loanword, either fr. some dialect form of Grk. ῥόδον, or with the latter fr. a common East Mediterranean source. Grk. ῥόδον, ϝρόδον belongs further with (Av. varəδa- 'rose'? Barth. 1369), Arm. vard, NPers. gul 'rose', whether orig. an Iranian word, or all from some common unknown source. Schrader, Reallex. 2.267 ff. Ernout-M. 870 f.

2. NG τριαντάφυλλο, displacing ῥόδον as the common word (hence Rum. trandafir, Alb. trëndafil), was orig. the rose 'of thirty petals'. Cf. the parallel ἑκατοντάφυλλα (Theophr.) and rosa centifolia (Pliny), and the reference to ῥόδα, ἓν ἕκαστον ἔχον ἑξήκοντα φύλλα (Hdt. 8.138).

3. Skt. japā- and oḍra-, said to denote the 'Chinese rose', are both of unknown origin.

8.61–8.65. As illustrative of specific tree names are chosen those for 'oak', 'beech', 'birch', 'pine', and 'fir'. For these and some others (as 'elm', 'yew', 'willow') there are cognate groups common to several of the European branches of IE, but only in a few cases extending to Indo-Iranian. The root connections are mostly obscure. The interest of such tree names lies mainly in their bearing on the moot question of the IE flora and the IE home, and further in the shift of application, connected with differences in the flora of different regions. So of 'beech' to 'oak' in Grk. φηγός (8.62), of 'oak' to 'fir' in Gmc. words for 'fir' (8.65), of 'yew' to 'willow' (OE īw, etc. 'yew', but Slavic iva 'willow'), between 'pine' and 'fir' (8.64, 8.65), 'beech' and 'oak' or 'elm' (8.62), etc.

Noteworthy is the primacy of the oak, as shown in mythology and in the recurring use of 'oak', as the tree par excellence, for 'tree', also in some derivatives for 'mountain' and 'forest'.

Schrader, Reallex. 2.629 ff. and in separate items, Eiche, etc. Hoops, Waldbäume und Kulturpflanzen.

8.61. 'Oak'. 1. IE derwo-*, dru-, etc. in words for 'oak' and for 'tree, wood' (1.42), the former, specific, use being probably the earlier. Walde-P. 1.804 ff. Osthoff, Parerga 169 ff.

Grk. δρῦς, Ir. daur, NIr. dair, W. derwen (pl. derw), Br. dervenn, all 'oak' (and so also dru- in Ir. drūi 'druid', Gall. Druides, Thurneysen Z. celt. 2. Grk. φηγός, orig. 'beech', see 8.62.

NG pop. βελανιδιά, fr. βελανίδι 'acorn' (8.66).

3. Lat. quercus (adj. querceus, fem. quercea > It. quercia), fr. perkʷu-* (assim. as in quīnque fr. penkʷe*, etc.) : OHG fereh-eih, Langob. fereha, NHG vereiche 'oak', Swiss ferch 'oak wood' (Weigand-H. 1.566), OHG furha, etc. with shift to 'pine' or 'fir' (8.64, 8.65), also Goth. fairguni, OE firgen 'mountain' (1.22). Walde-P. 2.47 ff. Ernout-M. 838.

Lat. rōbur, a special kind of oak (as It. rovere, Fr. rouvre, but Sp., Port. roble generic 'oak'), early form rōbus (whence rōbustus 'of oak, hard, strong'), named from its reddish heart-wood, and with dial. ō : Lat. ruber 'red', etc. Walde-P. 2.358. Ernout-M. 867.

Fr. chêne, OFr. chaisne (influenced by fraisne, frêne 'ash'), chasne, fr. a Gall. cassanus* (orig. Celtic?). REW 1740. Wartburg 2.459 ff. Gamillscheg 215.

Rum. stejar 'oak' beside steajer 'pole, stake' (in a threshing floor), fr. parallel forms of the same Slavic word, ChSl. stežerŭ 'prop', Bulg. stožar 'pole' (of a hayrick), 'mast', SCr. stožer 'doorpost', etc., with Rum. shift fr. '(oaken) pole' to 'oak'. Tiktin 1490.

4. ON eik, OE āc, OHG eih, etc., general Gmc. (in Iceland, where there are no trees, used for 'tree') : Grk. αἰγίλωψ 'sort of oak tree', perh. Lat. aesculus 'species of oak sacred to Jupiter'. Walde-P. 1.10. Falk-Torp 182.

SCr. bukva, Boh., Pol., Russ. buk.

2. Grk. ὀξύα, ὀξύη, NG ὀξυά prob. (in form influenced by ὀξύς 'sharp') : ON askr, OE æsc, etc. 'ash', Alb. ah 'beech', etc. Walde-P. 1.185.

3. Fr. hêtre, fr. a Frank. form like MLG hēster 'young tree' (esp. beech or oak) = MHG heister 'young beech'. The stem heis- is seen in OLG hēsiwald, MLat. Silva Caesia. REW 4121. Gamillscheg 514. Weigand-H. 1.841 f.

4. Lith. skroblus 'white beech, hornbeam' and skirpstas (or -us) 'red beech, elm' (OPruss. skerptus 'rustere'), both perh. : Lat. carpinus 'hornbeam' and more remotely Russ. grab 'hornbeam', etc. Walde-H. 1.171.

Lett. vīksna 'elm' and 'beech' : Lith. vinkšna, SCr. vez, Russ. vjaz, OE wice (NE witch), LG wīeke 'elm'. Walde-P. 1.314.

8.63. 'Birch'. 1. Derivatives of bherəĝ-* (bhrēĝ-, bhr̥ĝ-) in Skt. bhrāj- 'shine', Goth. bairhts, OE beorht 'bright', etc., applied to the 'birch' on account of its white bark. Walde-P. 2.170 f. Walde-H. 1.544. Falk-Torp 74.

ON bjǫrk, OE beorc, OHG birihha, bircha, etc., general Gmc.; Lith. beržas, Lett. berzs, SCr. breza, etc., general Slavic; Skt. bhūrja-, Osset. bärz; here also prob. Lat. farnus, fraxinus 'ash'.

2. Grk. σημύδα (Theophr. HP 3.14.4, 5.7.7), formerly taken as 'birch' (but identification uncertain) and hence NG use to render the (foreign) birch; prob. a loanword of unknown source.

3. Lat. betu(l)la (> It. betula, OFr. beoul, deriv. Fr. bouleau, Sp. abedul; REW 1068, 1069), Gallic word : Ir. bethe, NIr. beith, W. bedwen, Br. bezvenn 'birch'; so named according to Pliny (HN 15.75) because bitumen ex ea Galli excoquunt, therefore may be connected with Lat. bitūmen 'bitumen, mineral pitch', this (as based on a Gallic or Osc.-Umbr. form) : Skt. jatu- 'lac, gum', OE cwudu 'cud' (hwīt cwudu 'white cud, mastich'), OHG cuti 'gluten'. Walde-P. 1.672. Ernout-M. 108, 111. Walde-H. 1.103, 107.

Rum. mesteacăn, fr. late Lat. masticinus 'of mastic', applied to the 'birch', which yields a sap used for a drink (cf. NE birch beer, birch wine), like that of the mastic tree. Tiktin 970.

8.64. 'Pine'. There is some confusion between 'pine' (pinus) and 'fir' (abies), as of the coniferous trees in general, and some of the words listed differ in application according to the period and region.

1. Derivs. of pī-* in words for 'fat, sap, pitch', as Grk. πίων, Skt. pīna- 'fat' (adj.), Grk. πῖαρ, Skt. pīvas 'fat' (sb.), Grk. πίσσα, Lat. pix 'pitch', etc., applied to the very resinous 'pine'. Walde-P. 2.73 ff.

Grk. πίτυς; Skt. pītu-dāru-; Lat. pīnus (also picea, fem. of adj. piceus, fr. pix 'pitch'), whence It., Sp. pino, Fr., Rum. pin, also OE pīn-bēam, pīn-trēow, ME, NE pine (> NIr. pēine), OHG pīnboum (usual gl. to Lat. pinus), Du. pijn (-boum), W., Br. pin, W. also pin-wydden (with gwydd 'woods', 1.41).

2. Grk. πεύκη, NG pop. also πεύκα and τὸ πεύκο, OHG fiohta (Steinmeyer-Sievers, Ahd. Glossen 4.63.19; cf. ib. 3.195.63 pinus pinbom vel viechtech vel chien), MHG viehte, NHG fichte (but 'spruce'), Lith. pušis, OPruss. peuse, perh. also Ir. ochtach (cf. Stokes KZ 33.73) : Grk. ἐχε-, περι-πευκής 'sharp', hence 'pine' fr. its needles. Walde-P. 2.15.

3. Ir. gius (crand gius gl. pinus), NIr. giūs 'pine' or 'fir', etym.?

W. ffynidwydden, cpd. like pin-wydden, first part deriv. of ffon 'stick' (with reference to the needles).

4. ON, Sw. fura, Dan. fyr, OE furh, furh-wudu (gl. pinus; but ME fyrre, fyrre-tre glosses abies in 15th cent., Wright Vocab. 560.7, 646.20, etc.; cf. also fyrre 'sappin' in 16th cent.; this shift complete in NE fir, except that in Scotland the native pine is still called fir; ME > W. ffyr 'pine' or 'fir'), OHG forha (usual gl. to Lat. picea), MHG vorhe, NHG föhre (dial. = kiefer), all with transfer to 'pine' fr. For the 'vine' there are a few old distinctive words, which, so far as the etymology is clear, are connected with verbs for 'twist, wind', 'creep', or 'run'(?) and so were not confined to the grapevine, though this was the most conspicuous and important vine. But many are based on the words for 'wine' (5.92), mostly compounds with words for 'tree' (1.42), 'stem, stalk, tendril, growth'. In several cases words for 'vineyard' have come to be used for 'vine'.

NIr.	tobac			Russ.	tabak
W.	tybaco, baco, myglys
Br.	butun

Tobacco, which to many ranks not far below food and drink, was introduced into Europe from America and with it its most widespread name. The smoking habit is more directly traceable from Virginia to England to Europe.

1. A supposedly Haitian word, represented by Sp. tabaco was adopted with various spellings in most of the European languages. See NED s.v. tobacco.

2. Another Indian name, believed to be of Brazilian origin, but current also in North America, appears as bittin in a German (Hans Stade, 1557) and betum in Portuguese accounts of Brazil; petun or petum in Spanish, French, and English writings. Lescarbot, Histoire de la Nouvelle France has petun with vb. petuner, and un calumet ou petunoir for 'pipe'. Although now otherwise obsolete (after having given the name to the plant petunia), it has survived as the regular word in Breton, in the form butun (cf. the spelling bittin quoted above).

3. NG καπνός 'smoke' (1.83), also 'tobacco', in this sense with pl. καπνά for the various kinds.

4. Rum. tutun, Pol. tytun (also SCr. tutun, Russ. tjutjun, but not the usual words), fr. Turk tütün 'tobacco', orig. 'smoke'. Lokotsch 2121. Tiktin 1669.

5. W. myglys (beside common tybaco, baco) : myg 'smoke' (1.83), myglyd 'smoky'.

6. SCr. duhan (also duvan) through Turk. fr. Arab. duhān 'smoke'. Lokotsch 539. Berneker 234. Rječnik Akad. s.v.

1. Most of the verbs for 'smoke' (tobacco) are derived from the usual nouns for 'smoke' (1.83), as NG καπνίζω, It. fumāre (> NG φουμάρω), Fr., Sp. fumer, NE smoke, NHG rauchen, Du. rooken, etc.

2. Some are of similar ultimate origin, but loanwords rather than derivs. of the native nouns, as W. smocio fr. NE smoke, Lett. smēk'ēt, fr. LG smoken (Mühl.-Endz. 3.960), Lith. rūkyti (cf. NSB s.v. kuryti) fr. some LG form like Du. rooken.

3. Derivs. of or phrases with 'tobacco'. Derivs. Br. butunat, SCr. duhaniti. Phrases with 'drink', as NG πίνω καπνό, Rum. bea tutun, SCr. dial. piti duvan (Rječnik, Akad. 9.900), Ir. ōlaim tobac (or caithim tobac 'use tobacco'), NHG obs. or dial. taback trinken, tabac sauffen (Weigand-H. 2.538).

4. SCr. pušiti : puhati 'blow' (10.38).

5. Boh. kouřiti, Pol. kurzyć, Russ. kurit', all used also with reference to literal smoke or dust : Lith. kurti 'heat', etc. Berneker 651 f. Brückner 284.

MISCELLANEOUS PHYSICAL ACTS AND THOSE PERTAINING TO CERTAIN SPECIAL ARTS AND CRAFTS,[1] WITH SOME IMPLEMENTS, MATERIALS, AND PRODUCTS; OTHER MISCELLANEOUS NOTIONS

[1] Namely (in 9.41–9.89), carpentry, masonry, metal-work, pottery, sculpture, and painting. Words pertaining to the making of cloth and clothing, as 'weave', 'spin', 'sew', etc., are discussed in the chapter on clothing (6); those for 'cook', 'bake', etc., in the chapter on food and drink (5). Numerous words for manual actions of wide application, important in various crafts, as 'bend', 'fold', 'cut', etc., are discussed here in 9.14 ff.

Br.	ober (1 sg. gran)	MHG	tuon, machen
		NHG	tun, machen

Words for 'do' and 'make' are treated together because these most generic notions of action are so commonly expressed by the same word; and where there are pairs of words, roughly distinguished by the feeling for the action itself or the implication of result respectively, the idiomatic differentiation is never quite the same for different languages and periods, not even in the case of such closely allied pairs as NE do, make—NHG tun, machen; (cf. NHG Was macht er? = NE What is he doing?)

Words for 'do, make' rest on generalization from a great variety of notions, as 'place, put', 'set straight', 'make ready', 'arrange', 'fit', 'get through', 'cause to be born', and 'work'.

For a wider survey, including many of the less common alternative expressions not mentioned here, cf. Yoshioka, Verbs of Doing and Making in the Indo-European Languages (Chicago diss.).

1. From IE dhē-* 'place, put', in Skt. dhā-, Grk. τίθημι, Lith. dėti, ChSl. děti, etc. In these the prevailing meaning is still 'place, put', but the sense of 'make' is occasional in Indo-Iranian, rather frequent in Greek, and develops in Slavic. 'Do, make', prevails from the earliest times in Italic, and also in the WGmc. group, though here with considerable survival of 'put'. Walde-P. 1.826 ff. Ernout-M. 325. Walde-H. 1.440 ff. in Hom. 'pass through' (the sea), 'accomplish', in Attic 'act, do' (with emphasis on the action): πέρā, πέρāν 'beyond, across', etc. Walde-P. 2.32.

Grk. ποιέω, ποιϝέω, in Hom. esp. 'construct, build' but also 'make', eventually the commonest word for 'make, do', deriv. of a ποι-ϝο-* : Skt. ci- 'arrange, gather construct, build', ChSl. činŭ 'arrangement', činiti 'arrange', with similar development to 'do, make' in the modern Slavic languages, SCr., Boh. činiti, Pol. czynić, etc. Walde-P. 1.509 ff. Berneker 156 f.

NG κάνω fr. Grk. κάμνω 'work, toil' (9.13), in Hom. already aor. κάμε, κάμον 'wrought, built', and in Byz. period frequent for 'make, do'.

NG φτιάνω, φκιάνω 'make, fix' (ἐφτιάστηκα serves as aor. pass. of κάνω), fr. a late εὐθειάζω 'set right', deriv. of εὐθύς 'straight'. Hatzidakis, Einleitung 407.

3. Lat. agere 'drive' (10.65), hence also 'pursue a course of action, act, do', with more emphasis on the action than facere (above, 1), which in VLat. absorbed these uses of agere. Ernout-M. 24 ff.

9.12, 9.13. Words for 'work, labor' (sb.) as the activity (abstr.) may also be used for 'work' as the result, product of labor (concr.), or the two notions may be more or less differentiated. The attempt to indicate this in the table, by the use of the semicolon, is only a convenient approximation to the facts, applying to a usual but seldom rigid differentiation.

The aspect of 'hard work, toil' is present in the actual usage of several of the words and in the history of still more. In fact, while two groups reflect notions of vigorous activity or power (those represented by Grk. ἔργον, NE work, etc., and by Lat. opus, etc.), the majority are from notions of 'struggle, distress, slavery' or the like.

The verbs for 'work', though listed separately (9.13), are included in the discussion here, since nearly all of them are connected with the nouns.

Several words for 'work' became specialized, especially to 'till, plow', as ON yrkja, Fr. labourer, Sp. labrar.

1. From IE werĝ-* in Grk. ἔρδω, ῥέζω 'do', Av. varəz- 'work, do', etc. (9.11). Walde-P. 1.290 ff. Feist 555, 556.

Grk. ἔργον, ϝέργον, 'deed' or 'work' as product, ἐργασία 'work' as 'labor' (with ἐργάτης 'workman', ἐργάζομαι 'work'); Goth. waurstw (ἔργον), ON verk, OE weorc, etc., general Gmc., with vbs. OE wyrcan, OHG wirken, etc. (but NHG wirken now only trans.; so Goth. waurkjan).

2. Grk. πόνος 'toil', with vb. πονέομαι (Hom. in past tenses also 'worked, wrought'), later πονέω : πένομαι 'toil, be poor', πένης 'poor', outside connections? Walde-P. 2.661. Boisacq 767.

Grk. κόπος 'toil', with vb. κοπιάω (esp. common in LXX and NT) : κόπτω 'strike, beat' (9.21).

NG δουλειά (the pop. sb. for 'work') fr. Grk. δουλεία 'slavery', deriv. of δοῦλος 'slave'. Similarly, Grk. δουλεύω 'be a slave', but NG 'work'.

Grk. κάμνω 'work, toil, be weary' : Skt. çam- 'work, toil'. Walde-P. 1.387.

3. Lat. opus (sometimes abstr., mostly concr.), opera (mostly abstr., but concr. in derivs. It., Rum. opera, Fr. œuvre, Sp. obra), whence vb. operārī, late operāre (> It. operare, Sp. obrar, and Fr. ouvrer, whence ouvrage 'work' abstr. and concr.) : ops, opis 'power, wealth', Skt. apas-, āpas- 'work, act', esp. 'sacred act', Av. hv-apah- 'good deed', ON afl, OE afol 'power', OE æfnan 'perform', OHG uoba 'festival', etc. Walde-P. 1.175 f. Ernout-M. 708 f.

Lat. labor, prob. : labāre 'slip' and first used as 'tottering under a burden', hence 'toil', also 'fatigue, distress, suffering'. Walde-P. 2.432. Ernout-M. 513. Walde-H. 1.739 f. Hence, with or without continued emphasis on the aspect of 'toil, distress', It. lavoro, OFr. labor, labour (> ME, NE labo(u)r, Br. labour), Fr. labeur, Ir. lubair, W. llafur. From Lat. labor also vb. laborāre 'work', whence It. lavorare, OFr. labourer (> ME laboure, NE labor), but mostly with specialization as in Fr. labourer 'till, plow', Sp. labrar 'till, embroider, etc.'. REW 4810.

Fr. travail, Sp. trabajo, back-formations to vbs. travailler, trabajar, fr. VLat. tripāliāre*, deriv. of tripālium* (trepalium 6th. cent. A.D.) 'an instrument of torture' : Lat. tripālis 'of three stakes' (pālus 'stake'). Development in vb. fr. 'torture' to 'distress, trouble, weary', refl. 'distress, trouble, weary oneself, toil' (cf., through OFr., ME travail with this sense and also with new semantic development 'travel'), finally in Fr. and Sp. simply 'work'. REW 8911. Gamillscheg 860. NED s.v. travail, travel.

Rum. lucru 'work' (abstr.; and concr. > 'thing'), fr. Lat. lucrum 'gain, profit', as also (and prob. first in this sense), vb. lucra 'work' fr. Lat. lucrārī 'gain, acquire'. REW 5145, 5146. Cf. the relation of 'gain' and 'work' in the group OE winnan, etc. (below, 5).

Rum. muncă 'toil', vb. munci 'toil', fr. Slavic, ChSl. mąka 'torment', vb. mąciti. Tiktin 1021. Densusianu 270.

4. Ir. sāethar, NIr. saothar (esp. 'toil') : Ir. sāeth 'trouble, suffering', Goth. sair, OE sār 'pain', etc. Walde-P. 2.445. Pedersen 2.45.

Ir. lubair, fr. Lat. labor (above, 3).

Ir. opair, NIr. obair; hence vbs. Ir. opraim (rare; pret. robair RC 25.388; verbal notion mostly expressed by phrase with sb.), NIr. oibrighim, fr. Lat. opera (above, 2). Vendryes, De hib. voc. 161 f.

W. gwaith (abstr. and concr.; vb. gweithio) : Ir. fecht 'expedition, journey', Lat. vehere 'carry', etc. Walde-P. 1.250. Pedersen 1.123 f. Development through 'undertaking', or perh. a case of semantic borrowing, influence of ME travail in its two senses 'toil' and 'travel' (above, 3).

Br. labour fr. OFr. labour; Br. ober fr. Lat. opera.

5. Goth. waurstw, OE weorc, etc., above, 1.

Goth. arbaiþs (renders κόπος 'toil'), ON erfiði (cf. adj. erfiðr, OE earfeþe 'hard, difficult'; OE earfoþ 'hardship'), OHG ar(a)beit, MHG, NHG arbeit, Du. arbeid (MLG > Dan. arbejde, Sw. arbete), with vbs. Goth. arbaidjan, etc., all prob. : Grk. ὀρφανός 'orphan', Lat. orbus 'bereft', ChSl. rabŭ 'slave', etc., with development fr. 'condition of an orphan' to one of 'slavery, drudgery, toil'. Walde-P. 1.183 f. Falk-Torp 31. Feist 55. Kluge-G. 22.

ON vinna (with vb. vinna, also 'gain') :Goth. winnō 'suffering', winnan 'suffer', OE winnan 'labor, toil', later 'win, gain', OHG winnan 'strive, fight', Skt. van- 'desire, gain', etc. Walde-P. 1.260. Falk-Torp 1382 f. NED s.v. win, vb.

OE swinc, ME swinke, with vb. swincan, swinken (NE swink, arch. or dial.), parallel form to OE swingan 'flog, beat, strike, fling' and 'fling oneself, rush', OHG swingan 'fling, rush', etc. Walde-P. 2.526. NED s.v. swink vb.

NE toil (and vb. toil), fr. ME toyle 'dispute, fight, struggle', fr. OFr. toil, touil 'dispute, fight', back-formation to toiler, toillier 'dispute, stir up' (Fr. touiller 'stir, mix'), fr. Lat. tudiculāre 'stir' or 'bruise', deriv. of tudicula 'machine for bruising olives', fr. the root of tundere 'strike, beat'. REW 8971. Gamillscheg 852. NED s.v.

6. Lith. darbas, Lett. darbs, with vb. Lith. dirbti : OE deorf 'toil, trouble', vb. deorfan, further connections dub. Walde-P. 1.863. Mühl.-Endz. 1.439.

Lett. vb. strādāt, fr. Russ. stradat' 'suffer, endure'.

7. ChSl. trudŭ (renders κόπος 'toil'), with vb. truditi 'toil, struggle' (so Boh., Russ., Pol. trud 'toil, trouble, etc.', with vbs. for 'toil') : Lat. trūdere 'thrust, push', Goth. us-þriutan 'trouble', OE þrēotan 'trouble, weary', þrēat 'throng, pressure, distress', þrēatian 'press, urge, threaten' (cf. NE threat, threaten), etc. Walde-P. 1.755. Brückner 577.

ChSl. dělo (renders ἔργον), etc., general Slavic for concrete 'work' : děti 'put', etc. (9.11, 12.13). Hence vb. ChSl. (sŭ-)dělati in Gospels reg. for ἐργάζομαι, later for ποιέω, Boh. dělati 'do, make' and 'work' (Pol., Russ. 'do', 9.11).

SCr. rad, back-formation to vb. raditi 'work' : ChSl. raditi 'care for', Goth. garēdan 'care for', OHG rātan 'advise', Skt. rādh- 'prepare, perform, succeed', etc. Walde-P. 1.74. Trautmann 235. SCr. development fr. Slavic 'care for' through 'attend to, be busy with' to 'work'.

Boh. práce, Pol. praca (with vbs. pracovati, pracować), prob. : SCr., Slov. pratiti 'accompany', Bulg. pratja 'send', with development through 'errand' to 'business, occupation', then 'work' in general. Cf. SCr. posao (gen. posla) 'one's occupation, work' : poslati 'send'. Brückner 434.

Pol. robota, Russ. rabota (Boh. robota 'toil, drudgery'; with vbs. Boh. robotiti, Pol. robić, Russ. rabotat') : ChSl. rabota 'slavery' (cf. NG δουλειά, above, 2), deriv. of rabŭ 'slave', this : Goth. arbaiþs, etc., above, 5.

8. Skt. karman- 'act, activity' and 'work' (cf. karma-kāra- 'workman') : kṛ- 'do' (9.11).

Skt. çrama- 'fatigue, toil' (with vb. çram- 'be weary, toil'), etym.? Walde-P. 2.426, 498.

Skt. çam- : Grk. κάμνω, above, 2.

Av. vərəzya- : varəz- 'do, work', Grk. ἔργον, etc. (above, 1).

For 'work' concr. mostly Skt. kṛta-, Av. kərəta-, OPers. karta- : Skt. kṛ- 'do, make' (9.11).

Words for 'bend' are derived, either directly or through words for 'bent, crooked' (12.74), from a considerable variety of roots which had already in the parent speech the notion of 'bend' (or in part 'turn, wind', etc.), though these were doubtless originally differentiated according to the object involved.

The association between 'bend' (a stick, etc.) and 'fold' (cloth, etc.) is such that there may be extension or shift in either direction. Thus Lat. plicāre 'fold' has furnished common words for 'bend' (Fr. plier, etc.), and conversely several words for 'fold' are cpds. of those for 'bend'.

Semantically related groups, not in the list, are those for such notions as 'bend the head or body, bow' (for this specialization of 'bend', cf. also NE bow), 'stoop, incline, lean', esp. in two important groups of cognates, namely:

1) IE kneigʷh-*, in Goth. hneiwan 'decline, wane', anahneiwan 'stoop', OE hnīgan 'bend (intr.), bow', OHG hnīgan, NHG neigen 'incline, bow', Lat. cōnīvēre 'close the eyes', etc. Walde-P. 1.476. Ernout-M. 213. Walde-H. 1.261.

2) IE k̂lei-*, in Grk. κλῑνω 'cause to slope, incline, recline, decline, lean', Lat. inclīnāre 'cause to bend, incline', dēclīnāre 'bend down, turn aside', etc., OE hlinian 'recline', hlǣnan 'cause to incline, NE lean, etc. (general Gmc.), Skt. çri- 'lean', etc. Walde-P. 1.490 f. Ernout-M. 197 f. Walde-H. 1.234 f.

1. Grk. κάμπτω, with sb. καμπή 'bending, turning' : Lith. kumpas 'bent, crooked', etc., fr. IE kamp-, prob. an extension of kam- in Skt. kmarati (Dhātup.) 'is crooked', Av. kamarā- 'girdle, Grk. καμάρα 'vault', etc. Walde-P. 1.350.

Grk. λυγίζω 'bend, twist' like a withe (cf. λύγος 'withe'), in NG the usual pop. word for 'bend' (trans. and intr.) : Lith. lugnas 'pliable', ON lykna 'bend the knee', ON lokkr, OE locc 'lock of hair, curl'. Walde-P. 2.413 f.

2. Lat. flectere (hence flecticāre* > OFr. flechier, Fr. fléchir), etym.? Ernout-M. 367 f. Walde-H. 1.514 f. REW 3366. Gamillscheg 424.

Lat. curvāre (> It. curvare, Fr. courber, Sp. encorvar), deriv. of curvus 'bent, curved' : Grk. κορωνός, κυρτός, Lith. kreivas, Russ. krivoj, etc. 'bent, curved, crooked', with widespread root connections. Walde-P. 2.568 ff. Ernout-M. 248. Walde-H. 1.317 f.

It. piegare, Fr. plier (both also 'fold'), Rum. pleca, fr. Lat. plicāre 'fold' (9.15).

Rum. încovoia, fr. Slavic, cf. ChSl. kovati 'hammer, forge' (9.61), Russ. pod-kova, SCr. pot-kova 'horseshoe', Rum. development through 'bend in the form of a horseshoe'. Tiktin 790.

3. Ir. crommaim, Br. kromma derivs. of Ir. cromm, Br. kromm 'crooked, bent' (12.74).

Ir. fillim, also and orig. 'fold' (9.15).

NIr. camaim deriv. of camm 'crooked, bent' (12.74).

Ir., NIr. lūbaim deriv. of Ir. lūb 'a loop, bend', formerly taken as loanword fr. NE loop, but by Zupitza, KZ 36.244, as cognate with ON laupr, OE lēap 'basket'.

W. plygu, Br. plega, also and orig. 'fold' (9.15).

4. Goth. (ga)biugan (OE būgan 'bow' intr.), ME bowe (trans. and intr. due to confusion with forms of OE bȳgan, cf. NED s.v. bow, vb.), Du. buigen, OHG biogan, MHG, NHG biegen fr. IE bheugh-, beside bheug- in Skt. bhuj- 'bend', bhuja- 'arm', Ir. fid-bocc 'wooden bow', here also prob. Grk. φεύγω, Lat. fugere 'flee'. Walde-P. 2.145 f. Falk-Torp 127. Walde-H. 1.556.

Here also, with caus. formation, ON beygja (rare), Dan. bøje, Sw. böja, OE bȳgan (bīgan, bēgan), OHG bougen, MHG böugen, NHG beugen (with idiomatic, though not rigid, differentiation from biegen; cf. Paul, Deutsches Wtb. s.v. biegen).

ON sveigja : sveigr 'flexible', svigna 'give way', fr. an extension of IE swei-* in words with the notion of 'bend, turn, swing'. Walde-P. 2.518 ff. Falk-Torp 1212.

ON benda 'bend a bow, bend' (OE bendan 'bind, bend a bow'), ME bende, NE bend, fr. Gmc. bandjan*, deriv. of bandja-* (OE bend, ON band 'band'), fr. the root of Goth., OE bindan 'bind', etc. (9.16). The semantic development is then 'bind', 'restrain with a bond', 'restrain a bent bow', 'bend a bow', 'make bow-shaped', 'bend'. NED s.v. bend, vb.

Sw. kröka deriv. of krok 'a hook, curve, bend' : Dan. krog, ON krōkr 'hook' (> ME, NE crook), OHG krāko 'hooked tool', etc. Walde-P. 1.593 f. Falk-Torp 581.

MHG lenken : ON hlekkr 'ring, link', OE hlencan pl. 'chain-armor', etc. Walde-P. 1.498. Falk-Torp 676.

5. Lith. (pa)lenkti, Lett. liekt, frequent. luocīt, ChSl. sŭ-lęšti, -lęką (prob. lęceti 'set snares', etc.) : Lith. linkti 'bend' intr., Lett. likt id., liks 'curved', ChSl. ląkŭ 'a bow', ON lengja, OE -lōh 'strap', fr. IE lenk-*. Walde-P. 2.435. Berneker 707 f.

6. (ChSl. sŭ-gŭnąti, prě-gybati 'fold'), SCr. pregnuti, pregibati, Boh. ohnouti, ohybati, Pol. giąć, nagiąć, Russ. gnut', sgibat', fr. a Slavic root gŭb-, gyb- : Lett. gubt 'bend' (intr.), perh. OE gēap 'crooked', etc. (or gub- by transposition fr. bhug- in Skt. bhuj-?). Walde-P. 1.567 f. Berneker 366, 373. Brückner 140.

7. Skt. añc- (cf. añka- 'bend, hook'): Grk. ἀγκών 'elbow', ἀγκύλος 'curved', Lat. uncus 'hook', OE angel 'hook', etc. (12.75). Walde-P. 1.60 f. Walde-H. 1.46.

Skt. namati mostly intr., Av. nəmaiti intr., caus. Skt. nāmayati, Av. nāmayeiti trans., Skt. namas-, Av. nəmah- 'bending, homage', Toch. näm- 'incline, bow' (SSS 446), further connections dub. Walde-P. 2.331 f.

Skt. bhuj- : Goth. biugan, etc. (above, 4).

For relations between 'fold' and 'bend', see 9.14. Among other semantic sources are 'double, turn, wind, put together'.

1. Grk. πτύσσω, with πτυχή 'a fold', perh. fr. πι-υχ-*, a cpd., like Skt. pyukṣna- 'bow-case', with prefix pi* beside epi* (Skt. api, Grk. ἐπί), second part : Skt. ūh- 'move, roam'. Walde-P. 1.122, 189. Boisacq 824.

NG διπλώνω fr. class. Grk. διπλόω 'double', deriv. of διπλόος, διπλοῦς 'twofold'. Semantic development as in some uses of NE double (over, up) for 'fold' (NED s.v. double, vb. 8).

2. Lat. plicāre (> It. piegare, Fr. plier 'fold' or 'bend', Sp. plegar 'fold', Rum. pleca 'bend'; also W. plygu, Br. plega 'fold' or 'bend'. REW 6601. Loth, Mots. lat. 196), for plecāre* (with i fr. cpds.) : Grk. πλέκω, Lat. plectere, OE fleohtan, etc. 'plait' (9.75), these prob. also (as parallel extensions of pel-*) : Goth. falþan, etc. 'fold' (below, 4). Walde-P. 2.97. Ernout-M. 778 f.

Sp. doblar, deriv. of doble 'a fold' = doble 'double' fr. Lat. duplus.

Rum. îndoi 'fold, bend, doubt', fr. prefix în- and doi 'two'. Tiktin 801.

3. Ir. fillim (also 'bend', in gram. 'decline'), NIr. fillim : Skt. val- 'turn' intr., Grk. ἑλίσσω, Lat. volvere 'wind', etc., fr. IE wel-*. Walde-P. 2.539. Pedersen 2.522.

4. Goth. falþan, OE fealdan, etc., general Gmc. (Du. vouwen fr. MDu. vouden; cf. also Goth. ain-falþs, OE ān-feald, etc. 'onefold, single'), fr. a deriv. or extension of pel-*, seen in Grk. διπλόος, Lat. duplus 'twofold', etc. Here prob. Skt. puṭa- 'fold, pocket'. Walde-P. 2.55 f. Falk-Torp 249.

Sw. vika : OE wīcan 'yield, give way', ON vīkja 'move', Skt. vij- 'move quickly, recede', Grk. εἴκω 'yield, shrink', fr. IE weig- weik-, prob. an extension of wei- in Lat. viēre 'plait', Lith. vyti 'wind', etc. Walde-P. 1.223, 233 ff. Hellquist 1341.

5. Lith. stulpuoti 'set posts, furnish with pillars', also 'fold', deriv. of stulpas 'post, pillar' (fr. Russ. stolp id.), which developed secondary meanings 'beam of light' and 'fold', the latter from the column-like appearance of vertical folds (pleats).

Lett. saluocīt, cpd. of luocīt 'bend' (9.14).

6. ChSl. sŭgŭnąti (perf.), sŭgybati (imperf.), Boh. zahýbati, cpds. of root in words for 'bend' (9.14).

SCr. saviti, cpd. of viti 'wind'.

Boh. skladati, Russ. skladyvat', cpds. of s- = ChSl. sŭ- 'with, together', and Boh. klasti 'lay', Russ. klast' 'put, place' (12.12).

Pol. fałdować, deriv. of fałda 'a fold', loanword fr. MHG valde (NHG falte) 'a fold'. Berneker 278.

7. Skt. verb for 'fold'? The root puṭ- (beside puṭa- 'fold, pocket', cf. above, 4) is not quotable in this sense. The adj. dvi-guṇa- 'twofold' occurs with vāsas- 'clothing' in sense of 'folded'.

A great variety of roots show the notion 'bind' either in verbs or in nouns for 'bond, chain, rope, knot', etc. But only one of these is common to the most usual verbs for 'bind' in more than one of the main branches, namely, to those of Gmc. and Indo-Iranian.

1. IE bhendh-*. Walde-P. 2.152. Feist 93.

Goth., OE bindan, etc., with Goth. bandi, etc. 'bond', both vb. and sb. general Gmc.; Skt. bandh-, Av. band- with sbs. Skt. bandha-, bandhana-, Av. banda-; the same root in Grk. πεῖσμα (πενθσμα*) 'ship's cable', Lat. offendix, offendimentum 'knot, band' (of the priest's cap, only a ritual term), Ir. buinne 'band', etc.

2. Grk. δέω (fut. δήσω), NG δένω, with δεσμός 'bond' : Skt. dā-, di- 'bind' (3sg. dyati, pple. dita-), samdāna-, dāman- 'bond, rope', fr. IE dē(i)-, də-. Walde-P. 1.771.

3. Lat. vincīre, with vinculum 'bond' (> It. vincolo, Sp. vínculo), prob. nasalized form of IE weik-, weig-, in Sw. vika 'fold', etc. (9.15), extension of wei-* in Lat. viēre 'plait', Lith. vyti 'wind', etc. Walde-P. 1.233 ff.

'Bond' is intended here to cover the generic notion 'anything with which one binds', though NE bond and several of the words listed are now less used in this way than in various secondary senses. In common speech one is more likely to use the more specific terms for 'rope, chain', or the like.

Most of the words are connected with, and have been included in the discussion of, the verbs for 'bind' (9.16). An exception is

Sp. lazo (esp. and orig. 'noose' but also generic), fr. Lat. laqueus 'noose, snare' : lacere 'attract, seduce', lax 'deception'. Ernout-M. 523 f., 532. Walde-H. 1.745. REW 4909.

The gradation by size in the current use of NE cable (orig. 'halter'), hawser (orig. 'hoister'), rope, cord, and string or twine is one that is secondary and in part locally variant and cannot be equated with the differentiations of similar words elsewhere, which are too complex to be described briefly. It is intended here to give the principal words for 'rope' or 'cord'.

The smaller 'string, twine' is partly covered by words included in the list, or expressed more precisely by their dim. forms, e.g. Russ. verevočka, Pol. sznurek. Some of the words are cognate with those for 'thread', as Fr. ficelle (dim. of file), NHG bindfaden. Among others are MLat. spagum, It. spago (> NG σπάγγος), of unknown orig. (REW 8113; KZ 66.259), NE twine (OE twīn, fr. twi- 'two', hence orig. 'twisted').

A 'knot' in a rope, cord, etc., is a means of tying, and the words are mostly cognate with others denoting 'tie, fasten' or some form of fastening. The application to a lump or protuberance in the body or on a tree is clearly secondary in Lat. nōdus. For the Gmc. group as a whole the view that the latter sense is the earlier (cf. Paul, Deutsches Wtb. s.v. Knoten, "bedeutet ursprünglich 'ründliche Anschwellung an einem Gegenstand' ") is favored by the nearest cognates like OHG knopf 'knob, knot', OE cnoll 'hilltop', etc. But in the history of OE cnotta—NE knot, this sense is chronologically later (NED s.v. knot, sb[1]. 13–16) and for the prevailing earlier use, cf. the derivative OE cnytta 'tie with a knot' (NE knit).

1. Grk. ἅμμα (anything for tying, covering 'knot', but more comprehensive), fr. ἅπτω 'fasten'.

'Strike' is a broad notion, represented by several IE roots and by a great variety of words in many of the IE languages. These are partly differentiated, esp. according to the kind of instrument or object involved. But the differentiation is too diverse and fluctuating to permit any general classification or fixed arrangement in the table. Just as NE hammer and ram may be used as verbs, so a few of the more general verbs for strike are derived from the name of the instrument used. Several, mostly of imitative origin, were first used with reference to the sound made by a blow (cf. NE knock, Fr. frapper, NG χτυπῶ, below). Some are used esp. for 'strike with a sharp instrument', and so overlap with 'cut'. Some are used esp. for 'strike to death', and so overlap with 'kill'. The notion of repeated action is usually, though not always, present in NE beat and pound, and elsewhere may be brought out by the use of cpds. or iteratives.

1. IE *gʷhen- in words for 'strike', and esp. 'strike to death, wound, kill' (4.76). Walde-P. 1.679 ff. Ernout-M. 344. Walde-H. 1.332 f.

Grk. θείνω 'strike' (poet.), fut. θενῶ, aor. ἔθεινα, beside aor. ἔπεφνον 'kill', φόνος 'murder', etc.; Lat. dē-fendere 'ward off', of-fendere 'strike against'; Skt. han-, Av. jan- 'strike, slay'; Arm. ganem 'strike'; Hitt. kwen, kun- 'strike, defeat, kill' : Ir. gonim 'wound, kill'; Lith. ginti, ChSl. gŭnati 'drive' (fr. 'strike'), etc.

2. IE *bher-. Walde-P. 2.159 f. Ernout-M. 348. Walde-H. 1.481 f.

Lat. ferīre 'strike, beat, knock, slay' (> Sp. herir 'wound, hurt, strike', Fr. férir 'strike, smite', obs.); ON berja 'strike, beat', OHG berjen, MHG berjen, bern 'strike, pound', also 'knead, mold'; ChSl. borją, brati 'fight', Av. tižibāra- 'with a sharp cutting edge'; prob. also Lat. forāre, ON bora, OE borian, etc. 'bore' (9.46).

3. IE *bhei-. Walde-P. 2.137 f. Berneker 117.

Ir. benim 'strike, cut' (W. bidio 'trim a hedge', MBr. benaff 'cut', etc.); ChSl. bĭją, biti, SCr., Boh. biti, Pol. bić, Russ. bit' 'strike, beat'.

4. Grk. τύπτω, beside τύπος 'blow, imprint, form, image' : Skt. tup-, tump- 'hurt' (Dhātup.), pra-stumpati (gramm.), Lat. stupēre 'stand stiff, be stupefied', ChSl. tŭpati 'palpitare', tŭpŭtati 'palpitare, calcare', etc., fr. *(s)teu-p-, beside *(s)teu-d- in Lat. tundere 'strike, beat, pound', Skt. tud- 'beat, push', Goth. stautan 'strike', OHG stōzan 'hit', NHG stossen 'hit, push', etc., *(s)teu-g- in Skt. tuj- 'strike, push, urge', Ir. tuagaim 'strike with an axe (tuag)', etc., extensions of IE *(s)teu-. Walde-P. 2.618. Boisacq 991 f. Ernout-M. 1064. Falk-Torp 1198.

'Cut' is an extremely broad notion, represented by several IE roots and by a great variety of words in many of the IE languages. As in various non-IE languages there is no generic word for 'cut' but only special words according to the instrument used or the object cut, so even in IE there is only partial generalization. There is often a partial distinction between 'cut' with a knife, etc., and 'cut' by blows of an ax, etc., the latter use overlapping with 'strike' (as in Grk. κόπτω, Lat. caedere, etc.). There may be special expressions for 'cut wood or stone, hew or carve' (9.45, 9.81), for 'cut grass or grain, mow, reap', (8.32), for 'cut hair or wool, shear', for 'cut garments' (cf. sbs. for 'tailor', partly = 'cutter', 6.13), for 'cut apart', 'split' (9.27) or 'separate' (12.23), etc., so that the same roots appear here and under many other headings. Where there is widespread agreement in a particular special use, as in certain groups for 'hew' in carpentry and for 'mow' and so not listed here, the presumption is that this is inherited. In certain other cases the special use is clearly the result of specialization, as in the current use of NE shear (cf. its history in NED s.v.). But most often the same formal group shows such interchange of generic and various special uses that it is impossible to determine whether the IE root in question carried some one of the special senses or was already generic. If the number of IE roots set up for 'cut' seems extravagant (some fifteen in Walde-P.), it is because 'cut' is merely a convenient common denominator for the historical uses.

From the preceding it is obvious how difficult is the selection and order of importance of words to be listed here, apart from those that are obviously the most generic, like NE cut and some others.

1. IE *sek-. Verbal forms in Italic, Celtic, and Balto-Slavic. Walde-P. 2.474 ff. Ernout-M. 913 ff.

Lat. secāre (> It. segare, Fr. scier 'saw', Sp. segar 'mow'); Ir. tescaim (cpd. to-in-sec-, Pedersen 2.612; NIr. teascaim 'chop off'); ChSl. sěšti, SCr. sjeći, Boh. sekati (OBoh. sěkati, sieci, Gebauer 1.41), Pol. siec, Russ. seč' : ON sǫg, OE sagu, OHG sega, saga 'saw', ON sax, etc. 'knife'.

2. IE *(s)ker-, with extensions *(s)kert-, *(s)krei-, etc. Walde-P. 2.573 ff. Falk-Torp 1010. Berneker 172, 620. But labiovelar in Hitt. kwer-, kur-. Sturtevant, Hitt. Gr. 119.

ON skera, Dan. skære, Sw. skära, OE sceran, ME schere (NE shear specialized 'cut wool, hair', as already OHG sceran 'tondere', MHG, NHG scheren); Lith. kertu, kirsti, Lett. cērtu, cirst 'hew, hack'; Russ.-ChSl. črĭtu, črešti 'cut'; Skt. kṛt-, Av. kərət- (3sg. Many of the words for 'knife' are from roots for 'cut', most of these appearing in the verbs discussed in 9.22. Others are connected with words for 'fight, sharpen, pierce, pinch(?)', etc., the orig. application being in part obscure.

Although 'knife' as an implement is primarily intended here, most of the words are used also, and some occur most frequently, for 'knife' as a weapon. But words used only for a special type of knife are not listed, as for 'penknife' NG σουγιάς (fr. Turk.), Fr. canif (fr. Gmc.), Rum. briceag (fr. blend of Turk. and Slavic), etc.

1. Grk. μάχαιρα, dim. μαχαίριον, NG μαχαίρι : Grk. μάχομαι 'fight', μάχη 'battle', but root connection dub. See 20.11.

2. Lat. culter, dim. cultellus (> It. coltello, Fr. couteau, Sp. cuchillo, also W. cyllell, Br. kontell), either by dissim. fr. *(s)ker- in words for 'cut' (9.22), or fr. *(s)kel- in words for 'split, cut', like Lith. skelti 'split', etc. Walde-P. 2.592. Words for 'scissors, shears' are mostly from roots for 'cut' or esp. 'shear'. Some are pl. or deriv. forms of the word for 'knife'. One group is a cpd. of the word for 'hair'.

1. Grk. ψαλίς, -ίδος, late dim. ψαλίδιον, NG ψαλίδι, Aeol. σπαλίς : σφαλάσσειν· τέμνειν, κεντεῖν Hesych., Skt. phal- 'burst'. Walde-P. 2.677. Boisacq 890.

2. Lat. forfex, esp. pl. forficēs (> OIt. forfice, It. forbici, Rum. foarfeci, pl.), history complicated and disputed. Prob. fr. forceps 'pair of tongs, forceps' (cpd. of formus 'warm' and root of capere 'take') with phonetic changes (through an intermediate forpex by dissim.) and shift of application from 'tongs' to 'shears' owing to the similarity of shape. Walde-H. 1.526 f. (with full refs.). REW 3435.

It. cesoie (not common), OFr. cisoires fr. VLat. *caesōrium, *cisōrium, fr. caedere 'cut down, strike' (9.21). REW 1475.

Fr. ciseaux, pl. of ciseau 'chisel', fr. VLat. *cisellum for *caesellum : caedere (cf. above). REW 1474.

Fr. cisailles, esp. 'metal-shears', fr. VLat. *cisālia for caesālia, pl. of adj. caesālis : caedere (above). REW 1472.

Sp. tijeras, more usual than sg. tijera (Port. tesoura, OFr. tesoir), fr. Lat. tōnsōria (sc. ferrāmenta) 'barber's instruments', fr. tōnsor 'barber' : tondēre 'shear, shave'. REW 8784.

3. Ir. demess, NIr. deimheas, lit. 'double knife', fr. prefix de- beside dē- 'two' (Thurneysen, Gram. 246) and deriv. of root in Lat. metere, Br. medi 'reap, harvest', etc. Walde-P. 2.259. Pedersen 1.162 f., 2.127.

NIr. siosūr, W. siswrn, fr. English (below, 4).

W. gwellaif, OW guillihim, Br. gweltre, gwentle, MBr. guelteff, cpds. of the words for 'hair' seen in W. gwallt (lost in Br.), second member dub. Pedersen 2.29 (without mention of the Br. word, which seems clearly connected with the W., though taken otherwise by Henry 150).

Br. sizailhou pl., fr. Fr. cisailles (above, 2).

4. ON skæri pl., OE scēara (pl., rarely sg. scēar), ME schere, NE shears (Sc. and dial. still 'scissors', but usually applied only to the larger implement), Du. schaar, OHG scār, scāra, scera, MHG schær, schære, NHG schere : ON skera, OE sceran 'cut, shear', etc. (9.22). Weigand-H. 2.697. NED s.v. shear, sb.

ON sǫx pl., as orig. also Dan. saks, Sw. sax, in sg. ON sax 'large knife, short sword' = OE seax 'knife', etc. (9.23). Falk-Torp 944. Hellquist 890.

ME sisours, NE scissors, fr. OFr. cisoires (above), but influenced in NE spelling by fancied deriv. fr. Lat. scissor 'one who cleaves, divides' (: scindere 'split, cut, rend'). NED s.v.

5. Lith. žirklės, Lett. zirkles, perh. with dissim. fr. IE *ĝhḷtlo-, beside *ĝhelto- in Goth. gilþa 'sickle'. Walde-P. 1.629. Otherwise Mühl.-Endz. 4.728.

Lett. šk'ēres, fr. MLG schere (: MHG schære, etc., above). Mühl-Endz. 4.34.

6. SCr. nožice, Boh. nůžky, Pol. nożyce, Russ. nožnicy, all pl. derivs. of the Slavic words for 'knife', SCr. nož, etc. (9.23).

SCr. škare, Slov. škarje, fr. OHG skāri, pl. of scār (above). Miklosich 298.

SCr. makaze fr. Turk. makas 'scissors'. Berneker 2.9.

7. Skt. kartarī- 'shears' or 'dagger, knife', see 9.23.

Skt. kṛpāṇī- 'shears' or 'dagger', beside kṛpāṇa- 'sword' : Lith. kirpti 'cut with shears', Lat. carpere 'gather, pluck', etc., fr. extension of *sker- 'cut' (9.22). Walde-P. 2.580. Uhlenbeck 64.

Skt. (Vedic) bhurijāu (du.), meaning 'scissors' dub. (Macdonell-Keith 2.107). Walde-P. 2.181.

For 'ax' there is one inherited group, of obscure root connection. The Grk. and Skt. words reflect a prehistoric borrowing from a non-IE, Asiatic, source. The other words are from various roots for 'cut' or 'strike'.

While 'ax' as an implement is primarily intended here, the same words serve also in older periods for the weapon, the 'battle-ax' (cf. 20.222).

The primitive celt served as either 'ax' or 'adze' (i.e. with blade at right angles to the handle) according to the way it was mounted. Some of the older IE words probably covered both types, and many of the distinctive terms for 'adze' are either compounds of those for 'ax' (e.g. NHG krummaxt, zimmeraxt) or cognate with others for 'ax', as Lat. ascia (below, 1), Ir. tāl, ON þexla, Russ. tesla, etc. (below, 8). Among other words for 'adze' are Grk. σκέπαρνον, NG σκεπάρνι, prob. : Russ. ščepat' 'chip, split' (Walde-P. 2.559, Boisacq 873); Fr. herminette, deriv. of hermine, based on the resemblance of the animal's muzzle to the adze-blade; OE adesa, ME adese, NE adze, orig. unknown (NED s.v.).

1. IE form and root connection dub., but clearly a cognate group. Walde-P. 1.39. Ernout-M. 74 f. Walde-H. 1.71 f. Feist 54. REW 696.

Grk. ἀξίνη (but NG ἀξίνα, ξινάρι 'mattock'); Lat. ascia (an adze-shaped tool of carpenters, masons, etc., Daremberg et Saglio s.v.; > OFr. aisse, It. ascia, the latter now 'ax' including but not restricted to the 'adze'; derivs. Fr. aisseau, aissette, Sp. azuela 'adze'); Goth. aqizi, ON øx, OE æx, OHG acchus, etc.

2. Grk. πέλεκυς : Skt. paraçu- (below, 8), both early loanwords fr. a source represented by Akkad. pilakku, Sumer. balag 'ax'. Boisacq 761. Schrader, Reallex. 1.68.

NG τσεκούρι (Byz. σικούριον, τζικούριον), fr. Lat. secūris (below, 3). G. Meyer, Neugr. Stud. 3.67.

3. Lat. secūris (> It. scure, Rum. secure; Sp. segur obs.) : ChSl. sěkyra, etc. (below, 7), fr. the root of Lat. secāre 'cut', etc. (9.22). Walde-P. 474 f. Ernout-M. 914.

Lat. bipennis 'two-edged ax' (both tool and weapon), cpd. of bi- 'two-' and penna 'wing'. Ernout-M. 753.

Fr. hache (dim. hachette > ME hachet, NE hatchet), Prov. apcha (> Sp. hacha, OIt. accia), fr. a Gmc. *hapja (MLat. hapia) seen in OHG happa, heppa 'sickle-shaped knife', this prob. : Grk. κόπτω 'strike, cut', κοπίς 'cleaver', etc. (9.21). Walde-P. 2.560. REW 4035. Gamillscheg 502.

Rum. topor, fr. Bulg. topor (below, 7).

Among the several words for 'break' in some of the languages, one or the other may be preferred in particular phrases (according to the kind of object broken, whether broken into two or into many pieces, etc.), but such differentiation is too vague and diverse to be taken account of here.

Even between 'break' and 'tear' or 'split', owing to a similarity in result, there is some overlapping and shift.

Words for 'tear' are used, partly distinguished by prefixes, for 'tear in two, in pieces' or for 'tear off' (from the main body). In the latter sense they overlap with 'flay, pull, snatch, pluck, etc.' But many words that may be rendered 'tear off' as an emphatic expression for 'pull off with violence' and do not cover the other use of 'tear' are not considered here. Several of the words, though listed in the simplex, are more commonly used in cpds., as NHG zerreissen, Russ. raz-dirat', etc., lit. 'tear apart'.

1. IE der-* in words for 'tear' and 'flay' (9.29). Walde-P. 1.797 ff. Feist 120. Berneker 185.

Here as 'tear' : Goth. dis-tairan 'tear, burst' (leather bottles, where Grk. ῥήγνυμι; also ga-tairan 'destroy, break'), OE teran, ME tere, NE tear, OHG zerran, MHG zerren (NHG 'tear off, pull, tug'; OHG fir-zeran 'destroy', NHG verzehren 'consume'); ChSl. dĭrati, Pol. drzeć, Russ. drat', dirat' (SCr. derati, Boh. drati mostly in secondary uses); Skt. dṛ- 'burst, tear' Av. niš-dar- 'tear out' (Barth. 689). Cf. also Toch. tsär- 'separate' (SSS 483).

2. Grk. σπαράσσω (σπαραγ- as in σπάραγμα 'a piece torn off', σπαραγμός 'a tearing, rending') prob. with connection through 'noise of tearing' : Skt. sphūrj- 'rumble, crash', Lith. spragėti 'crackle', etc. (Walde-P. 2.672 ff., but σπαράσσω separated, 2.668). Persson, Beiträge 869.

NG ξεσχίζω, cpd. (with ξε- for ἐξ- as reg., fr. ἐξε- in augmented forms) of σχίζω 'split' (9.27).

Words for 'flay' are mostly from roots seen also in words for 'tear' or 'peel' or are derivs. of words for 'skin, hide'.

Secondary uses, as 'flog, despoil, plunder', etc., are widespread, and in some languages 'flay' in the old literal sense is now more commonly expressed by new derivs. of words for 'skin' (so NE skin, not flay, in common use), or by phrases containing them (Russ. sdirat' kožu, etc.), though such phrases are not entered in the list.

1. IE der-* in words for 'flay' and 'tear' (9.28). Walde-P. 1.797 ff.

For 'rub' there is one considerable inherited group. There are more or less probable connections with words for such various notions as 'scrape', 'gnaw', 'grind', 'turn around' (hence first 'rub with a circular motion'), 'strike, break' (hence first 'rub to pieces'), etc.

1. IE ter-, with extensions trī-, treu-. Here kept apart fr. ter-, etc. in words for 'bore' (9.46), though generally thought to be ultimately the same, fr. an orig. notion of 'rub with circular motion'. Walde-P. 1.728 ff. Ernout-M. 1032 ff.

Grk. τρίβω (τρῑ-β-, cf. Lat. trīvī, trītus; the common word for 'rub' down to the present day; in secondary uses τείρω, τρύω 'wear out, distress', τρύχω 'waste, consume'); Lat. terere (trīvī, trītus); Lith. trinti, Lett. trit; ChSl. trěti (terti*), SCr. trti (with deriv. trljati), Boh. třiti, Pol. trzeć, Russ. teret'.

OHG rīban, MHG rīben, NHG reiben, Du. wrijven, perh. as orig. 'turn around', then 'rub with circular motion, rub' : Grk. ῥῖψ 'wickerwork', ῥῖπτω 'throw' (cf. 10.25), fr. an extension of wer-* in words for 'turn, twist', etc. (10.13). Walde-P. 1.280. Franck-v. W. 806 f. Otherwise (with ON rīfa 'tear' : Grk. ἐρείπω 'tear down') Falk-Torp 906.

Av. word for 'rub'? NPers. mālīdān 'rub, polish' : Av. marəz- 'touch lightly', Skt. mṛj- 'wipe, rub, polish'. Barth. 1152 f.

9.32 STRETCH

Grk.	τείνω	Goth.	uf-þanjan	Lith.	tęsti, tempti

The majority of the words for 'stretch' belong to an inherited group. In this group and in some of the other words there are frequent relations between 'stretch' and 'draw, pull' (9.33), and, besides the words listed, there are others for 'pull out' virtually equivalent to 'stretch', as It. stirare, Sp. estirar, etc.

From the central notion of 'stretch' involving tension come a great variety of special uses, as 'stretch out, put forth' (the hand, etc.), 'reach for, tend', 'spread out, extend, lengthen', etc., with considerable divergence in this respect between the different words (as 'tend, strive' esp. in Lat. tendere, 'extend, lengthen' dominant in NHG dehnen). Conversely, some one of these notions may be the more original, as in the case of NE stretch (cf. below, 5), or if a word for 'lengthen' is used for 'stretch', as It. allungare.

1. IE ten-*, with extensions. Walde-P. 1.722 ff., also 721, 726, 727. Ernout-M. 1026 f. Brückner 61.

Only the more generic words for 'draw' are listed, with exclusion of many others, like NE drag, trail, tug, tow, etc. (and so for other languages), which fall under the general notion and in many cases are cognate with the generic words (or even orig. identical as NE draw and drag), but are used with more restricted application.

1. Grk. ἕλκω : Lat. sulcus 'furrow', OE sulh 'furrow, plow', Alb. helk, hek 'pull, tear off', fr. IE selk-, beside welk- in Lith. vilkti, etc. (below, 5), both fr. swelk-* (?). Walde-P. 2.507. Ernout-M. 999 f.

Grk. σπάω : OE, OHG spanan 'entice, attract' (fr. 'draw'), spannan 'fasten', perh. Av. spā- 'throw' (fr. 'draw forth'?), with common notion of 'draw' and root forms spā-, spə-, spen-*. Walde-P. 2.655 f.

Grk. ἐρύω (ϝερύω), etym. dub., perh. weru- remotely connected with wers-* in Lat. verrere 'sweep', etc. Walde-P. 1.293.

NG σέρνω (lit. σύρω), fr. class. Grk. σύρω 'drag, trail', etym. dub. Walde-P. 2.530. Boisacq 849.

NG τραβῶ (τραυῶ), with metathesis fr. ταυρῶ = Byz. ταυρίζω 'pull', a deriv. of ταῦρος 'bull'. Cf. NE colloq. pull like a steer. Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 1.85 f.

2. Lat. trahere (> Rum. trage still the common word for 'draw', but It. trarre less common than tirare; Fr. traire specialized to 'milk'; Sp. traer 'lead, bring, wear', etc.; deriv. The somewhat disparate notions suggested by the English words of the heading, with their widely different areas of usage, are combined here because they are interwoven and virtually one in the early uses of the widespread cognate group to which NE strew belongs (below, 1). In this the central notion seems to be 'spread out over a surface', with two types of application which have tended to become differentiated, namely a) 'spread bedding over a bed, a garment on the ground' or the like, and b) with small detached objects 'spread branches, leaves, flowers, sand over the ground' or the like, as NE strew—both conveniently illustrated in the NT, Mt. 21.8, Mk. 11.8, where the people spread their garments and strewed branches in the way, expressed alike by Grk. στρωννύω, Lat. sternere in the Vulgate, Goth. straujan, OE streōwian (so strew in Wyclif, but separated in Tyndale). Both types of application are common in Greek (down to the present day), Latin, and Indo-Iranian, and in part elsewhere. So Goth. straujan and in part OHG streuwen, but with a tendency in Gmc. to restrict the application to type b 'strew', as in present English. For type a are employed other words for 'spread out, stretch out' or the like, too numerous to be fully noted here.

From phrases of type b, 'strew' absorbed the notional element of dispersal and so came into a certain relation with 'scatter', in which this is the dominant element, without becoming identical in range with the latter. Thus NE strew and scatter may be used indifferently in many connections (as strew or scatter stones on the ground), but the old element of 'over the surface' is still felt in strew as contrasted with the more generic scatter. On the other hand, several of the words entered here to cover 'strew' are used without any such feeling of difference between 'strew' and 'scatter', though the latter is most apt to be expressed by cpds. or intensive forms, as Lat., It. dispergere, Fr. disperser, NHG zerstreuen, Russ. razsypat', Lith. išberti or intens. barstyti. But it is not intended to cover here the general notion of 'scatter' for which there are numerous other words of totally different connections, e.g., Grk. σκεδάννῡμι and NE scatter (both resting on the notion of 'split', Walde-P. 2.558), Grk. διασκορπίζω (prob. : Lat. carpere 'pluck'), Goth. distahjan (cpd. of tahjan 'tear'), ChSl. rastočiti

(lit. 'make run apart' : teką, tešti 'run'), etc.

Apart from the inherited group, the connections are mostly with words for 'stretch', 'throw', 'pour', and 'broad'.

Verbs for 'press' are of diverse sources. Their importance is augmented by the fact that they or their compounds have given the words for many other notions, as 'express, impress, oppress, print', etc.

1. Grk. πιέζω, Skt. pīd-, fr. pi-sed-, pi-zd-, cpd. of pi-* beside epi* 'upon' (Grk. ἐπί, Skt. api) and sed-* 'sit'. Walde-P. 2.486. Brugmann, Grd. 2.2.839.

Grk. θλίβω (but mostly in somewhat different senses than simple 'press'), beside θλάω 'crush, bruise', etym. dub. Walde-P. 1.877. Boisacq 347.

NG πιέζω, although strictly a lit. word (the pop. development in aor. ἔπιασα, whence new pres. πιάνω 'seize', 11.14), is generally familiar.

NG ζουλῶ, ζουλίζω ('press, crush, bruise'), etym. dub., possibly fr. a pop. form of δυλίζω 'filter' and first used of squeezing fruits to extract the juice. Philintas, γλωσσογνωσία 1.146.

NG σφίγγω 'bind tight', also sometimes 'press, squeeze' (esp. the hand), fr. class. Grk. σφίγγω 'bind tight', fr. a parallel extension of the root in Lat. spissus 'thick, compact'. Walde-P. 2.658.

2. Lat. premere (> It. premere), perf. pressī, pple. pressus, with frequent. pressāre (> Fr. presser, Sp. prensar; Rum. presa, fr. In several of the IE languages, as often in non-IE, there are different words for 'wash' according to the object, whether the body (but, except for Grk. λούω, special words for 'bathe' are not included), or certain parts of the body as hands, feet, face, head (sometimes with differentiation even here), or clothing or the like. Such special uses may be original but are often only survivals in special connections of once generic use, as Rum. la now 'wash the hair', from Lat. lavāre 'wash' and similarly in many other cases.

But the idiomatic differentiation is so varied, even between corresponding words in the same group (as Gmc. or Slavic), that it cannot be fully shown in the following discussion, still less in the summary notation adopted in the list. Thus, for example, Boh. mýti, Pol. myć, Russ. myt' are used for washing parts of the body, but also dishes, etc., that is, are generic except with reference to clothes, for which there is a different word. Conversely, SCr. prati (= Boh. práti, Pol. prać 'wash clothes') is virtually generic, while miti is restricted to use with reference to the head, or hands and feet, etc. according to the local dialect (cf. Rječnik Akad. s.v.). In the Munster dialect of Irish three different words are used with reference to the hand, head, and foot, respectively (cf. Atkinson, Passions and Homilies 711). OE wæscan is used for washing clothes or the like (nets in Gospels, Lk. 5.2), þwēan (and likewise OHG dwahan) for washing parts of the body (also dishes, cf. Gospels, Mk. 7.8), but otherwise one or the other of the two Gmc. words is the usual generic term in nearly all connections, the former in West Gmc. and Dan., the latter in Goth., ON, Sw. and NIcel. (where vaska survives only in vaska fisk).

There are two groups pointing to IE roots which probably already had the meaning 'wash' with some, not now determinable, differentiation of application. Others reflect, on the one hand, the use of water, by connections with words for 'water, wet, flow' or the like; on the other, the process of rubbing or beating, the latter especially applicable to the old method of washing clothes.

1. IE neigʷ-*. Walde-P. 2.322.

Grk. νίζω (fut. νίψω, etc., hence), later νίπτω, only of parts of the body, as likewise NG νίφτω and νίβω (Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 1.282); Ir. nigim (of parts of the body, but also generic), NIr. nighim

(Thurneysen, Gram. 115); Skt. nij- (3sg. intens. nenekti), Av. niž- (3sg. naēnižaiti).

2. IE lou-*. Walde-P. 2.441. Ernout-M. 528 ff. Walde-H. 1.773 ff.

Grk. λούω (Hom. λόω, λοέω, fr. *λόϝω) 'wash the body, bathe' (cf. λουτρόν, Hom. λοετρόν 'bath'), NG λούζω (Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 1.276) now esp. 'wash the hair'; Lat. lavāre (> It. lavare, Fr. laver, Sp. lavar; Rum. la arch. except as 'wash the hair', cf. Tiktin s.v.); Arm. loganem 'bathe' : ON lauðr, OE lēaþor 'foam' (NE lather), ON laug 'bath (water)', OE lēah, NE lye, etc.

3. Grk. πλύνω, only of clothing, but NG πλύνω, pop. πλένω (Hatzidakis, Μεσ. 1.295) also of face, etc., generic : πλέω 'sail', Skt. plu- 'float, swim, sail', OE flōwan 'flow', etc.; with like semantic development OHG flewen ('wash' nets, Tat. 19.4 = Lk. 5.2), Arm. luanam 'wash'. 8. ChSl. myti (esp. u-myti in Gospels for νίπτω and λούω), etc., general Slavic (mostly generic except for washing clothes, but of more restricted use in SCr.) : Lett. maut 'dive, swim', MLG mūten 'wash the face', Lith. maudyti, Lett. maudāt 'bathe'. Walde-P. 2.249 ff. Trautmann 191 f.

ChSl. plakati, used of washing nets (Lk. 5.2), orig. 'beat' and same word as plakati 'weep, lament, beat the breast' : Lith. plakti 'beat, whip', Grk. πλήσσω 'smite, strike', Lat. plangere 'beat the breast, lament', etc. Walde-P. 2.92.

ChSl. oprati (rare for νίπτω, cf. Jagić, Entstehungsgesch. 531), cpd. of pĭrati 'beat', esp. 'beat with mallet in washing', Boh. práti, Pol. prać (both of clothes), SCr. prati (generic) : Lith. perti 'bathe, strike with a besom in washing', Lett. pērt 'bathe, beat', etc. Walde-P. 2.42. Trautmann 215.

Russ. stirat', only of washing clothes, lit. 'rub off, clean by rubbing', cpd. of teret' 'rub' (9.31).

9. Skt. nij-, Av. niž-, above, 1.

Several of the words for 'sweep' are derived from those for 'broom', one from the word for 'floor'. In most of the others, so far as there are clear cognates, 'sweep' is a specialization of either 'cleanse, adorn' or various motions like 'turn, throw', etc., applicable to the removal of dirt.

1. Grk. κορέω (whence κόρημα 'sweepings' and 'broom'; cf. also κόρος· . . . . κάλλυντρον, Hesych., νᾱο-κόρος 'caretaker of a temple', etc.), etym. dub. Walde-P. 1.462. Boisacq 495 f.

Grk. σαίρω (cf. σάρματα 'sweepings', etc.), later σαρόω (whence Byz. σάρωτρον, NG σάρωθρον 'broom'), NG σαρώνω, perh. : σύρω 'drag', συρφετός 'sweepings', but root connection dub. Walde-P. 2.530. Boisacq 849.

NG σκουπίζω, deriv. of σκοῦπα 'broom' (9.38).

2. Lat. verrere (> Sp., Port. barrer) : ChSl. vrŭchą, vrěšti 'thresh' (fr. 'drag', cf. 8.34), perh. Grk. ἔρρω 'walk with difficulty, go to destruction, perish', dial. ϝέρρω 'be exiled'. Walde-P. 1.292. Ernout-M. 1091.

It. spazzare, fr. OIt. spazzo 'floor' (Lat. spatium 'space'). REW 8121.

It. scopare, fr. late Lat. scōpāre, deriv. of scōpa 'broom' (9.38). REW 7735.

Many of the words for 'broom' are derived from those for 'sweep' and have been cited with the latter (9.37). Others reflect the material of which the broom was made as 'twigs, leaves' and in two instances the plant 'broom'.

1. Lat. scōpae, lit. 'twigs' (sg. scōpa not common) : scōpiō 'stalk or pedicle of a bunch of grapes', scāpus 'shaft', etc. Hence It. scopa, Sp. escoba; NG σκοῦπα; Ir. scūap, NIr. scuab, W. ysgub, Br. skubell. Walde-P. 2.562. Ernout-M. 908. REW 7734. G. Meyer, Neugr. St. 3.60 f. Vendryes, De hib. voc. 176. Loth, Mots lat. 216.

It. granata, deriv. of Lat. grānum 'grain', prob. through a plant name. REW 3846.

Fr. balai, OFr. balain(s), fr. Gall. banatlo* (> balatno* by metathesis), cf. W. banadl, Br. (V.) benal, bonal 'broom' (the plant); Fr. dial. (Lyon) balan, balain still used for plant also. Wartburg 1.232 f. REW 897. Hence Br. balaenn. Henry 24.

Rum. mătură, generally derived fr. Lat. mētula, dim. of mētā 'post, cone, pyramid', but its use as 'broom' doubtless helped by Slavic word SCr. metla, etc. (9.37) if not actually derived fr. it

(as Miklosich, Berneker). Pușcariu 1053. Tiktin 963.

2. Dan. kost (ODan. kvost, fr. kvast), Sw. kvast : MLG, MHG quast 'cluster, wisp' (of foliage, straw, etc.); OSCr. gvozd 'woods', etc. Walde-P. 1.644. Falk-Torp 568 f. Hellquist 534.

OE bes(e)ma, ME besum (NE besom still the generic word in Scotland), OHG besamo, etc., general West Gmc., also (OE, OHG) 'rod, switch (esp. for punishing)', hence orig. prob. a bundle of twigs used as a broom, but root connection dub. Walde-P. 2.136.

ME brome, NE broom, from the name of the plant (OE brōm 'genesta'), from which brooms were frequently made. Cf. above Fr. balai.

3. Boh. koště, contracted fr. older chvostišče id., fr. chvost 'tail' (4.18). Berneker 409.

Although the beginnings of various crafts go back to remote prehistoric periods, they long remained merely household crafts. Such was the situation in the IE period, as still to a considerable extent in the Homeric period of Greece and in the early periods of the other lands of IE speech. The development of professional crafts with the distinct classes of craftsmen is a later outgrowth. Cf. Schrader, Reallex. 1.392 ff.

Hence, as to be expected, there are no inherited groups pointing to IE words for 'craft' or 'craftsman' in general, or for a particular craft or craftsman, with the exception of the group Grk. τέκτων, Skt. takṣan-, Av. tašan-, which reflects an IE word, though the earliest scope of its application is not entirely clear, 'fashioner, builder', or 'carpenter' (see under 'artisan').

Most of the words listed have a wider application than 'manual craft' and cover also either 'skill, art' or 'business, occupation', and etymologically they are mostly connected with general notions of either 'work, skill', etc. or 'occupation', these being of diverse sources.

1. Grk. τέχνη 'skill, art, craft, trade' : τέκτων 'artisan, carpenter' (9.42).

NG ἐπάγγελμα 'profession' (class. Grk. 'announcement' and 'profession' : ἐπαγγέλλω 'announce', mid. also 'make profession of'), used also for one's 'trade'. But the pop. term is simply δουλειά 'work' (9.12).

2. Lat. ars, artis 'skill, art, craft, trade' (> It. arte still in part 'craft'), esp. ars sordida as opposed to the liberal arts; artificium (cpd. with facere 'do, make'; cf. artifex 'artisan') fr. the notion of 'fit together' : Lat. artus 'joint', armus 'shoulder, Grk. ἀραρίσκω 'fit', etc. Walde-P. 1.71 f. Ernout-M. 76. Walde-H. 1.70.

Fr. métier (OFr. mestier > It. mestiere), fr. Lat. ministerium 'office, occupation, service', fr. minister 'servant, minister'. REW 5589.

Sp. oficio, fr. Lat. officium 'service, function, business', fr. opificium*, cpd. of opus 'work, deed' and facere 'do, make'.

Rum. meșteșug, fr. Hung. mesterség 'trade, craft', this a deriv. of mester 'master', loanword fr. NHG meister. Tiktin 971.

Rum. meserie, prob. connected with meserere 'mercy, favor' (fr. Lat. miserēre 'pity') through its secondary meaning 'honor, office', perh. also influenced in its use by the group It. mestiere, etc. (above). Tiktin 970.

3. Ir. cerd 'skill, art, craft, trade', NIr. ceard : W. cerdd 'art, poetry', Grk. κέρδος 'gain, profit' (whence Lat. cerdō 'petty craftsman'), pl. 'wiles', κερδαλέος 'crafty', etc. Walde-P. 1.423. Pedersen 1.36.

W. crefft, fr. OE cræft (below, 4). Parry-Williams 25.

Br. micher, fr. Fr. métier (above, 2). Henry 197.

4. ON iðn, iðja 'occupation, business' : īð 'a doing, working', iðinn 'diligent, active', root connection dub. Walde-P. 1.5. Falk-Torp 457.

Dan. haandværk, Sw. handtverk, Du. handwerk, OHG hantwerch, MHG hantwerc, NHG handwerk, lit. 'handwork', cpds. of words for 'hand' and 'work'.

OE cræft 'strength, ability, skill, art, craft', ME, NE craft, also OE handcræft, ME handcraft, NE handicraft : ON kraptr, OHG kraft 'power, strength', etc. (4.81). Walde-P. 1.596. Falk-Torp 572.

NE trade, orig. 'path, course', hence 'regular course of action, manner of life' and then 'business, occupation, craft', perh borrowed fr. MLG trade 'track' : OHG trata, OE trod 'track, path', OHG tretan, OE tredan 'step, tread'. Walde-P. 1.796. NED s.v.

Du. ambacht, with preservation of the older form (the reg. development in Du. ambt 'office') : OHG ambahti, OE ambiht, Goth. andbahti 'service, office', derivs. of OHG ambaht, OE ambeht, Goth. andbahts 'servant' (19.43). Falk-Torp 189. Franck-v. W. 16.

NHG gewerbe 'business, vocation, trade', MHG 'activity, business' : werben, OHG hwerfan 'turn, move about, be busy', OE hweorfan 'turn, go about, roam', Goth. hwairban 'wander, roam', etc. Walde-P. 1.472. Weigand-H. 1.717.

5. Lith. amatas, Lett. amats, fr. MLG am(m)et 'office, position' : OHG ambahti, etc. (above, 4). Mühl.-Endz. 1.70.

6. ChSl. remĭstvo (Supr., etc.), Boh. řemeslo, Pol. rzemiosło (-iesło), Russ. remeslo : Lith. remesas, Lett. remesis 'craftsman, carpenter', OPruss. romestud 'ax', all prob. fr. the root of Lith. ramtyte 'cut, carve', Lett. ramstīt 'hew, saw' (with a blunt tool), further connections dub. Mühl.-Endz. 3.509 f. Brückner 475. Buga, Kalba ir Senovė 279.

ChSl. chytrostĭ (Jagić, Entstehungsgesch. 415), deriv. of chytrŭ 'skilled, crafty' : Russ. chitryj 'cunning, crafty', Bulg. hitur 'wise', SCr. hitar 'quick, experienced, skilled', etc. Berneker 414.

ChSl. kŭznĭ (Supr., etc.) : kovati 'forge' (9.61). Berneker 675.

SCr. zanat, fr. Turk. (orig. Arab.) san'at 'craft'. Miklosich, Turk. El. 2.151.

SCr. obrt 'turning' (: obrnuti, obrtati 'turn around', cpds. of ob 'around' and root of vrtjeti 'turn', 10.12) and 'occupation, craft', with the same development as NHG gewerbe (above, 4).

Russ. masterstvo, deriv. of master 'master, maker', used esp. in phrases for various craftsmen, fr. Lat. magister 'master'. Berneker 2.3.

7. Skt. çilpa-, adj. 'variegated', sb. 'variegated appearance, decoration, work of art, art, craft', etym.?

9.412. 'Art'. Phrases like NE arts and crafts, NHG kunst und gewerbe represent a differentiation that is modern and still not rigidly defined, though the terms for 'art' and 'artist' are most commonly used with reference to painting and sculpture. Formerly the various types of work demanding special skill were covered by the same word, as by Grk. τέχνη, Lat. ars, Skt. çilpa- (9.41). The differentiation began with such phrases as Fr. beaux arts, NE fine arts. The descendants of Lat. ars, artis (It., Sp. arte, Rum. artă, Fr. art > ME, NE art) have come to be used mainly in this more restricted sense (It. arte also 'craft').

Other terms for 'art' are as follows:

1. Ir. elatha, elada ('skill, art', cf. Laws, Gloss. 300), NIr. ealadha, etym.? Macbain 149.

W. celf (cf. celfydd 'skilful') : OBr. celmed gl. efficax, Ir. calma 'brave', root connection? Pedersen 1.168.

2. Du., NHG kunst (> Dan. kunst, Sw. konst), orig. 'knowledge, skill', fr. the root of NHG kennen 'know', können 'know how, be able'. Kluge-G. 336.

3. Lith. menas (cf. NSB s.v.), orig. 'understanding' : minti, menu 'think, remember'. Leskien, Ablaut 336. Neolog. in this sense, influenced by NHG kunst, etc.

Lith. dailė, with dailininkas 'artist' : dailus 'beautiful' (16.81).

Lett. māksla : mācēt 'be able' = Lith. mokėti 'be able', beside Lith. mokyti, Lett. mācīt 'teach (17.25). Mühl.-Endz. 2.579.

4. SCr. umjetnost, Boh. umění, orig. 'understanding', fr. umjeti, uměti 'know how, be able'. Cf. ChSl. umŭ, raz-umŭ 'intelligence' (17.12), razuměti 'understand' (17.16), etc.

Pol. sztuka 'piece' (fr. NHG stuck), also 'work of art' and 'art' (sztuka malarska 'art of painting'), for which also kunszt, directly fr. NHG kunst. Brückner 555 f.

Russ. iskusstvo = late ChSl. iskusĭstvo 'trial', fr. iskusiti 'try' (9.98). Berneker 653.

Russ. chudožestvo = late ChSl. chądožĭstvo 'art, science', fr. chądogŭ, chudogŭ* 'wise', loanword fr. a Gmc. form handags* beside Goth. handugs 'wise' (17.21). Berneker 400. Stender-Petersen 334.

The majority of words for 'artisan, craftsman' are derivs., cpds., or root connections of those for 'craft', discussed in 9.41. Others are mostly of similar semantic sources, notions like 'work, fit, know'. In several there is an early tendency toward specialization, chiefly to 'carpenter' or 'metalworker' (9.43, 9.60).

1. Derivs. and cpds. of words for 'craft'.

Derivs. : Grk. τεχνίτης (cf. also τέκτων 'carpenter' with wider sense in Hom. 9.43); It. artigiano (> Fr. artisan in place of artiste formerly 'craftsman'; Fr. > Sp. artesano, NE artisan; REW 679. Gamillscheg 52), Rum. meșteșugar, meseriaș; W. crefftwr, Br. micherour; OE cræftiga, Dan. haandværker, Sw. handtverkare, Du. handwerker, MHG hantwerker, NHG handwerker; Lith. amatininkas, Lett. amatnieks; ChSl. kŭznĭnikŭ, SCr. zanatlija, obrtnik, Boh. řemeslník, Pol. rzemieślnik, Russ. remeslennik; Skt. çilpin-.

Cpds., the second part meaning 'doer, maker', 'man' or 'master' : Lat. artifex (cf. facere 'do, make'); ON iðnarmaðr, ME craftiman, NE craftsman (earlier craftes man), Du. ambachtsman; OHG wercmeistar, MHG wercmeister (lit. 'work-master'); also NHG handwerksman, Dan. haandværksman, Du. handwerksman, and NHG handarbeiter.

2. NG μάστορας, μάστορης, used for 'master-workman' and one who is master of a trade, 'artisan', fr. Lat. magister 'master'. G. Meyer, Neugr. Stud. 3.43. Cf. OHG meistar (in wercmeistar, above, 1), Russ. masterovoj, fr. the same source.

3. Lat. faber, general term for worker in hard materials, including metals, also used with descriptive adjectives to apply to particular crafts (cf. 9.43, 9.60), but in the majority of cases when standing alone 'carpenter', prob. fr. an orig. idea of 'one who fits, makes fitting' : Goth. gadaban 'be fitting, happen', OE gedēfe 'fitting, proper', gedafnian 'be fitting', ChSl. po-doba jestŭ 'is fitting', dobrŭ 'good', etc., (here perh. also Arm. darbin 'smith', fr. dhabhro-), IE dhabh-. Walde-P. 1.824. Ernout-M. 319. Walde-H. 1.436 f.

4. Ir. sāer, NIr. saor, W. saer 'craftsman' and esp. 'carpenter', fr. sapero-* : Lat. sapere 'taste, perceive, know', OHG intseffen 'perceive'. Walde-P. 2.450. Pedersen 1.92.

Ir. cerd 'craftsman', also 'smith, artist, poet', NIr. ceard : Ir. cerd 'craft' (9.41).

5. Goth. -smiþa only in aiza-smiþa 'coppersmith' and so uncertain whether still generic 'craftsman' or 'smith', ON smiðr 'craftsman, woodworker or metalworker' (cf. gull-, jārn-, trē-smiðr) : OE smiþ, OHG smid 'smith', etc. (9.60), fr. the root in Goth. gasmiþōn 'effect', ON smiða 'make, forge', etc. (9.61).

OE wyrhta (cf. īsern-, stān-, trēowwyrhta), ME (with metathesis) wright, OHG wurhto, MHG (only in cpds.) -würhte, -worhte : OE weorc, OHG werc, etc. 'work' (9.12).

6. ChSl. chytrĭcĭ, deriv. of chytrŭ 'skilled, crafty' (cf. 9.41).

Russ. masterovoj, deriv. of 'master, maker' (9.41).

7. Skt. kāru- 'doer, maker', but esp. craftsman' : kṛ- 'do, make'.

Many of the words listed have a wider range than NE tool in its usual application and may cover any 'instrument, implement'.

1. Grk. ἐργαλεῖον, deriv. (perh. through *ἔργα-λον, cf. ἐργά-της, ἐργά-νη) of ἔργον 'work' (9.12).

Grk. ὄργανον : ἔργον 'work'.

2. Lat. instrūmentum (> It. strumento, Fr., NE, NHG, Pol. Russ. instrument), deriv. of instruere 'provide, equip', orig. 'set in order', cpd. of struere, 'arrange, prepare', fr. the same root as Lat. sternere 'spread out', etc. (9.34). Ernout-M. 989 f.

It. ordigno, fr. VLat. ōrdinium*, deriv. of Lat. ōrdō, -inis 'arrangement, order', ōrdināre 'arrange'. REW 6092.

It. utensili (pl.), Fr. outil, fr. Lat. ūtensilia, VLat. usitilia 'utensils', deriv. of ūtī 'use'. Ernout-M. 1141. REW 9101.

Sp. herramienta, deriv. (through vb. herrar) of hierro, Lat. ferrum 'iron'.

Rum. unealtă, fr. unealte 'of many kinds', pl. of una alta (cf. Lat. ūnus alter) 'one, the other'. Tiktin 1685.

3. Ir. airnēis 'cattle, wealth' also pl. airnisi 'tools', NIr. oirnēis, prob. fr. ME harneis 'equipment'. K. Meyer, Contrib. 64. Laws, Gloss. 44.

NIr. uirlis, orig. dub., a variant of the preceding word?

NIr. acra (given as 'tool' by McKenna and Dinneen), also and orig. 'use, service', same word as Ir. acra 'suing, claim' vbl. n. to ad-gairim 'sue, claim', cpd. of gairim 'call' (18.41). K. Meyer, Contrib. 12.

W. arf 'weapon' and 'tool', fr. Lat. arma 'arms'. Pedersen 1.241.

Br. benveg = W. benffyg, benthyg 'loan', fr. Lat. beneficium 'favor, service'. Loth, Mots lat. 138. Henry 31.

4. ON tōl (pl.), OE tōl, ME tole, NE tool, fr. the root of OE tawian 'prepare', Goth. taujan 'do, make' (9.11). NED s.v. tool, sb.

Lett. rīks = Lith. rykas 'vessel, tool', root connection dub. Mühl.-Endz. 537.

6. ChSl. orądĭje ('affair, business', late 'implement'), SCr. oruđe, Russ. orudie : ChSl. rędŭ 'order, arrangement'. Walde-P. 2.368 f. Pedersen, KZ 38.310. Otherwise Miklosich 226, Brückner 381 (loanword fr. OHG ārunti 'embassy'; but cf. Pedersen l.c.)

SCr. alat (also Alb. alat, Rum. dial. halat), fr. Turk. alet 'tool'. Miklosich, Türk. El. 1.246.

Boh. náčin : činiti 'do, make' (9.11).

Boh. nástroj : nastrojiti 'prepare, equip', strojiti id.

Pol. narzędzie : rząd, rzęd 'row, set, order', ChSl. rędŭ 'order, arrangement'. Brückner 356, 474.

7. Skt. karaṇa- (neut.), mostly act of 'doing, making', fr. kṛ- 'do, make' (9.11), but also means of making, 'instrument, tool'.

'Use' is understood here as 'make use of', not in the secondary sense of 'make or be accustomed to', which developed in Romance and English (now mostly in past tense or pple. used). This latter started in the sb. Lat. ūsus 'use' and 'usage, custom' (so also in NHG gebrauch, but not in the vb. gebrauchen). 'Use' and 'enjoy' may be parallel senses in the same word or in cognate groups (below, 4); also 'use' and 'need' (below, 1, 6). Other connections are with words for 'turn' (through 'turn to, apply') and for 'live' (through 'live through, experience'), 'work' ('work at, operate'), 'fold' ('enfold, involve'), 'advantage' ('take advantage of'), 'serve' ('serve oneself of').

1. Grk. χρῶμαι (*χρηέομαι, cf. inf. χρῆσθαι, Boeot. χρειεῖσθαι), in various senses, 'have need of', whence both 'desire' and 'make use of', fr. the latter also the freq. technical 'consult an oracle' : χρεία 'need', χρή 'needs, must, ought', etc. (see 9.93). Hence χρήσιμος 'useful', whence cpd. NG χρησιμοποιῶ 'make use of'.

Grk. μεταχειρίζομαι (: χείρ 'hand') 'take in hand, practice', NG 'use'.

2. Lat. ūtī, OLat. oetier (cf. also Osc. úíttiuf 'usus', Pael. oisa 'usa'), etym.? Walde-P. 1.103. Ernout-M. 1141 f.

Hence, formed fr. pple. or sb. ūsus, MLat. ūsāre, It. usare, Fr. user (> ME, NE use), Sp. usar (Rum. uza neolog. fr. Fr.).

It. servirsi di, Fr. se servir de, etc., lit. 'serve oneself of', fr. Lat. servīre 'serve' deriv. of servus 'slave'.

Fr. employer (> ME, NE employ, in part = use, NED s.v. employ, vb. 1), Sp. emplear, fr. Lat. implicāre 'enfold, involve, engage', cpd. of plicāre 'fold' (9.15). Ernout-M. 778. REW 4312.

It. adop(e)rare, cpd. of op(e)rare 'work, do, make'.

Rum. întrebuința, cpd. fr. sb. trebuința 'need' (of Slavic orig., 9.93), with sense influenced by NHG gebrauchen (so Tiktin 840), or by the similar Slavic cpds. as SCr. upotrijebiti, etc. (below, 6).

Rum. se folosi de, fr. sb. folos 'gain, advantage', this fr. Byz. φελός, Grk. ὄφελος 'furtherance, advantage, help'. Tiktin 641 f.

3. Ir. airbiur, cpd. of berim 'carry', followed by biuth (dat. of bith 'world') glosses Lat. fruī, ūtī, etc., e.g. imperat. airbir biuth = utere of Vulgate, 1. Tim. 5.23 (Wb. 29a25). Pedersen 2.464 f. Thurneysen, Gram. 162. K. Meyer, Contrib. 113.

Ir. caithim 'consume, spend, waste', also 'use' (K. Meyer, Contrib. 326, Laws, Gloss. s.v.), etym.? Walde-P. 1.112. Pedersen 2.479.

Ir. torbe 'use, profit' (11.73) is used in phrases rendering Lat. ūtilis, also torbatu 'utilitas', but the vb. torbenim seems quotable only for 'be of use', not 'make use of'. Cf. Windisch, Wtb. 840.

NIr. ūsāidhim, W. iwsio, through sbs. ūsāidh, iws, fr. NE sb. use.

In this group the sense of advantageous use is dominant, and the early forms also mean 'enjoy'. Walde-P. 2.325. Falk-Torp 774, 777. Feist 379.

NHG anwenden (> Dan. anvende, Sw. använda), cpd. of wenden 'turn', hence 'turn to, apply, use' for a particular purpose.

5. Lith. vartoti, fr. the root of versti, Lat. vertere, etc. 'turn'. Cf. NHG anwenden.

Words for 'carpenter' are in part identical with those for 'artisan' (9.42) used, either with or without a defining adjective or phrase, in the specialized sense. Others are derivatives of words for 'wood, timber', often as cpds. meaning literally 'woodworker'. Some are extensions from a more specific idea of 'carriage-maker', 'ship's carpenter'.

Words that are used only of those who do the finer work in wood, like NE joiner, cabinetmaker, NHG tischler, schreiner, etc., are not considered here.

1. Grk. τέκτων, in Hom. more than 'carpenter' (builds houses, ships, wagons, furniture, carves horn and ivory, etc., but most frequently the reference is to woodwork) : Skt. takṣan- 'carpenter' (often esp. Words for 'build', primarily used for building houses, are in part connected with verbs for 'dwell' through the notion of making a dwelling place, or derivs. and cpds. of nouns for 'dwelling, house'. Words for 'make' when used with an object like 'house', 'wall', etc., are naturally equivalent to 'build', and are often (though generally not entered in the list) the common colloquial expressions for 'build' (cf. NG ἔκαμε ἕνα σπίτι, lit. 'made a house', etc.). In some cases they are the source of the standard words for 'build'. Others reflect more specific actions originally applicable to particular methods of construction, as 'mold, fashion' for work in clay, 'plait' for wickerwork construction (see also under 'plait', 9.75), 'join, put together, arrange' and 'set up, erect', both appropriate to work in wood or stone.

1. Grk. οἰκοδομέω 'build' in general, deriv. of οἰκοδόμος 'builder', or a like cpd. (cf. also οἰκοδομία 'act of building, a building') of οἶκος 'house, dwelling', and the root of δέμω 'construct, build' (not a common prose word), δόμος 'house' : ON timbr 'wood for building' (cf. below, 4), Skt. dama-, Lat. domus, etc. 'house', IE dem-* 'build', perh. orig. 'join, fit together', as in Goth. gatiman, OHG zeman 'be fitting, becoming'. Walde-P. 1.786 f.

NG κτίζω or χτίζω 'build', class. Grk. κτίζω mostly 'settle, found' a city, etc. (cf. κτίσις 'a founding', Hom. ἐυκτίμενος 'well-built') : Skt. kṣi- 'dwell, inhabit', Av. ši- 'dwell', Lat. situs 'situated', situs, -ūs 'situation', etc. Walde-P. 1.504. Boisacq 525 f.

2. Lat. aedificāre (> It. edificare, Sp. edificar), deriv. of a cpd. (cf. aedificium 'building') of aedēs 'building, house' (pl. of aedēs 'temple', 22.13) and the root of facere 'do, make'.

Fr. bâtir, OFr. bastir, fr. a Gmc. bastjan* : OHG bestan 'bind', deriv. of OHG bast, OE bæst 'bast, inner bark of trees used for plaiting and building', hence orig. meaning 'work with bast, plait', then 'build houses by plaiting, build'. REW 981. Wartburg 1.278.

'Hew', as distinguished from the more generic 'cut' (9.22), is understood here as applying to cutting with an ax or adze, either the cutting down of trees or especially the skilled trimming of wood in carpentry or of stone. Many of the words listed here are those that are still or have been used for 'cut' in general, and so have been discussed in 9.22. But there are some derivatives of words for 'ax', and one inherited group in which the specific sense of 'hew' is clearly the primary one.

1. IE tek̂þ-*. Walde-P. 1.717.

Skt. takṣ-, Av. taš-; Lith. tašyti, Lett. tēst; ChSl. tesati, etc., general Slavic. The same root is still more widespread in words for 'ax', 'adze' (9.25), or 'artisan, carpenter' (9.42, 9.43).

2. Grk. πελεκάω, deriv. of πέλεκυς 'ax' (9.25).

3. Lat. dolāre (> OIt. dolar, Fr. doler, Sp. dolar, Rum. dura; REW 2718) : Skt. dal- 'split, burst', Grk. δαίδαλος 'artfully wrought', with extension, Ir. dluigim 'split' (9.27), ON telgja 'cut' (9.22), also Ir. delb 'form, image', dolbaim 'form, mold', Lat. dōlium 'vase, jar', IE del-*. Words for 'bore' are often from the notion of 'turn', appropriate to the rotary motion employed in boring a hole, but also through 'pierce' from 'strike' or the like, or 'separate'. Several are derivatives of words for 'auger' or 'hole'.

1. Grk. τετραίνω (cf. τρητός 'perforated', τρῆμα 'perforation, hole', τέρετρον 'auger', Hom. ἔτορε 'pierced') : τείρω 'wear out', Lat. terere, Lith. trinti, ChSl. trěti 'rub', OE þrāwan 'twist, turn' (NE throw), OHG drāen id. Words for 'auger', that is, the more generic words for a boring instrument (special terms for a small borer, like NE gimlet, are ignored) are partly from the verbs for 'bore' (or roots of similar source, 'turn, whirl'), partly connected with words for 'sharp' or some sharp instrument. A few are from various other sources, and there are several loanwords.

1. Derivs. of ter-*, etc. in words for 'bore' (9.46).

Grk. τρύπανον (cf. τρυπάω 'bore'), whence MLat. trepanum, OIt. trepano (cf. The saw is a special form of cutting instrument (though its evolution as a distinct tool goes back to neolithic times), and the majority of words for 'saw' are from roots meaning 'cut'. Imitative origin, a rough imitation of the noise of sawing, is probable for several. Some loanwords reflect the resemblance between a fine saw and a file.

1. Grk. πρίων, NG πριόνι, fr. vb. πρίω 'saw' (cf. πριστός 'sawn' Hom., ἐπρίσθην, etc.), *πρῑσ-, prob. of imitative origin. Walde-P. 2.89.

The ancestor of the metal 'nail' was a wooden peg, and several of the words listed were also used for the latter in the early periods, while still others have cognates pointing to this as the earlier use. The identity with the 'nail' of fingers and toes is characteristic of Germanic.

1. Grk. ἧλος (in Hom. 'nail-head, stud' as an ornament), Dor. ἆλος, Aeol. *ϝάλλος (cf. γάλλοι· ἧλοι, Hesych.), prob. : Lat. vallum 'stake, palisade', this perh. with Goth. walus 'staff', ON vǫlr 'round staff', etc., fr. IE wel-* in Lat. volvere, Goth. -walwjan 'roll', etc. Walde-P. 1.301. Ernout-M. 1072.

Byz. καρφίον, NG καρφί, dim. of Grk. κάρφος 'dry stalk' : κάρφω 'dry up'.

NG πρόκα ('shoemaker's peg', 'tack', but also common for 'nail'), earlier μπρόκα, fr. It. brocca 'forked stick'. G. Meyer, Neugr. Stud. 4.64.

2. Lat. clāvus (whence, partly through VLat. claus*, It. chiodo, Fr. clou, Sp. clavo) : Ir. clō 'nail', Lat. clāvis, Grk. κλείς, ChSl. ključĭ 'key', orig. 'peg for fastening' (7.24). Walde-P. 1.492. Ernout-M. 194. Walde-H. 1.229 f. REW 1984.

W. hoel, perh. fr. soĝhlā-, deriv. of IE seĝh- 'hold' in Grk. ἔχω, etc. Walde-P. 2.482. Stokes 297.

Br. tach, fr. OFr. tache 'fibula, gros clou' (Godefroi), belonging with MLG tacke, MHG zacke 'prong', ME takke, NE tack, and prob. of Gmc. origin (though relations with the group OFr. estache, etc., are complicated). Henry 258. Falk-Torp 1241. REW 8218. Gamillscheg 828.

4. (Goth. ga-nagljan, vb., 'nail on'), ON nagli, OE nægel, ME nayl, NE nail, OHG nagal, MHG, NHG nagel, the same words as for 'nail' of the finger or toe (except that ON nagli and nagl are differentiated), this latter sense being the orig., as in the cognates, Grk. ὄνυξ, Lat. unguis, etc. (4.39).

ON saumr 'seam, sewing' (: OE sēam 'seam', etc., fr. the root for 'sew'), also coll. 'nails' (esp. in shipbuilding), whence Dan. søm 'nail', Sw. söm 'hobble nail, horseshoe nail'. By analogy to the 'seam' of a garment the word was applied to the 'seam' of a ship (as in OE and NE), then to the row of nails marking the seam. This does not necessarily reflect directly the primitive method of binding the planks together by thongs (for which cf. the passages quoted by Falk, Wört. u. Sach. 4.50) as is assumed by Falk-Torp 1234 and Hellquist 942.

Sw. spik (also Norw.), Du. spijker (ON spīkr 'spike') : ON spīk 'splinter, peg', Lat. spīca 'point, spear of grain', spīna 'thorn', etc. Walde-P. 2.654. Falk-Torp 1120. Hellquist 1041.

The supporting or carrying element in the construction of wooden buildings, originally the squared timber of a tree, is often denoted by the word for 'tree', or some kind of tree (Ir. sail 'willow') or 'timber'. Or it may be named for its function as the 'supporter, carrier', or 'binder'.

1. Grk. δοκός, NG δοκάρι, orig. 'supporter, holder' : -δοκος, in ἰο-δόκος 'holding arrows', οἰνο-δόκος 'holding wine', etc., δοχή 'receptacle', δέκομαι, δέχομαι 'receive, hold'. Walde-P. 1.783.

NG πατερό (or πάτερο), deriv. of πάτος 'bottom, floor'. G. Meyer, Neugr. Stud. 2.86.

NG also γρεντιά fr. Slavic (SCr. greda, etc., below, 6), and τράβα fr. Ital. trave.

2. Lat. trabs (> It. trave, OFr. tref, Sp. trabe obs.), prob. : Osc. trííbúm 'house, building', Umbr. trebeit 'abides, is stationed', Ir. treb 'dwelling', atreba 'dwells', Lith. troba 'building', OE þorp, OHG dorf 'village', etc., but the semantic relation of Lat. trabs to the other words is far from clear. Walde-P. assumes that the primary meaning was 'beam', whence 'beam-construction, building'. But the meaning 'beam' is confined to the Latin word and more likely secondary. Possibly to be explained either as part for the whole applied to the main structural element of a building, or as though the notion 'dwell' (as in Irish), 'be stationed' (as Umbr. trebeit) applied to the most substantial part of the structure. Walde-P. 1.757. Ernout-M. 1050.

Fr. poutre, earlier meaning (in OFr. and into 16th. cent.) 'young mare', fr. VLat. pulliter (cf. Niedermann, Mnemos. 1936.270 f.), deriv. of Lat. pullus 'young of animals, foal' (3.45). The semantic change prob. reflects the practice of ornamenting the ends of beams with carved horses' heads, etc., as similarly OIt. poltro 'bed' and poltrona 'armchair'. REW 6825. Sperber, Wört. u. Sach. 2.190 ff. Otherwise, comparing the secondary uses of animal names, like Fr. chèvre, bélier, etc. (cf. also NE sawhorse, clotheshorse, etc.). Bloch 2.176.

'Mason', the one who builds with stone or brick, is often expressed by words for 'artisan' or 'builder', either used alone in specialized sense or with defining noun or adjective forms. Several of the more distinctive words are derivs. of those for '(stone) wall'. Some derivs. of words for 'stone' are used for 'mason', but most of these apply rather to the 'stonecutter' who prepares the stone or does fine work in stone.

1. Grk. τέκτων 'artisan', including 'mason', see 9.42.

Grk. λιθουργός, general term for 'worker in stone' (cf. λίθος 'stone', ξυλουργός 'woodworker', 9.43); less frequent, but with more technical significance, λιθολόγος, lit. 'one who picks out (and builds with) stone' (λέγω 'pick out, select'), λιθοδόμος 'one who builds with stone' (δέμω 'construct, build', 9.44).

NG χτίστης 'builder', also spec. 'mason' : κτίζω 'build' (9.44).

NG μάστορας 'artisan', also spec. 'mason', see 9.42.

2. Lat. faber 'artisan', including 'mason', see 9.42.

Late Lat. lapidārius (fr. lapis, -idis 'stone') is rather 'stonecutter, lapidary' than 'mason'.

It. muratore, deriv. of murare 'build in stone', fr. muro '(stone) wall' (Lat. mūrus 'wall').

Fr. maçon (> ME machun, NE mason), MLat. macio, machio, matio 'mason', prob. a Latinized form of a Gmc. makō* : OE macian 'make', OHG mahhōn 'accomplish, make, construct', etc., reflecting an assumed earlier meaning of the Gmc. verb, namely 'build with clay' (see 9.11). Some of the words for 'brick' were probably applied originally to a slab of stone (as Grk. πλίνθος actually so used) and only later to the substituted 'brick'. Such may go back to the idea of 'a fragment, piece broken off', or simply 'flat'. Others, as meaning from the outset 'baked bricks', are connected with words for 'burn, bake'. An extensive group of loanwords from Latin shows an extension from 'roof-tile', orig. 'covering', to 'tile, brick' (several of the words listed were or are still used for both 'brick' and 'tile') in general.

1. Grk. πλίνθος, possibly, like many words with νθ, fr. a pre-Grk. source, but may be IE : OE flint, OHG flins 'flint, rock', etc., fr. IE *(s)plei- 'split' in Dan. splitte, NE split, MHG splīzen, etc. Walde-P. 2.684.

Mortar in the technical sense of a mixture of lime and sand was known to the Greeks and Romans, and spread thence, with brick construction, to northern Europe. The majority of the European words are of Latin origin. Several contain the words for 'lime' or 'sand' or both. But as mortar was a substitute for clay, previously used for the same purpose, some words for 'clay, mud' or the like came to be used also for 'mortar'. Some languages have no single word for 'mortar' but make use of expressions meaning lit. 'mason's sauce', 'lime-cement', etc.

1. Grk. πηλός 'clay' (9.73), used for clay serving as mortar and then prob. for true mortar, for which also πηλὸς ἠχυρωμένος 'clay mixed with chaff', IG 2².463.42.

Grk. κονία 'dust', also 'lime, plaster' (hence κονιάω 'to plaster', κονίασις 'plastering, stucco-work' in building inscriptions), also 'mortar'(?); ἀμμοκονία (rare) 'sand mixed with lime, cement' (cf. ἄμμος 'sand') : κόνις 'dust, ashes', Lat. cinis 'ashes', etc. Walde-P. 1.392.

NG λάσπη 'mud' (1.214), also 'mortar'.

2. Lat. calx (h)arēnātus 'lime mixed with sand, mortar', also (h)arēnātum alone as sb. 'mortar', cf. calx 'lime' and (h)arēna 'sand'.

Lat. mortārium 'a mortar' in which substances are pounded and crushed, hence also 'that which is crushed in a mortar' and 'mortar for building' (> Fr. mortier, Sp. mortero in both senses), prob. fr. the root seen in Skt. mṛ- 'crush, destroy', ON merja 'bruise, crush', etc. Walde-P. 2.276.

It. calcina, deriv. of Lat. calx 'lime'.

It. malta, fr. Lat. maltha 'a kind of cement' (Pliny), borrowed fr. Grk. μάλθη 'a mixture of wax and pitch' : μαλθακός 'soft', Goth. mulda, OE molda 'dust, earth', Skt. mṛd- 'clay, loam' (9.73). Walde-P. 2.289. Walde-H. 2.17.

Sp. argamasa (Cat., Port. argamassa), cpd. of masa 'mass, dough, mortar', but first part dub. (relation to Lat. argilla 'clay' difficult).

Sp. mezcla 'mixture' (5.17), commonly used by the workmen for 'mortar'.

Rum. tencueală 'plaster, mortar', deriv. of tencui 'cover with plaster or mortar', fr. NHG tünchen 'cover with lime, whitewash, plaster' through Pol. tyncować. Tiktin 1577.

3. NIr. moirtēal, with dissim. fr. NE mortar (below, 4).

ME morter, NE mortar (both senses), fr. Fr. mortier (above, 2).

Sw. murbruk, cpd. of mur 'wall' and -bruk, this prob. the same word as bruk 'use'. Hellquist 102.

5. Lith. kalkių glaistas (NSB, s.v. kalkės), lit. 'lime-cement'. Also Lith. murininko košė, lit. 'mason's pap', like Pol. zaprawa mularska (below, 6).

Lett. mertelis, fr. NHG mörtel (above, 4).

6. Boh. malta, SCr. malta (obs.), now malter, fr. It. malta (above, 2). Berneker 2.12 f.

Pol. zaprawa mularska, lit. 'mason's sauce', and zaprawa wapienna 'lime sauce'.

Russ. izvestkovyj rastvor, lit. 'lime solution'.

7. Whether true mortar was known in ancient India may be doubted, but the following words that are used for 'plaster' may be noted:

Skt. lepa- 'smearing, plaster' : lip- 'smear, etc.'.

Skt. sudhā- 'nectar, milk' hence 'whitewash, plaster', cpd. of su- 'well, good' and dhā- 'suck, drink'.

Words for 'smith, metalworker' are in part derived from the verbs for 'hammer, forge'. Some are the words for 'artisan' or 'worker' in specialized use, while others show generalization from worker in a particular metal, as copper or iron.

1. Grk. χαλκεύς, orig. 'worker in copper', generalized, already in Hom., to 'worker in any metal, smith', deriv. of χαλκός 'copper, bronze' (9.66).

Grk. σιδηρουργός (rare) 'ironworker', NG lit. in part also 'smith', cpd., like ξυλουργός 'woodworker', of σίδηρος 'iron' (9.67).

NG pop. γύφτος 'gypsy' (fr. Αἰγύπτιος 'Egyptian'; D. Georgacas, Glotta 27.159) and hence 'smith', since the gypsies were the common tinkers (as, conversely, NE tinker is the common name for a gypsy in Scotland, cf. NED s.v.).

2. Lat. faber (> It. fabbro, Rum. făur, făurar), see 9.42; also faber ferrārius or simply ferrārius (> It. ferraio, Sp. herrero, Rum. fierar), deriv. of ferrum 'iron' (9.67). REW 3120, 3257.

Fr. forgeron, deriv. of forger 'forge' (9.61).

Most of the words for 'anvil' belong to roots for 'strike, beat', in part the same as for 'forge'. One small group is based on the notion of 'stationary, firmly fixed', and another word probably on that of 'raised place'. The Greek word reflects a primitive anvil of stone.

1. Grk. ἄκμων, NG pop. ἀμόνι (fr. ἀκμόνιον) : Skt. açman-, Lith. akmuo, ChSl. kamy, etc. 'stone'. (1.44).

2. Lat. incūs, -ūdis (VLat. incūdine* > It. incudine, ancudine, Fr. enclume, Sp. yunque) : (in)cūdere 'strike, hammer, forge' (9.61). Ernout-M. 238. REW 4367.

Rum. nicovală, fr. Slavic, ChSl. nakovalo (below, 6).

Words for 'cast' in the technical sense of forming metal objects by pouring the molten metal into molds are mostly the same as, or related to, those for 'pour' (9.35). But some are from 'throw, cast' (into the mold).

1. Grk. χοανεύω, χωνεύω, deriv. of χόανος 'smelting pot, mold for casting', fr. the root of χέω 'pour' (9.35), whence also NG χύνω 'pour' and 'cast'.

2. Lat. fundere 'pour' (9.35), also 'cast', and specialized to 'cast, smelt, melt' in It. fondere, Fr. fondre, Sp. fundir.

It. gettare 'throw, cast (metals)', fr. VLat. iectāre*, Lat. iactāre 'throw, hurl'. REW 4568.

Rum. turna 'pour in' (9.35) and 'cast'.

3. NIr. teilgim 'throw, cast' (10.25), and by semantic borrowing fr. NE cast also 'cast metals'. Walde-P. 2.396 f. Pedersen 2.564 f.

W. bwrw 'throw' and by semantic borrowing fr. NE cast also 'cast metals' : Ir. di-bairgim 'throw'. Walde-P. 2.165. Pedersen 2.476.

Br. teuzi 'melt, dissolve', and by influence of Fr. fondre (above, 2) also 'smelt, cast' : W. toddi 'melt, dissolve', Ir. tām 'tabes', Lat. tābēs 'wasting away', Grk. τήκω 'melt', etc. Walde-P. 1.701. Pedersen 1.68.

4. ON steypa 'make stoop, overthrow, pour out', hence also 'cast metals', Dan. støbe, Sw. stöpa 'cast', caus. to ON stūpa, OE stūpian, NE stoop. Walde-P. 2.619. Falk-Torp 1198. Hellquist 1108.

9.64–9.69. Schrader, Sprachvergleichung und Urgeschichte 2.10 ff., Reallex. s.v. Metalle, Erz, Gold, etc. V. Bradke, Methode und Ergebnisse der arischen Altertumswissenschaft 28 ff. Hirt, Indogermanen 684 ff. Feist, Kultur, Ausbreitung und Herkunft der Indogermanen 196 ff.

Among the metal names the one most certainly inherited group is that pointing to an IE word for 'copper', with subsequent extension to 'bronze' or in part transference to 'iron'. For 'gold' and 'silver' there are certain widespread groups within which there is agreement in root and partially in suffix, an agreement not sufficient to determine a precise IE form but too great to be accidental. For this and other reasons it is now generally believed (otherwise Schrader) that gold and silver, as well as copper, were known in the IE period.

Some of the other words for metals are derived from names of places that were important centers of production and export. Some are loanwords, their precise source unknown.

It is noticeable that the old metal names are regularly neuters, except in Greek.

A generic word for 'metal' is relatively late. The source of the European generic words is Lat. metallum, fr. Grk. μέταλλον 'mine', later 'metal'.

Note on words for 'mine':

Grk. μέταλλον 'mine', later 'metal' (> Lat. metallum 'mine, metal'), orig. dub. Boisacq 630.

Fr. mine (> ME myne, NE mine, Rum. mină, Dan., NHG mine, etc.) It., Sp. mina (It. now miniera, fr. Fr. minière, in sense intended here), prob. fr. a Gallic word for 'ore'. Cf. Gael. mēin 'ore, metal', Ir. mianach 'ore, mine', W. mwn, mwyn 'ore', mwnglawdd 'mine', Br. mengleuz 'mine, quarry'. REW 5465. Thurneysen, Keltorom. 67 ff. Gamillscheg 613. NED s.v. mine, sb. (doubtful of above connection).

MHG bercwerc, NHG bergwerk (Dan. bjærgwærk after NHG), cpd. of berg 'mountain, mountainous region' (1.22) and 'work'.

NHG grube (> Dan. grube, Sw. gruva) 'pit' and 'mine' (or for latter spec. erzgrube), fr. OHG gruoba 'pit', fr. graben 'dig' (8.22). Cf. Boh. důl 'pit' and (prob. after NHG) 'mine' = ChSl. dolŭ, Pol. dół 'pit', Russ. dol 'valley' : ChSl. dolě 'under'. Berneker 208 f.

Br.	kouevr, arem	NHG	kupfer, erz, bronze

Grk. χαλκός and Lat. aes covered both 'copper' and its alloy with tin, 'bronze'. Their actual reference in the majority of cases would be to bronze, since this was so much more extensively employed than pure copper. So Goth. aiz (which renders χαλκός as the 'copper', really bronze coin, also in aiza-smiþa for χαλκεύς 'coppersmith'), ON eir, OE ār, OHG ēr, all cognate with Lat. aes and orig. words for 'copper', were applied mainly to what was really bronze. A new, specific name for 'copper', which spread over nearly all of western and central Europe, was furnished by a late Lat. derivative of the name of the copper-producing Cyprus. The old words survived in part for 'bronze', but for this another new word, which spread over nearly all Europe, was furnished by It. bronzo, the source of which is disputed.

Brass, the alloy with zinc, was unknown in classical antiquity. Of its names, NE brass (whence Ir. prās, W. pres) originally applied to bronze and must still be so understood in the English Bible and in old references to classical antiquity (cf. NED s.v.). MHG messinc, NHG messing represent a widespread Gmc. group (OE mæsling, NE dial. maslin, cf. NED), whence also the Lith., Lett., Boh., Pol. words for 'brass', but of uncertain origin (cf. Schrader, Reallex. 1.269, 2.62). The group Fr. laiton (> Russ. latun'), It. ottone, etc., is also difficult (REW 4933). 'Brass' is 'yellow copper' in Du. geel koper, SCr. žuta mjed. Grk. ὀρείχαλκος lit. 'mountain copper' (whence Lat. aurichalcum with spelling after aurum), an alloy of unknown character, later used for 'brass', as in NG.

1. IE ayes-*. Walde-P. 1.4. Ernout-M. 19. Walde-H. 1.19.

Lat. aes, gen. aeris (cf. aēnus, ahēnus, fr. ayes-no-*, Umbr. ahesnes 'ahenis'), whence late aerāmen, arāmen* (> It. rame, Rum. aramă 'copper', OFr. arain, Br. arem, Fr. airain 'bronze'); Goth. aiz, ON eir, OE ār, OHG ēr; Skt. ayas- prob. 'bronze' in Rigveda (Zimmer, Altind. Leben 51 f. Macdonell-Keith 1.31 f.), later 'iron', Av. ayah- 'bronze' (as shown by epithets 'yellow, golden'; cf. Geiger, Ostiran. Kultur 148), later 'iron' as NPers. āhan.

2. Grk. χαλκός, prob. a loanword and possibly fr. the same source as Lith. geležis 'iron', etc. (9.67). Walde-P. 1.629. Boisacq 1049.

NG pop. μπακίρι, like SCr. bakar, fr. Turk. bakır 'copper'. Lokotsch 193. Berneker 40.

3. Lat. aes Cyprium 'aes from Cyprus', like aes Corinthium, aes Campānum (cf. vāsa Campāna 'vessels of Campanian bronze', source of It. campana 'bell'). Hence late Lat. cuprum 'copper', whence Fr. cuivre (> Br. kouevr), Sp. cobre, Rum. cupru, and the Gmc. words, OE copor (rare), OHG kupfar, etc., also W. copr (fr. ME) and Lett. kapars (fr. LG).

4. It. bronzo, whence NG μπροῦντζος, Fr. bronze, and similar forms in nearly all the present European languages, orig. disputed, best derived, not fr. Pers. biring 'copper' (as REW 1113, etc.), but fr. aes Brundisium. The best bronze mirrors were made at Brundisium (specula Brundisina, Pliny 33.130) and Byz. βροντήσιον 'bronze' occurs in the works of the alchemists (e.g. Berthelot, Alchimistes grecs 376.25). Berthelot, Rev. arch. 1888.295 ff. Wartburg 1.373 says "Aes Brundisium wäre sachlich gerechtfertigt, aber lautlich unmöglich". But the phonetic difficulty seems less than that in the deriv. fr. Pers. biring, esp. in the o- vowel admittedly unexplained.

5. Ir. umae (also crēdumae, cpd. of crēd 'tin', Windisch, Wtb. s.v., K. Meyer, Contrib. 509, 511), NIr. umha, OW emid, W. efydd : Ir. om, W. of 'raw', hence orig. 'raw ore'. Pedersen 1.166.

The use of iron is comparatively late in history, long after the period of IE unity. Most of the words are of obscure origin. The only agreement between the different branches of IE is that between Celtic and Gmc., which reflects prehistoric borrowing.

1. The Celtic and Gmc. group. Walde-P. 1.4. Schrader, Reallex. 1.235 f. Feist 131. Pokorny, KZ 46.292 ff., 49.126. Walde-H. 1.19 f.

Lead dates from the bronze age in the eastern Mediterranean region and possibly in Britain, but in most of Europe it is contemporaneous with iron. Among the words for 'lead' there is a group common to Celtic and Gmc., resting on borrowing, and probably the Greek and Latin words are from a common, unknown source. There is some confusion between 'lead' and 'tin'. Schrader, Reallex. 1.149 ff.

For the process of forming articles from clay or other plastic material by molding with the hands, only a few of the IE languages show distinctive technical terms, and even these came to be used also in a more general sense 'form, fashion, make', etc. There was an IE root, namely dheiĝh-*, of which the primary application was probably to just this process, together with the similar one of kneading dough, but such special use survived in only a small part of its derivs. Some derivs. of a word for 'a mold' were used first for 'form in a mold' and then by extension for molding with the hands. In the majority of cases the words commonly employed are those of general scope, meaning 'form, shape, make, etc.', and especially derivs. of Lat. fōrma 'shape, form'. From these it has been in part difficult to make a selection for the list.

1. IE dheiĝh-*, prob. used primarily for the molding of clay and the kneading of dough. Walde-P. 1.833 f. Ernout-M. 361 f. Walde-H. 1.501 f.

Here as 'mold', Lat. fingere (with figulus 'potter'), Goth. digan in kasa digana 'clay vessels', þamma digandin 'τῷ πλάσαντι', daigs 'lump of clay' (Rom. 9.21; but usually 'dough'); as 'knead' in the Gmc. word for 'dough', Goth. daigs, OE dāg, etc.; Skt. dih- 'smear'; words for 'wall', Skt. dehī, Grk. τεῖχος, Osc. feíhúss (acc. pl.); Toch. A tsek-, B tsaik- 'form, fashion' in kuntis-tsek 'potter', etc. (SSS 2,484).

2. Grk. πλάσσω, πλάττω (cf. also πλάστης 'molder', πλάσμα 'molded figure'), fr. πλάθιω (cf. κοροπλάθος 'molder of small figures', πηλοπλάθος 'molder of clay'), NG πλάθω (also 'knead'), perh. with semantic development through the notion of flattening out the clay in the process of molding, fr. an extension of IE pelə-, plā-* in Lat. plānus 'flat', etc. Walde-P. 2.63.

3. Lat. fingere, above, 1.

Derivs. of Lat. fōrmāre 'shape, form' (fr. fōrma 'shape, form', 12.51), or new verbs formed fr. the noun, occurring in most of the modern European languages, may be used to cover the notion of molding clay, and in many languages are the most usual expressions for this. Cf. Fr. former (OFr. fourmer > ME fourme, NE form), Sp. formar, Rum. forma, NIr. foirmighim, W. ffurfio, Dan. forme, Sw. forma, Du. vormen, MHG, NHG formen, also, although prob. less common, Lith. formuoti, Lett. formēt, Boh. formovati, Pol. formować, Russ. formovat'.

Lat. modulus 'a measure' yields words for 'a mold', as OFr. modle (Fr. moule), whence ME, NE mo(u)ld, and fr. this the vb., orig. 'shape in a mold' (as Fr. mouler), then extended to molding with the hands (clay, etc., or dough); also, through modellus*, words for 'model', whence again vbs. as It. modellare, Fr. modeler, Sp. modelar, Rum. modela, NE model, which may also be used for molding clay. NED s.v. mould, sb.[3] and vb.[2].

It. plasmare, Sp. plasmar, deriv. of plasma fr. Grk. πλάσμα 'molded figure' (above, 2).

4. Ir. dolbaim 'form, fashion artfully' : delb 'form, image', Lat. dolāre 'hew', etc. (9.45).

Ir. cummaim, NIr. cumaim 'form, shape, make', derivs. of Ir. cumma 'a shaping', vbl. abstract of com-benim, cpd. of benim 'strike' (9.21). Pedersen 2.461.

W. llunio, deriv. of llun 'form, shape, figure', etym.?

5. Goth. digan, above, 1.

ON mynda 'shape, form', deriv. of mynd 'shape, form, image' (12.51).

Dan. danne (> Sw. dana), both now common for 'form' with widest scope, deriv. of adj. dan (seen in Dan. saadan, hvordan, etc.), fr. MLG dān, pple. of dōn 'do, make' : OE dōn, OHG tuon, etc. (9.11). Falk-Torp 136. Hellquist 134.

OE (ge)hīwian 'form, fashion, shape' ('fingere' Aelfric), deriv. of OE hīw 'shape, form, appearance, color' (12.51).

NE mold, model, above, 3.

NHG bilden 'form, fashion', OHG bilidōn 'represent, form after a model', derivs. of OHG biladi, NHG bild 'image, picture' (9.87).

6. Lith. daryti 'do, make' (9.11) also used in sense of 'make, form something of clay'.

Lett. (iz)taisīt 'make, prepare, form' : Lith. taisyti 'make, prepare, repair', tiesus 'straight', tiesti 'straighten'. Mühl.-Endz. 4.124.

7. SCr. tvoriti, Boh. tvařiti 'make, form, shape' (= ChSl. tvoriti 'make', 9.11) also applied to work in clay.

The manufacture of glass goes back to remote antiquity in Egypt, and also became a flourishing industry in Phoenicia. In Greece and Italy glass was known only from imported objects (glass beads, etc., in the Mycenaean period) until a comparatively late period. From the Greco-Roman world it spread to northern Europe, where its predecessor in objects of ornament was amber. In its early uses colored glass was more common than the transparent. Schrader, Reallex. and Pauly-Wissowa s.v. Glas. Mary L. Trowbridge, Philological Studies in Ancient Glass, Univ. of Illinois Studies in Language and Literature 13. Nos. 3–4.

Most of the IE words for 'glass', if not obscure, are connected with words for some color or for 'bright, shining'. But, as words for 'glass' as material came to be used also for a 'glass drinking vessel', so conversely the Balto-Slavic words for 'glass' are from a Gmc. word for 'drinking vessel'.

1. Grk. ὕαλος, ὕελος, NG γυαλί, prob. a loanword, but of unknown source. The word occurs first in Hdt. 3.24, but here refers to some kind of transparent stone and is quotable only later for 'glass'. An earlier expression for true glass, namely 'poured stone' is reflected in ἀρτήματα λίθινα χυτά, Hdt. 2.69.

2. Lat. vitrum (> It. vetro, Fr. verre; VLat. vitrium* > Sp. vidrio), prob., as appropriate to the familiar blue-green Roman glass, the same word as vitrum 'woad' (a plant furnishing a blue dye), this again related in some fashion to OHG weit, OE wād 'woad'. The construction of dwellings, fences, walls, etc., and the manufacture of various articles like mats, baskets, etc., by plaiting together twigs, reeds, etc., antedates the more technical crafts. Moreover, plaiting is the ancestor of the more specialized and refined weaving (cf. 6.33) and is basic to at least some of the earliest pottery (as made by smearing clay on a wickerwork frame). Apart from the existence of an IE root for 'plait' (plek̂-*, below, 1), the early importance of wickerwork construction is reflected in the history of certain words for 'build', 'house' (?) and for various objects which have long since ceased to be associated with such construction. Cf. Fr. bâtir 'build' (9.44), Lat. crātis 'harrow' (8.28), Goth. haurds 'door' (7.22), etc. But several of the examples commonly assumed are doubtful. Thus the assumption of an IE gherd-, ĝherd-, in the sense of 'plait' (Walde-P. 1.608) is highly speculative, since all the words involved may rest on the notion of 'hold, inclose'.

Plaiting naturally declined in relative importance with the advance of other crafts, and survives in only a very limited role in modern industry. Furthermore, when more important than now, it did not call for the special skill, implements, and workshops characteristic of other crafts, and remained longer, what all the crafts were at the outset, merely one of the numerous activities of the household. Hence it did not develop much of a technical terminology. Words for the workman and generic terms for the product are mostly artificial rather than popular.

The one cognate group that comes nearest to representing a generic term for the product, though the words are used mostly for various more specific products, is the following:

Grk. κάρτα(λ)λος 'a kind of basket', κύρτη 'fish-basket', κυρτία 'wickerwork shield' (all rare words), Lat. crātis (esp. pl. crātēs) 'wickerwork, hurdle, harrow', OE hyrdel, OHG hurd 'hurdle', Goth. haurds, ON hurð 'door' (7.22), Skt. kaṭa- (kṛta-*) 'straw mat' : Skt. kṛt- 'twist thread, spin'. Walde-P. 1.421.

Other expressions for the product may be based on the current verbs for 'plait', as Grk. πλέγμα, NHG geflecht, flechtwerk, It. lavoro intrecciato, or on some special material or product, as NE wickerwork (wicker 'pliant twig', fr. Scand., cf. ODan. viger 'willow'), basketwork, lattice-work (lattice deriv. of word for 'lath'), Fr. claie (fr. Celtic, cf. Ir. clīad 'hurdle'), clayonnage, etc. Cf. also OE watul, NE wattle, wattling (of dub. orig.; NED s.v. wattle). But only a few of these are truly generic.

Apart from the inherited groups, in which 'plait' is based on 'fold', words for

'plait' are from other roots meaning 'fold, twist, wind' or the like, or derivatives of nouns for 'trees, braid'. A few are identical with the words for 'weave' (6.33), and in most languages the words for 'weave' are freely used with an object like 'basket, mat' or 'reeds, twigs', so that they thus cover 'plait'.

1. IE plek̂-* in words for 'plait' and 'fold', an extension of pel-* in other words for 'fold'. Cf. Lat. plicāre, Goth. falþan, etc. 'fold' (9.15). Walde-P. 2.97. Ernout-M. 777 ff.

Grk. πλέκω; with t-extension Lat. plectere (> W. plethu; Loth, Mots lat. 196) and ON flētta, OE fleohtan, OHG flehtan, etc., once general Gmc.; here also (or fr. plet-, a parallel extension of pel-?) ChSl. plesti, pletą, etc., general Slavic (whence Rum. împleti).

2. It. intrecciare, Fr. tresser, Sp. trenzar, derivs. of It. treccia, Fr. tresse, Sp. trenza 'tress, braid', fr. VLat. trichea*, orig. dub. REW 8893. Gamillscheg 863.

Rum. împleti, fr. Slavic (above, 1).

3. Ir. figim, same as for 'weave' (6.33).

NIr. dualaim 'plait, fold, braid', deriv. of Ir. dūal 'fold, fringe, plait, lock of hair' (doklo*) : Goth. tagl 'hair', OE tægl 'tail', Skt. daçā- 'fringe, border', etc. Walde-P. 1.785. Stokes 152.

Br. plañsona, deriv. of plañson 'braid (of hair)', fr. Fr. plançon (deriv. of Lat. planta) 'young plant, shoot'; the meaning 'braid' fr. that of 'plant, shoot' through similarity of appearance. Henry 224.

4. Goth. us-windan (Mk. 15. 17, etc. for πλέκω), cpd. like bi-windan 'wrap' : OE windan 'wind', etc. (10.14).

OE bregdan 'make a quick movement, draw a sword', hence from the motions in the process (cf. the throwing of the shuttle in weaving) also 'plait, braid', ME breide, NE braid (now mostly with reference to hair, but cf. braided rugs) : ON bregða 'move quickly, draw a sword, etc.', OS bregdan 'plait', OHG brettan 'jerk, weave', these further : ON brjā 'sparkle, shine', braga 'flame, burn', etc. (for such relations cf. the uses of NE flash). Walde-P. 2.169. Falk-Torp 56.

NE plait, plat (in southern U.S. one plats hair), deriv. of plait 'a fold, crease', fr. OFr. pleit, Lat. plicitum : plicāre 'fold', plectere (above, 1). NED s.v.

5. Lith. pinti, Lett. pīt : Goth., OE spinnan 'spin', ChSl. pęti 'stretch', fr. IE (s)pen-* 'stretch, draw' and hence from the stretching involved in twisting together the fibers, etc., 'spin, plait'. Walde-P. 2.660 f.

'Basket' is chosen here as a conspicuous product of the process of plaiting and one that has remained familiar in all periods. But there are so many kinds of baskets with their special names that it is difficult to select the most important, especially from the earlier periods, when there was no generic term like NE basket.

Despite the factual relation between 'basket' and 'plait', none of the words for 'basket' are derived from the regular words for 'plait' as listed in 9.75. But, like some of these latter, they may reflect an action like 'twist, wind' or a material like 'twig' or 'reed'. French panier shows generalization from 'bread container'. Many of the words are of wholly obscure origin.

1. Grk. κόφινος (> late Lat. cophinus > OFr. coffin > ME coffyn 'basket', NE coffin in spec. sense), NG κοφίνι, orig. dub., perh. loanword fr. a pre-Greek source. Walde-P. 2.540. Boisacq 504.

Lat. corbis is the source of the Gmc. words, Dan. kurv, Sw. korg, Du. korf, OHG corb, NHG korb, and these again of the Balto-Slavic words, Lith. gurbas, Lett. kurvis, ChSl. krabĭjĭ, Russ. korob. Words for 'carve', as applied to the sculptor's work in stone (and usually also to the carving of wood) are mostly such as are also used with wider scope for 'cut' or 'hew' or are cognate with words which in other languages are non-technical words for 'cut, scrape, scratch, split', etc. A few are derivs. of words for 'chisel' or for 'statue', hence 'carve' through 'use the chisel' or 'make a statue'. Some of the forms listed for the older Gmc. languages are not certainly quotable in the technical sense.

1. Grk. γλύφω 'cut out, carve' in wood, stone, metals (cf. γλύπτης 'sculptor', γλύφανος 'knife, chisel', γλυφή 'a carving') : Lat. glūbere 'peel', ON kljūfa, OE clēofan 'split', etc., IE gleubh-*. Walde-P. 1.661. Ernout-M. 426 f. Walde-H. 1.610.

2. Lat. scalpere 'scratch, scrape', and also the proper classical form for 'carve' in technical sense, and only in late times replaced in this sense by sculpere, fr. the cpds., thus resulting in a late differentiation in use from scalpere (whence confusion in the MSS and introduction of sculpere, sculptor, sculptura, in our texts in place of scalpere, scalptor, scalptura, while scalprum 'knife, chisel', dim. scalpellum, remain), prob. fr. an extension of the root seen in Grk. σκάλλω 'scrape, hoe', Lith. skelti 'split', ON skilja 'separate, divide', etc. Walde-P. 2.595. 5. Lith. iškalti 'beat out, chisel out, carve', cpd. of kalti 'hammer, forge' (9.61).

Lett. (iz)tēluot 'represent' hence spec. 'represent by carving in wood, stone, etc.', deriv. of tēls 'form, statue' (9.83).

6. ChSl. vajati (late, but deriv. vajanije 'sculpture', Supr.), SCr. vajati, Russ. vajat', etym.?

Boh. vytesati, Pol. wyciosać, lit. 'hew out', cpds. of Boh. tesati, Pol. ciosać 'hew' (9.45).

7. Sculpture was highly developed in the pre-Aryan civilization disclosed by the discoveries at Mohenjodaro and elsewhere in northwest India. But in Aryan India there is no evidence of sculpture before the Buddhistic statues of about 300 B.C. There is likewise no reference to sculpture in the Avesta. Hence the lack of quotable words in this group, except the Skt. (late) and OPers. words quoted under 'statue' (9.83).

Generic words for 'sculpture', either as the art or the product, are regularly parallel to those for 'sculptor' and need no further comment. Instead of these, 'statue' is chosen as the most characteristic product.

Words for 'statue' are only rarely connected with those for 'carve'. Most of them come by specialization from 'ornament', 'what is set up', 'pillar, column', 'form, figure, likeness', etc. Several of those listed cover 'statue' but have a wider range, 'image'.

1. Grk. ἄγαλμα, -ατος, orig. an 'ornament', as in Hom., and sometimes used in inscriptions for any votive offering (e.g. a modest pottery slab, a bronze vase, etc.), but esp. for a divine 'statue', which became its established use : ἀγάλλω 'adorn' and 'glorify', ἀγλαός, 'bright, splendid', etc. Walde-P. 1.623. Boisacq 5.

Grk. ἀνδριάς, -άντος, orig. 'image of a man' and reg. applied to statues of men or women, only rarely to those of the gods (as on the base of an archaic statue of Apollo at Delos), deriv. of ἀνήρ, ἀνδρός 'man'.

2. Lat. statua, usually of men : statuere 'cause to stand, set up', fr. stāre 'stand' (cf. pple. status, and status, -ūs 'a standing, position, attitude'); statua appears as a general European loanword in It. statua, Fr. statue, Sp. estatua, Rum. statue, Dan. statue, Sw. staty, ME, NE statue, NHG statue, Lett. statuja, Pol. statua, Russ. statuja.

Lat. signum 'mark, sign' (12.94), hence also 'military standard' and 'image, statue' (usually of a god). Ernout-M. 939.

3. Ir. delb 'form, image', NIr. dealbh, W. delw 'form, image, statue' (also W. cerfddelw 'carved image', cf. cerfio 'carve', 9.81), Br. delouenn (so Vallée for 'statue', not in Ernault) : Ir. dolbaim 'form, mold' (9.72), Lat. dolāre 'hew', etc. (9.45). Walde-P. 1.810. Pedersen 1.64.

NIr. iomāigh 'image, statue', fr. Lat. imāgō 'image, representation'. Vendryes, De hib. voc. 146 f.

W. cerflun 'piece of sculpture, carving, statue', cpd. of cerf 'carving, sculpture' (: cerfio 'carve', 9.81) and llun 'form, picture' (9.87).

Br. skeudenn 'image, statue' (Ernault), deriv. of skeud 'shadow' (1.63).

4. Goth. man(n)leika 'image' (in the only occurrence renders εἰκών, the image on a coin), ON mannlīkan 'human image, idol', OE man(n)līca 'human image, statue', OHG manalīho, etc. (Graff 2.118), cpds. of words for 'man' and those for 'like', Goth. (ga)leiks, etc., whence also ON līkneski, ME licness 'likeness, image, statue'.

Dan. billedstøtte, Sw. bildstod, cpds. of Dan. billede 'image, picture', Sw. bild 'picture, representation, statue' (9.87) and Dan. støtte, Sw. stod 'pillar'.

Du. standbeeld, cpd. of stand : staan 'stand' and beeld 'image, picture'.

OHG sūl, MHG sūl, sūel 'post, pillar' hence also 'statue', NHG bildsäule 'statue' (cf. bild 'image, picture', 9.87) : ON sūl, sūla, OE sȳl, Goth. sauls 'pillar, column'. Falk-Torp 1233. Walde-P. 2.503.

5. Lith. statula (now preferred to stovyla, fr. Wh. Russ., formerly in common use), fr. weak grade of IE stā-* 'stand', as in statymas 'building', etc. Cf. OE staþol 'foundation, support'. Buga, Kalba ir Senovė 172 f.

Lett. tēls 'form, image, statue', prob. fr. ORuss. tělo 'image, idol, statue' (below, 6). Mühl.-Endz. 4.171.

6. ChSl. tělo 'body, form' (9.11), hence later 'image, statue' as also ORuss. tělo, etc.

SCr. kip 'form, image, statue', fr. Hung. kép 'appearance, form, picture, image'. Berneker 504.

Boh. socha 'handle, pole, pillar' hence also 'statue' : ChSl. (late) socha 'club, cudgel', Russ. socha 'wooden plow', etc. (8.55). Walde-P. 1.335.

Pol. posąg 'statue', orig. 'wooden pillar', fr. the root of OE sāg 'cord of wood', this as orig. a measure (cf. sążeń, ChSl. sęžĭnĭ 'fathom', i.e. 'the distance to which the arms can be stretched') : ChSl. sęgnąti 'stretch out (the arm)', Pol. sięgać 'reach, stretch'. Brückner 483.

Russ. izvajanie 'piece of sculpture, statue' : (iz)vajat' 'carve' (9.81).

7. Skt. pratimā- 'image, picture, statue' : prati-mā- 'imitate, copy', cpd. of prati 'over against' and mā- 'measure' (12.54) 'mete out, fashion, build', etc.

Skt. dāivata- 'statue of a god, idol' (so freq. in Manu, etc.), deriv. of devata- 'god'.

OPers. patikara- used of the figures sculptured in relief (NPers. paikar 'face, form, portrait'), cpd. of pati- 'over against' and kar- 'make', hence lit. 'something made in likeness'.

The verbs for 'paint' as an artist are in most cases (unlike those for 'paint' a house, etc., 9.89) not based on a notion of color, but are rather from notions like 'scratch, draw, adorn', 'mark, represent', and were used at first for any form of graphic delineation, then especially for 'paint' since the use of color was usual.

1. Grk. γράφω (: OE ceorfan 'cut, carve', 9.22) 'scratch, mark', hence usual 'write', but also 'draw, depict' (cf. γραφεύς sometimes for 'painter'), hence ζῷα γράφω 'depict live creatures', ζωγράφος 'painter', and fr. the latter, the usual verbs ζωγραφέω, NG ζωγραφίζω.

2. Lat. pingere 'adorn, embroider' and esp. 'paint' (> Fr. peindre, It. pingere, but mostly dipingere, fr. Lat. dēpingere; VLat. pinctāre* > Sp. pintar; Rum. picta back-formation to pictor 'painter', this a literary loanword fr. Lat.) : Skt. piñj- 'paint' (gram.), piñga-, piñjara- 'reddish brown, tawny', ChSl. pĕgŭ 'speckled, dappled', fr. IE peig-* beside peiḱ-* in Grk. ποικίλος 'speckled, dappled, many-colored', Skt. piç- 'carve, fashion, adorn', ChSl. pĭsati 'write', OPers. piš- 'write', Lith. piešti 'sketch, draw' (cf. below, 5), Goth. filu-faihs 'manifold' (πολυποίκιλος), OE fāh, fāg, OHG fēh 'colored', etc. whence again the verbs OE fāgian 'grow dark, vary', OHG fēhen 'color' and with these ON fá 'draw, paint'; here also Toch. pik- 'write, paint' (SSS 451). Walde-P. 2.9 ff. Ernout-M. 769.

3. NIr. pinteálaim, with pinteáil 'painting', pintéar 'painter', péint 'paint', all (with various spellings) based on NE paint.

Br. liva 'dye, paint' ('paint' in artistic sense secondary), deriv. of liv 'color, dye, paint' (9.88).

4. ON fá, see above, 2.

ON skrifa 'write, paint', fr. Lat. scrībere 'write'. Walde-P. 2.586. Falk-Torp 1028.

OE mētan, deriv. of an OE mōt* : EFris. mōt 'mark, spot', ON mōt 'mark, stamp'.

OE ā-tīefran (cf. tīfrung 'painting'), fr. tēafor 'red color' (NE dial. tiver, NED) : ON taufr, OHG zoubūr 'magic'. Holthausen 343, 347.

ME peynte, NE paint, fr. Fr. peint, 3sg. and pple. of peindre (above, 2).

OHG mālōn, mālēn 'trace, draw, paint', MHG, MLG mālen (> Dan. male, Sw. måla), NHG malen : Goth. mēljan 'write', OE mǣlan 'spot, soil', derivs. of Goth. mēl, OE mǣl, OHG māl 'spot, mark, sign', these prob. fr. the root seen in Skt. malina- 'dirty, dark', Grk. μέλας, Lett. melns 'black', etc. But the immediate development in German is fr. 'make a mark' to 'draw', hence also 'paint', and has no direct connection with a color notion. Walde-P. 2.293. Falk-Torp 691.

Du. schilderen (cf. NHG schildern 'portray, describe', formerly also 'paint'; schilderei formerly 'a painting'), deriv. of obs. schilder 'painter', orig. 'shield-maker, shield-painter', as MLG schilder, MHG schiltære, derivs. of the words for 'shield', OHG scilt, etc. Falk-Torp 994. Franck-v. W. 587. Paul, Deutsches Wtb. s.v. schildern.

5. Lith. tapyti (now best word, Senn; formerly in different sense) : Lith. tepti, Lett. tept 'smear', ChSl. tepą, teti 'strike, beat' (Trautmann 319).

Lith. piešti, lit. 'draw, sketch', but piešti paveikslą 'paint' (Lalis, cf. also Hermann, Lit.-deutsches Gesprächsb. 131), see under Lat. pingere, above 2.

Lett. gleznuot : Lith. gleznoti (dial. 'paint'), derivs. of Lett. glezns, Lith. gležnus 'weak, tender, delicate', with development through 'do delicate work, adorn'. Mühl.-Endz. 1.626.

6. SCr. slikati, deriv. of slika 'painting, picture' : lik 'form, appearance'. Berneker 719.

SCr. malati (dial.), Boh. malovati, Pol. malować, fr. MHG, NHG malen (above, 4). Berneker 2.11.

Russ. pisat' 'write, draw, paint' (hence živopis' 'painting', živopisec 'painter', cpds. with živoj 'alive'; cf. Grk. ζωγράφος, above, 1) : ChSl. pĭsati 'write', etc. (above, 2).

7. Skt. likh-, earlier rikh- 'scratch, write, draw, engrave, paint' (cf. lekha-, rekha- 'mark, stroke, line, figure') : Grk. ἐρείκω 'bruise, tear', W. rhwygo 'tear', Lith. riekti 'slice, cut, etc.'. Walde-P. 2.344.

The words for 'painter' as an artist are obvious derivatives of the verbs for 'paint' (9.85), or conversely in the case of Du. schilder. For Russ. živopisec, see živopis' 'painting' (9.87). The only exception among the words listed here is:

Skt. citrakāra-, cpd. of citra- in the sense of 'picture' (9.87) and deriv. of kṛ- 'make'.

But the 'painter' in this sense may also, especially where the word is ambiguous (as NE painter, etc.), be expressed by the more generic 'artist' (cf. 9.412), as NE artist, NHG künstler, Lith. dailininkas, etc.

Nearly all the words for 'a painting', involving the use of color, and some of those for the more comprehensive 'picture' (e.g. NE picture, fr. Lat. pictūra 'painting' vs. painting fr. vb. paint), are derived from (or in the case of SCr. slika, are the source of) the verbs for 'paint', and so have been covered by the discussion in 9.85. Other words for 'picture', which cover and often are the more common expressions for 'a painting', are of various sources.

1. Grk. γραφή sometimes 'picture', ζωγράφημα rare; ζωγραφία 'art of painting', NG ζωγραφιά 'picture'.

Grk. πίναξ 'board, tablet', rarely 'picture' (like Lat. tabula), hence late πινακοθήκη 'picture-gallery'.

Grk. εἰκών 'a likeness' (: ἔοικα 'be like'), used of a picture or a statue, NG εἰκόνα 'holy picture' (whence Russ. ikon id.).

2. Lat. tabula picta 'painted tablet', hence also tabula alone for 'painting, picture', whence in this sense also Sw. tavla, Br. taolenn, and, through dim. form, Fr. tableau (> Rum. tablou).

It. quadro, Sp. cuadro, fr. Lat. quadrum 'a square'.

3. W. llun 'form, shape, figure, picture', as 'picture' also cpds. arlun, darlun, etym.?

4. OHG bilade, bilidi, MHG bilde (MLG > Dan. billede, Sw. bild), NHG bild (also bildniss), Du. beeld, a general word for 'likeness, image' (as mostly in OHG), whence 'picture', or in part 'statue' (9.83), prob. : OHG billich, NHG billig 'fitting, seemly', OE bilewit 'simple, honest', Ir. bil 'good', perh. Grk. φίλος 'dear'. Walde-P. 2.185. Falk-Torp 73 f. Weigand-H. 1.238. Kluge-G. 57.

5. Lith. paveikslas, general 'picture, image, example' : į-vykti 'happen', perh. Grk. εἰκών 'picture', etc. (above, 1). Walde-P. 1.233. For current use cf. aliejiniais dažais pieštas paveikslas (lit. 'picture drawn with oil paints' = ölgemälde), Hermann, Lit.-deutsches Gesprächsb. 131).

6. ChSl. obrazŭ 'form, kind, image' (reg. word for εἰκών; Jagić, Entstehungsgesch. 309), Boh., Pol. obraz (Pol. > Lith. abrozas 'holy picture, ikon'), orig. 'an outline', fr. ob-raziti* 'cut around' beside u-raziti 'strike', rězati 'cut' (9.22). Brückner 371 f.

Russ. živopis', cpd. of živoj 'alive' and the root of pisat' 'paint'. Cf. Grk. ζωγραφία, ζωγράφος, etc. (9.85).

Russ. kartina, deriv. of karta 'card, map', this fr. Lat. charta 'paper'. Berneker 491.

7. Skt. citra- 'bright, clear' (: OHG heitar id., Walde-P. 2.537), neut. sb. 'ornament' and 'picture', likewise citrakarman-, cpd. with karman- 'work'.

The majority of the words for 'paint' (sb.) are the same as those for 'color', discussed in 15.61, and cover any coloring matter, 'paint' or 'dye'. Most of the others are obvious derivs. of the verbs for 'paint' discussed in 9.85 or 9.89. Only the following need further comment:

1. NG pop. μπογιά 'dye, paint', fr. Turk. boya id., whence also SCr. boja 'paint' and secondarily 'color', and Rum. boia 'dye'. Miklosich, Turk. Elem. 1.265 f. Lokotsch 328.

2. ON steinn 'dye, paint, stain', prob. same word as steinn 'stone', and orig. some special kind of mineral dye.

3. Lith. dažai (pl.), with vb. dažyti, etym. dub. Walde-P. 1.786.

4. Russ. kraska, deriv. of krasa 'beauty, adornment', whence also krasit' 'dye, paint', and Lett. krāsa also 'color', see 15.61.

In several languages the verbs for 'paint' in the artistic sense (9.85) have come to be used also with reference to painting a house, board, etc., as NE paint, Fr. peindre, etc. But most of those used in this latter sense are derived from the nouns for 'paint' orig. 'color', and may also cover 'dye'. Apart from these two classes, of obvious connection with the words discussed in 9.85 or 9.88, are the following:

1. Lat. fūcāre 'paint, dye, rouge', deriv. of fūcus 'rouge', fr. Grk. φῦκος id., orig. the kind of seaweed from which the dye was obtained. Ernout-M. 396. Walde-H. 1.555.

2. Rum. văpsi 'dye, paint', fr. Grk. ἔβαψα, aor. of βάπτω 'dip, dye'. Tiktin 1713.

3. Rum. zugrăvi (earlier zografisi), fr. NG ζωγραφίζω 'paint' in artistic sense (9.85). Tiktin 1830.

4. NHG anstreichen, cpd. of streichen 'stroke, touch', also used alone for 'paint'.

5. Boh. natirati, lit. 'rub on', hence also 'paint', cpd. of třiti 'rub' (9.31).

There can hardly be a more vague general notion than that of 'thing', covering any act, event, or material object. It is based on a variety of specific notions, and most commonly the generalization to an act, event, or affair is earlier than that to a material object. A few of the words listed are still not used for 'thing' as a material object.

In several cases, partly due to semantic borrowing, the development has been through 'subject of litigation'. Other sources are 'act, deed, work, share, thing needed, property', etc. The use of the neuter of the indefinite pronoun for 'anything, something' and, with negative, 'nothing' (Grk. τι, οὔτι, Lat. quid, aliquid, nē quid, etc.), has led to an independent word for 'thing' in Irish.

1. Grk. πρᾶγμα (notion of 'act, affair', etc., dominant) : πράσσω, Att. πράττω 'do' (19.11). NG πρᾶγμα, pop. πρᾶμα also of material objects and as generic as NE thing.

Grk. χρῆμα (in pl. also 'goods, property') orig. 'what is needed' : χρεία 'need', χρή 'needs, ought, must', etc. (see 9.93). Cf. Osc. egmo 'thing' : Lat. egēre 'have need', prob. semantic borrowing fr. Grk. χρῆμα. Kretschmer, Glotta 10.157 f.

2. Lat. rēs ('property' and 'affair, thing'), Umbr. re-per 'pro re' : Skt. rās, gen. sg. rāyas, Av. gen. sg. rāyō 'riches', Skt. rā- 'give, grant'. Walde-P. 2.343. Ernout-M. 822 f. Lat. acc. sg. rem > Fr. rien 'thing', mostly 'nothing' fr. neg. phrases, like NG τίποτε 'something', 'nothing'. Otherwise replaced by the following:

It., Sp. cosa, Fr. chose, fr. Lat. causa 'cause' and esp. 'lawsuit', whence 'affair, thing'. Root connection unknown. Ernout-M. 166 f. Walde-H. 1.190.

Rum. lucru 'work, act' and 'thing', fr. Lat. lucrum 'gain'. Sense of 'work' through vb. lucra (Lat. lucrārī) 'gain' (by work) > 'work', but generic 'thing' by Slavic influence. Cf. Bulg. dělo and rabota both 'work' and 'thing'. Tiktin 927 f. REW 5146.

3. Ir. nī, NIr. nī, pl. neithe, orig. neut. of pronominal nech 'someone' (ne-kʷo-*, with change fr. negative to positive, as in Lith. ne-kas 'something'. Pedersen 1.212. Thurneysen, Gram. 309, 311.

Ir. rēt (cf. also crēt 'what?' for ce rēt), NIr. rud, perh. : Skt. ratna- 'riches'. Walde-P. 2.374. Stokes 232. Thurneysen, Gram. 127.

W. peth : Br. pez 'piece, bit', Ir. cuit 'share, part', etc. (13.23). Pedersen 1.160.

Br., Corn. tra (W. tra as 'thing' obs.), etym. dub., connected with Br., Corn., W. tro 'turn, course, occasion, occurrence'? Henry 269.

4. Goth. waihts : ON vættr 'creature', esp. supernatural, ekki vætta 'nothing', OE wiht 'creature' (NE wight), ǣnig wiht 'anything' (NE aught), ne wiht, nā wiht 'nothing' (NE naught and not), OHG wiht 'creature' (cf. NHG bösewicht), ni wiht 'nothing' (NHG nicht)—further ChSl. veštĭ, Boh. věc, etc. 'thing', but root connections unknown. Walde-P. 1.246. Falk-Torp 1372. Feist 543.

ON hlutr 'lot, share' and 'thing' : OE hlot (NE lot), etc. Walde-P. 1.493. Falk-Torp 650 f.

OE þing 'judicial assembly, court', 'matter before the court', then any 'matter, affair, thing', with generic sense as ME, NE thing = ON þing 'public assembly', Dan., Sw. ting 'judicial court' and 'thing', OHG dinc (ding, thing) 'assembly, council', and 'thing' as MHG dinc, NHG ding—all : Goth. þeihs 'time' (14.11). Semantic development 'appointed time' > judicial assembly > subject of debate > 'affair, thing'. Walde-P. 1.725. Falk-Torp 1263. NED s.v. thing.

MHG, NHG sache, fr. OHG sacha 'cause', sometimes 'affair, thing' : OE sacu 'strife, dispute, lawsuit' (NE sake), Goth. sakjō 'strife', etc. (19.62). Similarly Du. zaak, Dan. sag, Sw. sak, with sense 'thing' perh. due to NHG influence. Falk-Torp 942 f. Weigand-H. 2.633.

5. Lith. daiktas (also 'place') : dygti 'sprout' (fr. 'stick up'), diegti, Lett. diegt 'prick', Lat. fīgere 'pierce, fix', etc. Semantic development 'something sticking up, point', whence both 'definite place' (cf. NE point in this sense) and 'item, matter' (cf. NE a point in his favor, etc., NED s.v. point II 5), hence any 'matter, thing'. Walde-P. 1.832 f.

Lett. lieta, perh. : Lith. lytis 'form, shape'. Mühl.-Endz. 2.506.

6. ChSl. veštĭ, Boh. věc, Russ. vešč' : Goth. waihts, etc. (above, 4).

SCr. stvar : ChSl. (sŭ)tvoriti 'make, do' (9.11), tvarĭ 'creation, work, deed', etc. Miklosich 366. Brückner 586.

Pol. rzecz, also and in early period only 'speech' = ChSl. rěčĭ : resti 'say' (18.22). Hence 'subject matter' and further generalization. Brückner 475.

Russ. delo 'deed, work' and generic 'thing' as 'affair, matter', etc. (but not used of material objects) = ChSl. dělo, etc. 'work' (9.12). Berneker 194.

7. Skt. vastu-, fr. vas- 'remain, dwell' (7.11), hence orig. the 'abiding, existing' (thing).

Words for 'be', denoting existence and serving as the copula, are mostly derived from two IE roots, of which one (es-) was the most colorless, while the other (bheu-, bhū-*) evidently had the primary sense of 'come into being, become'. Other roots, meaning 'remain, stay', 'stand', or 'sit', have furnished some of the forms. Nearly everywhere two or more of these roots supplement each other in the complete verb.

The forms given in the list are merely illustrative of the different roots. The details of distribution and the precise history of particular forms (e.g. Lat. 1sg. sum, Grk. 3pl. εἰσί, OE 3pl. aron) are too complicated for discussion here and irrelevant to our general purpose. For Celtic cf. Pedersen 2.418 ff., and for English and Germanic in general NED s.v. be.

1. IE es-, weak grade s-. Walde-P. 1.160 f. Ernout-M. 1001.

Grk. εἰμί, Aeol. ἔμμι (esmi*), 3sg. ἐστί, NG εἶμαι (mid. starting fr. forms like imperf. ἤμην NT), 3sg., pl. εἶναι (fr. ἔνι = ἔνεστι; vowels after εἶμαι); Lat. esse, sum, est, etc., with Romance pres. forms; infin. esse > VLat. essere* after legere, etc., hence It. essere, Fr. être, Sp. ser; Celt. 3sg. (as copula) Ir. is, W. ys, yw, Br. es, etc. (Pedersen 2.422 ff.); Gmc. 3sg. Goth., OHG–NHG ist, OE–NE is, ON, Dan. er, Sw. är; OLith. 1sg. esmi (now esu), Lett. esmu, OPruss. asmai, 3sg. 2. IE bheu-, bhū-, primarily 'come into being, become', this sense prevailing, on the whole, in Indo-Iranian, frequent also in early (and partly modern) Slavic, and wholly dominant in Grk., as φύομαι, aor. ἔφυν 'come into being', esp. 'grow' (φύω 'bring forth, beget'), φύσις 'nature', φυτόν 'plant', etc., and in a Lat. differentiated form (fierī, fīō). Walde-P. 2.140 f. Ernout-M. 1001. Walde-H. 1.557 f.

Lat. perf. fuī, etc. (early Lat. also infin. fore, imperf. subj. forem, Osc. fusíd 'esset'), It., Sp. fui, Fr. fus, Rum. fuĭ, Rum. infin. fi, etc.; Ir. biuu, NIr. bīm (consuetud. pres.), infin. Skt. bhavati, Av. bavati, OPers. 3sg. pret. abava, etc.) 'become' and simply 'be'. (NPers. būdan 'be').

3. IE *wes-, primary notion 'remain, abide, dwell', as in Skt. vas-, Av. vah- (7.11). Walde-P. 1.306 f. Feist 567.

Infin. Goth. wisan, ON vera, Dan. være, Sw. vara, OE, OHG wesan, MHG wesen; pret. Goth., OHG, MHG was (NHG war), ON, Dan., Sw. var, OE wæs, ME, NE was, etc.

4. IE stā-* 'stand'.

From Lat. stāre, pple. It. stato, Fr. été, Sp. estado, also Sp. estar with pres. forms, etc.; Ir. -tāu-, NIr. tāim fr. atāim (Pedersen 2.431. Thurneysen, Gram. 477 f.).

Cf. derivs. of the same root for the stronger 'exist', sometimes hardly more than 'be', as Lat. ex-istere (> Fr. exister, NE exist, etc.), NHG bestehen (also entstehen 'come into being, arise'), and for 'become' (9.92).

5. Forms of Lat. sedēre 'sit' are mixed with those of esse in the inflection of Sp. ser. Hanssen, Sp. Gram. p. 76.

6. Lith. 3sg., pl. yra, Lett. ir (old ira) is prob. an old noun meaning 'existence', but etym. unknown (OE 2sg. eart, pl. aron, NE art, are, prob. fr. es-*, cf. NED). J. Schmidt KZ 25.595.

Br.	dont (mont) da veza	NHG	werden

As already stated in 9.91, one of the two IE roots for 'be' denoted primarily 'come into being, become', this sense prevailing or frequent in some of the IE languages.

Other sources of 'become' are 'be born, come, turn (cf. also NE turn pale, etc.), remain, stand', and reflexive forms of 'make, do'. Apart from the words included in the list, 'become' with predicate complement, as 'become warm' may also be expressed by 'grow' (NE grow warm, but most commonly get warm), or by inchoative derivatives, e.g. Lat. calēscere 'become warm', Russ. sogrevat'sya 'become warm'.

1. Grk. γίγνομαι, later γίνομαι also and orig. 'be born' : γένος 'race', Lat. gignere 'beget, bear', pass. 'be born', Skt. jan- 'beget, bear', etc. (4.71).

2. Lat. fierī : fuī 'was', Skt. bhū- 'be, become', etc. (9.91).

It. divenire, diventare, Fr., Sp. devenir, Rum. deveni (fr. Fr.), fr. Lat. dēvenīre 'arrive'. REW 2612.

'Become' is also commonly expressed by the reflexive of 'make', It. farsi, Sp. hacerse, Rum. să face.

3. Ir. 'become' prob. expressed impersonally by phrases as in NIr.

NIr. tigim 'come' (10.48) used impersonally, e.g. tāinig formad agam leo, lit. 'envy came to me toward them' = 'I became envious of them'.

NIr. ēirghim 'rise, arise' (10.21), used impersonally in the same way, e.g. d'ēirigh buile dhō, lit. 'rage arose to him' = he became furious'.

W. dyfod 'come' (10.48), and more orig. (as cpd. of bod 'be') 'become'.

Br. dont (or mont) da (veza), i.e. dont 'come' (10.48) or mont 'go' (10.47) with softening da or da veza (= beza 'being, be', 9.91).

4. Goth. wairþan, ON verða (Dan. vorde, Sw. varda arch.), OE weorþan, ME worthe, OHG werdan, MHG, NHG werden, Du. worden : Lat. vertere, Skt. vṛt-, etc. 'turn' (10.12). Cf. NE turn (= become) pale, etc. Walde-P. 1.274 f. Falk-Torp 1393.

Dan. blive, Sw. bliva, fr. MLG bliven = Goth. bileiban, OHG biliban, NHG bleiben 'remain' (12.16). Falk-Torp 83. Hellquist 79.

OE becuman 'arrive, come', also (late) 'become', ME, NE become, cpd. of cuman 'come'.

5. Lith. tapti, Lett. tapt, perh. : OE þafian 'consent, permit', Grk. τόπος 'place'. Walde-P. 1.743. Mühl.-Endz. 4.132.

Other expressions for 'become', Lith. darytis (reflex. of daryti 'do, make'; cf. It. farsi, etc.), pastoti (like Slavic, cf. below), pavirsti (cpd. of virsti 'turn'); Lett. iznākt (lit. 'come out', cpd. of nākt 'come', 10.48).

6. ChSl. byti 'be' (9.91), also 'become'. So sometimes in modern Slavic, esp. SCr. biti, Russ. byt'.

SCr. postati, Boh. státi se, Pol. (zo)stać się, Russ. stat', stanovat'sja : ChSl. stati, etc. 'stand'.

Russ. (s)delat'sja, refl. of (s)delat' 'do, make'.

7. Skt. bhū-, Av., OPers. bū- 'be' (9.91), but esp. 'become'.

NIr.	gābhadh, riachtanag, ēigin	OHG	durft, nōt	Av.	. . . .
W.	angen, rhaid	MHG	durft, nōt
Br.	ezomm, red	NHG	bedürfnis, bedarf, not, notwendigkeit

Words for 'need' and 'necessity' are taken together, since there is much overlapping and no sharp demarcation. The same word, or words of the same cognate group, may cover both. Or the dominant sense may shift, as OE nēad mostly 'necessity' (also 'violence, compulsion') vs. þearf 'need', but NE need vs. necessity. However, whenever there are several words in the same language, they are listed in the order which corresponds most nearly to 'need' and 'necessity', that is, in the order of increasing urgency.

Some of the words for 'necessity' are often used in the sense of 'distress', as Grk. ἀνάγκη, OHG nōt, this sense being dominant in NHG not vs. the unambiguous deriv. notwendigkeit.

'Need' implies the 'lack' or 'want' of something, and words which have primarily this sense may sometimes express 'need', as NE want in attend to his wants, etc. (NED s.v. want, sb².5). Cf. Grk. δέω, primarily 'be lacking, be without', but also 'need' and esp. impers. δεῖ 'it is necessary, must'.

Many of the words listed are without any certain root connection which might determine the ultimate underlying sense. But in one large group (the one including NE need) 'violence' or 'distress' seems to be the primary notion. Other sources are 'work, unyieldingness, care, what is of use, what comes, purpose, what is against one's will, what one cannot get round'.

1. Grk. χρεία (beside impers. vb. χρή needs, must'), with χρέος 'debt', χρῆμα 'thing', pl. 'property', etc., extensive Grk. group, primary sense prob. 'lack, need' and so best : χερείων, χέρηες 'inferior', Skt. hrasva- 'short, small', Ir. gair 'short', etc. Walde-P. 1.604. Boisacq 1069 f. Otherwise Brugmann, IF 37.239 f.

Grk. ἀνάγκη : Ir. ēcen, NIr. ēigin, W. angen 'necessity, need' (Br. anken 'distress), root connection? Walde-P. 1.60. Benveniste, Origines 155.

2. Lat. opus 'work' (9.12), hence opus est 'there is work' = 'there is need'. Hence It. uopo and other dial. Romance forms, but not the usual word for 'need'. Ernout-M. 708. REW 6079.

Lat. necessitās (> It., Fr., Sp. forms), fr. necesse 'necessary' (in phrases with esse or habēre), neg. cpd. : cēdere (cezd-*, Walde-H. 1.193), 'yield'. Hence orig. 'what is unyielding'. Ernout-M. 661.

Although Lat. egēre is the reg. vb. for 'need', the sense of 'be in need, be poor' (prevailing in Plaut. and Ter.) is dominant in its deriv. egestās.

It. bisogno (MLat. bisonium), Fr. besoin, prob. fr. a Gmc. cpd. (Goth. bisunja* assumed fr. adv. bisunjane 'round about') of the word (like OS sunnea 'care') which is the source of Fr. soin 'care' (16.14). REW 8089a. Gamillscheg 804.

Rum. trebuință, fr. trebui 'be necessary', 3sg. trebue 'must', this fr. Slavic (cf. 9.94).

3. Ir. ēcen, NIr. ēigin, W. angen : Grk. ἀνάγκη (above, 1).

NIr. gābhadh (also and orig. 'danger'), fr. Ir. gābud 'danger' (16.54).

NIr. riachtanag, fr. riachtain 'attaining', vbl. n. of Ir. riccim 'reach, attain' (10.55). Development fr. a fatalistic 'what comes to one'.

W. rhaid, Br. red, prob. : Lat. ratiō 'reckoning, manner, cause', etc. Pedersen 1.69. Henry 231.

4. Goth. þaurfts (χρεία, ἀνάγκη), ON þǫrf, þurft, OE þearf, OHG, MHG durft, NHG bedürfnis (new formation fr. vb. bedürfen), with vbs. Goth. þaurban*,

ON þurfa, OE þurfan*, OHG durfan (NHG dürfen. now mostly 'may'; as 'need' replaced by bedürfen), esp. pret.-pres. Goth., ON þarf, OE þearf, þarf, OHG–NHG darf; outside root connections dub. (: Skt. tṛp- 'be satisfied, pleased', Grk. τέρπω 'delight', Lith. tarpti 'thrive' ??), but prob. : ChSl. trěbovati 'need', sb. potrěba, etc. (below, 6), with variant final. Walde-P. 1.737. Falk-Torp 1248 f. Feist 491 f.

Goth. nauþs (ἀνάγκη), ON nauð(r), Dan. nød, Sw. nöd, OE nēad, ME nede, NE need, Du. nood, OHG, MHG nōt, NHG not; meaning also 'violence, compulsion, distress' in early periods and so still e.g. NHG not vs. the deriv. notwendigkeit 'necessity' (through the adj. notwendig; hence Dan. nødvendig, nødvendighet, Sw. nödvändig, nödvändighet) : OPruss. nautin (acc. sg.) 'necessity, distress', Boh. nyti 'languish', unaviti 'tire' (trans.), etc. prob. also ChSl. nąžda, nužda, etc. (below, 6). Walde-P. 2.316. Falk-Torp 782 f. Weigand-H. 2.312. Feist 372.

Dan., Sw. behov, fr. MLG behōf = Du. behoef, OE behōf, NHG behuf, 'use, advantage'. Du. behoefte fr. behoef, with same development of 'need' fr. 'what is of use'. So OE behōfian 'have need of', later 'be proper' (NE behoove). All ultimately : Goth. hafjan 'raise', Lat. capere 'take', etc. Cf. NHG brauchen 'make use of' and now also 'need'. Falk-Torp 58, 455. Hellquist 61. NED s.v. behoof.

Lett. vajadzība, fr. vb. vajadzēt, this fr. vajaga 'need, necessity' in vajaga (ir) 'is necessary', fr. Liv. vajāg 'need, needful, necessary'. Mühl.-Endz. 4.445.

6. ChSl. potrěba (χρεία, ἀνάγκη in Gospels), SCr. potreba, Boh. potřeba, Pol. potrzeba, Russ. potrebnost', cpds. fr. root of vbs. ChSl. trěbovati, SCr. trebati 'need', prob. with variant final : Goth. þaurfts 'need', etc. (above, 4).

ChSl. nąžda (ἀνάγκη in Gospels), also nužda (Supr., etc.), SCr., Russ. nužda, Boh. nouze (Pol. nędza 'misery, distress', as the others in part, nuda 'weariness'), with difficult phonetic relations, but prob. : Goth. nauþs, etc. (above, 4). Brückner 358. Osthoff, Parerga 355.

ChSl. nevolja (ἀνάγκη, e.g. Mt. 18.7 vs. nązda Lk. 14.18), SCr. id. (but mostly 'misery'; cf. Boh. nevole 'dislike, disgust', Russ. nevolja 'bondage'), lit. 'un-will', neg. cpd. of volja 'will'.

Pol. konieczność, through adj. konieczny 'needful' fr. koniec 'end' (12.35) and 'purpose'. Brückner 252.

Russ. nadobnost', fr. nadobno 'it is necessary' (9.94).

Russ. neobchodimost' (the strongest word), through adj. neobchodimyj, fr. neg. cpd. of obchoditi 'go round, pass over', hence lit. what one cannot 'get round', i.e. 'evade, escape'.

7. Apparently there is no common Skt. noun for 'need', which is expressed by gerundives of particular verbs, of which perh. the most nearly generic is kartavya- adj. and neut. sb. 'what is to be done'. Also kartavyatā- and -tva-m 'obligation, necessity'.

Skt. āvaçyaka-, adj. and neut. sb., also āvaçyakatā-, fr. avaçya- in adv. avaçyam 'necessarily, certainly' and cpds. like avaçya-karman- 'necessary action', avaçya-kārya- 'necessary to be done', etc., avaçya- being lit. 'against one's will', fr. a- privative and vaç- 'wish, will'. Cf. ChSl. nevolja, above, 6.

The expressions for 'ought, must' are cited in the third singular. Some of them are only so used, that is, impersonally, as Grk. δεῖ, Lat. oportet, Lith. reikia. Others may also be used personally ('I ought, must', etc.).

'Ought' (implying obligation, whether or not fulfilled) and the more urgent 'must' (implying compulsion, whether from within oneself or from outward circumstances) are taken together, since the distinction is often ignored (the same word covering both) or brought out by different forms of the same verb. What was originally 'ought' may become virtually 'must' in the present indicative, the weaker 'ought' being expressed by a modal form, e.g. Fr. doit (fr. Lat. dēbet) 'is to, must' vs. condit. devrait 'ought' (similarly in It., Sp.). Cf. also NE ought, should, NHG sollte originally pret. subj. forms; Russ. dolžen by, nadobno by (by the old conditional) weaker than the plain dolžen or nadobno.

Most of the words that meant primarily 'ought' are from verbs for 'owe' (11.63).

Of the other words listed, many are connected with those for 'need, necessity' (9.93). In several cases 'may' has become 'must', probably starting in negative phrases ('may not' = 'must not'). Another source is 'is fitting, proper', strengthened to 'ought' or even 'must'.

Widespread is the use of verbs for 'have' as 'must' ('has it to do' > 'has to do it'). So in late Grk., late Lat. and the Romance languages, Br., NHG, Lith., Slavic. Such forms are only partially entered in the list, namely, under Sp., Lith., Boh. and NE, where they are most important.

The notion of obligation or necessity with reference to a particular action is also expressed by verbal derivatives like the Grk. -τέος and the Lat. and Skt. gerundives. Only the last are included in the list, as the usual method of expression, there being no special Skt. verb in common use for 'ought, must'.

A widespread substitute for 'ought, must' is seen in phrases like NE it is to be noted, more commonly with act. infin. (so formerly in English), as Fr. c'est à remarquer, Sp. es de notar, NHG es ist zu bemerken. In Lith. and Lett. the future 'it will be' is so used.

1. Grk. χρή (reg. Hom. term; δεῖ only once), see under χρεία 'need' (9.93).

Grk. δεῖ impers. (usual prose term), fr. δέω 'lack, miss, need', Aeol. δεύω :

Skt. doṣa- 'lack, fault, guilt, harm'. Walde-P. 1.782. Boisacq 180.

Grk. ὀφείλει, fr. ὀφείλω 'owe' (11.63), used also personally as 'ought', esp. in imperf. and aor.

Grk. ἀνάγκη ἐστί (NG εἶναι), phrase with ἀνάγκη 'necessity' (9.93).

Grk. πρέπει 'is fitting' (9.943), in NG (and sometimes Byz.), also 'ought, must' (the usual pop. expression).

Grk. ἔχει 'has' in late Grk. = 'must' (incipiently in NT, common Byz., also used as future).

2. Lat. opus est, necesse est, phrases with opus 'work, need' and necesse 'necessary' (9.93).

Lat. oportet, impers. 'is proper, ought', perh. fr. op-vortet* : vortere, vertere 'turn'. Walde-P. 1.122. Ernout-M. 704 f.

Lat. dēbet, fr. dēbēre 'owe' (11.63), used also personally as 'ought'. Hence It. deve, Fr. doit, Sp. debe, now stronger vs. It. dovrebbe, Fr. devrait, Sp. debiera (or imperf. indic. debía).

Lat. habet 'has', late 'must', e.g. ipsam vallem nos traversare habebamus 'we had to cross this valley' (Peregrin. 2.1). Hence It. ha, Fr. a, Sp. ha de (also hay que impers.), Rum. are, and similarly Sp. tiene que fr. tener 'have' (11.11).

It. bisogna : bisogno 'need' (9.93).

Fr. il faut, impers., fr. Lat. fallit, fr. fallere 'deceive, escape notice', esp. in phrases like mē fallit 'is unknown to me' (mostly with neg.), hence 'fails me'. Development 'fails' > 'is lacking' > 'is needed, is necessary'. REW 3167. Gamillscheg 402. Wartburg 3.389.

Rum. trebue, fr. Slavic, cf. ChSl. trěbuetŭ 'needs' (below, 6).

3. Ir. is ēcen, NIr. is ēigin 'is necessary', phrases with nouns for 'need, necessity' (9.93).

NIr. ba cheart, ba chōir, phrases with ba 'was' and ceart or cōir 'right, just, proper' (16.73), hence orig. 'was right, proper', then = 'ought' as past, now also as present.

W. dylai, Br. dle, fr. W. dylwn 'ought' orig. 'owe' (cf. dyled 'debt'), Br. dleout 'owe, ought'.

W. rhaid (i), Br. red eo, phrases with nouns for 'need, necessity' (9.93).

Br. renk, rank, fr. renkout, rankout 'be obliged', this prob. : Ir. riccim 'reach, attain' (cf. pret. ranac, etc., Pedersen 2.556), riccim less 'need'. Henry 232.

Br. also phrases a dlean, a renkan (: preceding) and with forms of beza 'be', as eo (da) 'is to', or kaout 'have'. Vallée s.v. devoir.

4. Goth., ON skal, OE sceal, ME s(c)hal, NE shall, Du. zal, OHG scal, MHG sol, NHG soll (but NE shall, Du. zal, NHG soll mostly in other uses; as 'must' bibl., e.g. thou shalt not steal, or uncommon) pret.-pres. of Goth. skulan, OE, OHG sculan 'owe' (11.63). Hence for 'ought' NE should, NHG sollte, orig. pret. subj. NED s.v. shall.

ON verðr, special use of verða 'become, happen' (9.92).

Dan. bør, Sw. bör : ON byrja, 'behave, be suitable', OE gebyrian, OHG giburien (NHG gebühren) 'be suitable, happen' (9.993). Cf. OE gebyraþ in Gospels Jn. 9.4 (δεῖ, oportet; the Lindisf. version has gedæfnaþ : Goth. gadaban 'be fitting, happen', 9.993), and Du. behoort 'belongs, is proper' sometimes 'ought'. Falk-Torp 118. Hellquist 125.

ON ā, OE āh, ME owe, fr. ON eiga, OE āgan 'own' (11.12), sometimes 'ought', but in this sense replaced by pret. ME oughte, NE ought. NED s.v. owe and ought.

Dan. maa 'may' and 'must' (Sw. må 'may', as 'must' replaced by måste, below) = ON mā, Goth. mag, OE mæg, etc. 'can' (9.95). Falk-Torp 687 f. Hellquist 670.

OE mōt, ME mote 'may' and must', as 'must' displaced by ME moste, NE must, orig. pret. or esp. the pret. subj.—Du. moet 'ought' and 'must', OHG, MHG muoz 'may' and 'must', NHG muss 'must' : Goth. ga-mōt 'has room for' (χωρεῖ), OHG muoza, NHG musse 'free time, leisure', perh. fr. the root of Goth. mitan, etc. 'measure'. Sw. måste 'must' fr. (or old må reformed fr.) MLG pret. moste. Semantic development 'has (or there is) room or time for' > 'be permitted, may' (cf. Grk. συγχωρέω 'assent to, agree', συγχωρεῖ 'it is agreed, may be done') > 'must'. Walde-P. 2.260. NED s.v. mote and must. Franck-v. W. 437. Weigand-H. 242 f. Hellquist 678.

OE nēodaþ, ME nedeth, NE needs (: OE nēad 'need', 9.93), also used with notion of obligation or necessity. NED s.v. need vb.

NHG darf orig. 'needs' (9.93), now 'may' and esp. with neg. 'must'.

NE has to, now the most common expression for 'must' (barring perhaps the more colloq. has got to; cf. even U.S. vulgar I gotta) and favored by the fact that, in contrast to must, it has a past tense in same use (had to do it). Similarly NHG hat (er hat abzuwarten 'he must wait'), but much less important for this sense than NE has.

5. Lith. reikia (impers.), cf. reikalas, 9.93.

Lith. tur, fr. turėti 'have' (11.11), the common expression for 'must'.

Lett. vajaga (ir) impers., cf. vajadzība, 9.93.

'Ought, must' also expressed by fut. of verb 'be', lit. 'it will be', e.g. Lith. rytoj bus i giria važiuoti 'tomorrow we must ride into the forest' (NSB p. 93; cf. Senn, Lit. Sprachlehre p. 58), Lett. tev nebūs zagt 'thou shalt not steal' (Mühl.-Endz. 1.359).

6. ChSl. dlŭžĭnŭ jestŭ (ὀφείλει both as 'owes' and 'ought', latter e.g. Jn. 19.7), SCr. dužan je, Russ. dolžen (without copula) and the weaker dolžen by, phrase with adj. ChSl. dlŭžĭnŭ 'in debt', fr. dlŭgŭ 'debt' (11.63).

ChSl. podobajetŭ (in Gospels for δεῖ, Supr. also for χρή, ὀφείλει, πρέπει), fr. podoba in podoba jestŭ (Supr. δεῖ, πρέπει, etc.), orig. po-doba 'what is timely, suitable' : doba 'point of time, time' (not quotable in ChSl., but SCr., Boh., etc., 14.11), Goth. gadaban 'be suitable', etc. Similarly Russ. na-doba, whence nadobno or shortened nado impers. 'it is necessary' and the weaker nado(bno) by. Berneker 203 f.

SCr. treba, Pol. trzeba (impers.), Boh. treba jest, all orig. sb. 'need' : ChSl. potrěba 'need', vb. trěbovati, 3sg., trěbuetŭ 'needs' (9.93).

SCr. mora 'must' (also Slov.) : more = može 'can' (ž > r, Leskien SCr. Gram. p. 105, Vondrak, Slav. Gram. p. 459) = ChSl. možetŭ 'can' (9.95). Development fr. 'can' > 'must' (like 'may' > 'must' in Gmc., above, 4) and differentiated form, spreading fr. Slov. and Croat. territory. Rječnik Akad. 7.1 f. Miklosich 199. Berneker 2.67.

Boh. musí, Pol. musi, fr. NHG muss. Brückner 348 f. Stender-Petersen 318.

Pol. powinieneś, usual expression for 'ought', fr. adj. powinien 'obliged' (: wina 'fault, guilt', 16.76) with vb. 'to be'.

SCr. ima, Boh. má, Pol. ma, Russ. imejet 'has', all used sometimes like NE has to, most commonly the Boh. má (or měl jest, měl by).

7. Skt. arhati 'deserves, may', sometimes 'ought', beside argha- 'worth, price' : Av. arəjaiti 'is worth', Grk. ἀλφή 'produce, gain', ἀλφάνω 'bring in, yield'. Walde-P. 1.91.

But in Indo-Iranian the notion of obligation or necessity is commonly expressed by the gerundives or modal forms of particular verbs.

'Duty', understood here in the most usual present sense of NE duty, namely as moral obligation, is most commonly expressed by words connected with the verbs for 'ought', 'owe' (9.94, 11.63), in fact, in several languages by phrases containing such verbs, 'what one ought', rather than by nouns. Other semantic sources are 'performance, activity', 'care' and 'what comes to one, becomes one, concerns one'. Some of the words were used primarily for the financial duty, 'debt', but the two notions are generally distinguished.

1. In the earlier Grk. writers there is no single distinctive sb. for 'duty'. It was expressed by phrases with vbs. for 'ought' as ὁ ὀφείλει (sb. ὀφείλημα only 'debt'), χρή, δεῖ (with pple. δέον); by simple genitive with forms of εἰμί, as πολίτου ἐστί 'is the part of, the duty of, a citizen'; by phrases like καθήκει μοι, προσήκει μοι 'belongs to, concerns me, is my duty'. With these last, also the pples. used substantively, esp. καθῆκον which became the technical term of the Stoics. Cf. περὶ καθήκοντος, title of a work by Zeno, and Cic. ad Att. non dubito quin καθῆκον "officium" sit. Grk. χρέος 'debt' (11.64), NG also 'duty', as ἔκαμα τὸ χρέος μου 'I did my duty'.

2. Lat. officium, fr. opi-ficiom*, cpd. of opus 'work' and facere 'do' (cf. opifex, artifex, artificium), earliest sense 'performance, activity', hence the usual 'duty'. Ernout-M. 700. Skutsch, Glotta 2.161 ff.

It. dovere, Fr. devoir, Sp. deber, infins., used as sbs., of vbs. for 'owe' and 'ought' (9.94).

Rum. datorie 'debt' (11.64) and 'duty'.

3. Ir. dliged 'right, law', also 'duty'(?), W. dyled 'debt' and 'duty', Br. dlead 'duty' beside dle 'debt', see 11.64.

NIr. dualgar, fr. dual 'fit, proper', etym.? Macbain 145.

4. In older Gmc. 'duty' was expressed by phrases with vbs. for 'owe, ought', Goth. skulan, etc. (9.94, 11.63), e.g. Goth., OE in Lk. 17.10 (where verbal phrase also in Grk. and Vulgate). The corresponding sbs., OE scyld, etc., were used for 'debt' or 'guilt', but not 'duty'.

ME duetee, NE duty, fr. Anglo-Fr. dueté, formed (like beauté 'beauty', etc.) fr. du 'due', pple. of devoir 'owe'. In ME the more usual sense was that of deference, or financial duty, 'debt' (cf. the present customs duties). NED sv.. duty.

NHG pflicht (as moral 'duty' only since 16th cent.) fr. OHG pfliht 'intercourse, care', formed fr. pflegan 'be answerable for, care for'. Same development or semantic borrowing in Du., MLG plicht (> Dan., Sw. pligt), Weigand-H. 2.413. Paul, Deutsches Wtb. 394.

5. Lith. pareiga, formed like eiga 'course', fr. pareiti 'come back', 'come to', hence 'what comes to, becomes one'. Leskien, Bildung d. Nom. 523.

Lett. pienākums, fr. pie-nākt 'come to, reach, concern'. Mühl-Endz. 3.275.

6. ChSl., only verbal phrase for 'ought'.

SCr. dužnost, deriv. of adj. dužan 'in debt' = ChSl. dlŭžĭnŭ id., fr. dlŭgŭ 'debt'.

Boh. povinnost', Pol. powinność, fr. adj. povinný, powinny 'obliged, due' derivs. of ChSl. vina, etc. 'fault, guilt' (16.76).

Russ. dolg 'debt' (11.64), also 'duty'.

7. Skt. dharma- 'custom, law' (21.11) may cover 'duty'; or kṛtya- 'what is to be done, proper'.

The notion 'fitting, suitable' is expressed by a great variety of terms, with semantic sources too diverse to summarize.

1. Grk. ἐπιτήδειος, fr. adv. ἐπίτηδες, Dor. ἐπίτᾱδες 'purposely, fittingly', this of dub. etym. The old view that it is based on a phrase ἐπὶ *τᾶδε is attractive semantically, but a nom.-acc. pl. neut. in -ā (= Vedic -ā) is otherwise unknown. However, there could be an adv. τᾶδε 'in this way' (of instrumental orig.), parallel to Lac. ταυτᾶ, Delph., Cret. ἇδε, etc. For a quite different, but unconvincing, suggestion, cf. Brugmann, Demonstrativpronomina 141 f.

Grk. εὔθετος 'well placed', sometimes 'convenient, suitable'.

Grk. πρέπων, pres. pple., or more commonly 3sg. impers. πρέπει 'is fitting', fr. πρέπω 'be conspicuous', prob. : Ir. richt, W. rhith 'form, appearance', etc. Walde-P. 2.89. Boisacq 810.

Grk. καταλληλος 'corresponding, appropriate', NG 'suitable, fitting', fr. κατά 'according to' and ἀλλήλους, ἄλληλα 'one another'.

2. Lat. conveniēns, fr. convenīre 'come together', 3sg. impers. convenit 'is suitable', whence also the Romance forms, It. convenevole, etc. (see list).

Lat. idōneus, based on some pronominal form like id, etc., but precise analysis dub. Ernout-M. 471. Walde-H. 1.671 f.

Lat. aptus, orig. 'fastened', but mostly fig. 'suitable', pass. pple. of the rare apere 'bind' beside apiscī 'reach, obtain' : Skt. āp- 'reach, obtain', etc. Ernout-M. 60 f. Walde-H. 1.57 f.

Lat. habilis 'easy to handle', hence also 'fit, suitable' (and skilful), fr. habēre (11.11).

Despite the difference between 'can', implying physical or mental power, ability, and 'may', implying permission or possibility, these notions are very commonly merged in their linguistic expression. That is, they are covered by the same word, either in accepted usage or at least in popular usage. Even in English, the teacher who conscientiously corrects the pupil's can I? to may I? is engaged in a hopeless struggle. Furthermore, the Gmc. group represented by NE may meant 'can' in the early period.

The strictly permissive 'may' finds more distinctive expression in some forms like the Lat. impers. licet, NHG darf. More generally as 'is permitted', with pass. forms of the verbs for 'permit' (19.47), e.g. NG μοῦ ἐπιτρέπεται; 'is it permitted me, may I?' These obvious expressions are not repeated in the list.

Most of the words are connected with others for 'might, power', for which no earlier ultimate sense is attainable. Words for 'know' are in many languages used as 'know how' and so virtually 'can', like Fr. il sait lire 'he (knows how to) can read'. The full development in this direction, displacing the older meaning 'know' and the old words for 'can', is characteristic of the Gmc. group, NE can, etc.

1. Grk. δύναται, with δυνατός 'strong, powerful' and δύναμις 'strength, power', etym. dub. (4.81). NG δυνατός and δύναμις are still the common words, but δύναται (δύναμαι, etc.), while lit. and familiar to most, is commonly replaced by the following:

NG μπορεῖ (also ἠμπορεῖ; late Byz. spelling varied), certainly fr. εὐπορεῖ 'prospers, has plenty', sometimes with infin. 'finds a way, is able, can' (Aristot.), and in this sense well attested in late Grk. (e.g. Jo. Moschus). The only question is the precise formal development, which is much disputed. Regularly εὐπορεῖ > ἐπορεῖ, πορεῖ (Hatzidakis, Glotta 22.131). Then nasal introduced (causing change of $p > b$), either by influence of ἔμπορος 'merchant' (so Hatzidakis, l.c., but?); or from neg. phrase δὲν πορεῖ pronounced δεμπορεῖ with subsequent detachment of (ἐ)μπορεῖ (so Jannaris, Hist. Greek Gram. §§ 130, 132b); or (another possibility not previously considered) the influence of opposite cpds. like ἔμμορφος vs. ἄμορφος (that is, ἐμπορεῖ vs. ἀπορεῖ sometimes = 'is unable').

Grk. ἔξεστι, lit. 'it is' (for some one to), used as 'it is permitted'. So often, and in NT, where it is rendered by licet in the Vulgate, in other versions by phrases meaning 'is due' (Goth. skuld ist), 'is proper' (ChSl. dostojitŭ, NHG sich ziemet Luther), 'is lawful' (King James), or by pass. forms of the verbs for 'permit' (OE alȳfed is, etc.).

2. Lat. potest (> Romance forms), fr. potis est and pote est, phrase with potis, neut. pote 'able, possible' : Skt. pati- 'master, husband', Grk. πόσις 'husband', Goth. faþs in brūþ-faþs 'bridegroom', hunda-faþs 'master of a hundred, centurion', Lith. patis 'husband', etc. Walde-P. 2.77 f. Ernout-M. 796.

Lat. licet, impers. 'it is permitted, may' (Osc. licitud 'liceto') : licēre, licērī 'be or offer for sale, bid on, appraise', this perh. : Lett. līkt 'agree in trade' (adversely Mühl.-Endz. 2.487). Walde-P. 2.395. Ernout-M. 547 f. Walde-H. 1.797.

3. Ir. conic, cpd. of com- 'with' and icc- in other cpds. 'cause, find, come' (cf. do-iccim, 10.48). Pedersen 2.554. Thurneysen, Gram. 503.

Ir. ēta 'gets' and, after neg., 'can', more freq. pres. pass. fētar (cf. Laws, Gloss. 353), NIr. fēadann, fēadtar (1sg. fēadaim) or phrase is fēidir, cpd. of -tā- in attā 'is' (9.91), ad-co-ta 'obtains, gets' (11.16), etc., IE stā-* 'stand'. Pedersen 2.638. (Otherwise Stokes 323.)

NIr. tig leis, lit. 'comes with him', frequent expression for 'can' (tig liom 'I can', etc.).

W. gall, Br. gall, gell : Corn. gallos, OBr. gol 'might', Ir. gal 'bravery', Lith. galėti 'be able', 3sg. gal 'can', galia 'might', etc. Walde-P. 1.539. Pedersen 1.156 f.

4. Goth. mag, ON mā, OE mæg, OHG mag, all 'can' (with sbs. Goth. mahts, OE meaht, OHG maht 'power, might'), but in later use 'may', as NE may, NHG, Du. mag, Sw. må (Dan. also 'must') : ChSl. mošti, mogą, 3sg. možetŭ, etc., general Slavic, prob. Grk. μῆχος 'means, remedy'. Walde-P. 2.227. Falk-Torp 687 f. NED s.v. may.

OE mōt, ME mote, OHG, MHG muoz 'may' and 'must', see 9.94.

ME, NE can, MHG, Du., Dan. kan, NHG kann, all orig. 'know', as Goth., ON, OHG kann, OE can : Grk. γιγνώσκω, Lat. (g)nōscere, etc. 'know' (17.17), with development through 'knows how' (to do something).

NHG darf, orig. 'needs' (9.93), now usual for the permissive 'may'.

5. Lith. gal (galiu, galėti) : W. gall, etc. (above, 3).

Lett. var (varu, varēt), with sb. vara, OPruss. warrin (acc. sg.) 'might, power', etym.? Mühl.-Endz. 4.475, 477. Lett. var covers 'can' and 'may', but the latter is also expressed by the particle lai, orig. imperat. of laist 'leave, let'. Mühl.-Endz. 2.400.

6. ChSl. možetŭ (mogą, mošti), SCr. može, etc., general Slavic : Goth. mag 'can', etc. (above, 4).

SCr. smije, Boh. smí (smjeti, smiti), now used like NHG darf, that is, 'may' or with neg. 'must', orig. 'dare' : ChSl. sŭměti 'dare' (16.51).

7. Skt. çaknoti (çak-), reg. word for 'can', beside desid. çiks- 'learn' : Av. sač- 'take note of', desid. sixš- 'learn', caus. 'teach' (Barth. 1551 f.), development perh. through 'know how', but outside connections dub. Walde-P. 1.333. Uhlenbeck 301.

Av. tavaiti, with tavah- 'might, power' : Skt. tavīti, tāuti 'is strong', tavas-, tura- 'strong, powerful', perh. ultimately the same root as in Lat. tumēre 'swell', etc. Walde-P. 1.706 ff. Barth. 638 f.

Of words for 'easy' the most widespread source is 'light' in weight, developing through phrases like 'light burden, light work', etc. Other sources are the notion of something that is 'at hand, convenient, suitable, do-able', and probably in one group 'uninhabited, empty', with development through 'free from difficulties'. In Greek a word originally applied to a person 'good natured, of easy disposition' was extended to things and eventually became the regular word for 'easy'.

1. Grk. ῥᾴδιος, Ion. ῥηΐδιος, Aeol. βράδιος (βρᾴδιον EM), that is, *ϝρᾱ-ἰδιος, based on the form seen in the adv. ῥᾶ, ῥῆα, Hom. ῥεῖα, Aeol. βρᾶ and in comp. ῥᾴων, superl. ῥᾷστος, but root connection and orig. sense dub. Wackernagel, Vermischte Beiträge 11 ff. Hermann, Gött. Nachrichten 1918, 281. Schwyzer, IF 45.259 f. (: ἀπο-ϝρᾱ- in Hom. ἀπηύρα, ἀπούρας 'take away, rob'; semantic development through 'tearing', 'quick').

Grk. εὔκολος, mostly of persons 'easily satisfied, good-natured', then also of things 'easy' (Plato; but common in this sense only later; reg. Byz. and NG); taken by some (e.g. LS) as orig. 'contented with one's food' (attested late) : κόλον 'intestine', but more prob. belongs with other cpds. in -κολος, -πολος 'turning, tending', etc. (IE *k^wel- in πέλομαι, Lat. colere, etc.; κ reg. after εὐ-, whence also δύσ-κολος as opposite). Walde-P. 1.431 (top; not repeated 514). Still otherwise Boisacq 294.

2. Lat. facilis (> It., Fr. facile, Sp. fácil, all late borrowed forms), lit. 'doable', fr. facere 'do'.

Lat. levis 'light' (15.82), though only rarely quotable as 'easy' (cf. id eo levius ferendum, Cic.), was prob. common in VLat. in this sense and the usual term in Romance before the borrowing of Lat. facilis. This sense is attested for It. lieve in Dante, Petrarch, etc. (Accad. della Crusca), OFr. legere, legiere (cf. Godefroy), Sp. legero in early period (cf. Juan Ruiz); and Rum. uşor (deriv. of levis, Puşcariu 1844) is still the usual word for 'easy' as well as 'light'.

Rum. lesne (with verbal phrases, e.g. lesne a zice 'easy to say'), fr. Bulg. lesen 'easy'. Tiktin 905. Berneker 755.

3. OIr. asse, prob. fr. ad-sta-yo-* 'standing by', hence 'at one's disposal, easily attainable'. Hence MIr. ussa and with intensive prefix (: Lat. per, etc.) irussa, lit. 'very easy' (both forms used as 'easy' and 'easier'), NIr. furus, furas. Pokorny, KZ 45.138, 143 ff.

Ir. soirb (gl. facilis; NIr. soirbh 'favorable, pleasant'), with doirb 'difficult' (NIr. doirbh 'unfavorable'), plainly cpds. of so- and do- (= Skt. su- and dus-), second part perh. : srib 'stream' K. Meyer, Ber. Preuss. Akad. 1917, 626.

Ir. rēid, NIr. rēidh 'level, smooth, clear', and so sometimes 'easy', orig. of a road 'passable' : Ir. riadaim 'ride'. Pedersen 1.58. Hence Ir. so-rēid, soraid, but mostly 'happy, successful', NIr. soraidh, and its opposite do-raid, NIr. doraidh sometimes 'difficult'.

W. hawdd, perh. : W. hedd, Ir. sīd 'peace', with different grades of the root sed-* 'sit', W. hawdd fr. the ā (IE ō) grade as in Ir. con-sādu 'compono'. Loth, RC 36.162 (vs. Morris Jones 135, 247). Another suggestion (: Skt. sādhu- 'effective, well-disposed, correct, good'), G. S. Lane, Language 13.25.

Br. aes, fr. sb. aez, fr. Fr. aise 'ease, comfort' (cf. below, ME aisie, NE easy). Henry 5.

4. Goth. azetizō, comp. 'easier', beside azetaba 'gladly' and azeti* in wizondei in azetjam 'living in pleasure', etym.? Feist. 71.

ON prefix auð-, as in auð-sær 'easy to see', auð-sōttr 'easy to get', etc., OE ēaþe, ēaþelīc, ME ethe, OHG ōdi, MHG œde, prob. same word as Goth. auþs (or auþeis), ON auðr, OHG ōdi 'uninhabited, empty' (NHG öde), with development through 'free from difficulties'. NED s.v. eath. Weigand-H. 2.330. Otherwise (as orig. 'willing' : Skt. av- 'favor, help', Lat. avēre 'desire eagerly', etc.) Falk-Torp 1407 (Walde-P. 1.19 with doubt).

OE lēoht, ME light (often as predicate 'it is easy', now only in phrases like light burden, light work, etc., which are felt as appropriate to the prevailing sense of light = not heavy; NED s.v. light, adj. 18), Dan. let, Sw. lätt, NHG leicht (OHG forms rarely quotable for 'easy', barring the intermediate 'light burden', etc.), all orig. 'light in weight' (15.82), with development of 'easy' through phrases 'light work', etc.

ME aisie, aisy, esy, etc., NE easy, fr. OFr. aisié (Fr. aisé), pple. of aisier 'put at ease', deriv. of aise 'comfort, ease, opportunity' (> ME eise, etc., NE ease sb.), this fr. Lat. adiacēns 'lying near, neighboring', but mainly through 'what is at hand, convenient'. REW 168. Gamillscheg 23. Wartburg 1.31 ff.

Du. gemakkelijk, fr. gemak 'comfort, ease' = OHG gimah 'quiet, comfort', fr. adj. gimah 'suited, convenient' = OE gemæc 'suited, well-matched', etc. Franck-v. W. 185.

5. Lith. lengvas, Lett. viegls 'light' (15.82) and 'easy'.

6. ChSl. udobĭ, adj. and adv. (on form, cf. Leskien, Altbulg. Gram. 97.3; in Gospels ne udobĭ δύσκολον, δυσκόλως and comp. udoběje, in Supr. adv. = ῥᾳδίως, εὐκόλως), cpd. of form seen in doba 'proper time', ChSl. pa-doba jestŭ 'is proper', etc. : Goth. ga-daban 'happen', perf. gadōb 'is proper', etc. Berneker 203 f.

SCr. lak, Russ. legkij 'light' (15.82) and 'easy'.

Boh. snadný = Pol. snadny 'convenient, easy' (but not the usual word) : Pol. snadź adv. 'apparently, perhaps', Russ. snast' 'tool, implement', snadit' 'provide, supply', late ChSl. adv. snadĭ 'superficially', all apparently fr. some such notion as 'on the surface', whence 'apparent' or 'convenient', but without any known root connections. Miklosich 312. Brückner 504.

Pol. latwy (lacwy, lacny) : Boh. laciný, lacný 'cheap', formerly 'easy', láce 'cheapness', formerly 'insignificance, trifle', root connection dub. Berneker 694. Brückner 307 (: SCr. latiti, laćati 'seize, undertake').

7. In Skt. 'easy' and 'difficult' are expressed by cpds. of su- 'well' and dus- 'ill', e.g. sukara- (duşkara-) 'easy (hard) to do', sudarça- (durdarça-) 'easy (hard) to see', etc.

Many of the words for 'difficult' are simply formal opposites of those for 'easy', as Grk. δύσκολος vs. εὔκολος, Lat. difficilis vs. facilis, ON tor- vs. auð-, Skt. dus- vs. su-. Even where there are other words for 'difficult', neg. cpds. or phrases with words for 'easy' may also be in common use, e.g. (besides NE not easy, NHG nicht leicht, etc.) Lith. nelengvas, Boh. nesnadný.

Others are semantic opposites, esp. 'heavy' vs. 'light', with parallel development, starting from phrases like 'heavy burden, heavy work', etc., in which most words for 'heavy' may be used with a suggestion of 'difficult'. But those which occur only in such transitional use, but have not gone the full way to 'it is difficult to', are not included in the list.

Another source is 'hard' vs. 'soft', through the notion of 'resistant', notably in ME, NE hard, but incipiently elsewhere (e.g. Lat. dūrum est 'it is difficult', freq. in Horace; less clearly in NHG hartes leben, etc.).

Several are in origin 'toilsome, laborious', derivs. of words for 'toil, labor'.

1. Grk. χαλεπός, in Hom. mostly 'hard to hear, painful, severe', etym.? Boisacq 1048.

Grk. δύσκολος 'hard to please, discontented', later 'difficult' (so NT as in NG), formed as opposite to εὔκολος and with similar semantic development (9.96).

2. Lat. difficilis (> It., Fr., Sp. forms; Rum. dificil fr. Fr.), cpd. of facilis 'easy' (9.96) with the separative-negating dis-.

Rum. greu 'heavy' (11.81) and 'difficult'.

3. Ir. anse, cpd. of asse 'easy' (9.96) with neg. prefix. Pedersen 1.47.

Ir. doirb, see soirb 'easy' (9.96).

Ir. decair (adj. and sb.; K. Meyer, Contrib. 595), NIr. deacair, prob. neg. cpd. opp. to socair 'smooth, calm, quiet, easy' (Dinneen), second part prob. : cuirim 'put'. Macbain 124, 334.

W. anodd, older anhawdd, neg. cpd. of hawdd 'easy' (9.96). Morris Jones 247.

Br. diez, neg. of aez 'easy' (9.96). Henry 96.

4. Goth. aglus : agls 'shameful', OE egle 'loathsome, troublesome', etc., with development similar to that in Grk. δύσκολος. Walde-P. 1.41. Feist 15.

ON prefix tor- (: Goth. tuz-, Grk. δυσ-, Skt. dus-), opp. of auð- (9.96) and used in parallel cpds., e.g. tor-fyndr 'hard to find', tor-sōttr 'hard to come at or do'.

ON erfiðr, OE earfeþe, earfoþe (e.g. Aelfric Gram. earfoþe = Lat. difficilis), orig. 'burdensome, toilsome', deriv. of ON erfiði 'toil, labor', OE earfoþ 'hardship' = Goth. arbaiþs 'toil', etc. (9.12).

ON vandr 'particular, choice, requiring pains to attain', also 'difficult', Dan. vanskelig 'difficult' (Sw. vansklig 'changeable, fickle, risky', in some phrases 'difficult') : ON vinda, Goth., OE windan, etc. 'turn', with development through 'turning, twisting, eluding one's efforts'. Walde-P. 1.261. Falk-Torp 1339.

Sw. svår, see below under MHG swære, etc.

OE unēaþe, more common in adv. OE unēaþe, ME un(n)ethe, NE dial. uneath (NED s.v.), neg. cpd. of ēaþe 'easy' (9.96).

Late ME, NE difficile, fr. Fr. id. (above, 2). Replaced by difficult, back-formation fr. sb. difficulty (Lat. difficultās).

ME, NE hard, orig. only 'hard' vs. 'soft' (15.74), hence 'difficult' through the notion of 'resisting', and now even more common in this sense than 'difficult'.

Du. moeilijk, deriv. of MDu. moeye 'trouble, pains, burden' = NHG mühe, etc. Franck-v. W. 436.

OHG unōdi, neg. cpd. of ōdi 'easy' (9.96).

MHG swære, NHG schwer, also and orig. 'heavy' (15.81). Hence NHG schwierig unambiguously 'difficult', but still less common than schwer. Dan. svær (fr. NHG? Falk-Torp 1222) sometimes, but less commonly 'difficult'. Sw. svår formerly 'heavy', now only 'difficult' (tung 'heavy').

5. Lith. sunkus 'heavy' (15.81) and 'difficult'.

Lett. grūts, orig. and still locally 'heavy' : Grk. βαρύς, Lat. gravis, etc. 'heavy' (15.81). Mühl.-Endz. 1.669 f.

6. ChSl. ne udobĭ (Gospels, Mk. 10.24 kako ne udobĭ = πῶς δύσκολόν ἐστι), neg. phrase with udobĭ 'easy' (9.96).

SCr. težak, Boh. těžký (or obtižny) 'heavy' (15.81) and 'difficult' (Pol. ciężki, Russ. tjaželyj in phrases with 'work, task, problem', etc., but not in phrases 'it is difficult to').

Pol. trudny, Russ. trudnyj, derivs. of forms = ChSl. trudŭ 'toil, pains' : Lat. trūdere 'thrust, press', OE þrēat 'throng, oppression, distress', etc. (cf. NE threaten 18.44). Walde-P. 1.755. Brückner 577.

7. Skt. duṣ-kara-, etc., opp. of su-kara-, etc. 'easy' (9.96).

'Try' is understood here as 'make trial of, test', though many of the words, like NE try, came to be used with the infinitive in the sense of 'attempt, endeavor' (9.99). For the sake of brevity these two notions may be referred to as 'try'[1] and 'try'[2]. The semantic sources are various, as 'get through' (through 'experience' to 'try'), 'approve', 'weigh', 'try to find out, seek, ask', 'separate, sift', 'look around, inspect'.

Several of the words cover also 'approve', partly secondary (as make a test with favorable result), but the earlier sense in the case of Lat. probāre with its derivs., which, in addition, show the sense 'prove' = 'establish as true'.

Many of the words came to be used for 'tempt', especially in biblical language and in the bad sense; in some this became the dominant use and without necessarily bad sense. In fact, the majority of the words for 'tempt' are the same as, or cognate with, some of those listed here. There are, of course, others of quite different origin, based on notions like 'lead into, invite, attract, allure, entice'.

Several of the words are also used more specifically with reference to food, that is, as 'taste' (15.31).

1. Grk. δοκιμάζω, fr. δόκιμος 'approved' : δοκέω 'seem, seem good', Lat. decet 'is proper', and, with different semantic development, Grk. διδάσκω 'teach', Lat. discere 'learn', docēre 'teach', all prob. fr. notion of 'receive' (hence 'acceptable') as in Grk. δέκομαι 'receive'. Walde-P. 1.782 ff. Boisacq 172, 194.

Grk. πειράω ('try' in both senses Hom.+), πειράζω (mostly 'try'[1], later also 'tempt' and sometimes 'try'[2]) : πεῖρα 'trial, attempt', Lat. experīrī 'try, experience', perīculum 'trial, experiment, danger', prob. the same root per-* as in Grk. πέρᾱν 'beyond, across', πείρω 'pierce', Lat. per 'through', etc. Walde-P. 2.88 ff. Boisacq 756 f. Ernout-M. 756 f.

2. Lat. experīrī : Grk. πειράω, etc. (above, 1).

Lat. temptāre (later spelling tentāre) 'feel of', mostly 'try'[2], also 'attack, incite' (> It. tentare, Fr. tenter, Sp. tentar in various senses including 'try' and 'tempt'), prob. : Lith. tempti 'stretch' (cf. Lat. tempus 'time'), fr. an extension of IE ten-* in Grk. τείνω, Lat. tendere, Skt. tan- 'stretch', Lat. tenēre 'hold', etc. Walde-P. 1.721 f. Ernout-M. 1024.

Lat. probāre 'approve, find good', 'try'[1], and 'prove', first sense the earliest, Osc. prúfatted 'approved', deriv. of probus 'good, upright', fr. pro-bhwo-* (cf. superbus) : Skt. pra-bhu-, 'excelling, eminent, mighty', orig. 'being in front'. Hence It. provare, OFr. prover (Fr. prouver 'prove'; as 'try' replaced by éprouver, but this also 'prove' and esp. 'experience'), Sp. probar, and similar forms (partly through Fr., also partly through sb. MLat. proba, a back-formation to probāre) in Celtic, Gmc., and Slavic. Walde-P. 2.37. Ernout-M. 812 f. REW 6764.

It. assaggiare (now esp. 'taste'), OFr. a(s)sayer, Fr. essayer, derivs. of It. saggio, OFr. assai, essai 'trial', fr. late Lat. exagium 'weighing, balance' (: exigere 'weigh, try' with recomposition). REW 2932. Gamillscheg 384 f. Wartburg 3.255 ff.

Rum. cerca, orig. 'seek' (= It. cercare, Fr. chercher, 11.31), now mostly 'try', for which esp. încerca.

3. Ir. promaim, NIr. fromhaim, W. profi, fr. Lat. probāre (above, 2). Vendryes, De hib. voc. 169. Loth, Mots lat. 1991.

NIr. triailim, fr. sb. triail, this for NE trial, but helped by native triall, triallaim (9.99).

Br. esaat, fr. sb. esa(e), this fr. Fr. essai. Henry 116.

4. Goth. (ga)kiusan (reg. for δοκιμάζω; also us-, but mostly for ἀποδοκιμάζω 'disapprove, reject'), OE costian, OHG corōn, costōn, MHG, NHG kosten (now mostly 'taste') : OE cēosan 'choose', Goth. kausjan (with gen. for γεύομαι, but with acc. for δοκιμάζω), Grk. γεύομαι, Lat. gustāre 'taste, enjoy' (15.31), Skt. juṣ- 'enjoy', IE ĝeus-*, orig. sense 'try' > 'taste', 'choose' and 'enjoy', or conversely 'taste' > 'try', 'choose' and 'enjoy'? Walde-P. 1.568 f. Ernout-M. 439. Walde-H. 1.628 f. Feist 312 f.

Goth. fraisan (reg. for πειράζω, partly 'make trial of', but esp. 'tempt'), ON freista, ODan. freste, Sw. fresta ('try', but esp. Many of the words for 'try'[2] = 'attempt, endeavor' are the same as those for 'try'[2] = 'make trial of, test', which came to be used with the infinitive, like NE try to.

Many are words for 'seek', which came to be used with the infinitive, like NE seek to (now mostly lit.). Other sources are 'take care of, attend to', 'reflect upon, consider', 'begin, undertake',

'yearn for', and 'make an effort'. But some words in which the strenuous effort is still felt are omitted, e.g. NG πολεμῶ orig. 'make war', now pop. 'struggle, try hard', NE strive orig. 'contend', NHG bemühen.

1. Words for 'try'[1] (9.98) used also for 'try'[2].

Grk. πειράω, NG δοκιμάζω (often 'try'[2] in pop. speech), It. provare (use for 'try'[2] not in most dicts., but common according to informants), tentare, Fr. essayer, tenter, Rum. încerca, Br. esaat, ME fonde (NED s.v. fand, 5), NE try (try to since 17th. cent.), NHG versuchen (with infin. since 16th. cent.; hence the similar use of Dan. forsøge, Sw. försöka), Lith. bandyti, mėginti, SCr. pokušati, Boh. skoušeti, but esp. refl. pokusiti se in this sense.

2. Words for 'seek' (11.31), used also (some of the preceding also belong here in orig.) with infin. for 'try'[2].

Grk. ζητέω (with infin. Hdt.+; reg. word for this sense in NT, and rendered by words for 'seek' in the Vulgate, Goth., OE and ChSl. versions); It. cercare, Fr. chercher, Rum. cauta, W. ceisio, Goth. sōkjan, ON leita (við), OE sēcan, ME seke, NE seek, OHG suohhen, MHG suochen, ChSl. iskati (SCr. tražiti, Boh. hledati so used in NT).

3. Grk. προσπαθέω 'feel passionate love for' (: πάθος 'emotion, passion,' 16.12), NG with νά clause (= old infin.) 'try to'.

Similarly, fr. the same root, NG pop. πασκίζω, deriv. of πάσκω (πάσχω) 'suffer, experience'.

4. Lat. cōnārī, etym. dub. Walde-P. 1.398 f. Ernout-M. 213. Walde-H. 1.262.

It. procurare, Sp. procurar, fr. Lat. procūrāre 'take care of, attend to' (whence also Fr. procurer > ME, NE procure with different semantic development), deriv. of cūra 'care' (16.14).

Fr. tâcher, deriv. of tâche 'task', or blend of tastāre* 'feel' (It. tastare, Fr. tâter) with Fr. chercher 'seek'. REW 8595. Gamillscheg 828.

Rum. umbla 'walk' (10.45) also used with să for 'try'[2]. Tiktin 1676. Şaineanu s.v. tâcher.

5. Ir. triallaim : triall 'attempt, purpose', orig. 'journey' (?), fr. tre-ell-* cpd. of ell- 'go, set in motion' (10.47). Pedersen 2.511.

NIr. tabhraim (or tugaim) iarracht ar, lit. 'give effort to', phrase with iarracht 'attempt, effort' : iarraim 'seek' (11.31).

6. OE onginnan 'begin' (14.25), sometimes with infin. 'attempt, try' and glossing Lat. cōnārī.

NE endeavor, fr. late ME endevoir, endover, endever 'exert oneself', fr. en- and devoir 'duty', hence orig. 'take on as one's duty'. NED s.v.

Du. pogen, etym.? Franck-v. W. 514.

Du. trachten = NHG trachten (with nach or danach), fr. OHG trahtōn 'consider, reflect upon' (cf. NHG betrachten), fr. Lat. tractāre 'handle, manage, treat' and 'consider'. Franck-v. W. 705. Weigand-H. 2.1057.

7. Lett. raudzīt 'see, look at, pay attention to' and with infin. 'try' : raugs 'pupil of the eye' and perh. : Russ. ruž' 'face', na-ruzy 'outside'. Mühl.-Endz. 3.486.

8. Pol. starać się, Russ. starat'sja = SCr., Boh. starati se 'be anxious, take care of, be concerned with, busy with', orig. 'grow old', derivs. of word for 'old', ChSl. starŭ, etc. (14.15). Old age was associated with care (cf. Boh. starost in both senses), and the latter notion became dominant. Miklosich 320. Brückner 513, 514. Otherwise (fr. ster-* in Grk. στερεός, NHG starr, etc. 'firm, stiff') Walde-P. 2.628; Persson, Beiträge 430.

Boh. snažiti se (Pol. snażyć się obs.), fr. snaha 'effort' = SCr. snaga 'strength', etc. Miklosich 312. Brückner 504.

9. Skt. yat- used in various senses, but esp. 'exert oneself, be eager for, strive for' (followed by case-forms or infin.) = Av. yat- 'set in motion, be active, zealous' : W. (arch.) add-iad, add-iant 'longing', Ir. ēt 'zeal, jealousy', many other connections dub. Walde-P. 1.197.

Several of the words for 'way, manner' (of doing something) are also used for the 'kind, sort' (of things), and still others must have passed through this stage, especially those based upon 'form, appearance' or the like. The diverse notions which have been generalized to 'manner' include 'turn, direction', 'way' (= 'road'), 'measure', 'handling, conduct, performance', 'arrangement, order', and 'form, appearance'.

The use of such words has spread at the expense, but by no means to the exclusion, of the old adverbs of manner formed from adjectives or pronouns, in such well-known types as Grk. καλῶς, Lat. bene, Goth. waila, NE well, ChSl. dobrě, all 'in a good manner, well', or Lat. ita, Skt. tathā, OE þus, etc. 'in this manner, thus'. Conversely, NE wise has become virtually an adverbial ending in likewise, otherwise, etc., and late Lat. phrases with mente, abl. of mēns 'mind, disposition', have given rise to the new adverbial ending, It., Sp. -mente, Fr. -ment.

1. Grk. τρόπος, orig. 'turn, direction' : τρέπω 'turn' (10.12).

2. Lat. modus (> It., Sp. modo, Fr. mode), earliest sense 'measure', fr. the root of Lat. medērī 'care for, heal', meditārī 'think about', Grk. μέδομαι 'be mindful of', Goth. mitan 'measure', etc. Walde-P. 2.259 f. Ernout-M. 599, 622 ff. Walde-H. 2.56.

NE happen by etymology and early use referred to a chance occurrence, as still felt in phrases like I happened to be there. But it became also the most general verb to express any event, with no necessary implication of chance. Cf. NED s.v. It is in this wider sense that the heading is to be understood. But in several languages there is no equally common general term, and the notion may be expressed in a variety of ways with some slight difference of nuance. The selection listed is somewhat unbalanced (cf. the numerous NIr. phrases in McKenna).

The most frequent connections are with verbs for 'fall' (Grk., Lat., W., Br., Skt.; cf. also NE befall now arch.) or 'come' ('out', 'to' or 'together'). In several cases 'be fitting' is the immediate antecedent. Some are reflexives of verbs for 'stand', 'put' (cf. also NE take place, NHG stattfinden), or 'hit'. But there are still other sources.

1. Grk. τυγχάνω, aor. ἔτυχον, NG τυχαίνω (new pres. fr. aor.), beside τύχη 'fortune, good fortune', prob. : τεύχω 'make, prepare', Goth. daug, OE deag, OHG toug 'is of use', etc. Walde-P. 1.847. LS s.v. τυγχάνω, end.

Grk. συμβαίνω, cpd. of συν- 'together' and βαίνω 'go, walk'.

Grk. συμπίπτω 'fall together', also 'happen'.

2. Lat. accidere, cpd. of cadere 'fall' (10.23), whence also the re-formation It. accadere, and Sp. suceder (Lat. succidere) 'follow, succeed', impers. 'happen'. Ernout-M. 126. REW 61.

Lat. contingere (> Sp. acontecer), cpd. of con- 'together' and tangere 'touch' (15.71). Ernout-M. 1016 f. REW 2184.

W.	symud, ysgogi	MHG	rüeren, bewegen
Br.	finval, flacha	NHG	bewegen (rühren)

The nouns for 'motion' are not listed, as they are derivatives of the verbs listed here. In these the transitive 'move' = 'put in motion' (the commonest transitive use of NE move = 'change the position of', as in move a chair, is secondary and of course not intended here, this notion being expressed quite differently in most other languages) and the intransitive 'move' = 'be in motion' are generally expressed by the same, or by differentiated forms of the same, verb. In the majority of cases the transitive use is the primary, with intransitive expressed by middle, passive, or reflexive forms. But the Skt. and Av. roots listed are intransitive, with the transitive expressed by causative forms. A few of the words listed are intransitive only.

Verbs for 'move' are often related to those for 'turn, bend', 'raise', 'carry', 'stir', 'mix', etc. The sense 'move' may result from extension of one of these senses as the more original, or in some cases 'move' may be the more original, and the other uses be due to specialization.

1. Grk. κῑνέω: κίω 'go', Lat. ciēre, cīre 'set in motion, excite, summon', IE kei-, beside extension ky-eu in Grk. σεύω 'set in swift motion, drive, chase', mid. 'rush, hasten', Skt. cyu- in mid. 'move, move away' intr., OPers. ašiyava 'set out, marched'. Walde-P. 1.361 ff. Ernout-M. 186. Walde-H. 1.213 f.

Hence NG lit. κινῶ, but pop. κουνῶ by blend with κουνῶ 'rock' (a cradle), deriv. of κουνί, κούνια 'cradle' (fr. Lat. cunae). G. Meyer, Neugr. Stud. 3.35.

Grk. σαλεύω 'shake, toss' (10.26), in NG 'stir', 'wag' (as of a dog's tail), also simply 'move' (intr.).

2. Lat. movēre (> It. muovere, Fr. mouvoir, Sp. mover; Anglo-Fr. mover > ME, NE move) : Skt. mīv- 'push, press', Av. ava-mīvāmahi 'we deprive', Grk. ἀμεύσασθαι 'pass over, surpass' (also ἀμῦνω 'ward off'?). Walde-P. 2.252. Ernout-M. 634 f. REW 5703.

Fr. remuer, cpd. of OFr. muer 'change' (fr. Lat. mūtāre). REW 5785.

Fr. bouger (orig. and now only intr.), fr. VLat. bullicāre* (cf. It. bulicare), deriv. of bullīre 'bubble' (10.31), whence 'be agitated, move'. REW 1388. Wartburg 1.617 f.

Rum. mişca, etym.? Tiktin 995 ("sicherlich Erbwort, aber dunklen Ursprungs"). Not in REW or Puşcariu. Development fr. some deriv. of Lat. miscēre 'mix', through the notion of 'stir up, agitate' (as seen in It. mestare 'stir', fr. miscitāre;* cf. OE hrēran, etc., below, 4) would be attractive if the phonetic difficulties could be overcome.

3. Ir. -luur (e.g. in dana-m-luur 'when I rouse myself'), vbl. n. luud, whence Ir. luadaim, luathaim, prob. fr. IE pleu-* in Grk. πλέω 'sail, float', OE flēotan, NE float, etc. Walde-P. 2.94 f. Pedersen 2.571 f.

NIr. corruighim, deriv. of MIr. corrach 'uneven, unsteady', this fr. corr 'uneven, odd, pointed', prob. fr. IE kwerp-* in ON hverfa, OE hwēorfan 'turn', etc. (10.12–13). Walde-P. 2.472, (without corruighim). Macbain 71.

W. symud, fr. MW symudau 'change' (cf. semantic development in Fr. remuer), fr. Lat. sub-mutāre 'change, interchange'. G. S. Lane, Language 8.298.

W. ysgogi : Br. di-skogella 'shake', ChSl. skočiti 'jump', OE scacan 'shake', etc., IE *(s)kek-, (s)keg-. Walde-P. 2.556. Pedersen 1.125.

Br. finval, MBr. fifual : W. chwifio 'stir, wave, brandish', perh. ON svimma, OE swimman, etc. 'swim' (10.35). Walde-P. 2.524. Henry 122. Stokes 323.

Br. flacha (intr.), fr. OFr. fleschier (Fr. fléchir) 'bend, turn aside' (fr. Lat. flexicāre). Henry 123.

4. Goth. ga-wigan, OHG wegan, whence caus. Goth. wagjan, -wagjan (but Goth. forms mostly for σαλεύω 'shake'; OE wecgan, wagian also 'shake', NE waw, wag), OHG weggen, MHG, NHG bewegen (> Dan. bevæge) : Skt. vah-, Av. vaz-, Lat. vehere, etc. 'carry, ride', etc., IE weĝh-* (10.66). Walde-P. 1.250. Feist 212. The assumption of two distinct roots weĝh-* (Meillet, BSL 35.2.116) is uncalled for.

Goth. wiþōn (Mk. 15.29, the only extant Goth. passage where Grk. has κῑνέω, but here also 'shake, wag') : Skt. vyath- 'waver, stagger'. Walde-P. 1.318.

ON hreyfa, Norw. røyva, fr. an IE kreu-p-*, prob. related to Skt. kruñc- 'bend' (kreu-k-*), Lith. kreipti 'twist, turn' (krei-p*), etc., parallel extensions of IE *(s)ker- in words for 'twist, turn, bend'. Falk-Torp 879 (Walde-P. 2.568 ff. without hreyfa).

ON hrœra, Sw. röra, Dan. røre, OE hrēran, OHG ruoren, MHG rüeren (NHG rühren now more specialized; cf. Paul, Deutsches Wtb. s.v.), through 'stir' fr. an orig. meaning 'mix' : Skt. çrī-, Grk. κεράννῡμι 'mix', etc. Walde-P. 1.419 f. Falk-Torp 937, 1536. Hellquist 875.

OE styrian, ME styre (NE stir) : ON styrr 'tumult', NHG stören 'disturb', zerstören 'destroy', and with m-suffix ON stormr, OE, NE storm, etc., perh. related to forms without s-, Skt. tvar- 'hurry', Lat. turbāre 'disturb, agitate', OHG dveran 'whirl rapidly', IE twer-*. Walde-P. 1.749. Falk-Torp 1194.

5. Lith. judinti, intr. judėti : Av. yuz-, OPers. yud- 'be in commotion', Skt. yudh- 'fight', Lat. iubēre 'command', IE yeudh-*. Walde-P. 1.203 f. Ernout-M. 500. Walde-H. 1.725.

Lett. kustināt, kustēt, cf. Lith. kusėti 'rouse oneself' : Russ. kiset' 'swarm', Grk. κυκάω 'mix'. Berneker 672. Mühl.-Endz. 2.329.

6. ChSl. dvignąti (reg. for κῑνέω and σαλεύω in Gospels; cf. dviženĭje = κίνησις), Russ. dvinut', dvigat' (the other Slavic cognates mostly 'raise, lift'), outside connections dub. Berneker 240 suggests d-vignąti, with prefix d- (zero grade to Lat. ad) and vignąti* : Skt. vij- 'start up, flee from, tremble', Av. vij- 'swing, throw', ON vīkja 'recede, give way'. Doubted by Walde-P. 1.235.
